GRAIN COMMISSION.

Special Data Submitted as to Elevator Shortages.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—The Dominion Government Grain Commission wound up its session in Toronto on Saturday morning, when a brief sitting was held. C. B. Watts, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, was recalled to give some further special data dealing with elevator shortages, and John L. Fisher of Toronto, manager for James Richardson & Son, grain dealers, of Kingston, presented further claims as to shortage of wheat when delivered from lake port elevators, and also as to shortage of cars.

The Commission will sit in Kingston to-day, and will, after concluding its business there, go to Montreal. They expect to return to Toronto about Oct. 15 to have representations from the farmers of Ontario.

Gas Main Explodes.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—An explosion of a gas main at Queen street and Dovercourt road shook the whole neighborhood early Saturday morning. Over 25,000 cubic feet of gas escaped. Many windows were broken. The total damage is placed at about $1,000.

Ottawa Wins Case.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The case of the Consumers' Electric Co. against the City of Ottawa, in which a claim for $3,000 for supplies was sued on, was finished before Judge Anglin Saturday and resulted in a win for the city.

Savignac Arrested.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—Joseph A. Savignac, who shot his wife and mother-in-law at Janesville on Monday last, was arrested Saturday in Beauharnois, six miles from the international boundary. He made a desperate fight against capture. He was searched and had two loaded revolvers, a box of cartridges and $156 in money in his pocket. He claims to have no knowledge of the shooting. The victims of his shooting are recovering.

Wire Tappers Fined.

Windsor, Oct. 1.—The four men charged with tapping the wires of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co at Windsor on Sept 1, were fined by His Honor Judge Horne at Sandwich as follows: $100 on Frank Robinson, the leader, and $50 each on the others, Philip McGory, Arthur Welch and Lawrence Moran

Coin For Canada.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—A considerable amount of silver and bronze coin arrived in Quebec last week from England. The steamer Tunisian brought 233 cases and the Empress of Ireland 56 cases. They are consigned to the receiver-general of Canada.

License Inspector Removed.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Dougal McMurphy has been removed from the inspectorship of licenses for the district of Rainy River West, as a result of the investigation made by the Government into matters complained about there.

Four Towns Wiped Out.

But Greatest Misery Prevails In Larger Ruined Cities.

Estimate Of Storm Devastation In the Gulf Coast Places the Number Of Dead at 250 and the Property Damages at Ten Millions—Fatal Devotion to Duty of the Lighthouse Keeper Of the Horn Island Light.

New Orleans, Oct. 1.—Some estimate of the devastation wrought by the storm along the 150 miles of coast between this city and Pensacola, Fla., was made possible yesterday.

The total loss of life will not, it is certain, be less than 250, and the damage to property easily will exceed $10,000,000.

At least four of the picturesque little towns planted on the brink of the gulf have been wiped out of existence, while the fate of as many more is still a matter of doubt. In the wrecked and ruined larger cities the greatest misery prevails, hunger already having added its sting to the horror.

Lighthouses Swept Away.

The coast for a hundred miles is littered with wrecks and scores of bodies have been washed ashore. Lighthouses have been swept away, the keeper, his wife and daughter perishing in one.

New Orleans itself escaped with little damage, and, so far as reported, the loss of life here does not exceed ten drowned.

The loss was heaviest among shipping. Eight large sailing vessels and about thirty small vessels were wrecked, and Ship Island, Cat Island and Horn Island were submerged.

The federal quarantine station on Ship Island was badly damaged, and about $1,000,000 damage was done to property on the mainland.

Every House Swept Away.

Every house in the Villages of Navyport, Bayou la Bahe, and Codea, were wiped out of existence. Several persons are reported to have lost their lives at Coden.

Every house in the Village of Navyport, where scores of pilots and fishermen lived, was wrecked, and seven lives lost. Greater loss of life is reported from Dauphin Island, which was submerged, and the residents forced to flee in boats. One boat, with thirteen persons on board, is believed to have gone down in the storm.

The entire west shore below Mobile is reported completely devastated. Twenty-five bodies have been recovered, and thirty more were reported as known to have perished.

Fatal Devotion to Duty.

After the storm subsided one of the saddest stories of the hurricane was brought into Scranton. A tug left Scranton before the storm reached its height and ran to Horn Island, out in the gulf, offering to take ashore Capt. Johnson, keeper of the Horn Island light, and his wife and daughter. Capt. Johnson refused to leave the light, and his wife and daughter would not separate from him. After the storm the tug went out again. The lighthouse had been destroyed, and hours of search failed to reveal any sign of the fate which overtook the keeper.

AT PENSACOLA, FLA.

Twenty-Six Are Dead and There Are 3,000 Homeless.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 1.—The loss of life and the damage resulting from the hurricane which struck this city Thursday morning are heavy.

The list of dead has grown to 26, and it is known that many more have been lost and others injured, while 3,000 are homeless.

For ten miles east and west streets are strewn with the wrecks of homes and vessels of all kinds. Commencing at Fort McRae on a point overlooking the gulf and continuing to Escambia Bridge, east of the city, there is nothing but devastation.

At McRae five lives were lost. The experience of 20 men there was trying. They thought the batteries the highest point, as the waves began to dash over them and lashed themselves to the guns. There they clung for more than 12 hours. The wife of Sergeant Prentice and her little child were at the post. Three artillerymen were washed from the batteries. The fort was bady damaged.

Brave Customs Inspector.

The quarantine station has disappeared, except one house. Several vessels there are damaged. Customs Inspector Bailey saved the lives of eight of the attaches by swimming with a line across the channel to the remaining house. The hospital collapsed early in the night. Eight seamen, patients, with two nurses, clung to the floating roof. Five spent the night on the raging seas and were washed upon this side. The other five perished.

Two members of a picnic party perished.

At Escamble trestle, a mile in length, the cottage of the keeper of the drawbridge was carried away and the keeper's wife and 12 persons were drowned.

Are Without Flour.

Flour cannot be procured, but other necessities are available. Extending for a mile west of the city were the small cottages of fishermen, all close to the beach. These have been wiped out. Three men are known to be dead there. Many daring rescues were recorded.

At Carseb Point fifty persons are homeless and starving, with no way of reaching safety. The messenger left there Friday morning, and at that time the entire party had been 24 hours without food. They have no shelter or clothing.

Ships In Front Yards.

It will be three months before the streets are cleared. Of 22 ships and barks in the harbor one remains, and it is hardly damaged.

Some ocean ships of 2,000 tons are resting in front yards; others have been driven through houses; some have their noses pointed into stores, while others are keeled over on their sides in the bay or piled up on the beach.

Only four tug boats out of a fleet of about 20 remain. About 30 fishing schooners of 50 or 75 tons were moored alongside wharves, and two remain intact.

Wharves were cleared of their shipping and freight.

AT MOBILE, ALA.

One Hundred Lives Are Lost and Property Damage Is $4,500,000.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 1.—Between 75 and 100 lives lost, fully two score vessels driven ashore or wrecked in various parts of the Gulf of Mexico, damage amounting to $4,500,000 in the City of Mobile and to several millions at outside points is the record of the storm, which swept over Mobile on Wednesday and Wednesday night. No accurate estimate of the number of the casualties can be made yet, and it is doubtful if it will be made known for a week or more.

Handsome Imported JACKETS.

With the addition of Five Hundred New Coats which have just come to hand our assortment is now large enough to enable us to promise every lady who desires one—a jacket satisfactory in every way.

These come direct from the world's greatest jacket centre—Berlin, Germany,—where the small cost of labor enables us to offer you handsome coats at moderate and popular prices.

The styles are exact duplicates of what the most fashionable ladies of Paris and London are wearing and are particularly pleasing as they combine warmth and a handsome appearance.

Besides the ladies' garments we are showing an unusual large range of Misses and Children's Coats. These are in entirely new styles and by their natty appearance will make a strong appeal to the young ladies.

—Ladies' Jackets from .... $5.00 to $35.00
—Misses' Jackets .... $4.50 to $15.00

Black Dress Goods

Black Dress Goods are this season holding a stronger position on the fashion chart than for some time, due in a great measure to the number of deaths in the Royal Families of Europe—many of the handsomest imported models being in all black or black with a touch of white.

In consequence of this demand the manufacturers have brought forward many new weaves which give a variety of choice seldom found in this staple color.

All the new ones are well represented in our fall showing. These include Amazons, Soliel Cord, Panamas, Llama Cloths, Cordiline, Thibet, Armure, German Satin Cloths, Chiffon, Broadcloths ranging in price per yard .... 50c, 75c, $1, and up to $2.00

COSTUME VELVETEENS

Velvets are daily gaining in popularity for all purposes, particularly costumes.

The foremost French modistes are expending every effort in turning out most elaborate costumes of English chiffon finished "Worrall Dyed" Velveteens.

Of these goods we have now a pleasing display in all the leading shades—guaranteed fast colors.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a new suit or dress, velvets are worthy of your consideration, not only because of their stylishness, but also of their handsome appearance. Ask to see them. Prices 75c and $1.00.

Skinner's Guaranteed Sateens

This brand of Satin has won a most worthy reputation (particularly in the United States) for its exceptional wearing qualities.

It is guaranteed by the manufacturers for two season's wear and for lining jackets and furs is without doubt the best material on the market today. We are sole agents for this section. If you want a lining that will wear, ask for Skinner's guaranteed satin.

—Skinner's guaranteed satin in seal brown, fawn, light and dark grey, white and mid brown, 27 in. wide (note the width) guaranteed for two seasons price per yard $1.25

MILLINERY PARLORS

The Rights Of a Witness.

The witness is a long suffering individual. Patiently through the years he has borne the taunts and insults of pettifogging lawyers. Occasionally he may have appealed to His Lordship, but it is not on the record that his appeal fell on sympathetic ears.

Brow-beating of witnesses has become an outrage on decency, a disgrace to the legal profession, and a serious reflection upon the fairmindedness of the judiciary, says a contemporary, very pointedly. The rights of the witness! A witness has no rights that can be discovered in the proceedings of an ordinary trial. A man of intelligence, refinement and unquestioned integrity he may be. But he has been subpoenaed as a witness and perforce becomes the butt of the innuendo, sarcasm and abuse of some stripling lawyer before a crowded court room.

What boots it to the paid counsel of the other side that this man is thoroughly honest and desirous only of telling a truthful story? All the more reason why to the jury the impression should be conveyed that he is lying.

"What color did you say the horse was, black or white?" demands the legal luminary. The witness proceeds to explain that it was neither black nor white, but counsel thunders a declaration that the question must be answered straight; no quibbling, no speeches, no beating about the bush. Black or white? And the calm eyed judge looks on and smiles while the unfortunate witness is threatened, cajoled, villified, until if he is over-sensitive, he begins to imagine himself a very wicked man—or, if he has some aggressiveness in him, he longs for the opportunity to punch his assailant's face.

Are you interested in the welfare of the rising generation? If so, go to the Y.M.C.A. rooms to-morrow night and do what you can to make the outlook brighter for the directors, who will be compelled to close the rooms unless more interest is shown. 'Tis said that, last winter, an average of 200 young men and boys used the rooms nightly. What temptations might they have encountered had the rooms not been in existence? It is to be hoped that plans can be devised looking to the continuance of the work in Belleville. The matter would be easy if everyone were doing his part. Are you doing yours?

There is a water controversy in Hamilton, and the Spectator on Saturday contributed the following:

"The Spectator has no other object in this waterworks controversy than the improvement of the water for the people."

It is gratifying to note, in the interests of eternal truth, that the Spectator has no personal interest in the water. It is only "the people" for whom it is solicitous.

Our mutual friend, Mr. W. B. Riggs, has returned from a visit to Uncle Sam's domains. He says that, so far as he could see with the naked eye, Roosevelt is running things in a perfectly satisfactory way. He was anxious to know what Yankee Curtis thought of his phonetic spelling break, and when told that it would probably suit him "down to the ground," expressed considerable gratification. He said he thought it would. The President was naturally indignant when he heard the C.P.R. was to run across Queen Victoria park, and said he would certainly write to King Edward about it. Roosevelt's parting words were: "Tell Charlie Sulman I'm waiting anxiously to see whether he's going to run for a third term. If he does, well, I guess it will be up to me to give Bryan his bumps. Can I do it? Well, can you find nay mud on Front street?"

Preaching at St. Thomas' yesterday morning, an eloquent divine made the remark that "the blush of shame should rise to the face of every man who had to admit that there was a debt on his church." Perhaps that is the reason there are so many ruddy-complexioned men to be seen in this country!

The city of Edmonton last year spent $10,000 on celebrations and advertisements of itself, and its course is being held up by some as an example for others to follow. Flashy things have their effect, but it is usually of short duration, like the advertisement of a day and the celebration of a night. The Montreal Gazette, which is somewhat sedate itself, says; "There are sedate fellows, who will think that a like amount expended on street improvement, or water supply or fire protection would have attracted more permanent attention and attention of a better kind. And sedate fellows often buy bonds and that sort of thing."

The Hamilton Spectator rises to remark that "Tories who seek offices are 'hungry spoilsmen.' Liberals who nearly break their necks chasing jobs, of course, are 'patriots.'" What a lot depends upon the point of view!

A gentleman of independent views, who took quite a prominent part in the last provincial election, was asked this morning:

"Now, Mr. So-and-So, you, who profess to be neither a Grit nor a Tory, what do you think of the record of the Whitney Government since it attained power?"

"Well," said the party questioned, "I think they have done all that could be expected of them. We do not obtain perfection in our churches, how can we expect to do so in our governments? I think Mr. Whitney is honest and means well. That he has already done much good work no one can deny. That he will do more I believe. Yes, were the election of January 25, 1906, to be fought over again, I would, as I did then, do all in my power to upset the Ross Government."

The party who expressed the above views, it may be noted, is not, and never has claimed to be, a Conservative. In fact, he was, for many years a strong Liberal. But he simply could not condone the political iniquities of the late Ontario Government, and that he is fairly well satisfied with the change he helped bring about you can judge by what he said.

The synod of the United Presbyterian Church, meeting at Rochester, N.Y., has especially condemned the Sunday newspaper. New York State is in a way the home of the Sunday newspaper, and probably prints more papers for circulation on the first day of the week than any state in the union. There is probably a good deal of truth in the following, from a contemporary: "It is useless for church bodies to fulminate against what cannot be removed or stopped. They would do better by trying to turn the Sunday paper to some good."

A Western burglar was badly beaten by a woman who mistook the midnight visitor for her late arriving husband. The latter has taken the cue.

It would appear that certain conditions at the local hospital are such as to call for improvement. There is, it is said, no male orderly at the hospital, the consequence being that work which no refined woman should be asked to do is thrown upon the female nurses-in-training. The hospital authorities should look into this matter. The decencies of life demand it.

Some physicians, we are told, say that, were the work in question to be taken from the female nurses, it would necessitate the engaging of a male nurse at a large salary, but this contention can hardly be borne out. There are, probably, plenty of convalescent patients, in needy financial circumstances, who would willingly embrace the opportunity to do the work in question at a salary, say, of $15 a month No time should be lost by the hospital management in making this change. As before pointed out, the decencies of life cry out against work of the kind mentioned having to be performed by women.

RUBBER

When you buy rubber it pays to get it. There are few things in which quality counts for more than in rubber goods.

The demands of our trade require us to carry more than one quality of rubber goods, but each quality is sold for what it is, and is sold at an honest price. We carry practically everything in the line of Syringes, Hot-water Bottles, Sick-room Supplies, etc.

A QUESTIONABLE PROPOSITION.

(The Globe.)

To allow the Salvation Army to bring over to Canada "semi-incorrigible" girls is, to say the least, of questionable expediency. It would be hard on some of them to take away their chance of reform, but many a benevolent Canadian householder has had cause to repent giving such people a trial. Commissioner Nichol had better see that his wards have become wholly corrigible before he ships them to this country or they may have to be sent back.

Very Narrow Escape For William Penny

An aged man named Wm. Penny, who resides in this city, had this morning a miraculous escape from being killed. It appears that he is engaged in driving about a party of surveyors who are at work on the proposed C.P.R. line, and was in the vicinity of Trenton when the accident occurred. The particulars are meagre, but sufficient has been learned to state that Penny was driving alone over a railway crossing when the conveyance was struck by a passing train. The man was thrown some distance but fortunately his injuries were not of a serious nature. We are informed that the vehicle was badly wrecked, but the horses escaped. Penny, later in the day, was brought to his home here. Whether it was a passenger or freight train that struck the rig was not ascertained.

Gave Mr. Elliott A Hearty Send-off

Mr John Elliott, manager of the new branch of the Standard Bank which has just been opened up in this city, comes from Bradford, where he was, until recently, president of the Bradford branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society. The Bradford Witness thus reports an incident which transpired in connection with the last meeting of the above society, which shows that Mr. Elliott was an untiring worker for good in the place he has just left:

"The Rev. D. N. Morden moved and Mr T. W. W. Evans seconded in becoming terms the following appreciative resolution to the retiring president, Mr. John Elliott;

"That we the members and friends of the Bradford Branch Upper Canada Bible Society realizing something of the importance of the work of our Society in giving the Bible to the world, wish to record our appreciation of the splendid work done by our retiring President, Mr. Elliott. The grace, tact, enthusiasm and faithfulness which he brought with him to the office has been a large factor in quickening the interest of many in the Society and giving the prosperity to this Branch of the Society which it to-day enjoys. We regret his departure from our midst, realizing that we are losing a strong co-worker in this branch of the Lord's work. We rejoice in the assurance we have that the blessing of God will go with him and that he will be to the friends of the work wherever he may reside what he has been to us, and inspiration, a helper, and a director."

"The resolution was carried by a standing vote of the meeting.

"Mr. Elliott in reply expressed his appreciation of the expression of confidence contained in the resolution and for the kind words which had fallen from the lips of the several speakers. Any measure of success which had come to the Society during the six years which he had been honored with the Presidency, was not due to his individual efforts alone, for he realized that he was ably supported by a strong Board of Directorate and a good Secretary. He thanked the Society for enlarged views respecting its work. On coming to Bradford ten years ago the first public meeting he had the pleasure of attending was in connection with the Bible Society, and he was happy to say the last public meeting he would have the pleasure of attending was also in connection with the Bible Society. He had no intention of laying down the work, but would identify himself with the Society in his new field of labor. He would, however, watch the Bradford Branch with much interest and wished the Society abundant success in the years to come."

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

MISS ROSA McAHAN OF BUTTE.

How After Two Years She Found a Remedy for Dandruff.

Miss Rosa McAhan, of 211 West Quartz street, Butte, Mont., says: "Herpicide has thoroughly cleansed my scalp of dandruff, with which it was entirely covered; and it has stopped my falling hair. I have tried many different preparations in the past two years, but none took effect -except Newbro's Herpicide." Dandruff is a germ disease and Herpicide is an infallible destroyer of the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Kill the dandruff germ. Ask your druggist for Herpicide. It is a delightful dressing; allays itching; makes the hair soft as silk. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

The Moorish Slave Market.

One by one the great slave markets of the world are disappearing; yet, within three hours' steam of Gibraltar, Morocco remains one of the very few countries where the public auction of negroes, and other than negroes, may still be witnessed. Any traveller who finds his way to the imperial city, Marrakesh, should make a point of visiting its famous market, which has recently been attracting the attention of the powers. A century ago it was no uncommon thing for English men and English women — the captives of the Raisulis of that day — to pass into lifelong slavery from the very same yard, large and squalid, where I have just witnessed the auction of some twenty-five natives.

It seems hard to believe that while England was waging war with Napoleon the main duty of her Ambassadors in Morocco was to appeal to the Sultan, cap in hand, and with ample offerings of carriages and cannons — which the Moors described as tribute — for the release of British crews and their wives, who had had the ill fortune to be captured by the famous rovers of Sallee and Rabat. Faithful records of these transactions may yet be found in the diplomatic and consular reports of the period.

At about 5 o'clock on a Thursday afternoon the proceedings of the Marrakesh auction opened — with prayer — the eight or ten auctioneers formed in line, calling for the divine blessings upon both buyer and seller. In this appeal, I remarked, the slaves were not mentioned. Then leading his chattels from one group of possible buyers to another, each auctioneer went the round of the market, stating the amount of the last bid. The presence of Europeans is not welcome at these sales; but nothing was said to us, excepting that we were asked, courteously enough, not to walk about. For any looker-on to move from his place would, it seems, be a breach of slave-auction etiquette.

No writer in search of startling effects need visit the Marrakesh market. The whole thing, is, as a rule, business-like, not to say humdrum. Naturally enough the slaves, especially the girls, are dressed in their best, and artistically groomed, and in many cases a change of masters is looked forward to with pleasure. Somehow or other the horror we have all felt at some period of our lives evaporates considerably on facing the reality. It is quite obvious for one thing that the average Moorish negro does not want freedom. It is also a fact that in nine cases out of ten he is far better off than a free person of his capacity dare hope to be. Indeed, it is no uncommon thing for a freed slave to resell himself, and share the price paid with the friend who poses as original owner. We all, in theory, recognize the something wrong in slavery; but in some mysterious way theory and practice clash. Of one thing we may rest assured. A plebiscite of Moorish slaves would emphatically reject an offer of liberty which entailed the responsibility of working like an ordinary laborer.—Written by a Resident of Mogador for the London Daily Graphic.

The Man Behind

In almost every newspaper you pick up you are pretty sure to find a lot of gush about the man behind the counter and the man behind the gun, the man behind the buzzsaw, and the man behind the sun, the man behind the times and the man behind his rents, the man behind the ploughshare and the man behind the fence, the man behind the kodak and the man behind the bars, the man behind his whiskers and the man behind his fist, and everything is entered on the list. But they've skipped another fellow, of whom nothing can be said — the fellow who is even or a little way ahead, who pays for what he gets, his bills are always signed. He's a blame sight more important than the man who is behind. All the editors and merchants of the whole commercial clan are indebted for existence to this honest fellow man. He keeps us all in business, and his town is never dead, so we will all take off our hats to the man who is ahead.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE TYRANNY OF TIGHTS.

"Tyranny of Tights" is an alluring as well as an alliterative phrase and Miss Cheridah Simpson, who is at the head of the organization presenting DeKoven, Klein and Cook's romantic opera, "Red Feather," which comes to the Carman next Wednesday, was asked to explain it. Miss Simpson, let it be known, is tall, stately, the perfection of symmetry and beauty of form and face. "Why don't you know," she said, "that it is as hard for a woman who has a reputation for playing what are called 'shape parts,' to get cast for a role that permits her to wear skirts, as it is for a rich man to pass through the eye of a camel. That isn't the exact quotation, but you can look it up." Any one who has seen Miss Simpson in tights will testify that she is eminently qualified to make a success of a 'shape part.' She is tall and superbly formed, and as a prince in opera or a hero in spectacular travesty she must perforce shine resplendent.

A THEATRICAL TREAT.

One of the most successful musical plays that is now being presented is "A Trip to the Highlands," which is booked to appear at the opera house on Friday, Oct. 5. It is a refined musical play, free from slap stick comedy, and contains a bright and sufficient plot, with a chain of incidents better connected, and more consecutive than is usually found in plays of this sort. Such are the features that have won a verdict of approval. It is a difficult matter to describe with any degree of accuracy what stands for success in "A Trip to the Highlands." There is the captivating chain of neat lyrics and catchy melodies: there is the deep interest we feel in the first appearance here of the popular Scotch humorist, Spottiswoode Aitken. It is the combination of talent and ability that makes for perfection and that insures the success of the pleasant entertainment that we are about to have.

Notes From the Dock.

The steamer Caspian yesterday took a number from here on her trip down the bay and Thousands Islands.

A large quantity of apples were this morning taken on board the steamer Alexandria at Rossmore. They are for shipment to the Old Country.

The propellor Persia, of St. Catherines, passed up the bay yesterday, heavily laden with freight.

The steamer Caspian took many passengers from this city to Rochester last night.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says: "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. Samples free. To be had at R. Templeton & Co., drug store.

1000 ISLANDS AND ROCHESTER.

Str. Caspian leaves Belleville Sundays at 3.20 a.m. for Picton, Kingston and 1000 Islands. Returning leaves at 11.35 p.m. for Rochester. my23-tf

The Napanee Inquest.

GRAND TRUNK OFFICIALS SAY THERE WAS AMPLE ROOM ON THE SIDING FOR THE FREIGHT TRAIN — INQUEST AGAIN ADJOURNED.

Napanee, Sept. 29.—At the adjourned inquest regarding the G. T. R. collision a week ago, held last evening before Coroner Cowan, the following evidence was brought out:

David Young, fireman of the fruit special, swore that he was three car lengths on the main line when the collision occurred and had not reached the ground after jumping when the collision occurred. A question was asked him by the jury as to how long he had been on duty and he replied thirteen hours. Mr. Pope, of the G.T.R., questioned him as to whether it was his wish to be on duty and he answered that it was his wish.

Conductor G. Empey, of the east-bound express, gave testimony next. He said he was twenty minutes late leaving Belleville, and had no other information more than his clearance order. He was in the smoker when the engineer applied the brake and he judged it was about ten seconds after the brake was applied and the steam shut off that the crash came. He was running close to forty miles an hour, on schedule time.

E. Miron, fireman of express No. 2, east-bound, related the following: No. 2 was running about forty miles an hour. The first intimation he had of trouble was the three sharp shrieks of the whistle, which indicates trouble. He fell, or as he put it, reeled off the flying train, and was not seriously hurt only stunned.

Mr. Pope and Mr. Coyle, despatchers, from Montreal, were present, and gave detailed evidence of the length of the siding and length of the train showing that there was ample room on this siding and twenty-four feet to spare, after accommodating the fifty-three cars, with an allowance of 150 feet on both ends.

An adjournment was made until Wednesday next at 7.30 p.m.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY SINGERS TO-NIGHT.

Belleville people who have heard the Westminster Glee Singers in Montreal and Kingston during the last week are most enthusiastic over their singing, particularly the little boy sopranos, who, they say, sing like little angels, and are the finest they ever heard. In Montreal this choir had to give a second concert to satisfy the demands of the people. In Toronto the Massey Music Hall, the largest auditorium in Toronto, has been engaged for their appearance Saturday night of this week. Their concert in the local opera house this evening will be the musical event of the season and the house should be packed.

Sunday School "Rally."

The Sunday School "rally" at Holloway St. yesterday was enthusiastic and bright, with floral decorations and special music by orchestra and other selections, and the programme responses from teachers and scholars. The Secretary's report showed the attendance was 227, out of a total enrollment of 340. The collection was $5.17. Thirty were received from S. S. into the church during the year. There are eighteen classes and a full staff of officers and teachers. There are 160 Onwards, 80 Pleasant Hours, 65 Sunbeams, and Happy Days—alternating 14 Banners, 225 Quarterlies, making a total of 609 periodicals from our Book and Publishing House yearly. The Treasurer's report showed that $829.59 had been expended during the year for school purposes and improvements, and a total for all purposes of $883. A hearty welcome was given to Mr. A. E. Bailey, who recently returned from the west. The entire school is practically a total abstinance school by pledge as a whole.

JUST YOU HOLLER, "FINE."

There once lived a grey-haired feller,
Back in Readville, keepin' store,
Who had just as many troubles
As the rest of us—an' more;
But when folks 'ud stop an' ast him
How he felt, he'd never whine,
He'd jest smile a pleasant smile an'
Holler, "Fine!"

He was humpbacked jest a little,
An' his teeth wus mighty few,
An hay fever used to git him,
An' the rheumatism, too;
Yet when ast how he wus feelin',
Uf despair they'd see no sign,
He'd jest smile a pleasant smile an'
Holler, "Fine!"

Now, he didn't have no fambly—
All his folks had passed away,
An' his livin' wus a poor one,
Fer his store 'ud hardly pay.
But when ast how he wus feelin'
This here poor old Jerry Cline,
He'd jest smile a pleasant smile an'
Holler, "Fine!"

Jerry took down sick one mornin',
Oh, he simply writhed in pain,
An' the doc who come to see him
Seen his life wus on the wane;
He says, "How you feelin', Jerry?"
Even then they wus no whine;
Jerry smiled, an' with his last breath
Hollered, "Fine!"

What a great old world we'd find this
If the kickers all could be
Jest a little like old Jerry
(This includes, you, friends, an' me).
'Stead of spreadin' out our troubles,
Cut 'em clean down to the "rine,"
Say, less try it—less all smile an'
Holler, "Fine!"

The decrease in the import to England of doors from Canada and the United States last year is doubtless to be accounted for largely by the continued dullness of the building trade in the mother country; but as regards pine doors (says the Trades Journal), we think that the above-mentioned cause can hardly be responsible for the extraordinary decline which has taken place during the past five years, but is due to the steady increase in price. From Canada there was a decline of about £41,036 in 1902 to £25,000 in value last year.

No longer is the cry of the poor country editor heard in the land. Instead thereof there are paragraphs such as the following from the Renfrew Mercury: "Renfrew this week received its first automobile license from the Provincial Secretary's Department. It is No. 2077, for an electric runabout purchased by the editor of the Mercury, a couple of months ago. Its motive power is electricity from storage batteries; and as there is no noise, and it leaves no gasoline scent behind it, the most of the horses pay little attention to it, and those which did are rapidly growing accustomed to its horseless appearance."

The Largest Jack Manufacturer in the World Writes about

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

A Friend Told Me About

Bu-Ju

THE GENTLE KIDNEY CURE

Hundreds of people, who have been cured of Kidney Trouble by Bu-Ju, were first induced to try this wonderful remedy by friends who had themselves been cured. The sales of Bu-Ju are daily increasing, because everyone who takes them is benefitted—and these in turn, tell others. So the good news is spread.

Here is what a Picton man says about Bu-Ju:—

"I have used Bu-Ju with great benefit to myself, and cheerfully recommend to all who, I think, are suffering from Kidney Troubles and Rheumatism.

"I think Bu-Ju the best remedy made."

Yours sincerely,

TAKEN AT HER WORD

By JOANNA SINGLE

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

John Mason did not slam the gate simply because he knew that this manifestation of rage would surely delight Rosalie. She was watching his departure from the window, and he was angrily conscious that she knew he would, as usual, return in a few days, although she had said she hoped she would be rid of him for awhile. She was so young and so beautiful—and so provoking!

At the entrance to the little park, already growing green in the April sun, he met her sister. He did not know Anne very well—he had been too busy with Rosalie. He wished now that he had made friends with her; her blue eyes were so like and still so unlike Rosalie's. Anne stepped in front of him and stopped him unceremoniously.

"Been trampled upon again!" she observed. "John Mason, for so clever a man generally you're sometimes an awful—fool!" She submitted this thoughtfully, in a voice too gentle to be insulting.

"Then you and Rosalie are agreed, and I suppose you are expert testimony. May I turn and walk with you?"

She nodded and then asked a matter of fact question. "How many times has she refused you?"

"I had not thought to keep count. Rosalie just now informed me that this was the last time. I didn't know I had been the same sort of a—fool so often. But don't you think she ought to give me credit for my persistence? Not every man proposes so many times—to the same girl."

Anne laughed dryly as he continued:

"I would have given up long ago if I were not unexplainably sure that she does—care for me. In fact, she never has said directly that she does not. She simply says she won't marry me. What's the matter with me? Am I too rich? I can give away the stuff if she likes. Am I too successful? I might lose a case to please her. Should I be as ugly as Satan? Perhaps she would like a Beauty and the Beast effect! What does she want? I've said and done everything under heaven, and she walks on me—she trails me!"

"Precisely! That's why I called you—what I did. A girl likes to trail a man, but hates the man that will be trailed. Not logical, is it? To use her own words, you are always around underfoot. You give her no time to want you or miss you or think about you. She's too sure of you. She knows just where you'll be. You never let her want anything bad enough to appreciate it when it comes. She has always had her own way. She needs to be a bit afraid of you. She needs to be bullied!"

He frowned. "I am not a brute. That is not my way."

"No? Well, what has your way accomplished?"

He tried to laugh. "Oh, I'll take your advice. I'll do anything you say. It can't be worse than it is now."

"Well, I hate the responsibility. If you get her you'll fight; if you don't, you'll both be miserable anyhow. You must get her—and then work out your own salvation. In the first place, you must give her a shock. Write her a note and accept your dismissal. Tell her you begin to see that she is right and that you wish to be friendly with her and the family. Then call sometimes—on the father or on me. Don't stay away. Absences of that sort are flattering; you must be quite unaffected by her presence."

"You know that is impossible. You know how the sight of her"—

"You've got to do it! And you must take another girl out occasionally. Being naturally modest, I dislike to suggest that you send me flowers sometimes and come for a walk with me. That will bring things home to her. A girl hates to have an admirer transfer himself bodily to any one, but especially to her sister."

When they had planned their campaign and he left Anne at the gate she had him laughing. Rosalie saw them and shrugged her shoulders. While removing her hat in the hall Anne remarked to her sister:

"Well, dear, John tells me that you have dismissed him for good. You know I never would have interfered if you had wanted him, but I am glad you do not. Now you may find time for your music. Your talent is too marked to be neglected. It will be a relief for you to have him out of the way awhile. You're too young to leave father and me, and, after all, I think you're right about his not being the right man for you."

Rosalie shrugged her shoulders.

The next day Rosalie, without comment, handed Anne this note:

> Dear Miss Carleton—I want to thank you for your frankness of yesterday, and I assure you that I shall not annoy you again as I have in the past. Can you forgive me for having troubled you so much and so long? You are probably right in deciding that I could not make you happy, as I hoped to be able to do. May I hope to continue my present friendly relations with you and the rest of the family? If I may, I will not again trespass on your kindness. It will be, as you said, the last time you shall have the pain of refusing. Yours sincerely,
> JOHN MASON.

"Well, I like a man to know when he's had enough," remarked Anne. Again Rosalie shrugged her shoulders and made a wry little face.

For a week Rosalie was blithe and busy with her music. The second week Anne observed that the gayety was a bit forced and that during the third she moped a little. John had somehow kept the other men of her set away from her, and flowers and drives and theaters were less frequent. She had no time to miss him.

In the fourth week he called—while she was out. Of course she could not know that Anne had phoned him to come. He was leaving just as Rosalie entered and shook hands with her cordially. He did not look broken hearted, and he seemed to be on very good terms with Anne, to whom next morning he sent some violets. Rosalie saw him out walking with Mary Dye. Then he took Anne driving. She began to realize that Anne was very pretty if she was a year or two older than John.

Rosalie's irritation reached its climax one morning at the breakfast table when her younger brother Ted remarked in a teasing drawl:

"John seems to be taking his medicine like a man, Rosy! He's all right, and I am glad Anne seems inclined to keep him in the family. He probably appreciates being treated like a human being after the way you always walked on him. The fellows say he's the best young lawyer in town. But I should think you'd hate to have him take his punishment so cheerfully, Rosy!"

By this time Rosalie had reached the limit of endurance. She sprang up and, before any one could interfere, had boxed Ted's ears soundly and fled to her room. No one made comment on the scene save that Mr. Carleton amusedly met the laughter in Anne's eyes and told Ted that he would have no more of his teasing. Rosalie's capricious treatment of John had long been disapproved of by her family, and, while they were all sorry for her, they thought it time she should come to her senses.

Time had been slow and torturing to John. He wanted to tell Rosalie that he loved her and her only. He wanted to send her flowers, to give her every desire of her heart, and he found it a misery to see her or not to see her. Meantime he was very attentive to Anne, who was becoming vastly bored with his raptures and sorrows and was longing for him to win his Rosalie and let her go back to her old peaceful ways.

At last one night Anne waked and heard Rosalie sobbing to herself. In the morning she pleaded headache and stayed in her room till nearly evening. Anne had a long conference by telephone with John and took pains to have her father and Ted spend the evening elsewhere.

After dinner she went to Rosalie's room and pleaded being tired. She coaxed Rosalie to arrange her pretty hair and don a pretty gown so she could go down if any one should come. While Rosalie was sulkily doing as her sister wished, Anne heard the bell and slipped down to answer it. She came back saying it was some one for her father and asked Rosalie if she would mind going to the library and bringing the book she had left on the table.

Rosalie, in her trailing blue dress, went downstairs and through the hall into the library. She had half crossed the room before she saw John sitting in a great chair in the dim firelight. She wanted to flee from him, but somehow her feet would not move, nor did she find a word to say. Then to her dismay she knew that a slow tear was falling down her cheek. John came quickly toward her. It seemed very comfortable to be leaning against him. After awhile he held her off and looked at her. She tried to smile.

"Well," he questioned, "how shall it be? You know you said you hoped you would never have to refuse me again. I hope you will not. Just for variety, suppose you—take me."

After the little minutes had cunningly slipped away and it was time that he should leave her, Rosalie exclaimed in dismay:

"Oh, Anne's book! She will be waiting for it."

"I hardly think so," John asserted dryly. "Your sister Anne is wise. She knew better than to expect you in a moment when she sent you down to me!"

"Sent me to you!" Rosalie echoed.

"Yes, my lady! Do you imagine your sister has been trailing me about for her pleasure? She is more glad to be rid of me than—ever you were!"

"Then—it—was not—Anne—ever?"

John laughed and bade her good night.

"If you were not perfectly sure that it was 'not—Anne—ever,' you would never, never have asked me!" which both of them knew to be true.

And Anne went to bed and slept the sleep of one who has successfully performed an arduous duty.

Separations.

Why do we grieve at separations? Why do everlasting farewells chill our hearts, and the fading away of lost joys fill us with bitterness?

"Be not the slave of words," says Carlyle. "Is not the distant, the dead, while I love it and long for it and mourn for it, here in the genuine sense, as truly as the floor I stand on?"

And are not all good experiences thus forever a part of our lives? Can we therefore regret or mourn any past joy, any lost friend? Nothing is lost or gone from us that we have the spirit and capacity to appropriate and make our own forever. It is not the touch of body that makes presence. Have we not all known times when presence in the flesh brought no nearness, and again when the absent one seemed unspeakably near in spirit? So not to be within the actual physical sense, but to be able to appreciate and love the spirit of another, is the true association and communion. Hence our friends need never die, nor need we ever be parted from them.

Further, in order to realize them truly we need to be separated from them in the flesh at times. Else we shall grow to think them all body and forget that diviner, intangible, unnamable essence—the living spirit, the real self.—Exchange.

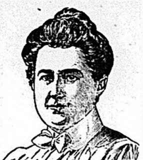
Griswold of Boston, editor and publisher of Profitable Advertising, has won for herself through courageous persistence and hard work ought to be an incentive to other young business women to forge ahead and reach the desired goal. Miss Griswold has had little help, and her attainment of an enviable position in the business world has been won solely through her own efforts.

West Hartford, Conn., was the place of her birth some thirty-five years ago. She was educated in the local schools and finished at Miss Haines' school in Hartford. Love of animals and out of door life have been elements of her success. The first led her to raise poultry when still in her teens, while the other life brought to her the health which has made her success possible.

Through her interest in poultry she became attached to the Poultry World in Hartford at the age of sixteen and soon was in full charge of the advertising end. Later it was the journal of the National Trotting association that benefited by her efforts, and so untiringly did she apply herself to business that her health failed and she was obliged to rest for a few years.



MISS KATE E. GRISWOLD.

Miss Griswold re-entered the business world again as editor and manager of the Hartford City Mission Record and for five years kept that publication on a paying basis. Meanwhile the various competitions in designing advertisements tempted her to try her skill, with the result that she won several prizes.

Through these endeavors she became known to the C. F. David Advertising agency of Boston, which opened negotiations with her which resulted in Miss Griswold becoming an editor upon the staff of Profitable Advertising, its publication.

Two years later this journal was declared a failure and unloaded upon the shoulders of its present owner. It was in 1895, when Miss Griswold became its publisher, and it had few subscribers and fewer assets. With undeniable courage she set to work to build it up, with what success is proved by the fact that it is now the leading advertising journal of the world, with representatives in dozens of foreign countries.

The publication of November, 1895, the first under Miss Griswold's ownership, contained thirty-two pages; a recent publication boasts several hundred and represents many thousands of dollars' worth of cash advertising.

Miss Griswold, as shown by the above picture, is a sweet, womanly woman. She is broad minded, soft spoken, generous to a degree and ever ready to aid her sisters in any laudable undertaking.—Boston Traveler.

A Powerful Woman's Work.

The woman with the queerest occupation in New England is Mrs. Alma Veasey Williams, who lives in a little weather beaten, patched cottage far up among the lonesome hills of New Hampshire. Mrs. Williams, who is thirty-six, holds the unchallenged reputation of being the only professional female woodcutter in the New England woods if not in the whole of the United States. Here are some of her very remarkable feats and abilities: She can cut, split and set up a cord of wood each day as long as she chooses to work. She can cut down and trim a tree as large as a barrel quicker than any man in the neighborhood. She is the best ox driver in Meridith, where she lives. She can drive any horse. She cuts from eight to ten cords of wood for her own and her mother's use each winter, and then she goes into the woods and works wherever she can find employment as an expert woodsman. In the summer time she plows her own garden herself, driving the horses and holding the plow handles while the furrow is being turned. She shingled her own house all over once. A year ago at a country fair she performed with one of the striking machines, proving that she could strike a harder blow than any of the numerous farmers present.

Make the Baby Work.

The physician half closed his eyes and looked at the baby, who was troubled with indigestion, although he was a fat baby. Then he asked for the baby's bottle, looked at the nipple and grunted: "I thought so. You make eating too easy for the baby, like most foolish young mothers. You seem to think that it is doing him a kindness to make him a loafer about his milk. Now let me tell you that a baby is going to get every drop of milk in a bottle anyway, because he's hungry and wants it, and you won't starve him if you use a hard suction nipple. It's much better for him to work while he feeds, on the theory that man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, and if the beads of perspiration stand out on his little brow and if he grunts and wiggles, all the better. Ten chances to one he is enjoying his milk twice as much as if the nipple was one of those easy things that fairly poured the fluid down his throat, and his digestion will be stronger."—New York Press.

Home Dressmaking.

The great fault to be found with home dressmaking is that in many cases the work has an amateurish appearance when finished. There are a few tricks of the trade, however, which are invaluable in making up and altering clothes and account for all the difference between a neat and trim garment and one which is ill fitting and ill finished. Always shrink a new braid before sewing to a skirt. In shortening a skirt pattern, too, always fold a plait across the middle of the pattern. Never shorten from the top or bottom of the skirt or the shape will be spoiled. A rolling pin, with a cloth around it, makes a good pressing board.

Her Complexion Secret.

A woman died the other day aged eighty-eight whose complexion was as pink and white as that of a girl of twenty. When asked what the secret of her lovely skin was she invariably answered, "Rochelle salts." It seemed that she took the salts every day, dissolving half a teaspoonful in a glass of water and drinking the solution, now a sip and then a swallow at intervals through the day. The effects upon her skin and blood were certainly most fortunate.—New York Tribune.

To Make Toilet Soap.

To make toilet soap dissolve one box of concentrated lye in half a gallon of rain water. Melt five pounds of clean lard or tallow. When about milk warm pour your cold lye in very slowly and stir it rapidly, says Woman's Life. Add one ounce of oil of sassafras or any other perfume you fancy. Pour into a box a foot square, cover air tight and let it remain three of four days, then cut into cakes, and it is ready for use as a toilet soap.

Kitchen Recipe Book.

The cleanest, neatest book in which a housekeeper can keep odd recipes is made by covering a thick blank book with white oilcloth. The trouble with cloth bound recipe books is that they get greasy and floury in a short time from being handled by the cook while she is mixing ingredients, and there is no way of cleaning them without injuring the cover. An oilcloth book can be wiped off every time it is used.

The Hands.

It is a most decided waste of time to try to make thin hands plump, for no amount of working over them will do any good. Slender hands are considered more beautiful anyhow, provided the knuckles are not too large, and no girl wants pudgy hands with fat fingers. Better spend time and energy keeping the nails in good condition and the hands white and soft rather than in trying to change their shape.

To Clean Ribbon.

An excellent way to clean ribbon is the following: Cover the ribbon with warm water, then spread it on a board or table and scrub it thoroughly with a brush that has been rubbed in soap. After a good lather has been formed and the ribbon looks clean, rinse it in clear warm water, lay it between folds of thin cheesecloth and press until dry.

Thick Lips.

Thick lips can be overcome to a certain extent by acquiring the habit of holding the lips close to the teeth and keeping the muscles about the mouth firm and tight. The woman who stands about with her mouth open permits the muscles to become large and relaxed, and the result is anything but conducive to fair looks.

Juvenile Laundry Lists.

Children may be taught to take care of their clothes and count the pieces for the laundry. Let each child have its own handkerchief bag and bags for other soiled clothes and keep its own laundry list, a little duty which most children like with a saving of care for mother.

Creased Rugs.

A rug sometimes becomes badly creased. To remedy this turn it upside down and wet the crease with a moistened broom until the rug is quite wet. Stretch the rug tight and let it remain overnight after tacking it with tinned tacks, which do not rust.

Paint stains on a floor may be scoured off by soaking them for a short time in benzine or turpentine and then rubbing them with emery paper or a little pulverized pumice stone applied with a damp cloth.

Ivory carvings that are discolored may be restored by a simple process. Paint them over with spirits of turpentine and expose them to the sunshine for two or three days.

Holland window shades that are soiled near the bottom can be advantageously turned. Tack the bottom of the shade to the roller.

If a drop of olive oil is rubbed on dinner knives before putting them away, they will keep their brightness.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

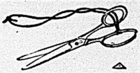
GOOD LOOP TRICK.

Performed With a String and a Pair of Scissors.

The following is a very good trick, and one which needs no special apparatus:

Take a piece of string about half a yard long and tie the ends securely. Now take a pair of scissors and pass one end of your string through one of the openings in the handles of the scissors, then thread the other end through this and pass through the opening in the other handle. Now draw the loop tight, and it should appear like that shown in the accompanying illustration.

Next take the free end of the string and either hold it between the fingers or fasten upon a book, and ask some one to release the scissors from the string without tampering in any way with the end you hold or have otherwise fastened. To accomplish this, loosen the loop against the handle of the scissors; draw it out and pass through other handle in exactly the same way that the strings pass through. Draw this loop through and out until there is sufficient length to enable you to pass it completely over the pair of scissors until you bring it around to the opening from which you started. Keep your string free from twists during this operation, otherwise you will get it hopelessly entangled. If you follow these directions carefully the loop will slip through the openings and your scissors are free.



LOOP AND SCISSORS TRICK.

HAILSTONES.

How They Are Formed and Why They Fall In Warm Weather.

A good many boys and girls wonder why it is that we have hail storms in summer or in warm weather instead of in the icy winter. As a matter of fact, it is the warm weather that produces them. Hail is formed by the meeting of two currents of air, one warm and saturated with vapor and the other very cold. The cold air condenses the vapor into water and then freezes the water into ice particles. The ice particles as they fall toward the earth strike and adhere to each other, thus forming the stones that reach the ground. As it is only in summer that warm, vapor laden strata of air overhang the earth, it is only at that season that the conditions exist for the formation of hail.

The most violent hailstorms occur in the tropics, where the stones are often as large as oranges and sometimes much larger than that. The hail that falls in winter is very different from that of summer both in form and in origin. It is always small and is produced by the freezing of raindrops as they pass through a colder stratum of air than that in which they started.

The High Seas.

You do not often come across the term "high seas," but you ought to know exactly what it means when you do. It is used in article 1 of the constitution of the United States, and allusion to it is sometimes made in the discussion of national or international questions. It means the open sea, outside of the civil jurisdiction of any country, which the law of nations limits to one marine league or three geographical miles from shore. The great lakes, beyond the limits above designated, are regarded as high seas. When a crime is committed on the high seas the person charged with it is subject to the jurisdiction of the United States in the district that the vessel first enters or in the district where the offender is found.

Five Points.

Pile together as many sheets of note paper as there are boys or girls to play. Scatter on the upper one at random five grains of rice. Prick with a pin without disturbing the rice five holes through the spots where the rice has fallen. You will then have a number of sheets of paper each containing five pin holes arranged in the same order. The game consists in each person drawing a figure which shall come within the points, using one for the head, two for the hands and two for the feet. A great variety of amusing figures and attitudes will be the result.

Transferring a Rose Leaf.

The girls, and boys too, will be glad to know that they can with very little trouble transfer to paper a perfect impression of a rose leaf, including its color. Here is the way to do it: Lay the leaf on a sheet of clean white paper and over it put a piece of white linen soaked in spirits of niter. Put the leaf thus inclosed in a blank book and lay away under pressure for a week. At the end of that time it will be found that the rose leaf has lost its color, but that the paper has received it, thus giving a perfect and durable impression of the leaf.

A and E.

Said A, "Whene'er I stand between
The letters B and D
I'm in the midst of all that's BAD,
As you can plainly see."
"How strange!" said merry, laughing E.
"When I between them am
I'm tucked up nice and snug in BED
And happy as a clam."
"It's quality within ourselves,"
Then mused the letter A,
"And not the place we occupy
That makes us sad or gay."

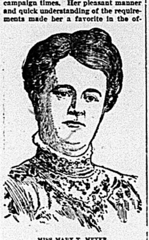
WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS MARY T. MEYER.

Executive Clerk of the Democratic City Committee of Boston.

As executive clerk of the Democratic city committee of Boston Miss Mary T. Meyer holds a position that means far more than the rather high sounding title. It means that through the possession of that splendid trait—discretion—she has risen from a simple clerical position to be the confidant of men prominent in politics and to make herself sufficiently useful to command a large salary.

Miss Meyer was born in Malden and educated in the public schools of West Roxbury. While still a schoolgirl she entered the consolidated office of the Democratic state and city committees to do the simplest clerical work during campaign times. Her pleasant manner and quick understanding of the requirements made her a favorite in the office, and when her school days were over she was offered a permanent position.



MISS MARY T. MEYER.

In 1896, when the two committees separated, she went with the city politicians to their new quarters. Year by year Miss Meyer had grown in usefulness and is now a seasoned politician, whose opinion upon affairs carries much weight. During her association with this office she has enjoyed the friendship of such men as Henry C. Thatcher, William E. Russell, Colonel J. W. Coveney, Henry R. Reed, Robert M. Burnett and the Hon. John H. Sullivan.

Miss Meyer, although deeply interested in politics, is by no means desirous of suffrage and rather expresses herself against granting the ballot to women, for although her duties have brought her in daily contact with many men and broadened her ideas she still believes that home is the sphere of the average woman.—Boston Traveler.

The Wife's Income.

It does not seem to me consistent for a man to say at the marriage altar, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow," and four months later make it necessary for his wife to use diplomacy to get 60 cents from him to pay the milkman. The husband who dolorously doles out dollars under protest on the installment plan to meet family expenses is viewing home in a wrong perspective. Many men who pride themselves on the care they take of their families feel that in permitting their wives to "run bills" at certain stores they have done all that is necessary. But a store account is not cash; it is not negotiable; you cannot buy tickets for a concert and have them charged on the coal bill or put an extra trolley ride with the children on dry goods store accounts. Some women rather than submit to the humiliation of "asking for money" from their husbands do without little things that would add greatly to their happiness, says the Delineator. Others, after studying their husbands' moods as a mariner watches the weather, by policy, flattery, wheedling or other artifice secure as a concession what should be given them as a right. Others stint on the housekeeping money, save at the expense of their own energy, health or strength in order to get a little money of their own.

One's Serene Little World.

A woman I know is counted poor among her friends. She has little or no money, no health, much love, one sunshiny window and a plant or two. Each one with whom she began life has grown rich, occupying great and important places, outstripping her like a gay procession that sweeps by one who has fallen discomfited by the wayside. Sometimes the woman has compared her lot and rebelled, as she herself has told me. She, too, has cried out for the meaning of it all, the secret of her own failure and their success. "Why, why, why?" she has moaned in despair. "What ought I to do, how ought I to have done?" The other day she came to see me. I saw a new light in her eyes and saw that she had found strength.

"What is it?" I asked.

"Only this," she answered. "I've studied into it all and thought. Their world is not my world nor my world theirs, and I can do nothing to change it. One thing, though, I can do. Small as it is, I can make my little world serene."—Lillie Hamilton French in Harper's Bazar.

Poor Equipment Never Economical.

That which we would emphasize for the benefit of niggardly husbands or conservative wives is the bad economy of inferior equipment on the railroad, in the mill or in the home. Inadequate apparatus is oftentimes highly extravagant. It costs not merely in time and comfort, but in health and doctors' bills. The housewife's nerves and happiness are of more value than the little margin of saving in delayed purchase of the right utensils. The servant problem will be robbed of many of its terrors when our maids are lodged and equipped as they should be. It is wonderful what $40 or $20 or $10 will achieve now in transforming the household laboratory and putting the housework on a new and easier plane. Men, give your wives and their assistants as good machinery at least as you put in the hands of the toilers in your mills and offices. "Any old thing" will not serve your best interests in the hands of the latter. Even less should it be imposed upon the more highly prized workers at home.—Good Housekeeping.

Diet For the Complexion.

A beauty specialist the other day well versed in the laws of hygiene said: "No wine or spirits, no beer, no tea, plenty of fruit, eating an apple first thing in the morning and a tumbler of water the last thing at night." Plenty of vegetables of the more common sort were recommended as wholesome, such as carrots, cabbage, beet root, watercress and similar simple fare. White meats, and not too much of them, and plenty of fish are enjoined and no highly spiced or cooked up dishes. Above all, we are to pay attention to the bath; a tepid one must be taken daily. A little common vinegar is not bad in it, with sage leaves soaked therein. Some salt is another good thing, and a few drops of tincture of myrrh.—Boston Transcript.

Rag Carpet Rugs.

Rag carpets have been made and used in farmhouses for many years, but never before have they become so popular in city as well as country homes. The rag rugs of today are not only serviceable, but pretty. They are a good covering for the bedroom, living room and porch. If the rags are sewed at home they should be new and carefully selected as to color. They can be woven in any length, with a border and fringe at each end. Another useful rug is the crochet one, which can be made entirely at home. Any of these rugs may be washed.

Corned Beef.

After cooking corned beef let it stand in the liquor it was cooked in until it is thoroughly cold or ready to serve. It will then be found much richer and more tender than if it was taken immediately from the liquor and set away on a platter. If the corned beef is to be eaten hot put it in the cold liquor after removing it from the dining table. It is, however, always a coarse dish when served hot, but is at its best when it is allowed to stand in its own liquor—the water it was cooked in—for twenty-four hours before serving.

Clogged Drain Pipes.

To clean out a clogged sink drain pipe take a piece of garden hose, fasten one end to the faucet (hot water one if you have it), the other end put down the drain pipe three or four inches, packing cloth around it to make it airtight; then open the faucet and let the water run full force for two or three minutes. Sometimes it is necessary to put potash dissolved in water into the pipe before putting in the hose.

The Turned In Collar.

A turned in collar, whether of a shirt waist or the waist to a dress, is not becoming, no matter how comfortable it may be, and the woman who is particular about her appearance when she is working about the house in the morning will wear the neat little turnover collars that are neat and at the same time comfortable. Or better still are the little homemade collars made out of handkerchiefs.

Bodice or Blouse Collars.

Not a few home dressmakers overlook the fact that when putting on a collar the neck of the bodice or blouse should be slightly smaller than the base of the collar band and the bodice notched here and there while putting the collar on. By doing this wrinkles are avoided.

Olives.

Where a large bottle of olives is opened and only a part of them used the remainder, though left in the brine, become comparatively tasteless. To avoid this pour half an inch of olive oil on the top and cork well. The olives will then retain their flavor indefinitely.

Candles.

Candles treated as follows will not melt and run down while burning: Make a thick lather of soap and water. Take one candle at a time and cover with the thick foam. Wipe off what you can with the moist hand and lay away to dry.

A pretty novelty for a country house hall is a miniature belfry, with a thatched roof and a brass or copper cowbell. A heavy strip of leather sways the bell, which may be used for dinner calls or the rising summons.

After blankets have been washed and hung on the line and are thoroughly dry beat with a carpet beater. They will become soft and light and the wool like new.

Old felt hats will make good lampwicks and give a bright light. Care must be taken to cut them the exact width of the wick.

The finest polish given the most costly piano can be entirely ruined by the direct rays of the sun.

WHEREIN SAFETY LIES

"IN MULTITUDE OF COUNSELLORS," SAITH THE PROVERB.

WHAT AVERAGE MEN KNOW

Common People, Who Wear Coarse Clothes and Live In Humble Houses, Often Found With Brilliant Intellects and Possessed of Some of the Rarest Ideas—Valuable Nuggets Dug Out of Common Dirt.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 30.—That no man ever lived who possessed all the talents and that pride of intellect and unwillingness to learn from others frequently lead men to ruin is the lesson of this sermon, the text chosen being Proverbs xi, 14, "In the multitude of counsellors there is safety."

In my time I have been much associated with many classes of men. As a result of this association I am struck with two far-reaching facts. The first is how much the average man knows. When I say this I refer to the so-called common people as well as to the wealthier or the more influential social class. Some of the most valuable nuggets of gold have been dug out of the common dirt. Some of the rarest ideas and the most brilliant intellects are found in the skulls of men who wear coarse clothes and live in very humble houses.

Rev. Dr. William M. Lawrence, who for many years was the most prominent Baptist preacher of Chicago, once told me that he always made it a practice when it was possible to ride upon the platforms of the street cars and talk with the conductors and the motormen and the mechanics and laborers who were returning from their daily toil. "And," said he, "some of the very best ideas which I have preached from my pulpit have been suggested by them." Because an old well is sometimes covered by moss and creeping ivy and entangled thickets, that does not prove that there are no pure, sparkling waters among its rocks. Because a gem is found glittering amid a lot of cobblestones, that does not prove that it is a cobblestone. Many a great philosopher dresses, like Tolstoi, in peasant's garb. Many a stonemason can find, like Hugh Miller, the "Footprints of the Creator" in the old red sandstone of Cromarty. Many a political sage is scanning the horizon of statecraft, like Marcus Porcius Cato, with an eagle eye, while he is guiding his plough across the field of a country farm.

The traveler who cannot glean information from all classes of men, no matter where he may go, as gentle Ruth gathered her golden stalks after the reapers who were binding the sheaves in the harvest fields of Boaz, is a tourist who has ears to hear and will not hear, who has eyes to see and will not see and who has a dumb tongue too clumsy to probe for the treasures of mankind by asking the leading questions which will bring forth the desired answers. Said old Robert South: "It takes both flint and steel to make a spark. You must pound the one upon the other or else the fire will never come. You can pound a piece of steel for days and weeks upon a wooden log, and the wood will never flash back a flame. You must rub up intelligence against intelligence in order to make the intellectual sparks fly. If the traveler has a brain of flint he will find that the average man has a brain of steel. Then the intellectual sparks will follow thick as the stars on the Milky way of the heavens. But if the traveler has a wooden brain then he will think that most people he meets have brains of wood also."

The second fact which impresses me about the human race is that, though the average man has much intelligence, yet most people make failures out of life. To use an expression which I once heard used by Dr. MacArthur of New York, "They never seem to be able to put their mental goods upon the market." They seem to have all the capabilities of success; they are like an exquisitely and perfectly constructed rifle, but they always seem to miss fire. You recognize this fact as I do. "What is the matter with Lawyer So-and-so?" I ask. "He was an old college chum of yours. Why has he not made a greater success? Has he not brains and application?" "Oh, yes," you answer. "He was one of the most prominent men of my class. He was an honor man and graduated a member of the Phi Beta Kappa society. He is honest and a hard worker. But somehow he never seems to be able to get ahead."

That statement is true of most lawyers, most doctors, most ministers, most merchants, most men of all departments of life. Mentally equipped they seem to be. Honest they are also. But failures they have actually turned out. Now, if I were to put my finger upon the chief weakness of these lives, I would state that egotism has been the main cause of their failure. In the critical moments of their career they will not take advice. They will not heed the warnings which their friends are so anxious to give. And, like a fire horse with the blind staggers, they needlessly crash into this obstacle and that danger until at last they are flung and in one sense ruined as far as their earthly careers are concerned. King Solomon well expresses my thought in the words of my text when he says, "Where no counsel is the people fall, but in the multitude of counsellors there is safety."

The blind egotist in the first place nearly always underestimates the difficulties of the work which he has to do. He is like a commander of an invading army who seems to despise the strength of his enemies. He pretends to think that the opposing forces cannot shoot as well as his soldiers can shoot and that the very sight of his standards will make his enemies craven hearted and run for their lives.

"What was the chief cause of the civil war?" I asked an aged southern gentleman some time ago. "Without any doubt," said he, "it was due to the ignorance of the two sections in respect to the strength of each other. The fact was never better demonstrated than in the life of Senator William Yancey. He used to be a neighbor of mine, and I knew him well. He was born and brought up in the south. He knew practically no other region than the south. He was one of the most eloquent men I have known. He was a bitter partisan and went up and down the southern states delivering his inflammatory speeches until the whole south was in a turmoil. But after he had ignited the fires of rebellion and fanned those living embers into a conflagration, about a year before the war broke out, he took a journey north. He traveled through New York and the middle states and on toward the west. He saw then with his own eyes the unlimited resources of the northern people, and he knew that the effort to gain southern independence was doomed to failure. He came back home from that trip disillusioned and chagrined and never opened his mouth as a public speaker again. Like an incendiary who had ignited the fuse of a powder magazine and could not put it out, all that he could do was to sit and watch the awful carnage approach as the civil war came nearer and nearer, conscious that the appalling sacrifices of human life and property that the south was making would be useless." This courtly southern gentleman said to me with a quaint smile, "No matter how strong a man may be, it is always well for him to find out beforehand if his enemy is not as strong or even a little stronger before he takes off his coat and begins to fight." There is infinite wisdom in that remark. It is always well for every man to realize the difficulties which are ahead of him before he enters the struggle of life.

"Oh," says the egotistic lawyer, "there is no need of my making much preparation for my case. I am one of the most brilliant and ready speakers at the bar." All that he says may be true, but a Goliath may be slain by a little David if he leaves even the fraction of an inch exposed between the joints of his armor. Many an ordinary lawyer has won his case from a brilliant attorney because he had carefully and thoroughly prepared his case and the other had not. "Oh," says the brilliant preacher, "what is the use of my working so hard upon my sermon? I have the gift of speech, and I can always talk." Yes, some ministers can always talk, but it is only the minister who realizes the enormous difficulties which confront the pulpit in the preparation of his sermons who is the man able to deliver each Lord's day a true message for God. Young man, you may be smart, people may say you are very brilliant, but I want to tell you there are hosts of people just as smart as you. Furthermore, I care not how smart you may be, remember this—it is only the plodder, the hard worker, the man who, day by day and week by week, realizes the difficulties which are ahead and the struggles which must be made, who in the end will triumph. Natural ability will never accomplish much in this world unless it is re-enforced by the severest kind of work.

The blinded egotist rarely measures the altitude of the mountains of difficulty he has to climb. He commits a worse folly than that. He deliberately shuts his eyes to the mental and physical and spiritual infirmities with which he is handicapped. He seems to say, "Because I am strong in one characteristic of my nature therefore I am strong in all characteristics." He is like Frederick the Great of Prussia. He was a great warrior and, single handed, contended with and defeated the greatest military powers of Europe, but he thought he was a great poet and a great philosopher. He invited the greatest literary genius of all Europe, Voltaire, to come and be a member of his royal court and praise his silly verses. He may be a great actor like Edwin Booth, but he will be foolish if he says: "Because I am a great tragedian and can interpret aright Hamlet's soliloquy therefore I must be a great comedian and a great singer and a great playwright and a great musician and a great business manager. I shall hereafter write my plays and oratorios and act all my parts and sing the masterpieces of a Handel, a Mozart or a Wagner."

Now, God never made a man with all the talents. Just as certain diamonds have flaws in their makeup, we all have flaws, some of them perhaps serious, in our natures. It is the wise man who is ready to recognize these flaws and limitations or who never engages in any enterprise in which they would be disastrous and never undertakes any work for which he has not the necessary talent.

And, furthermore, my friend, remember this—it does not take much of a flaw or weakness to absolutely destroy the whole fabric of a man's life work. Did you ever see a sailor test his compass? The ship will be sailing on day after day until it gets away from land. Then the rudder will be jammed to the left. When you hear those rudder chains rattling you may be frightened and rush upon the deck. There you will see the ship swing around in a circle. "What is the matter?" you will cry. "Is anything wrong?" "No," answers the sea captain; "we are merely testing our compasses." "But why did you not do this in the harbor?" "Oh," answers the sea captain, "we cannot do that near the shore. The rocks and the land may exercise a magnetic influence. When we test our compasses we must be far out at sea, away from their influence. The propinquity of a single nail may make the compass needle point in a false direction. If our compass is unreliable it may send us upon the rocks or lead us away from our true destination." What the sea captain says about a faulty compass the great navigators of life teach about our weaknesses or failings. If a man does not recognize his weaknesses and guard against his weaknesses, in the end these weaknesses will surely destroy him. Every man has his limitations, and the sooner we recognize our limitations the sooner we shall arrive at a just estimate of our powers.

But there is another fatal error to which I want to call your attention. Blind egotism may become insanely conservative. It is ruinous when it refuses to mark the progress of new methods and discoveries. It is often found that an egotist who has made a success in his younger days is apt to mark time and to think that the world, like an army, has also been marking time instead of going ahead. Egotism seems to be incapable of readjusting itself to new conditions of life. Because the world once traveled in canal-boats or in stage-coaches therefore some egotists pretend that it is never dignified to travel faster than a snail's pace. Because our fathers and forefathers once read by candlelight therefore these modern egotists seem to think that there is no house properly lighted without candles and that the chandelier, with its wires and globes, is a detestable abomination.

But the saddest fact to me about bankrupting egotism is that it drives from our sides the very best friends that we have. It drives away those true men and women who want to be our friends and who want to help us if we will only let them. I mean those friends who are thinking of our interest rather than their own. We simply turn to them and say: "Thank you, gentlemen. I am perfectly able to take care of myself. If you will clean your own front doorsteps I will look after my own." In one sense we are in exactly the same condition as was the young Prince Rehoboam, who had just inherited King Solomon's throne.

You know the simple story. No sooner was the old king dead than a delegation of the Hebrew people came to the young prince and said: "Your Majesty, it is simply an impossibility for the people to bear any longer the heavy taxation which your father put upon us. These aqueducts and public gardens and temples and houses may be very beautiful, but they are paid for by the sweat and blood of the common people. Now, therefore, make thou the grievous service of thy father and his heavy yoke which he put upon us lighter, and we will serve thee." The young prince answered: "I will consider your petition. Come again after three days, and I will give you my answer." That was well said, Rehoboam. No man has a right to decide a great question of life hastily. Now, what did the young prince do in the meantime? First he went to the aged counsellors of his dead father. That is, he called in the tried old prime minister and the secretary of the treasury and the minister of the interior. These old statesmen had been tested by many years of service. They knew the policy of the past reign, and they knew what was just — what the new king could do and what he could not do. As honest and tried veterans these gray-haired, well-trained statesmen said: "Your Majesty, the men of this delegation are not inciters of a rebellion. They are as loyal to you as they were to your father. But the taxes are too heavy. The people are groaning under them. Make them lighter. Say a few conciliatory words to these men, and your reign will be long and happy." Thus spake the wise old men.

But the young prince was not satisfied with the advice of these old men. So he went to the companions of his youth. He called in these sycophants, who were accustomed to make sport with him. He said, "Boys, what would you do? This delegation waited upon me this morning, and the old statesmen told me I had better knuckle down to them." With that the young men answered: "What—are you not king? Are you going to sit upon a throne and not rule? I would tell these men that I should do as I pleased and that my word was law. I would say: 'My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke. My father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.'" A smile of pleasure now lights up the face of the young prince, and his egotism is beautifully tickled and flattered. Then he forsook the counsel of the old men and clave to the counsel of the young men and thereby lost most of his kingdom.

Oh, my brothers, are we like Rehoboam in our ruinous egotism, driving the best friends we have from our side? Are we going to turn our backs upon the dear, good, noble Christian men and women who have loved our parents for fifty years? When these Christian disciples come to us and say: "Young man, I love you for your father's sake; my boy, don't drink," shall we flush up and answer, "I will do just as I please?" When that dear gentleman says to us, "My son, you had better curb that temper or it will ruin you," shall we drive our fangs into him with their bitter venom? There is no need of my running through the long list of your weaknesses. You know what they are better than I do. Your true friends, your best friends, have warned you against them. Are you going to drive those true friends from your side, as did Rehoboam, and refuse to heed the warning signals they display over your physical, mental and spiritual infirmities?

And, oh, my friends, are we also going to-day on account of your sinful egotism to drive that best of all friends, Jesus Christ, from your side? He is even now laying the hand of love upon that shoulder. He is even now, with his eyes of yearning, looking into thy eyes. He is saying: "My child, I want to be thy friend and stay by thy side and help thee in the awful struggle of life, but I cannot stay and be thy friend if thou wilt continue to trust to your own guidance. Wilt thou not let me stay, and wilt thou drive these evil advisers away?" What is thy answer, O man, O woman? Wilt thou let Christ stay by thy side as an everlasting friend and adviser? You must answer this plea and answer it now. Wilt thou receive Christ as thy friend and counsellor?

How to Prevent Tartar On Teeth.

Tartar is more easily prevented than removed, says the Boston Traveler. Prevention may be compassed by any ordinary tooth powder and a brush. Removal necessitates either the dentist's scaling instruments or the use of acids. The danger with acids is their power of destroying the enamel of the teeth and so opening the way for decay. Still, the following plan, if carefully carried out, will not involve much risk. Add fifteen drops of dilute hydrochloride acid to two teaspoonfuls of water. Make a small roll of a fragment of unbleached calico. Dip in the liquid and rub briskly over the teeth. Then apply a soft brush dipped in water and covered with camphorated chalk. Finally rinse the mouth with water.

"Haunted" By Bats.

The mystery of an oak tree in one of the public walks at King's Lynn, which had gained the reputation of being haunted on account of the strange sounds which issued from it, has been solved by a policeman, who discovered that a colony of more than 100 bats had taken up their residence in the hollow trunk.

Why Larks Are Easily Caught.

No bird is so easily netted as the lark; he generally starts from the ground just before the lower edge of the net touches him and invariably mounts perpendicularly. This characteristic propensity to ascend at once may be observed by any person who "treads up" a lark in a field and satisfactorily illustrated by releasing, at the same moment, a newly captured lark and a sparrow from a cage or hat within the precincts of a room. While the sparrow will fly off horizontally, dash himself against the window and lie almost stunned from the shock, the lark will almost always mount upward to the ceiling and flutter there for a time in vain efforts to reach the sky before he attempts any other mode of exit; but this habit is fatal to him in the netting season. He would generally be able to escape, as indeed the bunting or clod bird, the sparrow and the linnet constantly do, by flying straight forward; but ascending, as he does, directly from the ground the moment his wings have touched the upper part of the net it is suffered to drop suddenly, and his capture is rendered inevitable.—London Standard.

An Incident of Life In New York.

The street beggar with pockets lined with money is a fairly familiar figure of city life, but one of the free dispensaries reports an instance of an attempt to get free medicine on the plea of poverty that deserves a place in the catalogue of good stories of graft. A middle aged woman appeared the other day and got a prescription, after which she took her place in the line of persons waiting to have their medicine made up by the apothecary. This particular woman, it should be said, had given satisfactory answers to all the questions put to her designed to show whether she was a proper subject for charity. Suddenly there was a cry: "I'm robbed! I'm robbed!" The victim was this woman, who so far forgot her previous professions as to assert that her pocket had been picked and that the thief had got away with $90. Then she lost the opportunity to get free medicine, thus adding, in her view, insult to injury.

Acute Laryngitis.

George Washington died of a disease that was then called a quinsy, but which is now known as acute laryngitis. His physicians treated him according to their best light and knowledge, but such treatment now would be little short of criminal. An eminent authority says that if medical men had known as much then as they do now the distinguished patient would probably have been cured in a week. As it was, he slowly strangled to death by the closing of his throat. At the present time physicians treat a case of this kind by tracheotomy—that is, by making an opening into the windpipe, through which the patient may breathe. They also diagnose a case by using the laryngoscope, which enables them to look into the throat and see exactly what the trouble is.

Hairs of Caterpillars.

Several kinds of hairy caterpillars are known to have a poisonous effect on the human skin, notably the caterpillar of the processionary moth, so called because the caterpillars march in procession after their food. The scientist Reaumur found that this caterpillar's hairs caused him considerable suffering in the hands for some days and that when he rubbed his eyes his eyelids, too, were inflamed. Even approaching too near the nests of these caterpillars has caused painful swellings on the necks of certain persons from the caterpillar hairs floated by the winds.

Are Pie Eaters Hypocrites?

Why do people who eat pie in secret and in the open, people who when they order pie cast about them furtive glances and people who do not care who sees them engaged on pie one and all talk and behave as if the consumption of pie constituted an unpardonable sin whenever the subject is broached? Why in polite circles composed of those whose ancestors were brought up on pie, even pie for breakfast, is pie hailed with mirthful tittering?

Be Gentle With Bitter People.

How often we come across people in life so disagreeable and bitter, rejecting all overtures of kindness we make toward them, that we feel quite disheartened. And yet if we only knew their life's history how much we should perhaps find to forgive and pity, so let us keep on with our good work until we have thawed the icicles of their hearts with the warmth of our own.

A Special Case.

"If Mr. Winslow calls tonight, mamma, what shall I say?"

"Say whatever your heart tells you to say, my dear."

"But this isn't one of those cases, mamma. There is nothing to Mr. Winslow except his money."

Convinced.

Mr. Spongely (slightly related)—Splendid! Magnificent! Do you know, Uncle Eli, I believe I shall never get tired of seeing the sun set behind that hill! Uncle Eli—That's what me an' mother's beginnin' to think.

A Common Mistake.

Many a man has become possessed of the idea that he is a humorist merely because other people think he is funny.

I know no manner of speaking so offensive as that of giving praise and closing it with an exception.—Steele.

NEW ZEALAND EXHIBITION, LOW RATES.

To the many attractions of New Zealand as a tourist and pleasure resort is this year added that of the International Exhibition to be held at Christchurch, the second city of the colony, from November, 1906, to April, 1907.

Canadian products will be much in evidence, and it is expected that a large number of Canadians will take this opportunity of visiting "Maori-Land," that interesting country of which most people have heard so much, and in reality know so little. Mark Twain's opinion that New Zealand "was somewhere near Australia, and you get over to it by a bridge," is shared by the great majority, who have never experienced the steady steaming across the wide Pacific necessary to "bridge" New Zealand, and her big neighbor. The democratic government, unique and progressive legislation, state controlled industries, from railroads to coal mines, have made New Zealand so well known, as has its natural beauty, its hot lakes and geysers, outrivaling the Yellowstone, its lovely semi-tropical bush, with graceful palms and tree ferns, and gorgeous wild orchids everywhere, its majestic fiord scenery and its lofty snow-clad Alps, all of which truly need to be seen to be appreciated. The climate is certainly the best found south of the line, and as the Exhibition from November to April, covers the best of the summer months, visitors need not fear bad weather. If you have ever contemplated a trip to the Southern Seas—"do it now—this is a good opportunity.

Special reduced rates for the Exhibition are offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway, with its ocean connection, the Canadian-Australian line of Royal mail steamships. Through rates from Toronto right to Port Lyttelton, N.Z., and return are $418.90, first-class throughout, and $348.90 first-class rail and second on steamer; tickets good sailing from Vancouver on Oct. 12th, Nov. 9th, Dec. 9th, 1906; Jan. 4th and Feb. 1st, 1907; good to return to Vancouver within six months. These steamers call at Honolulu, and passengers can tranship at Suva, Fiji, if they wish, instead of reaching New Zealand by way of Sydney, N.S.W. Splendid accommodation is provided, with a fine table and attendance, and at this time of the year a smooth passage is a certainty. Further particulars and literature gladly furnished upon application to C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, C.P.R., Toronto. 1-2

Some Worms Are Curious.

The most curious creature of the worm family is the diplozoon, a singular parasite which infests the gills of several species of fish, particularly the bream. Each individual diplozoon has two distinct bodies united in the middle so as to form a perfect St. Andrew's cross, each half of the creature containing precisely the same kind of organs—viz, an alimentary canal, a venous system, reproductive organs, etc.

Do not breathe through your mouth even at night when asleep if you wish to preserve the teeth. If you cannot keep it shut in any other way, do as the Indians with their pappooses—tie it shut.

Watch the Kitchen.

A social leader who was renowned among her friends as a practical housekeeper was congratulated at one time on her skill in fine cookery. She answered laughingly: "I have no time to do cooking. I spend some time in my kitchen daily for quite another purpose. I go to examine the sinks, the garbage pails and the general condition of the premises. My servants were very much disgusted at first that a lady should take interest in such matters, but they are used to my eccentricities now and manage to keep things as I desire to have them." If more housekeepers made these tours of inspection it would pay them in the increased health of their household.—New York Tribune.

Excessive Perspiration.

The girl who suffers from excessive perspiration should go in for the salt water beauty bath every morning. Throw a handful of salt into a wash basin and moisten slightly. Rub well all over the body, jump into the tub and turn on the cold spray. Use the bath brush freely; be out in thirty seconds and dry well with a towel that takes hold like a guilty conscience. Powder the armpits with a mixture of half a pound of pure borax, an ounce of baking soda and a dram of primrose rachet powder. Alcohol rubs are very good.

Less Haste In Marriage.

Young girls are less eager to marry than they used to be. At one time a girl who remained unmarried when she had been out one or two seasons was almost a reproach to her parents and an unfashionable blot on the marriage market. But the unmarried have tacitly formed a union which has as silently insisted upon the standard of the disgrace of their state being lowered.—London Lady.

Sunlight Soap is better than other soaps, but is best when used in the Sunlight way. Buy Sunlight Soap and follow directions.

Republicans and Democrats.

The old Republican party, founded by Thomas Jefferson, had its most vigorous life during the twenty-four years while Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were in the White House. During these years it completely annihilated its opponent, the old Federalist party, which was the predecessor of the present Republican party. John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, who had a leaning to Federalism, was elected by the house of representatives (none of the candidates having a majority of the electoral vote) as a national Republican, and when Jackson came in four years later it was as a Democratic Republican. It was during his time that the latter half of the name was dropped, and the party of Jefferson took the name of the Democratic party. It was not until 1854 that the present Republican party assumed the name which the party of Jefferson and Jackson had dropped a quarter of a century before.—St. Louis Republican.

To Conciliate the Gods.

Just at night, if you happen to be within the gates of Canton, you will witness one of the little performances that are supposed to deceive the prowling spirits of the night bent upon evil intent, the while conciliating them should they penetrate the deception. Each little and big shop possesses a miniature fireplace built into the side of the entrance. Prayers printed on rice paper form the fuel with which to offer up incense to the "bogy man," who is supposed to make the nocturnal visits. Beholding the smoke, he is supposed to assume that no one lives within, and therefore passes by; but should he catch on and stop to investigate he finds that the prayer papers on the altar bear inscriptions attributing to him such virtues and magnanimity that his wrath is appeased and he turns from his evil intent.—Edwin Wildman in Chautauquan.

Dose—One Dimeful.

"How big a dose do I need?" asked the customer of the old fashioned druggist

"Oh, I guess a heaping dimeful will be about right," was the reply.

"A dimeful?" echoed the customer. "You mean a dime's worth, don't you?"

"No, I don't," said the druggist. "A dime's worth would be two ounces, and you'd never survive such a quantity as that. I mean for you to take a dime and pile on it as much of this powder as will stick. Then you have the proper dose. Measuring medicine on a dime is a method as old as United States currency and almost as reliable. There are certain powders that can be measured more accurately that way than any other, and among us old timers who have been used to meeting emergencies 'a dimeful' is a common direction."

Different Meanings.

Some words in our language have several meanings, each different from the others, so that it is not always possible to know at first just what thought the speaker wishes to express. There is the word "humanitarian," for instance. If you will turn to your Webster you will find that it means, first, one who denies the divinity of Christ and believes him to have been merely human; second, one who limits the sphere of duties to human relations and affections to the exclusion of the religious or spiritual; third, one who is actively concerned in promoting the welfare of his kind, a philanthropist. The third sense is the one in which the word is now most frequently used, and Webster marks this definition as "recent."

The Size of Canada.

Canada is larger than the United States by a quarter of a million square miles. Canada contains one-third of the area of the British empire. Canada extends over 20 degrees of latitude—from Rome to north pole. Canada is as large as thirty United Kingdoms, eighteen Germanys, thirty-three Italys. Canada is larger than Australasia and twice the size of British India. Canada has a boundary line of 3,000 miles between it and the United States. Canada's seacoast equals half the earth's circumference. Canada is 3,500 miles wide and 1,400 from north to south.

Impure Candy.

Beware of impure candy. Sugar in candy quickly ferments after eating, and if too much is eaten serious troubles often result. Pure sugar dissolves quickly in water and leaves a clear liquid, affording an easy way of testing its purity. Drop a small piece of candy in a glass, and over it pour boiling water. Let it stand twenty-four hours. If there is any foreign substance in the candy a sediment will be found in the bottom of the glass.

After.

He (five years after)—All this gush about love is extremely foolish. Wherever did this stupid book come from? I must say the person who selected it showed a very insipid taste. She (quietly)—It's the book you gave me during our honeymoon, John. We read it eleven times the first week we had it.

Mutual Disgust.

"Look here," complained the victim, "you said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station. To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"No more than I'm disappointed in you," retorted the agent. "I thought you were a good fast walker."

Art and Business.

Summer Boarder—It is so picturesque to watch the cows come home.

Farmer—There's more money in it when they stay on the railroad track.

RONDEAU.

Beyond the sea shall we not steer
With lightening hearts and laughter clear
To lands wherein the nightingale
Makes music, and sweet odors fail,
Far from discordant voices here?

Sweet sigh the waters of the weir,
And forests in the summer's ear,
But sweeter blows the perfumed gale
Beyond the sea.

Beyond all sight of shore or hail,
Hearing the wind sing in the sail,
We shall forget that veer—
And dream from golden year to year,
Wrapt round with slumber as a veil
Beyond the sea.

DAN NORMAN, MISSIONARY.

Learns Japanese Language and Gives Life to His Work.

Dan Norman is a missionary to the Japs. He has been eight years away from Canada, four of which he has spent in the Province of Shinshu, which headquarters at Nagano. He is home now on furlough, but spends his rest days telling good folk of the work yet to be done among the little islanders, says The Toronto World.

Dan is a graduate of Victoria University, of the class of 1896. He is young in years, but old in the cause to which he has given his life.

"Is there any money in it?" he was asked, rather impertinently, but kindly.

"No," was his reply, in a tone that indicated surprise that such a question should be asked. "There are many places in which I would prefer to live rather than in Japan. Toronto is a beautiful city, and I could be happy here, but my mission in life is in Japan, and I am content."

And he is all wrapped up in the Japs. The work of the Methodist Church in Japan has been going on for a quarter of a century. The Christians in Japan number 207,000, counting church members, Protestants and Catholics, and children in the Sunday schools. The native Methodist Church has a membership of 2,400, with fifty evangelists, pastors and missionaries.

The Christian churches are endeavoring to carry a new standard of conduct to the Japanese, and Dan Norman is hopeful of success. He sees many signs that the new idea is catching on, though not perhaps in the way one could wish. The Jap's life is ordered in obedience to his parents and loyalty to the Mikado. Nothing else counts. The teachings of Christianity appeal to the Jap as high principles of conduct, but he is a sceptic, and does not readily grasp the spiritual side of the matter. He is ready to order his life anew, perhaps, just to assume the Christian disguise, as it were, but the idea of spiritual grace is hard to engraft on his materialistic mind.

The older Japs pronounce Christian teachings good, but say that they are too old to learn. Yet they wish their sons to be brought up to the new standard, and entrust them to the care of the Christian teachers. Dan Norman has brought out with him five young Japs, who will go into business, or into college, in Canada, and eventually return to their native land. In their march of destiny, the Japs want to be thoroughly equipped, and there is something uncanny in their grasping the moral principles of Christianity to aid them on their way.

Dan Norman calls the Japs great organizers, and sees in them the builders of a mighty empire in the east that will embrace all China. He apreciates the vagaries of the Japanese character, and does not disguise the fact that winning the Jap to the cause is a tremendous task. Yet he does not falter, does not look back, and is content to spend his days in the work to which he knows he has been called. To this end, he has learned the Japanese language, and speaks it like a native.

Dan Norman is a big man.

An Old Brain Twister.

The St. Mary's Argus, in its extracts from old files, under the head of "When St. Mary's was a Village," has the following:—"Forty-five years ago Dr. McLellan, now principal of the Hamilton School of Pedagogy, was principal of St. Mary's Public School. He conducted a column in The Argus devoted to the solution of mathematical problems and other questions which interested the pioneer readers of this paper. Here is a sample problem, which appeared in his column in 1860: "A young man having asked the hand of a farmer's daughter, in marriage, the old gentleman replied: 'Between my house and the road are three gates, and if you will select such a number of applies that, after leaving half the number and half an apple more at the first gate; half the remainder and half an apple more at the second gate; half the remainder and half an apple more at the third gate, you will still have one left for my daughter, she is yours.' How many apples must the lover select, and how many must he leave at each gate, none being cut?"

Curing a Wife-Beater.

Recorder Weir of Montreal has a novel method of curing a wife beater. In his court the other day Patrick Maguire when asked to plead said:

"Your Honor, I am guilty, but I believe I am perfectly justified in my actions, for the simple reason that every morning I have to get up at 5 o'clock to go to the gas works, where I am employed. My wife never gets up to get my breakfast ready. Every Saturday when I arrive home I give her all my money, and she does not give me a cent. But what I complain of most is that every night when I arrive home she gets me to scrub the floors."

After hearing the evidence Mr. Recorder Weir rendered judgment by saying, "After to-day you will get up every morning and get ready your wife's breakfast, besides your own, for one year. You will still have to give her all your wages, and you will have to appear before me at any time when called for; and, if not, a bench warrant will be issued against you, and that will mean six months in jail."

The Meddlesome Public.

"This canned beef is not what it might be," began the citizen timidly.

"Well, now, what do you expect for 15 cents?" demanded the irate packer. "Ain't the label bright and clean?"

EYE-STRAIN, CONTINUED.

The subject of Eye-Strain, including the need of wearing glasses, has for some years been rapidly forcing itself into prominence and has assumed an importance far beyond expectation. It is in no sense a "fashion" or "fad," though there are many such in medicine. The eyes are, and have been in the past, the unsuspected cause of a great variety of nervous disturbances that were never understood and never satisfactorily explained. Modern methods of study, which have lately accomplished such wonders in all branches of science, when applied to the eye have brought order and truth out of what had been a tangle of theory, supposition and uncertainty. The eye has always been studied simply as a part of the body, under physiology; it needed to be studied as an optical instrument, under optics, a branch of science in which our knowledge is mathematically accurate. It is found to be an actual fact that eye-strain is often the principal factor producing nervous debility hysteria, melancholia, vertigo, nausea, insomnia, nervous dyspepsia, palpitation, general nervousness, irritability, faintness, weariness, headaches, constipation, "brain fag," and dozens of other annoying conditions. We remove the cause of all these with the proper glasses.

Harvest Festival At St. Thomas'.

BRIGHT AND IMPOSING SERVICES YESTERDAY — NOTES OF OTHER CHURCHES.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ST. THOMAS'.

The annual harvest festival services were held in St. Thomas' yesterday, and, as usual in that exceedingly well-appointed church, were strikingly impressive and well carried out. The decorations were not overdone, but though few, were tasteful and pleasing. At the morning service the choir sang in good form, Dorey's communion music in E flat being used. The anthem was "The Eyes of All Wait Upon Thee," by Clare, solos being taken by Miss Henderson and Mr. Piche. During the offertory, Miss Mabel Henderson, in splendid voice, sang Gounod's "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," giving the magnificent number a most impressive rendition. The harvest hymns were favorites, namely, "Come, Ye Thankful, People, Come," and "We Plough the Field and Scatter." Rev. Rural Dean Beamish read the service, and Rev. W. Creswick, of Brighton, preached a timely and appropriate sermon, full of original thoughts, from the 10th to 11th verses of the 26th chapter of Deuteronomy:

> "And now, behold, I have brought the first fruits of the land, which thou, O Lord, hast given me. And thou shalt set it before the Lord thy God, and worship before the Lord, thy God;
> "And thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the Lord thy God hast given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you."

"Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude."

If man's inhumanity to man, the preacher said, was grown into a proverb, what could we say of man's ingratitude to God, from whom all good things come? Thanksgiving was the duty of every Christian, but one sadly neglected. Often we hear special prayers for the recovery of the sick, or for some other blessing desired, but seldom is there a special service of thanksgiving. Harvest thanksgiving services were good, and they were not new, for they began with Moses. All Jewish festivals, it might be noted, seemed to be connected with the fruits of the earth. As the human child repays his parents in love for their care of him, so should Christians love and honor their Heavenly Father for all the good things He gives them. It was pleasant to think that God cared for us all. How many poor fellows had gone to the dogs because they imagined that no one cared for them—that they had not a friend! That was a sad mistake. God cares. He takes a personal interest in every one of us. He is the father of us all, and we are His sons by adoption and grace. Have we not call for thankfulness to God. One thing the people of to-day were in danger of: They were in danger of forgetting the Lord their God. This was a great and prosperous country, destined, he believed, to be even greater and more prosperous, but there was danger that God would be left out, and what would become of this country with God left out? Some thought God set us hard tasks, but it was the trials which God sent us that made us strong; the trials, disappointments and temptations of life made men of us. Let us get hold of the thought that we are co-workers with God. Jesus Christ said, the night before His crucifixion, "Father, I have glorified Thee on the earth." At that time, from a worldly point of view, the Saviour's life was an absolute failure. It had been one of poverty, suffering and difficulty, yet He said, "I have glorified Thee on the earth." That was what He was on this world for, and that is what we are here for. If we are not doing that in this world we would be better out of the world. Following in the footsteps of Jesus Christ; that was glorifying God on this earth. If we had not done that so far, then there was still time to go to God and ask forgiveness and in future do what He wanted us to do. Christ's life on this earth was only the beginning of the doing and the teaching; that work was to go on till He came again. And who was to continue it? His church, which really was the perpetuation of Christ in this world. Christ continues to do and teach in the world through the church, and the church was only fulfilling its mission on this earth when it did and taught as He would, were He in the world. This was the Christian's true vocation — following in the steps of Christ. Speaking of the goodness of God the preacher asked What should we render to God for His goodness? As God has given so much to us, so we should give our best to Him, as co-workers with Him. Speaking of the different forms of religious services to-day, the preacher said that some men gave as a reason for going to another church that "they got the most good there." That was wrong. We should go to the church where we could do the most good, not where we could get the most good. Speaking of the duty men owed to the church, the preacher said we really had nothing worthy of God's acceptance. What could we render to Him that would be a worthy return for what He gave us? It was the duty of every Churchman to take a proper interest in the well-being and financial condition of his church. Any man who called himself a churchman should be ashamed to confess that he knew nothing of the financial affairs of his church; the blush of shame should rise to the face of any man who had to confess that his church was in debt. In conclusion the preacher asked what did God require from His people, in return for His goodness? The words of the text showed; "Thou shalt set thy first-fruits before the Lord thy God and worship before the Lord thy God and thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the Lord thy God has given thee."

At the evening service there was choral evensong, and Rev. Mr. Creswick was again the preacher. The anthem was "And God said Let the Earth Bring Forth," by Torins, Mr. Piche taking the bass solo. During the offertory Miss Jessie Phillips sang Allitson's "Song of Thanksgiving," in a very sweet and cultivated way. The voluntaries at both services were most enjoyable, and added to the laurels already won by the church organist, Mr. Spooner.

Christ Church.

In the absence of the rector, at the morning service, Rev. A. L. Geen officiated and preached. His text was from 2nd Kings, 5th chapter and 12th verse:

> "Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? May I not wash in them and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage."

Holloway Street.

At Holloway Street the services were well attended. The pastor took for his morning theme, "The Church, the school of life," his text being Eph. 3 and 21:

> "Unto Him be glory in the church."

Showing in part that the church as the guardian of religion stands for aggressive knowledge of God and man. We are the guardians of the church and co-workers with God in the spreading of the gospel. The General Conference of the Methodist Church, just closed, was of vital importance to our church and country, and while conservative of doctrine and discipline was decidedly aggressive in policy and outlook, and now that plans were laid before us each one may rise to the spirit of perpetuated Christian fellowship among ourselves, and a large hearted welcome to the multitudes who are seeking citizenship among us. Let us claim them for Christ and his church and eternal life.

In the evening the text was John 17: 3;

> "This is life eternal, that they may know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."

The choir were in good form. Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gordon sang a helpful duet.

Tabernacle.

The pastor, Rev. Geo. Brown, occupied the pulpit yesterday. In the morning his subject was "Feeding on Ashes." His texts were from Isaiah, 44th chapter, 20th verse, and Isaiah, 55th chapter and part of the 2nd verse.

John St.

"A Trifle" was the subject discussed last evening by the pastor, Rev. A. H. Drumm. His text was from Judges, 12th chapter and 6th verse;

> "Then said they unto him, say now Shibboleth, and he said Sibboleth, for he could not frame to pronounce it right. They took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan, and there fell at that time of the Ephraimites forty and two thousands."

During the service Miss Elsie Price sang a solo entitled, "Hold Thou My Hand."

St. Andrew's.

"The Sinlessness of Jesus," was the subject spoken upon last evening by the pastor, Rev. R. S. Laidlaw. His text was from St. John 8th chapter and 46th verse:

> "Which of you convinceth me of sin? And if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me?"

Bridge Street.

After an absence of two Sundays the pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson, preached at both services yesterday, and large congregations were present. In the evening his subject was "Unseen," and the text was from 2nd Corinthians, 4th chapter, 17th and 18th verses.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

Last night, to a good congregation, the Rector, Rev. A. M. Hubly, preached a thoughtful and helpful sermon, on "The Faithful." The richest rewards of the Almighty were reserved for those who were faithful to His commands. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

Point Ann.

A very successful harvest festival service was held in Point Ann church yesterday at 3 p.m. The decorations (given by St. John's Church, Belleville) were very pretty, and the ladies of the congregation displayed good taste in the arranging of them, adding fruit and vegetables. There was a good congregation and the service was very hearty. Mr. Reginald Geen was organist for the day, and Miss Henderson, of St. Agnes' School, rendered great help in the singing. The Rev. Rural Dean Beamish conducted the service, the incumbent reading the lessons. Rev. Mr. Creswick, of Brighton, preached a very able sermon. The offering was much larger than last year.

Boys Guilty Of Cruelty to a Cat

THREW IT THROUGH MR. MARSH'S WINDOW — ARRESTS MAY FOLLOW.

On Friday evening last, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Marsh, who reside on Albert street, were startled by the sudden appearance of a cat in their home, the animal coming in unceremoniously through a window. The poor animal was severely cut by the broken glass, and blood flowed freely from the wounds. Upon investigation it was learned that the cat had been deliberately thrown through the window by some boys. The police have ascertained who the guilty parties were, and to-day an information was issued against them. It was a most despicable trick, and no doubt the guilty parties will be properly punished.

Charged With Breaking Into Bonded G.T.R Cars

Last night, at a few minutes after 11 o'clock, a man was seen to leave a G.T.R. bonded car, No. 10,064, which was on a siding in the yard here. The man was caught, and officer Naphin, of the local police force answered a call to the station and placed the man under arrest. He gave his name as Wm. Hines, but this morning he said his name was Wm. Pavitt, and his home in England.

Upon investigation of the car it was found that a large packing case containing "Grapenuts" and another case containing jams, had been broken into and a package of the food and one jar of jam was found on Pavitt. A sack of sugar was also opened and a small paper bag, containing probably two pounds, was also found in the possession of the man. The car in question had been deliberately broken into, as the broken seal was found alongside the car.

Pavitt was this morning brought up before the Magistrate and pleaded guilty to stealing the above articles from the car. He, however, alleges that he did not break open the car but found the door partially open. He was remanded to jail for a week.

Provincial Institutions Are to Be Inspected

Toronto, Sept. 29.—It is understood that the Government will shortly appoint a special commission to inquire into and investigate the conditions, conduct and operation of the various provincial institutes for the education and care of the blind and the deaf and dumb. The commission is said to be the result of many requests for a full inquiry, coupled with the desire of the Government to place itself in close touch with existing conditions and the running of the institutions.

It is not improbable that Mr. A. J. Russell Snow, of the legal firm of Beaty, Snow & Nasmith, of this city, may be appointed by the Government as the special commissioner.

FOUR TOWNS WIPED OUT

While the storm was at its height the water from the bay was driven in with great force on the city the waves coming over the ends of the wharves six feet deep. Three blocks into the city, the flood was driven, filling every basement and store in that part of the city.

Every Building Damaged.

The damage in the City of Mobile proper is enormous. It is contended by some that there is not a building in the city which has not been damaged. Some of the larger buildings suffered severely. Christ Episcopal Church was damaged about $40,000. The spire of St. Francis street Baptist Church was blown down, and every other church building in the city sustained some loss. Hotels suffered severely. the Bienville losing its kitchen, which was blown away, and the Cawthorn, losing many windows through which the rain poured, damaging carpets and draperies to the extent of $4,000.

Merchants Heaviest Losers.

The heaviest loss will fall on the merchants along the waterfront, who, although warned of the coming of the tropical storm, made no effort to remove their goods.

The damage to docks is $300,000. Reports of damage to boats down the bay and in the gulf are numerous.

The British steamer Doris Brook is said to be so high on Dauphin Island that she can be walked around. The three-masted schooner King of Avon is dismantled and ashore near the mouth of Dog River. The ship Phor Ugland has been driven ashore in the lower part of the bay with all masts gone. The pilot boat Louise Harper was carried four miles inland.

Revenue Cutter Lost.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Assistant Secretary Edwards has received a telegram from F. M. Rook, engineer in charge of the revenue cutter Alert, at Mobile, saying the Alert had been sunk at her berth by a river steamer running into her during the recent storm. Nothing has been heard of the revenue cutter Winona or the launch Penrose. which was in Mobile harbor at the time of the hurricane.

RIVER FLOODS TOWN.

Town of Revelstoke, B. C., Threatened With Destruction.

Winnipeg, Oct. 1.—Recent advices from Revelstoke say the river has washed away 25 acres of the town in the past couple of months, and where once lay flourishing fields, prosperous industries and many homes is now a rushing turbulent flood.

The town, which has a population of 5,000, is threatened with grave disaster, unless immediate steps are taken to prevent the further destruction of river bank.

Increase For Street Car Men.

Hamilton, Oct. 1.—The street car men have been given an increase from 15, 16 and 17 cents an hour to 16, 18 and 20 cents an hour, reaching the maximum after three years' service. The maximum on the Dundas line was raised from 16 to 18 1-2 cents an hour, while the wages of the Radial men will remain as at present. All the employes will get two cents an hour extra for overtime and work on Sunday, and will be able to get two hours' work in twelve consecutive hours.

MY DEAR DADDY IS DYING

Pathetic Message of Suicide's Youngster to Doctor.

J. E. Grindall of Toronto Committed Suicide by Carbolic Acid on Saturday—In a Fit of Despondency a Meaford Man Takes His Life—Lena Scott, Toronto, Also Tried It by Bichloride of Mercury, But Failed.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Carbolic acid killed James E. Grindall at 184 Harbord street on Saturday. He was a young man with a wife and two children. Lately he has been worrying about things but, although despondent, no such tragic termination as that of Saturday was anticipated. It appears that Grindall bade his wife an affectionate good-bye on Saturday morning and then went upstairs, where he consumed a considerable quantity of carbolic acid, which he had procured from a neighboring drug store. One of his children went to Dr. Canfield and said: "My dear daddy is dying." When Dr. Canfield could get to the house his services were of no avail.

In a Fit of Despondency.

Meaford, Oct. 1.—In a fit of despondency, brought on by worrying over financial matters, H. Kirkpatrick, a married man, about 40 years of age, committed suicide at his home at Centreville Saturday morning. He shot himself through the heart with a shotgun. He leaves a widow and five young children. He came here from Dublin, Ireland, some years ago.

Girl Took Poison.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Lena Scott, who, since her arrival in Canada a few months ago, has been living on upper Terauley street, was taken to St. Michael's Hospital on Saturday after having swallowed some bichloride of mercury. Dr. Crawford attended to her and she will recover.

GOES DOWN IN LAKE ERIE.

Steamer City of Concord Sinks—Three of the Crew of 12 Drown.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 1.—The old wooden steamer City of Concord, having three barges in tow, went down Saturday night in the storm on Lake Erie, off Huron, Ohio. Three of the crew of 12 were lost.

The other nine, after a terrible time in the yawl boat, landed at Cedarpoint at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and walked into Huron, seven hours later in an exhausted condition.

The names of the drowned are: Frank Peters, fireman, Muskegon, Mich.; John Wiser, watchman, Milwaukee; Roy Wakefield, deckhand, St. Clair, Mich.

Killed at Crossing.

Wingham, Oct. 1.—James Jobb, a laborer, who has been a resident of this section for a number of years, was instantly killed by the C. P. R. express Friday night. He had spent the day at the Wingham fair, and was driving home alone in a buggy when the accident occurred. The engineer saw the rig on the track and blew the whistle, but could not stop the train in time to avoid the accident. Coroner Kennedy decided to hold an inquest, which was adjourned until Wednesday. Jobb was about 45 years of age and was unmarried.

Crushed Between Cars.

North Bay, Oct. 1.—A sad accident occurred at the Union Station Friday night, in which Fireman Fred Goulen lost his life. He was fireman on the Grand Trunk engine which was to take out the Toronto express leaving here at 8.50 p. m. He was fixing a coupling, and in doing so he raised his head between the bumpers. At that moment the engine moved slightly and the fireman's head was crushed, killing him instantly. His remains were taken to Eganville, Ont.

Went Through Drawbridge.

Clarksville, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Louisville and Nashville passenger train, northbound, ran into the open bridge across Cumberland River last night. The engine and baggage and mail coaches went down, carrying with them seven men, five of whom were rescued. Engineer Frank Porter of Bowling Green, and Express Messenger Wood of Clarksville, are missing. The bridge was turned for a boat.

Dies From Fall.

Hamilton, Oct. 1.—Charles Hurd, who fell a few feet from a scaffold last Monday, died yesterday at the City Hospital. He was 23 years of age and leaves a widow and four children.

Girl's Tragic End.

Hamilton, Oct. 1.—Pearl Donnelly, the 10-year-old daughter of James Donnelly, 241 North Wellington street, who was struck on the head by a broken cable, which snapped when a house was being moved, died in the City Hospital Saturday morning.

Drowned In Swan Lake.

Swan Lake, Man., Oct. 1.—A young man from Winnipeg named Albert, agd 20, was drowned in the lake here Saturday morning while out shooting in a canoe.

Stepped Into Space.

Preston, Oct. 1.—Friday night C. E. Kyle of Toronto, stepped into space off a G. P. & H car, standing at the north end of the railway bridge over the Speed River, and landed ten feet below in the water, under the bridge. He is suffering from a badly twisted leg and a sprained ankle.

TWO IN FAMILY DEAD.

Son of J. H. Waldman of Guelph, Victim of Danville, Ill., Wreck.

Guelph, Oct. 1.—News was received yesterday afternoon of the death, in Danville, Illinois, Hospital, of Vincent, the second son of J. H. Waldman, from injuries received in the Wabash wreck at Catlin.

The condition of the other two children, John and Marguerite, is more favorable, though the latter is still in a critical state.

The body of the late Mrs. Waldman arrived in Guelph Saturday. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, and was attended by hundreds of citizens.

Find Body In the Scugog River.

Lindsay, Oct. 1.—The body of R. H. Hopkins, who has been missing since Wednesday night last, was found floating yesterday morning about four miles north of Lindsay on the west shore of the Scugog River.

Fatal Car Ferry Capsize.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 1.—Three sailors were drowned and 24 railway cars, together with 800 tons of iron ore and car attachments, were lost in the lake Saturday night when a car ferry capsized less than a mile outside of the Chicago harbor.

Two Dead, 29 Hurt.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—General Manager Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad stated Saturday afternoon that only two persons were killed and 29 injured in the rear-end collision near Eddington, Pa., that morning. The dead are Mrs. W. H. Connell, wife of an employe of the railroad, and Mrs. Mary O'Mally of Philadelphia. The collision occurred on the New York division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, 19 miles north of here. Defective air brakes is given as the cause of the wreck.

THE BRIBERY CHARGES.

Mr. George Reid of London Surrenders and Is Admitted to Bail—Six to Face the Magistrate.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Mr. George Reid of London surrendered himself to Crown Attorney Corley Saturday morning. He was arraigned before Magistrate Denison on a charge of conspiracy to bribe, pleaded not guilty and was admitted to bail in his own surety for $1,000, and one for $1,000 furnished by George Wilkie of this city.

Six to Face Magistrate.

Wm. Serviss, carpenter, and George Ardy, wholesale butcher, of London, were brought to Toronto Saturday by Detective Mackie, will appear with Mr. Reid in the police court here to-day. The two prisoners were released on bail.

It is also expected that Ed. Sifton, manager of the Electrical Construction Co.; William Mulloy, ex-hotelkeeper, and Dan Wiley, customs officer, will surrender to the crown and appear at the same time.

WOMEN SPIRITED AWAY.

Prosecution in East Elgin Case Asks For Adjournment.

St. Thomas, Oct. 1.—The council chamber at Aylmer was crowded Saturday to hear the case brought by License Inspector Andrews of East Elgin against Mr. Butler of Orwell for keeping a disorderly house, and having the blinds of his hotel down on the second day of August, 1906, and at other times.

Mr. Butler pleaded not guilty, and requested W. K. Cameron of St. Thomas, who appeared for the prosecution, to adjourn the case until Monday, when he would be prepared to go on with his case. Mr. Cameron therefore adjourned the case until Monday.

W. F. Hepburn, retired Liberal candidate, was present.

The two women who figure in the case have mysteriously disappeared, and are said to be in hiding in Detroit.

"Witnesses have mysteriously disappeared," said Mr. Cameron, "but we are ready to go on with the case."

He explained that an attempt to subpoena the women had proven vain.

Stockholm, Oct. 1.—The news received here is that the Salvation Army in Canada is planning a wholesale emigration from Sweden. It is reported the organization has engaged a special fleet of twelve steamers to take 25,000 Swedes to the Dominion, the inducement held out being free passage to the new world. The alleged scheme has caused a sensation here and the newspapers are up in arms against it. International complications are threatened.

PILES CURED QUICKLY AT HOME.

WITHOUT PAIN, CUTTING OR SURGERY—INSTANT RELIEF.

WE PROVE IT—SAMPLE PACKAGE FREE.

Seven people out of ten are said to have piles. Not one man in a million need have them, and we are proving it every day at our own expense. We send a sample package of the wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure to any person absolutely free.

We don't do this as a matter of amusement or philanthropy, but because it is to our interest to do so. We know that the sufferer from piles, tormented and driven almost crazy by this wretched trouble, will find such immediate relief that he will go at once to his druggist and buy a box and get well.

We know that we have got the greatest remedy in the world for piles, and we are ready and willing to stand or fall by the verdict of those who make the trial. We have been doing this for some years now and we never yet have had occasion to regret it.

And the remedy at the drug store is exactly the same as the sample we send out. As, for instance, here is a man who got such immediate relief from the sample that he at once bought a box. Was it just the same? Undoubtedly, since it cured him after all sorts and kinds of things had failed.

Here is a sample of the kind of letters we get every day and we don't have to ask for them;

Received your sample of Pile Cure and have given it a fair trial and it has proven the best I ever tried and effected a complete cure. I can recommend you highly in this vicinity. Have used your sample and one box and it has been a complete cure. It has been worth $100 to me.

Thanking you for the sample and the cure, I will recommend you to everybody. Yours respectfully, Julius Mayer, Dealer in Feathers, Ginseng and Hides, Bedford, Ind.

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist's at 50 cents a box, or, if you would like to try a sample first, you will receive one by return mail by sending your name and address to The Pyramid Drug Company, 59 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

CUBA'S FLAG IS WAVING

Although the United States Is in Control of Country.

Secretary Taft's Occupation Is a Novelty In Protectorates and Saves the Pride of the Cuban People—Troops, to the Number of 5,500 Ordered, and Are Now on the Way—Funston Is Settling Rebels Amicably.

Havana, Oct. 1—A United States provisional government assumed possession of Cuba Saturday when War Secretary Taft's proclamation declaring himself provisional governor of the island was formally issued.

The proclamation was published in The Official Gazette and thousands of printed copies of the document were distributed in Havana and elsewhere.

Governor Taft proceeded to the palace at noon to take over the Government of Cuba. The act was not accompanied by any formal ceremony.

While Governor Taft has not taken possession of the palace, this is only because ex-President Palma will not be ready to vacate the official residence until Monday, and Mr. Taft desires to do whatever he can to suit the ex-President's convenience.

Saves Cuban Pride.

Governor Taft's proclamation gives unbounded satisfaction to all classes. Instead of wounding Cuban pride, Governor Taft has saved it.

The Cuban flag is not to come down. Cubans will be in charge of every department of the Government. Cuban officials will keep their offices. The Cuban courts will not be disturbed. Cuban laws are to remain in force.

In a word, the United States has taken temporary control of a Government of Cuba administered by Cubans for Cubans. Governor Taft in his proclamation promises a new election as soon as conditions permit.

Rebels Dispersing Peacefully.

The work of dispersing peacefully the revolutionary forces in arms against the Cuban Government is already under way. Brig.-Gen. Frederick Funston, chairman of the disarmament commission, had two amicable conferences yesterday with Generals Pinon Guerra and Del Castillo and arranged a program perfectly satisfactory to all concerned.

The first landing of any considerable number of Americans took place last night, when 450 marines came ashore and proceeded to Cienfuegos.

Taft Says "Send Troops."

Washington, Oct. 1.—Secretary Taft has cabled from Havana to Acting Secretary Oliver at the War Department to send the American troops to Cuba in accordance with the program already arranged.

Acting Secretary Oliver has issued orders for the first expedition of 5,500 soldiers to prepare to sail for Newport News as soon as possible.

United States troops now are moving towards Cuba. The first troops will be landed at Havana next Saturday.

In official circles here American intervention was regarded as inevitable. How long it may continue it is impossible to foretell.

MUTINEERS SENTENCED.

Death For Nineteen Sailors and Long Term For Others.

Cronstadt, Oct. 1.—The sentences of the court-martial on the sailors and others charged with participation in the mutiny at Cronstadt last August have been delivered, subject to confirmation.

M. Onipko, one of the leaders of the peasant party in the outlawed parliament, is condemned to deportation and the loss of all his civil rights. Nineteen sailors are condemned to death by shooting, 12 to life servitude, 120 to terms of servitude varying from four to 20 years, and 420 others, sailors to service with the disciplinary battalions and various terms of imprisonment.

One hundred and twenty-nine sailors were acquitted.

Only One Hotel In Town With 19 Escapes Blue Paper.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 1.—Eighteen out of nineteen hotel proprietors of this city received their papers Friday to appear before Police Magistrate Cruickshanks Tuesday morning for selling liquor during forbidden hours. Only one place, the Market Hotel, managed by Charles J. Flynn, is not included in the list.

In Welland towns eight hotels were "scooped" in, and all "settled" by paying the fines imposed.

Stabbing Affray.

Deseronto, Oct. 1.—A stabbing affray, in which the victim is an Indian, will be investigated here on Tuesday next. It is alleged that Archibald Green and an Indian named Andrew Cuthbertson had a row, and the latter was stabbed in the back. The wound is over three inches deep, and one of the kidneys has been perforated, but a fatal termination is not looked for at present, unless complications set in.

France Determined.

Paris, Oct. 1.—Premier Sarrien and Minister of the Interior Clemenceau delivered notable speeches yesterday, in which it was set forth that the Government was firmly determined to carry out the law providing for the separation of church and state.

THE BRIBERY CASES.

Evidence Taken That Substantiates Story of Jerry Collins.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Evidence substantiating the story of Jerry Collins as to the bribery of voters in the London bye-election was given in the police court yesterday by Edgar Clark and Kenneth Clark, who swore they had received $10 each for voting for Hyman. They implicated Wiley and Mulloy. John Cox had also received an envelope from Mulloy, while Alex Milne a deputy returning officer, swore that he had been instructed by Collins as to how to illegally fold the ballots.

When court opened these prisoners lined up when the charge of conspiracy was read: Wm. Mulloy, Wm. Service, Geo. Ardey, Daniel Wiley, George Reid and John O'Gorman. They all pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Robinette formally objected to the jurisdiction of the magistrate to hear the case, but was overruled.

A pollbook was filed as an exhibit by the crown. Initials indicate that 144 voted Hyman and 105 Gray, and other initials are taken to indicate payments to voters by Collins, Service, Mulloy and Sifton.

All Will Share Alike.

Yesterday Premier Whitney, discussing the situation, said:

"Whoever may be playing fast and loose in the matter, this Government is not. The case was reported to the Attorney-General's department, and the first I heard of it was when the Attorney-General, Hon. Mr. Foy, told me it had been placed in the hands of the prosecuting authorities.

"An immediate and full investigation was ordered—the only proper and consistent course to pursue, and the course I trust this Government will always pursue without any considerations of personal or political effect.

"In future let it be clearly understood that there is no intention to wink at allegations of electoral crookedness, be they from Liberal or Conservative. All will share alike."

Deepen Welland Canal.

Kingston, Oct. 2.—Before the Dominion Government commission yesterday, H. W. Richardson asserted that the bulk of the grain from the west could be brought down the St. Lawrence by the deepening of the Welland Canal. Grain costs seven cents by Buffalo and New York, whereas it could be carried profitably by the St. Lawrence route for five cents, provided longer vessels could pass through the Welland Canal.

Slashed by Italian Gang.

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 2.—H. E. Hewitt, and Edward Cole two prominent ranchers, riding near Cochrane, were fatally stabbed Sunday by a gang of 20 drunken Italians Cole was ripped to pieces so that his vital organs were exposed, while Hewitt was found with two inches of a heavy dagger imbedded in his spine. The mounted police arrested thirteen members of the gang. They are C. P. R. bridge workmen.

Some Inside Information.

Fowler and Others Got It Before Locating the Land.

Donald Mann and President Shaughnessy Were Both Good to the Syndicate—Mr. Lefurgey, M. P. Tells How the Land Deal Was Originated —R.L. Borden Might Have Been "In" It, Too, But He Didn't Bite.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Before the Insurance Commission proper opened yesterday morning Mr. Shepley introduced A. M. Worrell, representing the Bank of Montreal, and C. A. Masten, for the Bank of Nova Scotia, who addressed the Commission on the subject of an inspection of bank books by counsel. Judge MacTavish ruled that since moneys had been traced to the banks it would be necessary to have the books inspected by Mr. Shepley, to satisfactorily carry on the enquiry into the workings of the Union Trust Co.

The Okanagon Lumber Co.

D. O. Bull, barrister, told of his connection with the Okanagon Lumber Co.

A resolution was passed at a meeting of the directors in May, 1904, giving George W. Fowler power of attorney to put through the sale of the property. Fowler therefore became the agent of the Okanagon Lumber Co. The same day the Okanagon Co. gave Fowler an option on the timber limits, the mill and plant, and 11 town lots, for $175,000, Fowler to pay $1 down. Witness had no knowledge of the agreement.

Got $6,000 For His Interest.

The logs were a separate deal, for which Mr. Shepley produced cheques given by the Kamloops Co. to Fowler amounting to $12,000, payable in three different cheques. Counsel then took up the ledger of the Kamloops Lumber Co., showing the Okanagon Lumber Co.'s account. No separate accounts were kept of the purchase of the limits, etc., for $177,555.58, and the purchase of the logs, the amounts corresponding to the cheques. When asked regarding sale, witness said that he had been told by William Irwin and Fowler and McCormack that the members of the company would get $2 for $1 for their investments. He did not know the real price was $175,000, plus $24,000. All he got out of the deal was $6,000 (Mr. Fowler's cheque on the Bank of Nova Scotia).

Mr. Lefurgey a Witness.

A. A. Lefurgey, M. P., Summerside, P. E. I., was the next witness.

Mr. Shepley asked witness to tell of the Great West Land Co. and his connection with it in the fullest possible manner. He said:

"A few years ago, in the course of a trip through the west, Mr. Pope, Fowler and myself decided we would buy a certain number of acres from the C. P. R. On our return here Mr. Pope and Fowlr got an option on the lands from the C. P. R. We took up the lands and Mr Pope and Fowler tried to negotiate the sale and were introduced to people here in Toronto. We gave them an option. The lands were eventually taken up. I don't think I knew then by whom this was, but they developed into the New Ontario Town Sites Co. The C. P. R. accepted them instead of us as purchasers. We bought the land at $3.50 per acre and sold them at $4.50 per acre, to which I was opposed at the time."

Mr. Shepley did not think the story was full enough. He cross-examined the witness at length.

In 1902 R. L. Borden made a political trip through the west. Rufus Pope, W. H. Bennett, Ed. W. Fowler and the witness, all members of Parliament, discussed the scheme of buying land in the west, and mention was made that Mr. Borden might come in the deal. Ten were to be in the game, but no more. The four talked of securing 100,000 acres at least, and later witness paid $200 towards preliminary expenses.

Got It From Dan Mann.

In the meantime Fowler and Pope had seen Dan Mann, and he had given them a tip on the route of the Canadian Northern, so they could get the valuable lands.

"Who came in after Pope, yourself, Fowler and Bennett?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"These were the four that formed the syndicate."

"Was your going ahead dependent on ten coming in?"

"Oh, no."

Mr. Shepley read from papers regarding the suit brought by Mr. Lefurgey against Pope and Fowler."

"On that occasion Mr. Borden expressed a willingness to join us, and it was intimated to me during the trip that he would possibly come in."

"You don't modify that statement now?"

"Oh, no, but I don't think I spoke to Borden myself."

The next time Mr. Lefurgey heard about the matter was in a telegram asking him to go west and select the lands. A short time afterward he was drawn on for $200 for preliminary expenses. There was considerable correspondence with Fowler.

Struck a Pretty Good Thing.

The witness had presumed that Mr. Borden had come into the transaction. Fowler had also stated in a letter to him that he expected to interest a wealthy Englishman called Lister, and also Mr. Peuchen, the head of the Canada Chemical Co., and Sir Henry Pellatt, in the scheme. It was then decided to raise the scope of the deal to 200,000 acres.

Mr. Fowler wrote again on Jan. 1, 1903, in which Fowler said: "Well, old man, I think we have struck a pretty good thing, and you people ought to erect a monument to Pope and myself on account of what we have done for you—"

"I suppose you are measuring the marble now?" asked Mr. Shepley.

If the land could not be sold en bloc, Fowler continued, they would incorporate a company, and sell stock at $5 a share.

"The intention was to sell the land at $5 per acre?"

"Yes."

"Or, at least, Fowler was keeping you quiet by telling you that," commented Mr. Shepley.

Witness had wanted a meeting of the syndicate all along, and Bennett was also getting anxious, but no information was forthcoming.

Borden Did Not Go In.

At the session of the House at Ottawa, in 1903, Mr. Lefurgey got no further information as to Mr. Peuchen or Mr. Lister, but was informed that Mr. Borden had not gone on with the matter. In fact, he believed then there were only the "original four" in the deal.

Then Fowler wired: "Must have four thousand from you for western deal. Wire me at Windsor where to make draft."

"Please explain that," said Mr. Shepley.

"Well, I knew the others were only asked to put up $2,000 and I thought I must be asked to take double shares. Mr. Bennett told me he was putting up $2,000 only."

The witness was not clear in his mind, but had a vague idea there

The London Scandal.

The legal proceedings growing out of the Hyman election in London are bringing out developments which should prove intensely interesting to every honest elector of this country, no matter for which side he may have in the past marked his ballot. The facts of the case do not seem hard to get at. The statement of one of Mr. Hyman's workers is that the constituency was deliberately debauched. In one division alone, according to this agent, no less than 104 votes — or one-third of the number pollable — were bought. If 104 votes were bought in one division what were the purchases elsewhere? How many votes were paid for in other parts of the constituency, and what was the price? Above all, whence came the money? These are matters into which the Crown may well go if the case is wide enough to admit of such an enquiry.

The London Free Press, which is published "on the spot," has this to say about the matter:

"The arrest of John O'Gorman, charged with electoral criminality is evidence that a serious attempt is being made to clear the air of this province in regard to a state of things which has brought grave scandal upon it for many years past.

"This man has had the reputation of being one of the ringleaders of a gang in the series of operations whereby the will of the people has been thwarted, and justice made a travesty of. The particular instance of wrongdoing, on which he was yesterday taken into custody is set forth by a well known citizen of London, Jeremiah Collins. The charge is that O'Gorman, as a Liberal election agent, engaged Collins to bribe voters at the last bye-election in London, when the Hon. C. S. Hyman, Minister of Public Works, was returned by a majority of 300 over his opponent, Mr. Gray. Collins alleges that he was promised a position in one of the public departments at a salary of $1,500 a year for performing his part in this agreement, and that the promise was not kept.

"The enquiry will take a wide range, and other arrests are to follow. In our news columns it will be seen that a number of persons are alleged to be implicated in crooked work at elections at various times in this city.

"If by these measures a full and searching investigation results it will be a good thing for the political purity of Ontario in bringing more clearly into the light the dark lantern dealings which have so long disgraced its fair fame.

"That an organized gang has thus operated during the past ten or twelve years in various western constituencies, has become one of the most notorious of facts. The work of some of its members has been shown up in the courts, and by their own evidence. These men have apparently enjoyed the protection of men high in authority. They were never prosecuted. They went about from place to place with every confidence in escaping punishment for whatever political crimes they might commit. If one of them were to be caught redhanded in bribing an elector, in personating a deputy returning officer, in perjuring himself, or suborning perjury in others he was not kept in prison to meet his deserts, but let out on straw bail and given opportunity to escape. Such bail was never estreated in the time of the Ross administration, crown prosecutors and other law officials seemed to have understood a duty to keep a blind eye to their faults. When such bail was estreated in the case of a most noted offender in a neighboring county, by order of the present Government, it was cried against as a hardship and even an outrage.

"It will be a great gain to the politics of Ontario if the machinations of the "skilled workers" shall be put an end to by bringing their authors to justice.

"The Crown is probably proceeding in these arrests under pretty certain information. The country will await with deep interest the issue of the several cases which are to be examined."

Not of Government Making.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Premier Whitney stated yesterday that the report of a wholesale investigation of the various institutes for the blind and deaf in the province was founded on a much less extensive fact.

A. J. Russell Snow is going to be asked to investigate certain charges made at the Brantford Asylum for the Blind.

At Belleville, a woman has made a complaint about the treatment of her little girl, and Superintendent Matheson has requested to have an investigation which Mr. Snow will be asked to make, but the enquiry has not been prompted by the Government.

"A Citizen" writes: "I have no animus against the establishments known as "second-hand stores." They do a legitimate business, but it seems to me the authorities should take steps to see that stores of the kind in question should not be allowed to get too near the centre of our business district. To my mind it does not look well."

It would appear that, while the Conservative Government remains in power, at all events, the "practical" Grit politician and those who do his dirty work will have to give up the devious methods which, for many years, have characterized elections in this province. Premier Whitney was asked yesterday morning if he would make any statement in connection with the recent political developments in London, and he replied: "Nothing further than to say that it is not play. Time was when men could do such things and then be allowed to get away. It will not be so in this instance. The machinery of the law was set in motion as soon as the matter was reported to the Attorney-General's Department."

HOW'S THIS, UNCLE DAN?

(Brockville Times.)

By the way, did Mr. Derbyshire, M. P. for Brockville, ever investigate that little affair in which his Parliamentary frank was used by an Ottawa firm for sending out advertising matter free? Mr. Derbyshire declared that it had been used without his knowledge or consent, and we have been expecting a satisfactory explanation of some sort or another for some time now.

Peterboro was going to vote to-day on a by-law authorizing the Council to purchase a $6000 site and present it to a steel rolling mills company which proposed going there. The Peterboro papers, in column articles, presented many touching arguments why the by-law should be carried. The night before last, however, the company notified the Council they had changed their minds, and were not going to Peterboro, but somewhere up near Niagara. It was cruel to toy with the feelings of the Strattenville people in that way.

Mr. Joseph James, of Actinolite, who was in the city to-day, does not agree with the theory that the River Moira cannot furnish Belleville with all the electric power needed at present. The Hydro-Electric Commission's report, Mr. James says, shows that 4,900 horse power is available on the Moira at low water. Why, then, should it be stated that 2000 h.p. is the river's limit? Power from the Moira, Mr. James says, can be furnished to this city at 25 per cent. of the cost of power from the Trent river. Why, then, should Belleville people neglect that which practically lies at their doors? After Moira power has been developed and put to use, Mr. James says, it will be time to talk of bringing large quantities of power from outside counties.

The American Cultivator asks if some genius will start a bacteria farm, and advertise pedigree stock for the uses of agriculture. But has not the U. S. Government already done so? Or shall Canada lead the way? As our contemporary truly remarks, bacteria, microscopic wigglers, are fast coming to the front as the farmer's best friends. Already they catch nitrogen to fertilize the soil; they ripen cream, flavor butter, ferment manures, etc., and now it is asserted that they cure tobacco. The day is not far distant, it is claimed, when commerce in high-bred tobacco bacteria will be an established fact. Let the scientists next discover a fighting breed of bacteria which will set upon and destroy the tuberculosis germ and other disreputable members of the tribe and there will be a little less to desire.

This is a record year for disasters and catastrophes of various kinds, earthquakes and accidents by sea and land. The great damage by the gales in the Gulf of Mexico just reported, the typhoon in the China seas, the railway accidents at Salisbury, England, in July, and at Grantham a few days ago, are among the most noticeable of such events. The typhoon was unusually destructive both of life and property. Few people realize the enormous number of lives lost in China by these outbreaks of nature. Thousands of the teeming population live in house boats on the rivers and at points along the coast. From time to time we read despatches reporting floods or storms in which many houses or boats are stated to have been destroyed. Such items are often passed without any thought of what they imply in regard to the loss of life. But lives are held cheaply in Oriental countries and ordinary precautions against such waste of life are too often disregarded.

For Family Colds

A reliable cough and cold cure should be always in the house ready for use the moment the first symptoms appear.

It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning.

It is safer, too.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States to-day are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shiloh's Consumption Cure is without doubt the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will buy no other.—L. Elder, Nanagawaya, Ont."

If it were anything but the best would this be so? Try it in your own family. If it does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? 25c. is the price. All dealers in medicine sell 303

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

A CITY MILK TEST.

CONDITIONS AT PRESENT APPEAR TO BE FAIRLY SATISFACTORY — BEST TEST IN MANY YEARS, SAYS MR. KERR.

The recent inspections of the milk furnished by the local vendors to the citizens of Belleville are now showing a good result, and Inspector J. K. Kerr stated that the samples inspected by him yesterday constituted the best lot of milk he had ever tested in Belleville.

A week ago the milk tested was said to be far below the required standard, and notice was given to most of the milkmen that an improvement would be insisted on if prosecution were to be avoided.

The appended test would appear to show the value to the people of Belleville of such precaution on the part of the Medical Health Department.

Doctor Yeomans stated to the Intelligencer that if such a standard of milk is maintained it will be most satisfactory to him as Health Officer, and that the citizens will have no reason to complain of the recent increase in the price per quart.

The result of the test follows:

	——Corrected——
No.	Lactometer Reading	Butter Fat.	Name.	Remarks.
25	1031	5.1	Cook	Fair color and Flavor.
29	1031	3.4	Demorest.	Not up to standard.
21	1034	3.5	Lane.	Good flavor.
25	1031.5	4.	Haight.	Good.
22	1030	3.1	Andrews.	Should be better.
2	1028	3.5	Ramsay.	Bad flavor.
12	1032	3.8	Boyd.	Not clean in flavor.
28	1028	4.	Waldron.	Fair.
3	1035	5.5	Thompson.	Morning's milk (not fair cample.)
5	1029.6	4.2	Andrews.	Pretty fair.
30	1031.7	4.6	Gay.	Good.
18	1032.5	4.4	Bailey.	Not clean in flavor.
15	1031.4	4.1	Weese.	Good flavor.
24	1031	3.4	Vandervoort.	Should be better.
31	1033	4.4	Soales.	Good.
4	1024	8.	Smith.	Not fair sample, cream.
25	1031.3	6.6.	Bird.	Not fair sample, cream.
14	1031.5	4.6	Hagerman.	Good.
20	1029.3	3.8	Sullivan.	Good flavor.
27	1027.3	4.	Callaghan.	Good flavor.

These tests will be continued at intervals and there will be no hesitation in prosecuting in cases where milk falls below the required standard.

Former Bridge St. Pastor Died Sunday in London.

REV. JOHN LEAROYD PASSED AWAY, FULL OF YEARS AND HONORS.

Despatches from London, Ont., announce the death, last Sunday, of the Rev. John Learoyd, in his 77th year. The news of his death will be received in this city with great regret, for during the years he was pastor of Bridge St. Church he was not only esteemed but beloved by his people and held in high regard by citizens of all denominations. He was pastor here in 1886, '87 and '88, during that eventful period when the church was rebuilt after the fire; when the Revs. Messrs. Crossley and Hunter visited our city for the first time, and the membership of the church was doubled.

Mr. Learoyd entered the Methodist ministry just fifty years ago last June. He was first stationed at Toronto West and since then has been in Brantford, Albion, St. Marys, Strathroy, Ingersoll, Yonge Street South Brampton, Picton, Oshawa, Port Hope, Belleville, Windsor, Sarnia, St. Marys, Lucknow. He was superannuated in 1902 and has since resided in London. Mr. Learoyd was for over twenty years chairman of Districts and President of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

He was a native of Yorkshire and was married in England, his wife predeceasing him in this city a few years ago. He is survived by four sons and two daughters, A. G. and E. L., of Ottawa; Alfred B., of Windsor; Walter, of Kenora; Mrs. Wm. Box, of St. Marys, and Miss Annie, at home.

His funeral takes place in St. Marys this afternoon. Telegrams from this city have been sent to the family, expressive of sympathy.

"He who does not open his eyes must open his purse." This old German adage is a piquant admonition to read the store-ads. before going shopping."

A Funny Eagle.

A Russian grand duke was once the guest of a German prince. It was early in the last century. In Russia the imperial double headed eagle is to be seen everywhere and on everything throughout the empire—stamped, painted, embroidered or sculptured. At that period the education of grand dukes was somewhat limited. This grand duke went out shooting in Germany and, among other things, shot a large bird. He asked an experienced huntsman who accompanied him what the bird was. "An eagle, your highness," was the answer. The grand duke turned on him in an irritated way. "How can it be an eagle," he asked, "when it has only one head?"

Shadeless Forests.

Large tracts of dense forests in Australia are practically shadeless. Many kinds of trees in that strange country turn their edges instead of the flat surface of the leaves to the sun, and thus one may stand under a tree of enormous size and be as fully exposed to the sun as though he were in the open plain. Travel through these forests is said to be exceedingly arduous work, as the trees, while they do not cut off the sun, prevent the breeze from reaching the ground, and thus the traveler experiences a stifling heat.

Discriminating.

A thoughtful hostess gave a children's party and decided it would be healthier to serve only mineral waters.

One little girl tasted of her carbonic and laid the glass down.

"What's the matter, dear? Don't you like charged water?"

"No, ma'am. Please may I have some water that you've paid for?"—Life.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil — of sunshine and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble — it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

How Plate Glass Is Made.

The cast plate glass of which mirrors, shop windows and such things are made is prepared from the whitest sand, broken plate glass, soda, a small amount of manganese and cobalt oxides. The glass when perfectly melted is poured upon an iron table of the size required, and the thickness is regulated by a strip of iron placed down each of the four sides of the table. Immediately after it is poured out the molten substance is flattened down by an iron roller, which lowers the glass to the thickness of the strips at the sides. It is then annealed or tempered for several days, after which it is ground perfectly level and polished to transparent brilliancy. The first plate glass was made in 1688 at St. Picardy, France, where the process was found out by an accident, as so many other important methods in manufacture have been discovered, where there were eyes to see the accidents and minds to apply them or the lessons they taught to the advance of art or industry.

The Irish Bull In Journalism.

Of a well known reporter of a past generation many curiosities of style are still repeated with zest by Dublin journalists. It was this man who explained, describing a case of drowning off Dalkey, "The body was washed ashore by a receding wave." Of a fugitive from justice he wrote: "The burglar was surrounded on all sides by the police. Escape was impossible. Suddenly he made his way down a cul-de-sac and disappeared through a side street." The most popular story of this impressionist writer, however, relates to Mr. Gladstone. On the Grand Old Man's one and only visit to Dublin he was interviewed by the eccentric press man. Mr. Gladstone, at the conclusion of a somewhat amusing array of questions, very courteously expressed his pleasure at meeting the interviewer. The latter, in a high state of delight, said with enthusiasm, "The pleasure is mutual, Mr. Gladstone, but is all on my side."—London Tribune.

The Oldest Sense of Humor.

The oldest idea of humor is surprise. This the child exhibits (for that which is oldest we shall find in the youngest) when it hides and cries "Boo!" both surprising and frightening its senior, be this senior father, mother, brother, sister or friend. One may find this primal sense of humor distributed through the modern short-story. Frequently the turn in the plot, if not in its development, hinges upon this child humor of surprise. Even some grownup folk will pull a chair from under one, thus showing themselves still children in their sense of fun. The verbal conceit found in much of the verse in the pages of modern comic papers is of this same class of humor and furnishes conclusive evidence that a number of men and women are at child's play in literature. Poems which end contrary to their foreshadowings are of this sort.

A Curious Custom.

In certain parts of India in families where there are several daughters the youngest sisters may only marry after the elder sister is married. Of course it frequently happens that no suitor appears for the elder, in which case she is got out of the way by a very neat expedient. She is wedded to a tree or a large flower, and then the younger sister may marry. The elder sister must be careful, however, to choose a plum, apple or apricot tree, from which she can get a divorce, for if she married an elm, pine or poplar these are sacred trees and must not be trifled with.

His Wig In His Pocket.

Benjamin Franklin once wore his wig in his pocket at the court of Versailles. When he was about to present himself at the court for the first time he was informed that a wig was essential. Franklin's head was so large that no ordinary wig would begin to fit it. However, one was found sufficiently large to pass him through the antechambers, after which he was permitted to remove the ridiculous conventional appendage and place it in his ample pocket.

Hard to Please.

Mr. Snaggs was accosted on the street the other day by a beggar who was covered with a very remarkable mass of patched and ragged garments and who said:

"Mister, haven't you some old clothes you could give a fellow?"

Snaggs surveyed the beggar from head to foot and then asked:

"Are not the clothes you have on old enough for you?"

The Under Side of Fish.

Experiments have been made with flounders in order to determine whether the whiteness of the under sides of those fish is due to the exclusion of light, and the presence of color on their upper sides to exposure to light. The fish experimented upon were kept living in a glass tank, having a mirror placed beneath, so as to reflect light upon the under sides of the fish. One of these prisoners survived for three years under conditions so strangely different from its ordinary habits of life, and all of them exhibited the development of spots of pigment on their lower surfaces. The experimenters concluded that it is exposure to light that causes the coloration of the upper parts of the bodies, not only of flounders, but of other fish, and, conversely, that it is to the comparative absence of light that the whiteness of under sides of fish is due. They extend the same principle to explain the colorless condition of the skins of many animals that pass all their lives in caves.

Bird Songs.

Naturalists have long been puzzled as to how birds learn to sing. Does it come natural to a bird of a certain species to sing the song common to its kind or does it learn to imitate whatever song it most hears during the early days of its life? Experiments made by a well known student of bird life proved that most birds simply learn by imitation. He placed young linnets to be reared by skylarks, woodlarks, titlarks and other breeds, and in every case the linnet learned the song of his foster parents. Again, a number of linnets were reared where they had no chance of hearing the song of any bird at all. In due course they began to sing, but their song was entirely original. The cuckoo, however, seems to be an exception, for although it is almost invariably reared by foster parents of any species but its own, it always sings to perfection its own peculiar song, quite uninfluenced by the vocal efforts of its guardians.

Origin of the Strike Fund.

The earliest mention of a strike fund occurred in the strike of the Parisian stocking weavers in 1724, when a crown a day was subscribed for every striker and all blacklegs were mercilessly boycotted. But the biggest strike under the "ancient regime" was that of the silk factory hands at Lyons in 1744, when 12,000 men went on strike and so alarmed the mayor that he conceded everything they asked and wrote to his brother that he had, "la tete cassee par cette vile canaille." The "vile canaille," however, had had their moment, and it was no longer theirs. Two months later the king sent down 20,000 soldiers "pour remettre l'ordre dans la bonneville de Lyon," and we hear no more of strikes till the supreme strike of 1789.

A Snail's Sense of Smell.

Professor E. Yung of Geneva discovered that the keen sense of smell attributed to the ordinary snail is distributed over the entire body not covered by the shell, the two pairs of tentacles, the lips and the edges of the feet being particularly sensitive. In the experiments made a brush dipped in various odorous substances in turn was brought near the different parts of the body, and responses were noted at distances of one twenty-fifth of an inch to several inches. Only in exceptional cases was odor perceived as much as fifteen or twenty inches away, showing that smell cannot guide these creatures to food far removed.

The Mulberry Tree.

Silk is the great industry of northern Italy, and the plains of the quadrilateral are dark with mulberry trees. The mulberry tree is the hardest worked piece of timber in the world. First its leaves are skinned off for the worms to feed on, then the little branches are clipped for the worms to nest in, then the large limbs are cropped for charcoal, and the trunk has not only to produce a new crop of leaves and limbs for next year, but must act as trellis for a grapevine.

His Bucolic Business.

"That was a perfectly lovely gentleman I met last night," declared the pretty milliner. "He has a good, reliable business too."

"What is it?" asked her friend.

"Why, he sells farm implements," continued the pretty girl.

"What kind of farm implements?"

"Buckets—nothing but buckets. He told me he kept a bucket shop."

Ptomaines.

Ptomaines, according to Quain, are alkaloids produced by the decomposition of animal substances. The word ptomaine was at first restricted to alkaloids produced by cadaveric decomposition, but it is now also employed to designate alkaloids of animal origin formed during life as a result of chemical changes induced by some agency or other acting within the organism.

Youth and Pleasure.

Youth is not the age of pleasure. We then expect too much, and we are, therefore, exposed to daily disappointments and mortifications. When we are a little older and have brought down our wishes to our experience, then we become calm and begin to enjoy ourselves.

Fortune.

Fortune is like the market, where many times if you can stay a little the price will fall, and again it is sometimes like a sibyl's offer, which at first offereth the commodity at full, then consumeth part and part and still holdeth up the price.—Bacon.

A proper secrecy is the only mystery of able men. Mystery is the only secrecy of weak and cunning ones.

The most awkward and ungainly woman can be transformed into a beautiful lovely creature if she has the brain power to absorb the fact that Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do the business. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—D. M. Waters.

Not Just Better Baking But Far Easier Cookery

The way the oven heat's made to bake evenly—that alone would sell you the Imperial Oxford range once you really saw what it means. But the Imperial Oxford isn't just a perfect baker,—it's the easiest range to cook with, because it uses heat sensibly whatever you want the heat to do,—fry, broil, or bake.

Imperial Oxford Range

Its roomy firebox, its easy-to-manage sensitive drafts, hold the heat EVEN,—keep it under your control. And the special Imperial Oxford thermometer tells you always just where the heat is. But you can't really know what a fine set of ideas are built into this range until you come and see it.

HE'S A MOSSBACK.

Obadiah Willis Dunker was a cautious sort o' feller;
He was never ketched a-doin' nothin rash,
When the weather looked like rainin' he 'ud tote his umbreller,
An' he'd know what he was buyin' for his cash.
He was cunnin', he was keerful, he was mighty calculatin',
When he done a thing he'd study quite a heap;
An' he'd allus tell the neighbors 'at there's nothin' lost by waitin'
An' they'd better take a look afore they leap.

Obadiah Willis Dunker wouldn't vote for no improvement,
For he figgered mighty close on the expense,
There was times, he said, when standstills was about as good as movement
An' this changin' wasn't any proof o' sense.
He would sit down on the sidewalk for an hour or two and whittle
On a trade o' forty cents. His time was cheap,
But he argued that the big things come by keerfulness in little,
An' he meant to allus look afore he'd leap.

Obadiah Willis Dunker ain't a-layin' by no money,
But the moss is growin' thicker on his back;
But he says if he ain't making' he's not losin' none, by gunny!
While he's joggin' in the easy beaten track.
He's a-keepin' both eyes open so the main chance won't git by him,
Though a stranger might s'pose he was asleep,
But there ain't no big successes, I guess, will ever come anigh him,
For he's lookin', but I'm blamed if he will leap.

With a view to checking the accumulation of immense private fortunes, so far as these are promoted by ownership of real estate, the New Zealand Government proposes to forbid any individual holding a certain number of acres of land to increase the amount by either purchase or lease, and to require anyone holding land worth more than a quarter of a million of dollars to sell the excess within ten years. This is suggestive of the land reform scheme proposed by the Gracchi in ancient Rome.

Commenting on the necessity of a modern up-to-date hotel in Ottawa, the Free Press of that city says: To attract modern tourist travel, it is essential that hotels shall be modern. No corporation recognize this more readily than do up-to-date railway companies. This is why the C.P.R. is completing a chain of first-class hotels from ocean to ocean. Among travellers, the city of Quebec now derives its importance not merely from its romantic history and peerless position and scenery, but from its splendid Hotel Frontenac. Montreal has its Windsor and Place Viger. Toronto has its stately King Edward. The C.P.R. have recognized Winnipeg's importance by erecting one of the finest hotels on the continent there, the Royal Alexandra. Banff, Vancouver and Victoria have been or are being provided with the best of hotels by the same railway company.

The Cleveland, O., Leader says: — More than thirty steamships are under construction at lake ports. These vessels will average more than 500 feet in length. Ten of them will measure a mile, touching bow and stern all the way. The thirty odd ships mean more than three miles of steel boats of the latest type and greatest efficiency. On one trip these vessels will be able to carry 300,000 tons of freight roughly speaking. They can take down the lakes over 10,000,000 bushels of wheat in one load for the fleet. In a month they could move as much wheat as would make a good average crop for Ohio from Chicago to Buffalo. If live animals could be stowed away like coal these new boats might transport 500,000 horses in a single trip. It will call for good times in the great industries of the lake region to keep lake tonnage busy henceforth. But such times are normal in this part of the world.

NAPOLEON'S ACCOUNT BOOK

Some Entries Made During His Exile at St. Helena.

There was recently sold in London the last book of accounts of Napoleon at St. Helena, from 1818 to 1821. The expenses are classified by month and were kept by Pierron, the ex-emperor's maitre d'hotel, with entries by Montholon.

There are many corrections in pencil by the august exile himself, for he verified all the accounts and changed English money, where it was used, into francs. Some of the entries are highly interesting. Thus, on Aug. 15, 1819, the fete of the emperor, here is one by Montholon: "Artificial flowers, £5. Extraordinary expenses, £1 7s."

Napoleon's resources at St. Helena were very modest, but his tradesmen, as regarded their prices, never forgot that he was an emperor though an exiled one. Among other occupations to while away the time that hung so heavily on his hands, Napoleon went in for gardening, and among the entries are found: "Four watering cans, £1 8s.; 2 pairs of pruners, £3; 2 axes, £1 10s."—prices which look as if the exile was simply regarded as a subject for fleecing. "For mending the emperor's bed" £2 is charged.

Toward the end of his life Napoleon's nourishment consisted almost entirely of chickens, pigeons, and eggs, and there are numerous entries for medicines. In March, 1821, for instance, thirty bottles of sirup, one case of prunes, two cases of Burgundy plums; in April, ten bottles of sirup, eight dozen oranges, eight dozen lemons.—London Globe.

BAD CROP YEARS.

When Birds and Animals Do Not Mate at the Mating Season.

"When birds and animals do not mate at the mating season, it is a sign that a bad year is coming," said a farmer.

"Quails, gophers, rabbits and squirrels all refuse to mate in certain years. These years afterward turn out to be bad ones. The quails are particularly weather wise. By instinct the little wild creatures know that for lack of rain or for some other reason there is to be a grass famine and a seed famine, and, instead of pairing off and mating and setting up housekeeping in little families of two, they remain unmated in the large bands in which they have flown all winter, living, as it were, a kind of apartment house life. That year inevitably turns out a bad one, though the bachelor and spinster quails, with a good deal of picking and scratching, manage to get enough to eat. But to feed families of little ones in such a famine year would be impossible.

"In California the squirrels in a famine year not only do not mate; they do not even live. They become dormant. As by a miracle, they remain dormant until a season of plenty comes with the next winter's rains."—Exchange.

For Her Welfare.

Mrs. Goodheart had made up her mind that most of the so called charity of the present day was not, strictly speaking, charity at all. Whoever gave, she had concluded, did so for the pleasant sensation of seeing his or her name figure on subscription lists, and she did not agree with this ostentation.

"Here, my good man," she said one day last week to a man who had begged alms of her, "here is a threepenny piece, and please to understand that I do not give this because I hope to be rewarded for my charity some day, but because it gives me pleasure to do so."

The burly beggar looked dubiously at the tiny silver coin.

"Look 'ere, mum," he said. "In this 'ere wicked world we don't orften get the chance to enjoy ourselves. Why not make it a shillin' an' 'ave a real good time?"—London Tit-Bits.

CUBAN ACADEMY BOYS

Shout Through Havana "Down With American Control."

First Anti-American Demonstration Fails to Rouse Enthusiasm in Cuba—Governor Taft Wins the Good-Will of the Highest Society of Havana—Disarmament Commission Leave on Their Mission to Centre of Island.

Havana, Oct. 2.—The first anti-American demonstration occurred in Havana last evening at 7 o'clock, when 150 academy students, shouting "Viva the Cuban Republic," "Down with American control." This demonstration was not treated seriously. The crowd received few accessions.

Taft Wins Regard.

Governor Taft's action yesterday have gone far to win him a warm place in the hearts of the people, whose destinies temporarily have been place in his hands.

Presiding yesterday morning at the opening exercises of the University of Havana, he declared his mission here was solely for the purpose of uplifting the fallen republic and restoring it to the path of prosperity, an announcement which was received with demonstrations of delight by an audience representative of the highest society in Havana.

Disarmament Commission.

Jose J. Montegudo and Carlos Hernandez, members of the disarmament commission, left here last night to receive arms from the rebels at Santa Clara, Sagua la Grande Esperanza, Cruces, Cienfuegos and other points in the centre of the island. The laying down of arms by the rebels in the vicinity of Havana will begin to-day, when the men will be entrained for their homes.

SIX LIGHT KEEPERS PERISH.

One of the Dire Results of the Great Gulf Storm.

New Orleans, Oct. 2.—The deaths of Lighthouse Keepers Nell Neilson and Andrew Hanson, and the washing away of their lighthouse into the sea were reported yesterday. This makes six lives known to have been lost in the wrecking of sound lighthouses alone.

Fourteen dead and as many more missing is the result of last Thursday's hurricane in the vicinity of New Orleans.

30 Dead at Pensacola.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 2.—The known loss of life up to date is thirty, which will probably be increased to 75, while the property loss will exceed five millions of dollars. Hundreds of persons are homeless without food and clothing, and cared for by charity.

Reports Exaggerated.

Mobile, Ala.—(via Meridian, Miss.), Oct. 2.—Paul J. Wilson, secretary of the Commercial Club of Mobile, yesterday requested the Associated Press in Mobile to make a denial of the stories which have been sent broadcast throughout the country regarding the loss of life and suffering in this city. Not a single life has been lost, and the citizens of Mobile have the local situation in splendid shape.

F. R. Hutton Dead.

Hamilton, Oct. 2.—Francis R. Hutton of the city assessment department died unexpectedly at his home yesterday afternoon. He was well-known all over the province, taking an active part in framing the new Assessment Act, and he was regarded as an authority on the subject.

Gruesome Discovery.

Peterboro, Oct. 2.—As J. S. Clarke, 29 Union street, was digging in his garden yesterday afternoon he discovered a skull and a leg about ten inches below the ground. The flesh was still clinging to the leg. The police think this may be evidence of foul play, and an inquest will be held.

Drowned In Blind River.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Jean Bonneville of Hull was drowned at Blind River on Thursday last. He was a shanty man employed with Cook Bros., and fell out of a canoe.

Chesley a Town.

Chesley, Oct. 2.—Chesley became a town yesterday. It was incorporated as a village in 1879. The present population is 2,019.

Help for the Kidneys Through Gin Pills.

A GUARANTEED CURE.

Read this letter. Read it twice. You have never heard such good news before—if your kidneys are sick. It tells how to be free of pain—how to have all your old-time health and vigor.

"I have been for years a sufferer with pain in the back and across the kidneys. There was scarcely a minute, day or night, that I was free of pain, and when I attempted to pass urine, the pain was almost unbearable. A friend of mine in Portage la Prairie, who was similarly afflicted, strongly advised me to try Gin Pills, as they had cured him. I bought a box of Gin Pills, and in less than a week, to my great delight, found myself without pain. I have had to go as often as every 20 minutes to urinate and several times during the night. Since taking Gin Pills, I sleep through the entire night and am not more than ordinarily inconvenienced during the day. I can earnestly recommend Gin Pills to anyone suffering from pain in the back, kidneys or bladder.

Mr. G. O. C. GOWLER, Portage la Prairie."

Your druggist has Gin Pills, or will get them for you. 50c box—6 for $2.50.

If you will send us your name and address and tell us the paper in which you have read this we send you a trial box of Gin Pills absolutely free. You will get such relief that you will gladly continue the treatment until cured. Do it to-day—now—and start to cure yourself.

All Household Roads Lead to Kitchen Work

NINE-TENTHS of kitchen labor and worry is caused by ill-working cook stoves and ranges; by ranges that draw poorly; that have such complicated drafts that only a skilled mechanic can manage them; whose grates are so constructed that it is a strong man's work to shake them down; ranges which work well when the wind is in a certain direction, but act like a fiend at other times; ranges whose work is so unreliable that the housekeeper is in a constant nerve-racking worry lest the meals be late or the baking spoiled.

The Pandora range is built to make work easy, a child can shake it down; its drafts are so simple that one learns them in a minute; its heat is kept in the range so effectively that you can do a big baking and hardly know there is a fire in it two feet away; it keeps the kitchen cool; it saves you worry; it saves you time and money; it saves you backaches and headaches, because it is so easy to manage and so reliable.

The Pandora makes kitchen work easy.

A TROUBLE BREEDER.

Quick Wit and a Ready Tongue Make a Sad Combination.

Don't be elated if anybody tells you you have a quick wit and a ready tongue. Especially if you are a woman. This is about one of the saddest combinations a woman can be cursed with, it seems.

It gets her into pecks of trouble.

The nice, amiable girl, who never thinks keen, sarcastic thoughts about people or whose tongue is too slow to frame her thoughts instantly into flashing words is a favorite with everybody. Even if she isn't good natured (generally she is, though) she gets the credit for being so. Because she is never tempted to electrify the atmosphere with sarcastic sparks about people and things, she is universally supposed to be a creature of sunshine and sweetness, full of kindness and charity to all.

Well, sometimes she is this paragon, and again, sometimes, she is just sluggish!

Anyhow, it isn't fair to label her opposite, the sarcastic girl, as inevitably malevolently inclined. She isn't invariably.

Her affections are just as strong and her human kindness as broad. She wouldn't willingly hurt anybody for the world. Yet an unkind nature has given her the keen, quick thought and the ready tongue—a combination as sure to go off as powder and matches.

And the worst of it is that in the explosion nobody gets so badly burned as the keen witted woman herself.—Pittsburg Press.

An Australian Discovery

BENEFITS THE WORLD.

CAPTAIN COOK'S FIRST VIEW OF AUSTRALIA.

Bileans, that great gift which Canada has received from her sister colony across the Pacific, is being more and more keenly appreciated here. The fact that Bileans are being looked up to as the safest and surest and most perfect family medicine of the day is due to the many distinctions existing between Bileans and old-fashioned medicines. Bileans occupy the foremost place as a cure for biliousness, constipation, piles, sleeplessness, indigestion, headache, dizziness, and all stomach and bowel complaints.

First, Bileans are purely vegetable. They contain none of the mineral poisons (mercury, calomel, bismuth, etc.,) such as are found in the older pills. They are prepared from a formula altogether unique, and possessing a strictly natural action on the system. They do not gripe, weaken or purge. They suit young and old. They promote digestion—give tone to the walls of the stomach and bowels brace up the tired nerves and stimulate the liver. Equally to the housewife in the home, the daughter engaged in the office or store, and the farmer, Bileans are an indispensable boon. If you have not already tried this successful medicine the proprietors want you to do so at their expense. Read the coupon below.

Sluggish Liver, Constipation and Indigestion Cured.

The liver rules the body—Bileans rule the liver. "A sluggish liver in my case led to constipation and indigestion," says Mrs. Frances Greene, of Earl St., Kingston (Ont.) "I felt dull and sleepy, had no energy whatever for work, and every now and again I had a bad attack of biliousness. The food I ate seemed to lie heavy on my stomach and did me no good. I had wind and cramps in the stomach and bowels from the food decomposing. The constipation was so bad that my bowels had to be forced at each passage. All kinds of medicines I tried, but nothing did me any lasting good until I got Bileans. I have never found anything to equal them for constipation, liver and stomach troubles. They soon began to do me good and in the end cured me. Since then I feel like a different woman. I am bright and buoyant in spirits, not dull and sleepy as I used to be. I have got my energy and activity back; and, in fact, all my ailments have yielded to Bileans."

BILEANS

BILEANS ARE A CERTAIN CURE FOR:

Headache, indigestion, buzzing in the head, dizziness, fulness after eating, anemia, loss of ambition, piles, ulcers, debility, liver trouble, pimples, bad breath, eruptions, rheumatism, constipation, female ailments and all liver and stomach disorders. Obtainable from all druggists at 50 cents a box, or upon receipt of price postpaid from the Bilean Co., 58 Colborne Street, Toronto. Six boxes for $2.50.

FARM AND FIRESIDE

Useful Hints Which Will be Appreciated by the Progressive Farmer and His Housekeeper.

POULTRY DEPARTMENT.

Hens Built up the Farm.

The little things in farming I have learned to like. I have been able to do pretty well with them, while some of the big things have proved too much for me.

Just about twenty-five years ago, I bought a few sheep, and shortly after took Horace Greeley's advice and went West with them. I had about 125 of them, I remember, also two cows, a few swarms of bees, and a lot of brown Leghorn hens. These were all small things, calling for small investment, but, you see, they were all productive. It is the unproductive things — things that are neither growing nor producing — that drag down a fellow who is trying to pay for a piece of land.

I went from Waupaca County, Wis., to where I now live in Dakota, and at the same time another Wisconsin man landed in the same neighborhood. This man did not bring any hens, but he unloaded four old horses a threshing machine and a binder. When the sun went down on our 1st day in Dakota, I noticed that my cows were chewing their cuds, made of something they had found going to waste, my sheep were full of grass and weeds, gathered on the unbroken prairie, my bees had made the acquaintence of many wild flowers, and my hens had gone to roost with full crops, containing mostly bugs, worms and weed seeds that otherwise would have done harm instead of good, but the old binder which my neighbor had brought with him had not made a move of any kind, neither had the threshing machine, and the horses were eating oats which their owner had to pay 75c a bushel for. Do not understand me as saying that old horses and old machinery have not a place in farm economy, but I did find that, while beginning, the less unproductive property of this kind I kept around me the better.

Chickens, Bees and Sheep.

For three years I did not own a team. I kept the little money I had in chickens, bees and sheep, and gave two days work for a team and man one day whenever I needed one. Although I came from New England originally, I had run into debt for most of my land, and this debt had to be raised by the sheep, while the poultry's little job was to take care of myself and family. You know down in New England if a man wishes to borrow $50 he will consult all his neighbors about it, talk it over, with his family for weeks, and lie awake nights thinking about it for months — and then he won't borrow it but let that same man take one sniff of northwestern air and he will run into debt for a steam thresher, a two thousand dollar stallion and 640 acres of land without even speaking to his wife about it.

I did not go into debt for all of these things though, for I have often said I had rather have one good, live, business hen to start to make a living with than a steam thresher —I know how to run a run and I —I know how to run a hen and I is one reason for it—and again, the right kind of a hen will do a whole lot of business with very little outlay for repairs.

Well, to make a long story short, the sheep paid for my land and put up the greater part of my buildings, but all the time they were doing it the hens fed and clothed my family, yes, and paid the taxes on the land and sheep. There was much sickness in my family during those early years, with many seasons of discouraging drought and blight, and I do not believe that without the help of my poultry, I should be the owner to-day of, what I think is, one of the best farm homes in the two Dakotas.

What a Hen Will Do.

For years I kept a strict account of what my hens did. I had to keep accounts in those days, I could not afford to make mistakes, I had to make money, and I found that with the right kind of hens, properly handled, I could clear about one dollar a head above cost. These accounts were carefully kept, you understand, for when I began I had so little that to break an egg was a pretty serious matter, and if I tumbled down and broke a dozen or so going to town, I broke it to Mrs. Greeley pretty carefully when I reached home.

Best Hens for Beginners.

In the first place, after much experimenting, we kept only young, active, live, business hens. The large, big-eating, non-foraging, seldom-laying, and everlastingly setting kinds may pay better here, but where I am located the eggs are what we must look to for profit. Poultry flesh brings little, so we keep nothing now but Leghorns, though there are several other breeds about equal to these. A hen that lays early and long, is a great forager and non-sitter, must necessarily be more profitable for a farmer than one that is just the reverse of all this. Of course, where both eggs and flesh are desired, the Rocks, Wyandottes, etc., come in nicely. We keep a few of the former sitters. Incubators have not yet come to our farm, and by putting two litters of chickens with one good mother, we do not find it a very expensive method. Besides it is economical in both feed and time, and we think we get slightly stronger chickens when they have the warmth of the live mother, and the greater variety of food she gets for them.

I am no judge of the fancy points of a fowl, know little about bars of feathers or points of comb, and could not "score" a hen properly to save my neck, but I sometimes feel like scoring men who award prizes regardless of whether the bird ever laid an egg or not — and then expect farmers to tumble over one another to get these birds — sometimes intimating that we are "moss backs," whatever that may mean, if we do not.

I learned very early that to have lots of eggs I must keep lots of hens and keep them laying. They must be young hens and all hens. Old hens are no good on earth, and roosters won't lay worth a cent. So many farmers say poultry don't pay, and when I visit their farms I don't wonder they think so — hens of all ages, and nearly as many roosters as hens —and all of them of some great clumsy breed that eat nearly as much as a cow and don't lay so very much more. They are usually bred "in and in," too, till they have about as little life and gumption as a dead bird. A vigorous, fresh - blooded sire should be mated with a few of the best hens every season. When one has a small flock, to get a sitting of fresh-blooded eggs every spring or so is a good plan, and frequently two or three small flock owners can club together in this. It is an all-important point.

A small breeding flock, as well as the setting hens, can be nicely kept separate from the others by a small portable yard and house, which can be set on to fresh grass or weeds every night after they are on their roosts or nests. The yard can be made of four wide boards and slats, not over one and a half or two feet high, and covered over with hen netting. They are much cheaper and more convenient and healthful than high-fenced, permanent yards and houses. The house, too, should be low, light and easily moved, with a small hole or door, to be placed opposite the one into the side of the portable yard.

A two-year-old Leghorn, Hamburg, or Minorca is not old. I have seven four-year-old hens of the small breeds, still very profitable. When a hen is red-combed, bright-eyed, active and laying most of the time, I never say anything to her about her age any more than I would to one of you young ladies about yours. It just won't do.

In handling a large flock of good, foraging hens on a farm, it pays much better to fence the garden and let the poultry have free range than it does to reverse this procedure. A hen will make better use of a shock of wheat than any animal I ever saw get at one.

The Hen Quarters.

The hen quarters should be roomy, tidy, sunlit and comfortable. All the walls should be perfectly smooth. Nothing should be inside that is not absolutely necessary, and what there is should be easily portable and still more easily cleaned. A plastered, white-washed wall is perhaps the best; next a smooth, tightly sealed one. If, between the ceiling and the outside wall, both overhead and on the sides, sawdust or dry, fine hay can be firmly packed, there will never be any damp or frosty walls, and the house will be very comfortable during the coldest weather.

The roosts should be large, round ones, hung from the ceiling by wire, raised high in winter, and lowered to near the floor in summer for warmth and coolness. The nests should be small, neat boxes, hung on nails or spikes along the smooth wall, in a secluded or darksome part of the house. The roosts should be hung nearly level, but not quite; coming back each roost should be just a little higher than the one preceding it, for good reasons. The roosts should be often taken out and cleaned with kerosene or turpentine; the nests taken away frequently, thoroughly dusted and replaced, with a little sulphur and slacked lime in the fresh hay or straw put in them.

A dust box three or four feet square, six or eight inches high, and kept filled with summer saved dust and gravel, is an all important thing. If a little sulphur and slacked lime can be sprinkled in the dust it will prove a mighty discouraging thing for all kinds of vermin. This box should be set where the sun can shine into it, or a hen will not get into it any quicker than you would.

Too much glass cannot be put into the south side of a henhouse, if it can be curtained during the cold winter nights. I knew glass let in lots of sunshine and warmth, but I was surprised to find out one cold night that it was just as good a conductor of cold as of heat, and that if I curtained or shut off the windows by night it added greatly to the comfort of the fowls. If you are ever in a henhouse on a cold winter night (I hope it will be your own) just notice this. A curtain of old carpeting or heavy gunny sacking to drop over the windows cold winter nights means much in comfort and eggs.

The best ventilation we have ever known for a henhouse is one or more openings a foot or so wide and perhaps as long again, over which strong gunny sacking has been drawn closely. It stops all drafts, but permits a fair circulation of fresh air. One of the best poultry men in my state has the entire front of one of his henhouses made with strong ducking drawn tightly on both sides of the studding, in place of the usual sheeting and siding up. The house, though crowded, was sweet, dry and comfortable as a house could possibly be, and not a comb was frosted, although it was 40 degrees below during the experiment.

Food and Feeding.

I have found no better egg ration than wheat and oats in the bundle, for luncheon and principal feed, with corn fed in the afternoon. A good, warm, well-seasoned mash of some kind on cold mornings three or four times a week is greatly relished, particularly if mixed up in milk. The grain should be kept in the bundle, and be fully three-fourths wheat. A little millet is excellent fed in the straw. I save much labor and other expense by feeding hens, sheep and other stock their grain in the bundle. Early cut corn and oats fed this way to stock gives most satisfactory results with me.

A steeply slanting floor in a hen house can be kept dry and clean much easier than a level one. Feed them bundle grain on the upper end, and straw and everything else will be scratched to the lower end, where there should be a small door to throw it out of. The hens will sometimes scratch it out themselves, if good, live ones. A floor twenty feet long should be at least eighteen inches higher at one end than the other. Earth, gravel or cinders make a much better floor than boards for a number of reasons.

With these surroundings and the birds and feed described, with plenty of fresh water and green food, and a little fresh meat now and then, it is not a difficult thing to get both pleasure and profit from a large flock of poultry. Clean quarters, with ample range in summer, and as nearly as possible summer conditions in the winter time, are what insure success.—M. F. Greeley, South Dakota, in American Cultivator.

Corn Salad.

Boil twelve ears of corn in salted water until it is quite tender. Cut it from the cob and let it get cold. Make a stiff mayonnaise dressing in the usual manner, then dilute it to the required consistency by adding some thick cream; dress the corn with the sauce, and arrange it in a deep dish; scatter a little finely chopped parsley over the surface, then garnish the corn with pickled cherries and surround it with crisp lettuce which has been torn into fine shreds.

Apple Catsup.

Peel and quarter a dozen tart cooking apples, stew soft in just enough water to keep them from burning, then rub through a sieve. To every quart of the apple pulp add a cup of sugar, a teaspoonful of pepper, one each of cloves and mustard, two of cinnamon and two medium-sized onions grated. Mix all thoroughly, adding a tablespoonful of salt and a pint of best cider vinegar. Boil gently for an hour, and bottle while hot and seal.

Chopped Veal.

Grind two pounds of lean veal in a meat chopper and season with a level teaspoonful of salt, one-half level teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice and one tablespoonful of minced parsley. Form into small oblong cakes and dip each into egg beaten light, and then into fine breadcrumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat for about eight minutes. Fry two at a time and be sure that the veal is cooked to the centre of the cake. If the cakes are shaped to a point at one end they will resemble a chop. Garnish with parsley.

Peach Puffs.

Beat two eggs very light, add half a cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, one cupful of flour with which has been sifted one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and one tablespoonful of melted butter. If necessary, add a half-cup more flour. Butter small, deep cups, put in a spoonful of batter, slices of peaches and cover with the batter. Steam half an hour and serve with either hard or soft sauce.

Grape Frappe.

This is a nice dessert to serve at a luncheon as well as at dinner. To one quart of the best grape juice add one lemon, and enough sugar to sweeten, unless the sugar has already been boiled with the juice; after it has thoroughly cooled, freeze. When ready to serve place the frappe on a plate or put it into a punch bowl and cover with whipped cream. The plate or bowl may be decorated with bunches of grapes and their leaves.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

It is useful to remember that in cooking potatoes that after the water has been strained off the pot should be given three or four sharp jerks, so as to toss the potatoes. This has the effect of making them white and floury.

Rub the hands on a stick of celery after peeling onions, and the smell will be entirely removed.

Never wash combs, clean by brushing and pulling a piece of cotton through the teeth.

Mud stains may be removed from tan leather shoes by rubbing them with slices of raw potato. When dry, polish in usual way.

For any one afflicted with consumption, butter cookery, if plenty of fat can be digested, is one of the best ways of curing the disease in its early stage.

Salt and water used as a gargle will cleanse the palate and furred tongue. A pinch of salt on the tongue, followed ten minutes afterwards by a drink of cold water, often cures a sick headache. Salt hardens gums, makes teeth white and sweetens the breath.

A few drops of good perfume dropped on small pieces of pumice stone and put among clothes, keeps away moths.

In washing cotton dresses the color may be set by dissolving three gills of salt in four quarts of hot water. Let the material stay in the water until cold. In this way the colors will not fade. These garments should be ironed on the wrong side; this will do much toward restoring their freshness. Use nothing that will impart a gloss, as that is to be avoided. Another way to wash delicately colored cambrics and muslins is to boil two quarts of wheat bran an hour in soft water; let cool, strain, and then use in place of soap. Wash as usual and rinse twice in cold water.

THE MOST PROFITABLE HORSE FOR THE FARMER.

Very few farmers ever make a success of breeding and rearing trotting horses, that is, they never get the big money that such horses occasionally bring. It is the trainer or the man that develops them that makes the money, and most farmers have neither the time nor skill to train such horses. And again, there is only one in a great many that brings the big prices. If they haven't the speed, they sell comparatively cheap.

Then there is the coach or heavy harness horse that sells very well, providing he has quality with style and action. These horses will sell in pairs, so they must be well matched and nicely trained, accustomed to the sights and sounds of the city, such as steam cars, street cars, automobiles, etc., so that they are perfectly safe when hitched to the family carriage. On the farm they do not see such things, and therefore will not bring the big prices until they are educated.

Taking all in all, the draft horse is the most profitable one for the farmer to raise. The term draft applies to horses weighing 1600 pounds or more, but a good many horses that are put on the market in working order, or in thin condition, weighing 1500 pounds, could be made to weigh 1600 pounds or more if properly fitted for market, so have them fat when they are ready to sell. The larger the horse, if he has quality, the more he will bring. Those weighing from 1300 pounds up to draft weight are called chunks and sell fairly well, but not with the draft class. So in breeding, we should select our best mares, of good weight and quality, having feet and legs, such as Mr. Martiny has described to you, and breed them to a good horse.

When you find a horse that breeds well with your mares, use him right along as long as you get good colts, and you will have a lot of colts of the same disposition, conformation and color, so that you can match up teams, for it takes all three of these to make a perfectly matched team. You can sometimes put a three-year-old and a four-year-old, or a four and five, or a five and six-year-old together, and mate them up better, as a nicely matched team always brings a little more money than if not matched, but the least defect in a matched team is color. After all, there is no bad color for a good horse.

THEY WILL CURE

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and surfaces of the system. NEW ZEALAND EXHIBITION, LOW RATES.

To the many attractions of New Zealand as a tourist and pleasure resort is this year added that of the International Exhibition to be held at Christchurch, the second city of the colony, from November, 1906, to April, 1907.

Canadian products will be much in evidence, and it is expected that a large number of Canadians will take this opportunity of visiting "Maori-Land," that interesting country of which most people have heard so much, and in reality know so little. Mark Twain's opinion that New Zealand "was somewhere near Australia, and you get over to it by a bridge," is shared by the great majority, who have never experienced the steady steaming across the wide Pacific necessary to "bridge" New Zealand, and her big neighbor. The democratic government, unique and progressive legislation, state controlled industries, from railroads to coal mines, have made New Zealand so well known, as has its natural beauty, its hot lakes and geysers, outrivaling the Yellowstone, its lovely semi-tropical bush, with graceful palms and tree ferns, and gorgeous wild orchids everywhere, its majestic fiord scenery and its lofty snow-clad Alps, all of which truly need to be seen to be appreciated. The climate is certainly the best found south of the line, and as the Exhibition from November to April, covers the best of the summer months, visitors need not fear bad weather. If you have ever contemplated a trip to the Southern Seas—"do it now—this is a good opportunity.

Special reduced rates for the Exhibition are offered by the Canadian Pacific Railway, with its ocean connection, the Canadian-Australian line of Royal mail steamships. Through rates from Toronto right to Port Lyttelton, N.Z., and return are $418.90, first-class throughout, and $348.90 first-class rail and second on steamer; tickets good sailing from Vancouver on Oct. 12th, Nov. 9th, Dec. 9th, 1906; Jan. 4th and Feb. 1st, 1907; good to return to Vancouver within six months. These steamers call at Honolulu, and passengers can tranship at Suva, Fiji, if they wish, instead of reaching New Zealand by way of Sydney, N.S.W. Splendid accommodation is provided, with a fine table and attendance, and at this time of the year a smooth passage is a certainty. Further particulars and literature gladly furnished upon application to C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, C.P.R., Toronto. 1-2

LAKE SHORE SPIRIT.

Throughout the entire length and breadth of the great Lake Shore Railway System there is a spirit of co-operation and personal responsibility on the part of employees from the highest to the lowest that is reflected in every detail of the road's operation. The traveller feels that the great army of trained workers have his welfare and comfort at heart as much as though he were the only patron of the road. This spirit—the Lake Shore spirit—is one of the features that have made this line so popular among experienced travellers. Comfort, speed, safety and punctuality here have reached their highest development. Write for full information to J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N. Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, O.; or W. J. Lynch, Pass'gr Traffic Mgr., Chicago, and tell the agent to have your ticket read "via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway."

CHEAP ALCOHOL.

What It Is Expected Denatured Alcohol Would Do For the Dominion of Canada.

"What's all this talk we hear about denatured alcohol?" is a question that the members of the Dominion Parliament are likely to hear most frequently from their constituents until they are able to make their escape to Ottawa again. If they value their reputation for prescience, they had better post themselves on the subject, and if they wish to retain their popularity it would be well for them to give favorable answer to the further demand, "What's the matter with us having cheap alcohol in Canada?" Already the farmers and manufacturers are eagerly discussing the matter, and the topic is shaping itself into a political issue. As yet, the first protest against removing the prohibitive tax on alcohol that has been rendered unfit for drinking has to be heard.

Benefits to the Farmers.

The country papers are printing letters from leading farmers, who point out the benefits they would expect if alcohol could be sold at about 20 cents a gallon. One man makes the interesting statement that the cornstalks on a single acre, after the removal of the cobs, can be made to yield about 170 gallons of commercial alcohol. If this is a correct estimate, the day may be at hand when the products of the farm that are now practically useless will supply the owner with fuel, light and power, and leave him a balance of cash in hand. In Germany the process of making alcohol has become so simplified that farmers are their own manufacturers in many instance. There the cost is only about 15 cents a gallon.

The Importance of the Potato.

In Germany, it may be noted, farmers and manufacturers work in the greatest harmony. One stimulates the other. In the matter of alcohol, for example, the potato is largely used to produce it; and to supply the market the German farmers have become famous as potato growers, getting a greater and better yield per acre than the farmers of any other country. When it was found that after the alcohol had been extracted there was still a considerable residuum of potato, the Germans proceeded to utilise it in the manufacture of starch. From Germany the potato starch industry has come to this continent, and in one county of Maine there are more than 60 factories engaged in the business. Now plants are being erected for the manufacture of alcohol, in connection with the potato starch works.

The Uses of Alcohol.

Under the heading "Tax Free Alcohol," Industrial Canada publishes an article by Prof. Cohoe, of McMaster University. An interesting list of the different uses to which alcohol is now put is given. In the order of their importance they are as follows:—Making varnishes, paints, enamels, etc., soap manufacture, hat making, celluloid, ether and chloroform, smokeless powder, etc., medical extracts and chemicals, dissolving dyes and colors, photographic materials, etc. In all about fifty distinct manufacturing operations depending on alcohol are given, and many others indicated. For these purposes about 2,000,000 gallons of alcohol were used in Great Britain during the year ending March 1, 1901. No account is taken of the industries in which alcohol might be used if its price were reduced about 90 per cent.

How an Industry Was Lost.

Prof. Cohoe divides the uses of denatured alcohol into three parts—as a solvent, a re-agent, and as a source of heat, light and power. Its uses under the third head have been pretty thoroughly discussed already, and it is interesting to glance at the other purposes it serves. It appears that, as a solvent, alcohol is the very foundation of the smokeless powder industry, and that it constitutes a very important element in the cost of the product. To a less extent, it is important in the manufacture of paints and varnishes, which might be made more cheaply if denatured alcohol were duty free. To the coal tar group of industries cheap alcohol is essential, and it is said that these industries were captured from England by Germany because at the time the former country placed restrictions upon the use of alcohol. Prof. Cohoe speaks emphatically of the artificial silk industry and its dependence upon cheap alcohol.

Germany Leads the Way.

Alcohol is the principal constituent in ether, a commodity that has become one of the very necessities of life, Vinegar in large quantities is almost mode from alcohol, and there are scores of other instances of its use as raw material. It is interesting to compare the enormous consumption of alcohol in Germany, where it is untaxed, with its limited use in Great Britain. In the latter country, as noted, a year's consumption was about 2,000,000 gallons. For 1903 Germany used 14,000,000 gallons for industrial purposes, about 1,000,000 gallons for motor and other engines, and 24,000,000 gallons for light and heat. It is probable that its use for internal-combustion engines will have doubled by this time, on account of the remarkable increase in motor boats and automobiles. It would seem to be an essential to a country's prosperity in many lines of manufacture that no artificial restrictions should be placed upon the use of alcohol.

In Prison For His Dog.

Eamonn McNulty, of Creeslough, County Donegal, is enjoying a week's sojourn in Derry jail because he refuses to take out a license for his dog unless the document is issued to him in Irish. The Dunfanaghy Magistrates fined him 5s., or seven days' imprisonment, and Mr. McNulty selected the latter alternative. Mr. McNulty's contention is that it is impossible to spell his name save in Irish. In that language his name is Mac-An-Ultaigh.

Capt. Bernier's Route.

This trip Capt. Bernier is leaving for the polar seas by a route different from the one he followed in 1904, attempting to explore new important channels, and at the same time planting the Canadian flag in many new islands. Hard coal is to be found in large quantities on these islands. She will call at Disco on the west shore of Greenland, from whence she will reach Canada about two months after, via European ports.

EYE-STRAIN, CONTINUED.

The subject of Eye-Strain, including the need of wearing glasses, has for some years been rapidly forcing itself into prominence and has assumed an importance far beyond expectation. It is in no sense a "fashion" or "fad," though there are many such in medicine. The eyes are, and have been in the past, the unsuspected cause of a great variety of nervous disturbances that were never understood and never satisfactorily explained. Modern methods of study, which have lately accomplished such wonders in all branches of science, when applied to the eye have brought order and truth out of what had been a tangle of theory, supposition and uncertainty. The eye has always been studied simply as a part of the body, under physiology; it needed to be studied as an optical instrument, under optics, a branch of science in which our knowledge is mathematically accurate. It is found to be an actual fact that eye-strain is often the principal factor producing nervous debility hysteria, melancholia, vertigo, nausea, insomnia, nervous dyspepsia, palpitation, general nervousness, irritability, faintness, weariness, headaches, constipation, "brain fag," and dozens of other annoying conditions. We remove the cause of all these with the proper glasses.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE WESTMINSTER CONCERT PARTY.

It was not a large audience, but a very well-pleased one, which heard Mr. Edward Branscombe's Westminster Glee and Concert Party at the Carman last night. With the exception of Mr. Branscombe and Madame Hooton, the party were all strangers to Belleville, but they compare favorably with any like group which have visited us before. The company which appeared last night consisted of Madame Marie Hooton (who looked several years younger than when she was here last), four boy sopranos, Masters Cyril Burgess, Harold Cooper, Albert Hole and Ronald Salmon; Mr. Hayde Fraser, male alto; Messrs. Edward Branscombe and Edward Dalzell, tenors, Messrs. T. C. Sterndale Bennett and Frederick Pitman, basses, and Mr. Harry Ivemey, in humorous musical sketches. Madame Hooton sings quite as well as ever, and still warbles ancient ballads. Mr. Harry Ivemey was excellent in his sketches, and the audience could hardly get enough of him. The part singing of the Concert Party was, of course, delightful. Nothing short of superlatives would adequately describe it. The old glee, "Hail, Smiling Moon," was particularly charming; nothing nicer could be imagined, unless, perhaps, it were "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," which followed it. The voices of the boys rose and fell like silver bells, and in their natty Eton suits they made a pretty picture. A duet by the two basses was finely rendered, in fact there was not a weak number on the programme. One thing particularly noticeable and pleasing was the total absence of florid nonsense in all the singers.

Perfect enunciation, a smooth, even tone, and the perfection of method which seems to be characteristic of all the English singers of the first class. A most admirable number was that sung by Mr. Sterndale Bennett, "Tom the Tinker," for which he received a double encore, the last time singing a humorous Irish ballad, "The Dear Little Girl." It seems almost like heresy to say that Mr. Bennett, in the Irish ballad, rather took the wind out of Watkin Mills' sails, but the truth must be told. Master Albert Hole, the eight-year-old boy soprano, sang a solo, "Love Was Once a Little Boy." Little Master Hole looked a great deal like Cupid himself, as he sang the song. At the last, as his sweet, clear voice went up to high C, every lady in the audience voted him a darling. He sang like a bird. For an encore he gave the old favorite, "Cherry Ripe." The little chap's face fairly shone with good humor, and he seemed to like to sing as well as the audience liked to hear him. Taken altogether, the concert was most delightful. There was only one cause for complaint—some of the accompaniments were rather too loud.

"RED FEATHER" TO-MORROW NIGHT.

Now for a real comic opera with a score of superior worth, artists who can sing, and a conductor to bring out the beauties of the composition. For libretto, a story that is tangible and meriting consideration has been supplied by the author. It is "Red Feather," the gorgeous Ziegfeld Opera Co. production of Reginald DeKoven and Charles Klein's romantic comic opera that will be the attraction at the Carman to-morrow night. The company that Manager Jos. M. Gaites has organized, with Cheridah Simpson at the head, numbers seventy-five people. The production is said to be most lavish and the costumes sumptuous. A feature of the local engagement will be an augmented orchestra.

AN EVENING'S MUSICAL TREAT.

Nothing but praise of the most unstinted character greeted the first performance in America of "A Trip to the Highlands." The company has been appearing at all the famous watering places, including Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Newport, Bar Harbor and Saratoga. The company presenting this play is an organization of clever people, supported by the eminent Scotch comedian and humorist, Spottiswoode Aitken, who will be seen here for the first time on Friday next, October 5th. Mr. Aitken has been applauded and smiled upon by Royalty in London—for years he was the principal Scotch comedian at Daly's Theatre, London. This year he will make a tour of all the principal cities in Canada and the United States. "A Trip to the Highlands" is a musical play written in two acts. The first takes place in Italy, the second on the banks of Loch Lomond, Scotland. The dialogue is witty and interspersed with sparkling music, far above the average.

James Collins Threw the Cat

WHICH BROKE MR. MARSH'S WINDOW — BEFORE MAGISTRATE FLINT THIS MORNING.

A boy named James Collins, aged 14 years, who resides on Pine street, was this morning before Magistrate Flint and had to answer to two charges, namely, "causing malicious injury to property," and "cruelty to an animal." It appears that Collins was the boy who, on Friday evening last, threw a cat through a window in Mr. J. S. Marsh's residence, Albert street. The accused admits that he threw the cat, but alleges that it was following him and he was of the opinion that it belonged to Mr. Marsh. He picked it up, he says, and threw it, as he thought, into the porch but instead it went through the window.

Mr. A. Marsh testified that the window which was broken was at least 20 feet from the porch. The cat was cut by the broken glass, and the animal bled profusely. The window blind was also torn.

The Magistrate after severely reprimanding Collins and referring to the cruelty inflicted upon the cat, sentenced him to 15 days in jail on the charge of cruelty to animals. For malicious injury to property a fine of $10 was imposed, or in default an additional 10 days in jail.

Fr. O'Gorman Dead

WAS FORMERLY PARISH PRIEST OF ST. MICHAEL'S, IN THIS CITY—LATE OF GANANOQUE.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 1. — Rev. Father O'Gorman died at 4.25 of hypertrophy of the liver. The reverend father was genial, full of wit and wisdom, a friend to all classes and creeds. He will be the most missed man in Gananoque and surrounding country. Noted for kind works of encouragement to all he came in contact with and a leading helping hand to members of other denominations, his reverence had endeared himself to all, and everybody in Gananoque and the surrounding country regret that his good work on earth has been finished.

Deceased was born in Maule House, Boherbee, County Cork, Ireland, forty-six years ago. He received his education at college in Maynooth, and was curate at Prescott and Belleville, being appointed parish priest at Gananoque in 1886. While parish priest here he built St. John's Church and Presbytery, costing over sixty thousand dollars. On Howe Island he has built a new church and three separate school houses, also a new church at Lansdowne. His surviving relations are: Dr. Dan O'Gorman, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. O. Callaghan, Boston; Miss Mary O'Gorman (who has lived with him here), and three brothers and a sister still living in Ireland. He was considered one of the best Irish orators in America, and had lectured on Ireland and the Irish people before many important societies of the United States and Canada.

Well-Known Resident Died This Morning.

MR. ROBERT THOMSON.

A well-known resident of this city passed away this morning in the person of Mr. Robert Thomson, who resided on Bridge street, near the eastern limits of the city. Deceased had been ill for the past three months. Mr. Thomson, who was 79 years of age, was born at Cupar, Scotland. In the year 1851 he came to Belleville, where he had since resided. For a number of years the deceased was identified with banking institutions, having been local manager of the Merchants and Commerce banks. Of late years he lived a retired life. Mr. Thomson was never married. He was a gentleman who had many friends in the city. He was a member of St Andrew's Church. One brother, Thomas, and one sister, Miss Jane, both of whom reside here, survive.

Died In Thurlow

On Thursday last Mr. Fletcher McKenzie, a yeoman residing near Plainfield, in Thurlow township, had a paralytic stroke, which proved fatal, as death resulted at an early hour this morning. Deceased, who was 61 years of age, had been a life-long resident of the township. He was born upon the place where he died. Mr. McKenzie was favorably known, and a man who had many friends. He was a member of the A.O.U.W., and in religion was a consistent member of the Methodist church. A widow and a family of four sons and two daughters survive. The sons are: Frank, at Kenora; Dr. J., at Roslin; Harry, of Madoc, and Blake at home. The daughters are: Mrs. Geo. Ashley, of Belleville, and Mrs. S. Lloyd, of Winnipeg.

Daring Burglary At Sidney Crossing

Our Sidney Crossing correspondent writes, under date of October 1st: A couple of daring burglars broke into the home of Mr. Clarke, section foreman here, a few days ago, about noon, while Mrs. Clarke was at a neighbor's. They stole a set of silver knives, a couple of valuable rings and some small cash, also helped themselves to the good things in the pantry and tore things upside down throughout. Mrs. Clarke happened to meet them on the track a short distance from her home, and on finding out the state of affairs gave the alarm. The section men, who were not far off, gave chase, but the robbers escaped in the woods with their plunder.

Mr. Penny's Injuries

ARE MORE SERIOUS THAN AT FIRST REPORTED — ACCIDENT MAY BE A FATAL ONE.

William Penny, the aged man who yesterday sustained painful injuries by being struck by a G.T.R. passenger train near Brighton, was brought to the city and taken to the hospital. The unfortunate man had his right leg broken above the knee, was cut about the head and bruised about the body. Owing to Penny's advanced age the physician in attendance is at present unable to say what the result will be.

It appears that there were three members of the C. P. R. surveying party in the conveyance with Penny at the time, but they escaped by jumping. The horses were clear of the track and a portion of the rig, but the engine struck the rear part of the rig with such a force as to separate it from the horses. Penny was thrown for some feet, alighting on the side of the roadway. His escape from being killed was a narrow one.

Killed In Kingston

FATAL ACCIDENT IN THE LOCOMOTIVE WORKS THIS MORNING.

Kingston, Oct. 2. — (Special). — Robert Burke, a young man who worked in the Canadian Locomotive Works was killed this morning, his head being crushed beneath a plunger of a slotting machine.

He put his head under the plunger to adjust work and did not get it out in time.

His head was terribly crushed.

There is nothing that takes away the beautiful, womanly charms like a plodding, stooped, awkward carriage. There is absolutely no excuse for that as long as Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is made. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—D. M. Waters.

Best Kidney Remedy Known To Science

For pain in the back—scanty urine—highly colored urine—irritated bladder—irregular bowels—bad stomach—there is nothing that will bring such quick relief and so certain a cure as FRUIT-A-TIVES.

These marvelous tablets are nature's natural remedy for irritated or weakened kidneys. They act directly on the kidneys—soothe the irritated membranes—clean, heal and strengthen the organs—and help them to new vigor with their work.

Often kidney trouble is not due to any organic defect in the kidneys. If the bowels are constipated—if the skin does not throw off the tissue waste of the body—then these impurities are carried to the kidneys. In a vain endeavor to rid the system of impurities, the kidneys are overworked—the blood vessels are dilated—the nerves inflamed. That causes a host of kidney troubles.

Fruit-a-tives

not only heal and strengthen the kidneys but they also increase the action of the skin, and act directly on the liver, thus curing the constipation.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are the natural and logical cure for all kidney troubles. They are made of fruit and tonics—are pleasant to take—and a guaranteed cure when faithfully used. 50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your druggist does not handle them.

MINTOSH BROS.

INSIDE INFORMATION

were ten in the syndicate, and he was being allotted two-tenths. He put up $2,000, being $2,200 he had put up. Bennett did the same and he supposed Pope and Fowler were making good also. He thought his money was for a first payment to the C. P. R. on the land.

"You were quite in the dark as to the way it was being financed?"

"Yes."

"You did not know the amount of the first payment?"

"No, not for long afterwards."

"When I saw Fowler and asked him why he called on him for $4,000 Fowler said he thought I could have another share; someone else was dropped out."

Attended No Meetings.

The Commission were fifty minutes late in starting in the afternoon.

Mr. Lefurgey took the box and produced the papers he had promised to bring for the use of the Commission. Witness had never attended any of the directors' meetings of the Great West Land Co. He had not exchanged his stock in the Hammond Town Sites Co. for stock in the Great West Land Co.

"Mr. Peuchen introduced us to the people we sold to," volunteered the witness.

"Why do you say that?" asked counsel.

"Because Peuchen says so himself."

"Who do you mean by the people you sold to?"

Mr. Foster's Interest.

"The Farm and Town Sites Co., a man called Mr. Day and George E. Foster."

Witness understood when the matter was talked over that the sale was to be made at $4.50 an acre to a party who would form a new company, and resell to the new company at a raise of fifty cents an acre.

"You did not seem to know much about it?" hinted Mr. Shepley.

Witness admitted this, but supposed he would be on the same footing as Pope, Fowler, and Bennett and Peuchen if he should come in. At this time Mr. Lefurgey did not know of the option given to Pope and Fowler by the C. P. R., nor did he know about the agreement of the directors of the Farm and Town Sites Co., and Wilson, McGillivray and Foster.

Was to Have Profited.

"Did you clearly understand that the syndicate that bought from you were going to turn it over to the new company at a profit?"

"Certainly. I was to get $5,000 of it."

"Who was financing the situation?"

"I do not know."

"These people had to pay you all you paid to the C. P. R.; pay the C. P. R. and $200,000 besides?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"Yes."

"Were you curious to know how this money was being raised?"

"No, I thought we were dealing with men who had the money to put up. Fowler never mentioned the Union Trust Co., but Foster attended one of the meetings, and I guessed he had something to do with the syndicate. I don't think I associated Foster in connection with the Union Trust Co."

Feeling Was Becoming Strenuous.

Mr. Shepley was anxious to have all that Mr. Lefurgey knew about the Union Trust Co., but his general knowledge was not very much. Witness went on to tell that for sometime the feeling was becoming strenuous between Pope and Fowler on the one side and himself, Peuchen and Bennett on the other. He had received $6,000 from Pope and Fowler, the total money he had put up. When the cheque on account of profits came along a year or so afterwards an epoch was marked in the game. This cheque was overdue. There also a statement which witness was asked to produce.

The particular part of this report was that there was $20,000 charged by Pope and Fowler for commission. Witness was given one-tenth interest. The profit sum was about $50,000, including two payments on profits.

Would Not Stand For It.

"What did you do?"

"I saw Fowler and Pope and said I would not stand for it. I told them I wanted an account, but I did not get it. I threatened suit. There was one other term of profits after that. Pope and Fowler have always made the distribution, and I received mine on the one-tenth basis."

"How much did you get altogether?"

"About $11,000 or $12,000."

"How many shares have you in Great West Lands Co.?"

"Fifty-five shares."

The suit was brought, and has not been settled. Mr. Lefurgey was under the impression that Pope and Fowler received 7-10 of the stock and 7-10 of the cash when the deal was put through.

PILES CURED QUICKLY AT HOME.

WITHOUT PAIN, CUTTING OR SURGERY—INSTANT RELIEF.

WE PROVE IT—SAMPLE PACKAGE FREE.

Seven people out of ten are said to have piles. Not one man in a million need have them, and we are proving it every day at our own expense. We send a sample package of the wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure to any person absolutely free.

We don't do this as a matter of amusement or philanthropy, but because it is to our interest to do so. We know that the sufferer from piles, tormented and driven almost crazy by this wretched trouble, will find such immediate relief that he will go at once to his druggist and buy a box and get well.

We know that we have got the greatest remedy in the world for piles, and we are ready and willing to stand or fall by the verdict of those who make the trial. We have been doing this for some years now and we never yet have had occasion to regret it.

And the remedy at the drug store is exactly the same as the sample we send out. As, for instance, here is a man who got such immediate relief from the sample that he at once bought a box. Was it just the same? Undoubtedly, since it cured him after all sorts and kinds of things had failed.

Here is a sample of the kind of letters we get every day and we don't have to ask for them:

Received your sample of Pile Cure and have given it a fair trial and it has proven the best I ever tried and effected a complete cure. I can recommend you highly in this vicinity. Have used your sample and one box and it has been a complete cure. It has been worth $100 to me.

Thanking you for the sample and the cure, I will recommend you to everybody. Yours respectfully, Julius Mayer, Dealer in Feathers, Ginseng and Hides, Bedford, Ind.

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist's at 50 cents a box, or, if you would like to try a sample first, you will receive one by return mail by sending your name and address to The Pyramid Drug Company, 59 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

The above is the official list of Prize-Winners of the ARMOUR EXTRACT OF BEEF Educational Contest, as determined by judges appointed. The Contest closed July 31, but the large number of lists entered and care required to check them thoroughly made it impossible to announce the winners at an earlier date. Prizes will be distributed immediately.

There were several thousand lists submitted in this competition, and, apart from its educational value, the interest shown demonstrates that ARMOUR'S SOLID EXTRACT OF BEEF is now generally and favorably known all over Canada as being superior and more economical than Fluid Beef Extracts.

FLAT CONTRADICTIONS

Boniface Tells of Night Carouse of Liberal Candidate.

W. F. Hepburn Denies Story of Keeping Immoral Company and Charges That It Was a Contemptible Plot of Blackmail by Orwell Hotelman—Went With Butler to Help Protect Him From Disorderly House Charge—Why He Retired.

Aylmer, Oct. 2.—Evidence, flatly contradictory, was given before Magistrate Hunt yesterday in the charge against D. Butler, proprietor of the Orwell Hotel.

Why He Retired.

Hepburn was put through a two and a half hours' grilling by W. K. Cameron, crown counsel, who asked him if the charges preferred by Butler were responsible for his retirement from the election contest. Hepburn refused to answer until the magistrate ordered him to. Then he said it was not because of the charges, but owing to the scandalous stories circulated.

Pressed if that was the only reason he again declined to answer.

Boughner's Story.

The first witness was Mahlon Boughner, Orwell, who lived about 40 rods north of Orwell for 40 years. He said Butler, on Aug. 20, had told him that Hepburn had stopped with a woman (Mrs. Gilroy) about the 2nd of August.

Mr. Cameron handed witness a piece of paper containing a statement that he had seen Butler write, which said that on the 1st of August Hepburn came to his house at 6.30 p. m. and put up. Afterwards two women came to the house and went upstairs without his knowledge. Hepburn went to a room with one of them and remained until about 1 a. m. Hepburn drove away with her and came back and stayed with the other. Butler told witness that Hepburn called for a drink between 12 and 1 a. m. Butler said he went to the room to take the drinks to Hepburn and found him with a woman. He ordered him out.

In cross-examination by Andrew Grant, witness said that Hepburn and Butler subsequently called at his house after midnight and asked him to have this held back until after the election. No money was offered him.

Butler's Evidence.

Butler testified that Hepburn had ordered a bottle of whisky at 9.15, and at midnight called for more drinks. Then Butler ordered him away. He did not know the women, but was told they had a bad reputation. Hepburn had promised him "anything" after the election if the matter was kept quiet. No one had ever offered him money to lay the charges.

Hepburn Denies.

W. F. Hepburn, the late Liberal candidate in East Elgin, took the stand at his own request.

He said he reached the hotel about 7.45. He went to bed about 9 o'clock. He got up the next morning about 8 o'clock. He saw no one between the time he went to bed and when he got up. He knew one of the women and saw her in the morning, but that was all.

Butler had threatened that unless he paid him $500 he would "bowl him out" at this election. He admitted going to Boughner's with Butler at Butler's request in reference to the two women, Butler giving him to understand that he was about to be prosecuted for keeping a disorderly house, and that he wished Hepburn to protect him. Boughner said he had been to see the inspector and Brower for the purpose of protecting Butler. Either Boughner or Butler said that the one or the other could fix the inspector. Hepburn was told that as he was at the hotel that night suspicion would point to him. Witness said he would not give any money in consideration to settle the affair, that he had nothing to do with it, and that the inspector could go ahead with the case so far as he was concerned.

Butler and witness then proceeded to the hotel, where the matter was again discussed in the presence of a man named Kaiser, who was lying on the lounge. Butler said that if Hepburn did not pay $500 that he (Butler) would associate his name with the women. Butler had further said that he had been offered $1,000 by Marshall and his party to put up this job on witness. Witness replied that it was a contemptible plot of blackmail, and that he would not give him a cent. After that Boughner and Butler came to Port Stanley and there Butler demanded money from witness. He replied that he would have nothing more to do with either of them.

Hepburn claimed he did not know the nature of the charge until he heard it yesterday.

One of the women said to be implicated is a Mrs. Stringer of Aylmer. She is believed to be now in St. Louis.

Court adjourned until to-day at 2 o'clock, when the case will likely be concluded.

Killed In Mill Shaft.

Brockville, Oct. 2.—W. Capron, an employe of the Norwood Paper Mill, was accidentally caught in the main belt and whirled rapidly around the shaft. His body was mangled and torn, his head being crushed to a pulp. His neck was broken, and death was almost instantaneous.

Deaf Mute Killed.

Windsor, Oct. 2.—Andrew Hamel, aged 68 years, a farmer of Belle River, was instantly killed by a Wabash Railway freight train Sunday night. Mr. Hamel, who was a deaf mute, was walking on the track.

RIOT AT FORT WILLIAM

Striking Italians and Greeks Attack C.P.R. Boarding House.

Fifty Galicians Were Within, Having Been Brought From Winnipeg—Police Fired and Wounded Number of Italians In the Legs, and One Officer Was Slightly Injured by a Return Shot—Strike Is Called Off.

Fort William, Oct. 3.—At noon yesterday a mob of striking Italians and Greeks attacked the C. P. R. Co.'s boarding-house, in which were fifty Galicians, who had been brought from Winnipeg.

The C. P. R. Co.'s police, twenty in number, defended the boarding-house, and in the exchange of shots one of the police was slightly injured, and a number of the Italians were shot in the legs.

The Strike Is Off.

A request was made to the mayor of Fort William for the militia, as it was expected the rioting would be resumed. The mayor and Councillor Morton met the Italians and Greeks, and later called upon Mr. Bury, general superintendent of the C. P. R. Finding that the railway company's position was a fair and strong one, the Italians called off the strike unconditionally last night.

Several attempts were made to burn the Canadian Pacific freight sheds, but the blazes were discovered early and were put out without serious damage.

Freight handlers at the Canadian Northern docks, 150 in number, have not yet gone out. It is possible that the Fort William coal dock employes will go out.

Seven boats are now waiting to unload, the Arabian and Monarch having arrived Monday.

Account From Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Oct. 3.—The strike has assumed a serious aspect at Fort William. Two strikers and one officer were shot in a conflict which occurred about noon. Special officers ordered the strikers back, and on their not doing so they emptied the contents of a revolver into the crowd.

Two men fell, one being badly injured.

Officer Taylor received a nasty wound in the neck from a bullet. After the first exchange of shots the men got behind cars, and from places of concealment fired at officers and men, and it was only by a miracle that the superintendent and others were not killed.

At Port Arthur things were quieter, there being no demonstrations. The men in the elevators all went back to work. It is expected that to-day will see the winding up of the strike.

Many boats are being unloaded by crews.

Grain Commission For Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—The Grain Commission spent yesterday inspecting the harbor and elevator facilities, and will begin taking evidence to-day.

Borden Lives Up to His Ideal

Which Is Not to Fill His Own Pocket at Public's Expense.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the Conservative Leader, Had Not "the Slightest Interest In Or Connection With the Purchase" of Western Lands —Nor Had He Inside Information From President of C.P.R. or Dan Mann.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Yesterday, R. L. Borden, K. C., in a statement issued concerning the mention made of his name in connection with the Fowler-and-others land speculation scheme, says:

"I never had the slightest interest in or connection with the purchase of these lands or any other lands in the west of Canada. Messrs. Pope, Fowler, Bennett and Lefurgey, or some of them, told me of their proposed venture and asked me to join them. My discussion of the proposal with any of these gentlemen was during our trip to the west in 1902 before any details of the purchase had been made. The discussion was of a very casual and general character, and I was so much occupied with political matters that I gave it very little consideration. I returned to Halifax from the west about the end of October, 1902, and on the 7th of the following month Mr. Pope telegraphed to me that he was leaving for the west, and on the same date I replied by telegram that I would not take any interest.

"I never attended any meeting in connection with the purchase, never had any communication with Sir Thos. Shaughnessy or any other railway official on the subject, and had no confidential information about the route of any railway.

"It was never suggested or hinted to me that any funds of the Union Trust Co. were to be used for the purpose of purchase.

"I never heard that company mentioned in connection with it. The proposal made to me was that each person who might become interested should finance his own share."

Bank Has to Produce Books.

The Insurance Commission took a rest yesterday, while Dominion Counsel Shepley visited the Bank of Nova Scotia, where he examined the accounts and documents of G. W. Fowler, M. P., now in possession of the bank. The continued absence of Mr. Fowler, is, as it were, prolonging the agony. He was at Ender Bay on the 24th of September, but it is not known definitely that he will be here this week. In the meantime Mr. Shepley has other irons in the fire and will go along another line.

The Commission sat for a few minutes in the afternoon, while Mr. Shepley explained that he could do nothing further until the bank books were examined. The Commission will resume at 10.30 this morning.

Book Production Argument.

When the Commission opened yesterday morning there was an argument about the books, documents and papers, belonging to George W. Fowler, in the possession of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which the manager had been asked to produce. C. A. Masten, addressed the Commission at length, pointing out that Mr. Fowler was not in town, and that the bank was not able to communicate with him. He submitted that the books and papers were outside the jurisdiction of the Commission on the grounds that the Okanagon Lumber Co. was entirely an independent company, and whether or not Fowler accounted to his associates for all the monies therewith had nothing whatever to do with the affairs of the I. O. F.

Mr. Shepley reminded the Commission that the money of the I. O. F. had gone into the Union Trust Co., its creature, from there to the Kamloops Lumber Co., to the Okanagon Co., and to Mr. Fowler.

Judge MacTavish said that the Commission would stick to their former ruling that the books be produced, not because it had been made, but because the Commission thought it was right.

A Veiled Threat.

"If there is any direction needed we are prepared to give it, but I hope it won't be necessary," he added.

John M. McWhinney, acting manager of the Union Trust Co., was caller. He had with him the investment ledger of the Union Trust, a map of the lands bought by the Union Trust in the Northwest, and all the papers and documents relating to $835,000 that was expended in connection, which witness said he would produce.

Mr. Shepley also wanted some shareholders' minutes, of which witness made a note and will produce. The minute regarding the increase in the Standard Bank loan, the remuneration of the directors, agreement with shareholders, further loan from Traders' Bank, inspection committee, the increase in the number of directors, relating to the call of 50 per cent. call on Northwest Lands and the bylaw, relating to Matthew Wilson, the agreement of the Great West Land Co. will b given by Mr. Shepley.

Charged With Manslaughter.

Guelph, Oct. 3.—As a result of the coroner's jury finding in the inquest on the Gourock railway wreck, Conductor Joseph Thompson and Engineer G. B. Reed of the fruit special were placed under arrest yesterday, but shortly afterwards released on bail. They are charged with manslaughter and will appear before the magistrate this morning. Thompson's home is in London and Reed lives in Hamilton.

A true bill of manslaughter was also returned by the grand jury against Peter Wilson, who shot and killed little Berdina Swackhammer in Erin Township. His trial will take place to-day.

Children's Coats to Fit All Ages

Black Dress Goods

Black Dress Goods are this season holding a stronger position on the fashion chart than for some time, due in a great measure to the number of deaths in the Royal Families of Europe—many of the handsomest imported models being in all black or black with a touch of white.

In consequence of this demand the manufacturers have brought forward many new weaves which give a variety of choice seldom found in this staple color.

All the new ones are well represented in our fall showing. These include Amazons, Soliel Cord, Panamas, Llama Cloths, Cordiline, Thibet, Armure, German Satin Cloths, Chiffon, Broadcloths ranging in price per yard........................ 50c, 75c, $1, and up to $2.00

COSTUME VELVETEENS

Velvets are daily gaining in popularity for all purposes, particularly costumes.

The foremost French modistes are expending every effort in turning out most elaborate costumes of English chiffon finished "Worrall Dyed" Velveteens.

Of these goods we have now a pleasing display in all the leading shades—guaranteed fast colors.

If you are contemplating the purchase of a new suit or dress, velvets are worthy of your consideration, not only because of their stylishness, but also of their handsome appearance. Ask to see them. Prices 75c and $1.00.

Skinner's Guaranteed Sateens

This brand of Satin has won a most worthy reputation (particularly in the United States) for its exceptional wearing qualities.

It is guaranteed by the manufacturers for two season's wear and for lining jackets and furs is without doubt the best material on the market today. We are sole agents for this section. If you want a lining that will wear, ask for Skinner's guaranteed satin.

—Skinner's guaranteed satin in seal brown, fawn, light and dark grey, white and mid brown, 27 in. wide (note the width) guaranteed for two seasons price per yard.................. $1.25

Changing Their Tune

Liberal papers, with the London exposures staring them in the face, now assume a virtue they do not possess and say that justice should be vindicated in the persons of the men accused of bribery in the London elections as sworn to by one of the "skilled workers." The leading organ remarks that the penitentiary is not too bad a place for election agents who work in that way, and calls for a full investigation.

This is a different doctrine from that set forth by the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Sir Richard Cartwright. That veteran politician, as the London Free Press points out, bravely stood up in Parliament to defend acts of electoral criminality. He said the fault was in being found out! The Ingersoll lawyer Jackson was not a buyer of votes merely. He did things far more reprehensible, as judged by the ordinary moral as well as legal standard. He procured false evidence for the election court. When Donald Sutherland could not be unseated by fair testimony, Jackson resorted to foul. He employed ex-jail birds to go into the witness box and swear to the truth of false sayings he had put into their mouths.

The money for this purpose was supplied by "a man in Toronto." Not an ordinary citizen, surely. No honest resident of the Queen City outside of politics would have any stake in such a game. No ordinary man in politics would put up so much money for the stake Jackson was playing for. It must have been a politician high up in power to whom the game was so great an object.

Did the leading organ or the lesser organs agree with the seathing strictures passed by the trial judge on the work? Not one of them. They all seemed to think it fair politics, the way the game might properly be played to gain the required end. That was their morality.

To the shame of Parliament, Sir Richard stood up in his place and said that Jackson was not blameworthy, except in having been indiscreet. He had played so clumsily as to be caught at the nefarious tricks. But to be caught and exposed was not to be sent to the penitentiary. There was no call then for investigation and punishment. There was not even a word of public condemnation. The criminal was given instead a lucrative office. He was sent to England as a commercial agent attached to Sir Richard's department. But it was not Sir Richard's doing altogether. His department was used as a refuge for the party tool who had broken the law in his effort to give Ross another chance. The appointment was made by order-in-council. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a party to it. Hon. Mr. Hyman was a consenting minister. All of them deemed it not improper thus to reward a henchman who had procured perjury in a court of justice to serve "the good cause."

The call for justice now is a new revelation of Liberal conscience. It probably proceeds from the conviction that the acts alleged by Collins against O'Gorman and others are not only without excuse but that the investigation will be full and thorough whether they like it or not. It is in hands that will not baulk at the claims of arrant criminals to public or party indulgence. But it were better had the organs, greater and lesser, used their influence in the years gone by, when these alleged criminals were most active, and notoriously at work in the Liberal cause, to stop the game of debauching the electorate. Then their protest might have had some weight for good. At this late day it does not matter.

A Peterboro paper says that a carpet factory, employing several hundred hands, and with a capital of a million, will soon locate in that city. That comes of having cheap power. Hurry up, somebody, and let's solve the cheap power problem in Belleville. With power conditions equal, this city can give Peterboro cards and spades and beat her out as a sweet spot for industries to locate in. But it's the power we want.

A little story is told us which shows just about how the G. T.R. is rushed with freight at the present time. A G.T.R. freight engineer, in six days, which were included in last week and this, has made fourteen "runs." Each "run," it may be explained, counts as a day's work. Don't you wish your dad was the engineer?

Liberal papers in Ontario, says the Montreal Gazette, are angry that at this time charges should be made of Liberal crookedness in a London election that took place in 1905. RUBBER

When you buy rubber it pays to get it. There are few things in which quality counts for more than in rubber goods.

The demands of our trade require us to carry more than one quality of rubber goods, but each quality is sold for what it is, and is sold at an honest price. We carry practically everything in the line of Syringes, Hot-water Bottles, Sick-room Supplies, etc.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

Goes West on Promotion

The Newark Tribune of Sept. 24 has this to say of a former Belleville boy:

"The many friends of Mr. J. T. Luscombe, machine shop foreman, will be sorry to learn that he leaves the city permanently in a few days.

"In his official capacity and in a social way he has made many friends with all with whom he came in contact. Genial, easily approached, and of rare good humor, he will be greatly missed by all who know him.

"His leaving the city, however, is a tribute to his genius and efficiency as an expert with machinery. Filling the position here satisfactorily it is easy to see that being placed in a more responsible position with the Chicago & Alton at Bloomington, Ill., is in the way of a merited advancement.

"Within a few days the fact has been exploited in these columns that the B. & O. with the Chicago & Alton and the Union Pacific had been formed into an inter-oceanic system. Bloomington is more centrally located in the new system than this point, as it is farther west.

"Mr. Luscombe is to be congratulated on his advancement with this system, now one of the largest on earth."

PROMPT CONNECTIONS.

There is one feature of the wonderful service over The Lake Shore Railway that particularly appeals to those who travel much. The schedule is so arranged that connections, where any are necessary, are made promptly and long waits and delays are avoided. This, taken in connection with the luxurious trains, perfect personal service, highest speed, safety and punctuality has made the Lake Shore the most popular line in America. Careful travellers see that their tickets read "Via Buffalo and the Lake Shore Railway." For full information concerning rates, routes and service address J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N.Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, Ohio, or W. J. Lynch, Passenger Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Annual Meeting Of W.C. Association.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS PRESENTED — THE PRESIDENTS ADDRESS AND REVIEW OF THE YEAR'S WORK.

The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Association was held yesterday afternoon, in the Council Chamber. Whilst the attendance was not, perhaps, so large as upon former occasions, there was a representative gathering of ladies who form part of the Association. The past year has been an arduous one, in many respects, for the Association, owing to some large expenditures having to be made for needed improvements, such as installing a heating plant in the hospital, and other work. At the meeting the various reports presented were of an encouraging nature, and demonstrated that the ladies have, during the past year done excellent work.

Mrs. L. W. Yeomans, who has been President for the past two years, occupied the chair. She opened the meeting by reading a portion of scripture and Miss H. A. MacKay offered up an appropriate prayer.

The first business taken up was the receiving and adopting of reports from the various departments of the Association's work. Some of the reports are given in full, but others, owing to their length, are summarized.

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Since the annual meeting held October, 1905, we have sent out by order of the W.C.A., seventy-two letters, gave and sent out seventy-five copies of annual report.

To the city ministers, mayor and members of Council, County Council, every month sent Hospital Board Report to daily papers; also gifts to Hospital and Home for the Friendless.

RECORDING SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The year of work just brought to a close was commenced under unusually trying circumstances. A deficit of $1,178.44 in the running expenses was, to say the least, discouraging. This however, was more than met by the special subscription, which at the suggestion of the Advisory Board was inaugurated by The Intelligencer and continued by both papers. The management are glad to be able to report a reduction in the running expenses of several hundred dollars. A new furnace has been put in, costing over $1,800, and all of this, but a very small balance has already been paid. A large quantity of coal for the coming winter was also secured at summer rates — one hundred tons for the Hospital and ten tons for the Home. An account of the general repairs and alterations will be given by the Hospital Board. In spite of all this the Association has a small balance to its credit but it will be remembered that to put the buildings in proper condition two thousand dollars was obtained by mortgaging the Hospital.

We are indebted to many kind friends for assistance in giving the various entertainments during the year, namely, the Spinsters' Convention, concert by Mr. Cameron, excursion on the steamer Niagara, and the Old Boys' Reunion at Victoria Park. These realized $578.51. The garden party at the Home also brought in $118.02. The balance of the revenue was received in the usual way as shown in detail in the Treasurer's report.

We are glad to report the condition of the Home as satisfactory.

The Indigent fund has been administered in the usual way much being done to aid the sick and infirm of the city.

The resignation of Miss M. G. Gibson in May, 1905, was followed a few months later, just at the beginning of the Association's new year by her death to the deep sorrow of Miss Gibson's fellow-workers. Others have been taken from their work by ill-health and the need of new workers is great —greater than ever. The present members of the Association feel that many would gladly continue in the work if they could but be induced to learn something of it. What is difficult for a few would be light if the many would help.

The Association gives hearty thanks to those who have assisted them during the past year — the Mayor and City Council for co-operation, the Advisory Board for counsel and assistance in soliciting the special subscription fund, the doctors for attendance and also a number of the clergymen who have held services, and those who have conducted the Sunday Song services, the city churches and English Church at Tweed for Thanksgiving offerings, auditor, the press, the bands and all kind friends, and above all, the Giver of all good, who has brought us safely through another year.

Respectfully submitted,
JULIA PONTON,
Recording Secretary.

STATISTICAL REPORT.

Members of the Hospital Board and Woman's Christian Association:

Madam President, — Following is the statistical report of the Hospital for the year 1905-06:

Number of patients under treatment	410
Number in Hospital Sept. 30, '05	28
Number admitted during year	375
Number of children born	7
Number of patients discharged	353
Number of deaths	24
Number in Hospital, Sept. 30, '06	23
Number of Hospital days	6972
Number of non-resident patients	64
Patients received from city	227
Patients from the County of Hastings	143
Patients from Prince Edward County	9
Patients from other counties in Ontario	27
Patients from United States	4
Cost of unprepared food for all tables and special diets per day	$5.88

Only one patient has occupied the "Edward Corby" ward during the year, the number of days of occupancy being 34.

The causes of death were;

Stricture of oesophagus.
Senility.
Fracture of base of skull.
Intestinal obstructions.
Pneumonia.
Shock from injuries.
Gangrene.
Carcinoma uteri.
Tubercular throat.
Septic peritonitis.
Diphtheria.
Cancer of caecum.

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the Board of Management and staff of the Hospital for the constant and hearty support rendered us in all departments of the work during the past year.

CLARA H. GREENE,
Lady Superintendent.

HOME BOARD.

The Home is in a fairly satisfactory condition. At present there are four women and five men in the Home. One death occurred during the year, namely, Mr. Bishop. Mrs. Hampton, assistant caretaker died at the Hospital after a brief illness. The worthy matron does excellent work, her management being all that could be desired. A pound party in November realized $60. The proceeds of the garden party in July added $118 to our friends and the gifts which were generously donated by many friends, during the year, amounted to $130. We desire to thank the Band of the I. O. O. F. who kindly gave their services at the garden party and also all friends who contributed in every way to the success of our entertainments.

Respectfully submitted,
MARY O. TEMPLETON,
Home Board of Management.

REPORT OF CHAIRMAN OF DEPARTMENTS FOR INDIGENT FUND.

The income for this fund comes directly from the city taxes. The grant is $100 per month. The year started with a balance of $353.86. Total receipts for the year, $1553.86, as stated by the Treasurer. The total expenditure is $1282.00. This work is divided into wards. We have visitors in each ward, as the work in the ward requires, as follows:

Foster ward, 3	$299.95
Samson ward, 1	31.00
Ketcheson ward, 1
Baldwin ward, 1	37.85
Bleecker ward, 1	120.50
Coleman ward, 1	254.73
Murney ward, 1	194.83
City patients in Hospital	265.79
Ambulance	16.00
Cemetery	10.00
Telephone	23.33
Undertaking	24.00
Anti-Toxine	3.00
Overdrawn Christmas cheer	1.00
Total expenditure	$ 1282.00

From the above we show city patients treated in Hospital 48 in number; 64 families or individuals have been aided, of whom 10 families were English, lately come among us. On the whole these persons are desirous to find work and quickly become self-supporting. We request anyone having clothing to dispose of to send them to the Dorcas or to my address. More than usual will be needed. The ward visitors have been faithful, as far as they knew, to the interests of the city. We seek to discourage the spirit of pauperism, helping only such as are in need, supplying work when possible. In some cases parents are unworthy, but little children and aged ones cannot be left to suffer. In cases of sickness aid is always given

One change in regard to city patients treated in the Hospital has been made. Whereas the charge from this fund was $1.00 per week, supplemented from a special fund, we now pay the full charge, $2.50 per week.

The question of securing the services of a Deaconess was discussed in the beginning of the year. Application was made to the Church of England and Methodist Homes of Training in Toronto. The replies were discouraging. No one was available. The salary for a Deaconess is $300. Any one wishing to help this very important department will send their subscription to my address, as we intend to make another application this year. We realize the great importance of this work, and that great good can be done by the touch of a consecrated life coming in contact with the women in the home life. The work among boys is also waiting for workers and money. The lads are growing up in ignorance. We still hope that an organization will be started in the near future by which these boys will be taught that cruelty is not manly, idleness a disgrace, to be clean in soul and body, to be industrious and kind to man is a good sort of religion and will produce the best results in this and the future life. Through the generosity of Mr. Henry Corby, $300 was deposited in the Bank of Montreal, interest to our account for Christmas cheer. We issued 94 cheques, giving out proportionately, $2.50 per family. And so the year has closed, bearing with it opportunities for better work. Better houses are needed for the working classes, renting from $2 to $5 per month. We hope to live to see the day when free water supply will be given to each family whose income does not exceed a certain sum. By bettering the conditions of the working people a city builds it's own walls. The moral and spiritual tone would be raised by the better condition of homes.

Signed on behalf of the Women's Christian Association,

FRANCES CASSWELL RAY,
Chairman of Indigent.

Oct. 2, 1906.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

Mr. J. D. Clarke, auditor, presented a brief report, which showed that vouchers for all expenditures had been given and that the books and accounts were in a most satisfactory state. The report showed that citizens had given liberal support to the Hospital.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The various reports presented, the President said, showed a loving and cheerful adherence to duty, animated by the spirit of unselfishness that has permeated the year's work.

In the case of the Belleville Hospital, improvements and enlargement have been secured through the assistance of the Advisory Board, the city press and citizens generally, a handsome sum had been secured for the work.

To assist in meeting the demand for a separate building for contagious diseases, the Board of Trustees has granted the requests of the Board of Health and the City Council that the isolation hospital be built at the south of the present building, it to be under the control of the management of the Belleville Hospital. This arrangement will give opportunities for more effective treatment of those afflicted, and will also relieve the present congested condition by leaving the present infectious wards for the use of our faithful and zealous nurses.

The Governemnt grant to the Hospital was $917. The Home for the Friendless has provided another year's comfort for our old people. Those of our citizens who have been unfortunate enough to require aid from the indigent fund have been well cared for by the chairman of this committee, and her able and self-denying assistants.

With the closing of this year we are losing by removal five of our much valued trustees, namely, Mrs. Dunnet, Mrs. Ward, Miss Vanderwater, Mrs. Magrath and Mrs. W. W. Chown.

Death has claimed one, who gave long service on many committees, and who was for fifteen months the efficient Recording Secretary, namely, Miss M. G. Gibson. Doubtless her example and influence, as well as those of many others, both directly and indirectly, have helped to develop the attentive spirit of many of the women of Belleville.

Many of our trustees feel that more should be done for the mental and moral improvement of our poor, especially among the young.

THE PROPER WAY TO MAKE TEA

The most important point in making good tea is to use the water as soon as it boils. If it boils for any length of time it becomes hard and flat and will make but an imperfect infusion. Avoid also water that has been boiled and put aside on the stove and then reboiled at tea-making time. Scald the teapot, put into it WHILE HOT a teaspoonful of "SALADA" Tea for every two cups, pour on the FRESHLY BOILED water and allow it to steep for from five to eight minutes, then serve. Tea should not under any circumstances be made in a metal teapot.

"Want Ads. multiply visible opportunities."

"Grand Peninsular"
The Ideal Kitchen Range

The "Grand Peninsular" is my ideal of what a perfect cast-iron range should be.

It is the most reliable cooker of its kind—because the oven is built exactly like the oven of an expensive steel range.

Steel radiates heat quicker than cast-iron. Instead of using only a steel BOTTOM—I make the ENTIRE OVEN—top, bottom and sides—of patent Levelled Steel Plate.

That's one reason why the "Grand Peninsular" is such a quick, even cooker—and saves so much fuel.

Then I do away with all guess work about the baking, by putting a thermometer on the oven door. The oven is perfectly ventilated—the air kept fresh and dry—thus preventing soggy baking. I make the Grate Bars large and strong and easily removable.

All the ornamentation—the nickeled parts—can be lifted off the range when cleaning, without loosening a single bolt. You can see Peninsular Ranges at your local dealer's store. 40

TIMELY TOPICS.

HIS DIFFICULT CASE.

(Chicago News.)

I've tried Doc Quacker's "Biliousine"
And Faker's "Herb Rejuvenator,"
At times when feeling extra mean
I've took the "Germ Eradicator,"
I've swallered Dosem's "Knock-Out Drops"
And Swillet's "Kurit"—just a vial
And Barker's "Sassafras-and-Hops,"
But still my health is quite a trial.

I thought that Jimpson "Batters" might Help some: it's highly recommended,
It sort o' killed my appetite,
On "Blackfoot Pills" I next depended,
I wrote the doc about the way
I felt. He said, "Consult by letter."
He sent twelve boxes back next day,
I took 'em, but I felt no better.

I guess I've tried most everything,
And if the druggists don't supply it,
I send and get it shipped, by jing!
If it looks good I'm bound to try it.
But somehow spite of all I've took
My misery is still enduring
And, honest, it begins to look
As if my case was past all curing.

The Ottawa Citizen charges that The Halifax Chronicle, which has no job printing office, is awarded large amounts of job printing by the Dominion Government ($50,000 or so in the last five years), which the Chronicle farms out to job printers, taking a rake-off. If this be so there is a gross abuse of patronage, and it is pretty safe to say a waste of public moneys. The Laurier Government should free itself of petty grafting of this kind. —Brantford Expositor (Liberal.)

Premiums are frequently offered for something new and striking in hats by milliners, and men are allowed to compete, but if they evolve the creation that would suit them best the judges would throw it out of the window and turn to something practical and less artistic. If man could dictate the style of hats he would have a neat, warm little bench of cloth that could be put together for about a quarter, with possibly five cents' worth of trimming added. No man would begrudge paying thirty cents a year for a new hat for his wife if he really cared for her. Of course, unmarried men might be somewhat more extravagant in their patterns. As long as father is footing the bills, nothing is too good for mother.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—Cattle Steady, Sheep Lower at Chicago.

London, Oct. 2.—Canadian cattle in the British markets are quoted at 10c to 11¼c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9¼c to 9¾c per pound.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Receipts of live stock at the city market as reported by the railways since Friday last were 61 cars, composed of 928 cattle, 641 hogs, 125 sheep and lambs, with 135 calves.

Exporters

None were offered, and none were wanted.

Butchers.

Best butchers' sold from $4.25 to $4.40 per cwt. and there were few that brought these prices; fair to good, $3.75 to $4; medium, $3.50 to $3.75; common, $3 to $3.25; cows, $2.25 to $3.25; canners, $1.50 to $2.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. Murby reports a very limited trade in stockers and feeders to-day, the chief demand as usual being for the good feeders from 1000 to 1100 lbs. There are too many light cattle being marketed, especially the common and medium kinds, and sellers are not getting let-out prices for them.

Mr. Murby bought about 100 head to-day at following quotations: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $3.75 to $4; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $3 to $3.40; light stockers, 500 to 600 lbs., at $2.50 to $2.85; light stockers, common, $2.12½ to $2.25.

Milch Cows.

Trade in milch cows and springers was strong, especially for the best grades. Prices ranged from $30 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

The market continues strong for veal calves, which sold at $3.50 to $6 per cwt., with a few prime new milk-fed calves at $6.50 to $7 each.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade was brisk for sheep and lambs. Lambs sold at $5.50 to $6.25 per cwt.; export ewes at $4 to $4.50 per cwt.; bucks at $3 to $3.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Deliveries were light. Mr. Harris reports the market stronger at $6.65 for selects and lights at $6.40 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Oct. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 550 head; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $5.65 to $6.25; shipping, $5 to $5.75; butchers', $4.25 to $5.25.

Veals—Receipts, 300 head; active and lower; $4.50 to $8.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 6500 head; heavy and mixed steady; others 5c to 10c lower; heavy and mixed, $6.95 to $7; Yorkers, $6.70 to $6.90, a few $6.95; pigs, $6.00 to $6.65; roughs, $5.50 to $5.70; stags, $4.25 to $4.75; dairies, $6.25 to $6.80.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3000 head; slow; sheep steady; lambs 10c to 15c lower; lambs, $5.25 to $7.90; Canada lambs, $7.75 to $7.85.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Oct. 2.—Beeves—Receipts, 951; feeling easy, with 40 cars reported for Wednesday's trade. Dressed beef in fair request; native sides, 6½c to 9½c per lb.; Texan beef, 6c to 7c. Exports, 900 cattle and 400 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 465; veals barely steady at $5.50 to $9.50; good westerns, $4.50; grassers nominal and feeling weak.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2582; sheep steady; good and prime lambs in fair demand and unchanged; medium and common dull; sheep, $3.50 to $5.50; culls, $2 to $3; lambs, $6.75 to $8.25; culls, $5 to $5.50; no Canadian lambs.

Hogs—Receipts, 3061; market easier; state and Pennsylvania hogs, $6.90 to $7.10; outside figures for choice light.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Cattle—Receipts, 4000; steady; common to prime steers, $3.75 to $7; cows, $2.70 to $4.70; heifers, $2.90 to $5.35; bulls, $2.40 to $4.50; calves, $3 to $8; stockers and feeders, $2.60 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,000; strong; choice to prime, heavy, $6.65 to $6.75; medium to good, heavy, $6.50 to $6.60; butchers' weights, $6.65 to $6.80; good to choice, mixed, $6.50 to $6.60; packing, $6 to $6.50; pigs, $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 34,000; steady to strong; sheep, $5 to $5.25; yearlings, $5.75 to $6; lambs, $6.25 to $7.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Campbellford, Ont., Oct. 2.—Seven hundred and forty-five cheese offered. Sales: Cook 240, Magrath 300 at 12 15-16c; Alexander, 40 at 12¾c; balance refused 12¾c.

Stirling, Ont., Oct. 2.—There were 715 boxes of cheese offered: 210 sold at 12 13-16c, 285 at 12¾c, balance refused at 12¾c.

Thieves Make Haul.

Peterboro, Oct. 3.—The residence of J. J. Lundy, one of the city's wealthiest citizens, was entered Monday night. The thieves stole a solid gold watch and nearly $300 in cash from Mr. Lundy's bedroom, in which he was sleeping at the time. Two tramps were arrested on suspicion.

OGILVIE'S
ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

Only part of the wheat berry is fit for food. Yet much that isn't often gets into flour. You cannot see it or taste it, but it's there. It is simply a case of the miller getting more flour from his wheat and your getting less nourishment.

Royal Household Flour

is so milled that nothing goes into it except the part of the wheat that is food. You get just what you pay for—the best and purest flour made. It goes farther because it is all flour. Your grocer can supply you.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

"A WOMAN sighs, 'I wish.' A man should say, 'I will.'"

Norris read from an old commonplace book, adding, with a little laugh: "Lord, how this generation discounts that fine piece of Bulwer's sentimentality! Women nowadays have got past sighing anything. Instead they say things, and, behold, the things are done."

"Which means, if anything, that you're dead sore," Marvin retorted, pulling hard at his pipe. "I don't wonder at it," he went on. "You were so immortally certain Baby Curran would make ducks and drakes of her venture, when, lo, she's succeeded in a way to astonish everybody."

"Wrong, as usual," Norris commented. Martin shook his head, with a lazy laugh, saying: "George, but I'm glad Daddy Curran left nothing but debts and a livery stable to his flock of children. There was nothing for Baby to do except keep on with the business"—

"There was. She might have married me," Norris interrupted. "She knew I'd look out for her stepmother and the kids"—

"No doubt," Marvin broke in, "but that isn't Baby's way. Don't you remember how at school she wouldn't be told in class or have her sums done for her? Honest independence is her ruling passion—so much so, indeed, I feared to have her go into this. Daddy Curran never thought of doubting anybody's word until he had to. I thought Baby was off the same piece. So she is, but she's got something else in her. Her spot cash conscience, she calls it. I heard her explaining to old Major Axtun that the way to avoid bad debts was to have no debts at all and let the bank do all the bookkeeping."

Norris drummed hard on the table. "I'm a fool to keep on caring!" he burst out. "She puts me aside like a last year's bonnet; won't hear to marrying me until the debts are paid and Benny boy through school and ready to step into her shoes. That means four years at least. Meantime there's the devil to pay with my people. They're not purse proud, but who can blame them if they don't want to welcome as a daughter a headstrong young woman who has made herself the talk of the county, not even though she did it with the best intentions in the world? My mother was at me yesterday, asking me if I wanted a wife who had grown sharp at bargaining with half the horse dealers and teamsters in the countryside. It seems Baby is setting up to buy saddle stock"—

"I don't know anybody with a better right. She knows horses better than the most of us," Marvin interposed. "And, all things considered, it is a good thing. She has her market ready made, as it were. Those city folks take everything of class she can find them and pay her a handsome profit."

"You seem to hold a brief for her," Norris said sulkily, a gleam of suspicion in his eyes. "It might be well for you to join hands with her. You might make more at horse dealing than you ever did at the law."

"Very likely—if I had Baby's chance. But certainly I shan't scheme to take it from her," Marvin said steadily; then, flushing a little, he added: "I would be only too glad to join hands with her in anything—and for life. But she has let me know that's out of the question. When she set you free she left herself bound, little as you deserve it."

The last word was flung over his shoulder. He had risen and was striding toward the door. Norris looked after him, half angrily, half shamedly, then glanced about the handsomely appointed office with a scowling sneer. His grandfather had been governor, his father was a senator, his mother led society in Allingham. Naturally she looked high for her only son, much higher than a bankrupt's daughter, who had taken upon her shoulders an unwomanly burden. Still she had not set herself openly against her son's choice. She had even approved, though mildly, his intention of constancy. How, then, should he suspect that she was planning to upset that intention? The hinge of the plan was Miss Althea Roswell—a beauty, Miss Althea, if one could have overlooked her nose. Unfortunately it stood out so boldly overlooking it was impossible, even in the effulgence of her many dollars. It was the nose as much as anything else that had made Granville Norris feel so much at ease with her. She had come for a long visit, and Allingham was making much of her, yet somehow she had not been brought face to face with Baby, who had nowadays little time and less money for ruffling it in the town gayeties. Norris himself saw her but in little snatches. She went and came so uncertainly and at such odd times he could not waylay her and calls were out of the question. The little new home was so crowded it was impossible to say anything there without having it reach all ears. Norris felt that there was much which ought to be said, but somehow had not yet brought himself to the pitch of saying it.

He glanced out of the window, his eyes brightening as they fell upon his mother, driving her pony chaise, with Althea snug beside her. He rushed out to greet them and almost dragged them inside. Very shortly thereafter he went away with them—upon an errand he did not in the least relish. Miss Althea had heard of Baby Curran's venture; further, she had lost her heart to a fine saddle mare Baby had just bought and sent out to exercise. She meant to have the creature at almost any price, so Norris, perforce, went along to see the bargaining. He did not go quite blindly. Though he had never let himself acknowledge it, he was not insensible to what he would gain if he could bring himself to marry Miss Roswell. If he meant ever to do that, it was well not to set the new fancy beside the old. He writhed at the thought, hoping against hope for some miraculous chance to take Baby away. But, most inconsistently, he felt a flooding gladness at sight of her, smiling a welcome from the door of the neat dingy office.

She was sorry, dreadfully sorry, but Black Leezy was not to be bought. She had been bought, indeed, upon a special order from the city stable and would be sent there as soon as ever she got a little wonted to the bustle of streets. Yes, she had got a fine commission. No, Miss Roswell could not have the mare by doubling, trebling, quadrupling it—not for anything at all. She (Baby) was sorry to seem disobliging, but she could do nothing else. She had given her word and must keep it; had promised the dealer the best horse to be found and, having found one without a match, was bound to let him have it.

Miss Roswell had been silken soft at the outset. Finding herself thus withstood for the sake of what seemed to her a fine spun scruple, she showed a temper as high as her nose and flounced across the stall front, saying to Mrs. Norris in pretended aside: "Isn't it lucky? I didn't really want the mare—only to see what a woman horse jockey is like. She's not bad looking either. You might take her to be quite respectable—unless you knew better."

Baby heard every word, as Miss Roswell meant she should. She stepped back a pace, going white, then red, her hands hanging helplessly at her sides. Norris likewise heard; he flushed darkly and made as if to stand by his sweetheart. But his mother was calling him, likewise his duty as a courteous host. With a look half angry, half apologetic, he followed the two retreating figures toward their carriage. Halfway to it he stopped and half turned about, to see Marvin standing with Baby's hand in his, her face raised to his and her eyes wet. Instantly he flung back to them, but Baby waved him away. When he had gone and the carriage was out of hearing, she said to Marvin, with a little hard breath: "Poor Granville! I ought not to blame him. He has maybe caught my faith in spot cash."

Then, most unaccountably, she hid her face in her hands and sobbed hard a minute, but looked up after it, smiling a brave yet piteous smile. Marvin took her hand again and pressed it ever so little, saying in a half whisper: "Honey, cry all you want to between now and the New Year. We are going to get married then and live happy ever after."

Baby's answer was a blush and silence, but the wedding came off duly, a month ahead of the Norris-Roswell affair.

Another Way to Put It.

"A shining example of private virtue and an exalted teacher of good and honest government" is the description of Robert Toombs of Georgia given in "The Brother's War." Toombs was a prominent character for many years before the war and served in the two houses of congress about fifteen years. He was afterward secretary of state in the Confederate government.

He had a wit and a fineness of expression, says the author, which made his phrases and repartee widely quoted and made him the delight of appreciative audiences.

A rival candidate, really conspicuous and celebrated for his little ability, in a stump debate pledged the people that if they would send him to congress he would never leave his post during a session to attend the courts, as he unjustly charged Toombs with habitually doing. Toombs disposed of this fling by merely saying:

"You should consider which will hurt the district the more, his constant presence in or my occasional absence from the house."

Where She Comes In.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Jawback, "that you think it's fun for me to sit up and wait for you every night like this."

"Nope," answered Jawback. "I'm having my fun while you're waiting. You have yours when I get home."—Cleveland Leader.

Use For Spoiled Beer.

"There is no need," said a brewer, "for us to throw away beer that has turned sour, nor is there any need for us to try to doctor it up. We have a ready sale for our spoiled beer among cement makers. Don't think from this that cement makers have a morbid taste for sour beer. Nothing of the kind. They use this beer in making cement for leather joints. It takes the place of acid, being cheaper and yet just as good."

Not an Impostor.

A proud young father telegraphed the news of his new responsibility to his brother in this fashion: "A handsome boy has come to my house and claims to be your nephew. We are doing our best to give him a proper welcome." The brother, however, failed to see the point and replied: "I have not got a nephew. The young man is an impostor."

It is wise to save the first dollar that one makes in business, but wiser to save the last.

STEAMSHIP ENGAGEMENTS

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

It may have been that in the hurry and confusion of getting away from London the purser of the steamship Bramble got things mixed up. He knew that he had among the passengers no less than three fond American mammas who had been trailing over Europe with marriageable daughters and were coming home with disappointed looks, and he hoped to give one of them a last chance.

However it happened, it was known among the passengers even before the Bramble left her dock that a great man was on board. It was Mr. Julius Smithers of the Chicago beef trust, and his fortune was variously estimated at from ten to fifty million dollars. There were men who at first denied that Smithers was a member of the trust. They could name over every packer who had ever been mentioned in the papers, and the name of Smithers didn't figure in the list. They were about to denounce him as an impostor when a red headed man suggested that Smithers might have come into the trust on a merger of some sort. There were mergers merging all the time, and what if the beef trust and the tombstone trust had consolidated their interests?

The thing was as good as settled in an hour. Mr. Smithers was a man of forty. He was rather rotund and bald headed. He had just the faintest inclination to be flashy. Mr. Smithers was very democratic for a man worth untold millions. He made acquaintances rapidly, and the steamer had not made a hundred miles to the westward when he started a game of poker in the smoking room and had for companions a drummer, a cattleman, a ward politician and the inventor of the sausage stuffing machine. He was given a seat at the captain's table. It was afterward said that this was a mistake and that he had taken the place assigned to a bishop. If he hadn't been worth millions upon millions his table manners would have been open to criticism.

There was much to overlook in Mr. Julius Smithers or there would have been under any other circumstances. He was about the only one who didn't know it, and he was happy.

Within forty-eight hours those mammas were laying wires. If they had failed to pick up a lord, a duke or count abroad it wasn't such a bad thing to fall back on one of the "its" of the beef trust. Mr. Smithers could not only restore the family beefsteaks to the old time prices, but he had millions to spend in castles, yachts and diamonds. These mammas had male friends aboard, who were instructed to obtain information about Smithers. He met them halfway and more.

"Say, you take my word for it, it's going to be the biggest success of anything for the last ten years," was his sanguine reply. "You'll hear all about it within a month after we land. Money in it? Well, I guess yes. I expect to make bonfires of fifty-dollar bills."

He was talking about the merger, of course. His replies were reported to the waiting mammas, and they were introduced. The said introductions came about in a careless way, as if by mere accident.

The mammas found him hearty and jovial in his speech. He didn't always follow the rules of grammar, and he sometimes caught himself just in time to bite off a cuss word, but a man may be forgiven much if he can draw his check for several millions.

It was decided in all three cases that Mr. Smithers would do as a member of the family. When he became a son-in-law they could polish him up a bit and gradually reduce the size of his two watch chains and his diamond pin.

Then the daughters were introduced. This was also carelessly accomplished—that is, while Mr. Smithers was making intervals between his poker games in order to get a breath of ocean air he would suddenly find some one in his path and be compelled to pause and be introduced. He wasn't a man with a grain of suspicion in his composition, and he was the soul of good nature. He gave up his poker to sit down and make himself agreeable to Miss Blank.

"You may have heard of the beef trust?" was his way of starting off the conversation. "It's going to be the biggest thing the United States ever heard of. My, but that was a great thought of mine, and I can't help but feel rather swelled up over it! No more bust-ups; no more walking the railroad tracks for Julius Smithers, Esq."

The girls elevated their eyebrows in surprise and perplexity. They had never heard any merger talk before, and it was as Greek to them. They reported to their respective mammas that Mr. Smithers didn't get into college the day he called, that his ways were rather familiar, that he evidently hadn't attended over a thousand high teas and grand receptions and that it would take a carload of sandpaper to rub him down, but he had a good heart as a foundation to build on. If his conversation wasn't exactly up to the notch the windup was intended to draw applause. He always finished by saying:

"I shall now have to ask you to excuse me, but I will see you again. In fact, I want to see you again. I think I can figure it out before we arrive at Sandy Hook to offer you the best thing of the season, but keep that to yourself."

"Mamma, what did he mean by that?" asked the respective daughters of their respective mothers.

"Why, child, how silly you are!" was the reply. "What could he mean but one thing?"

"But we have known him such a little while."

"You haven't got to know a millionaire over a day or two. They are different from other men. They have the cash."

There were men aboard looking to get into a good thing on the ground floor. They knew that the beef trust was a good thing. They threw out hints to Mr. Smithers, but he laughed and shook his head and replied:

"Not yet, my boy. I've got the dough to start it off, and I want all the plunks there are in it. See me next season."

"Will beef go up?"

"Thunder, no! We expect to knock the price down to 15 cents a pound."

"Then how will you make your millions out of it?"

Mr. Smithers didn't make any direct answer. He simply winked a long, quivering wink with his left eye and conveyed the impression that there was a coon up the tree. The merger man enjoyed the sunshine of flattery and envy and toadyism for five or six days.

Then Sandy Hook was sighted one morning, and he announced to the three scheming mammas that he wanted to hold converse with their three daughters. It was to be private converse. There was agitation. There was perturbation. There were consultations. Mr. Smithers selected a corner of the music room, and to that spot the victims were led in turn. The conversation was about the same in each instance.

"My dear girl," began Mr. Smithers, with paternal blandness, "I told you I had a good thing on hand and would try to arrange to make you an offer. I am about to do so. You have never had any experience on the stage, but you are a mighty good looker."

"Sir!" demanded the maiden as she retreated a step.

"Oh, I shan't ask you to dress unbecomingly. It's just a plain, straight play called 'The Beef Trust' and showing how that corporation by raising the prices parted two happy lovers and brought grief and death to other households. Three corking acts and a cast of twelve people. We introduce a drove of cattle, a slaughter house and a butcher shop among other spectacular effects. Will move right along without a hitch. Papers are bound to give it free columns of advertising. I can put you in the cast at $30 per to begin on. What do you say?"

None of the three said anything—not to Mr. Smithers. Ten minutes after the last interview a murmur swept over the great steamer. That was followed by a growl. After the growl came cries of "Kill him! Throw him overboard!" There was a rush of feet along the decks, but Mr. Smithers was pulled into the purser's room and saved from total wreckage, and when the steamer reached her dock the captain lent him a pair of false red whiskers to disguise himself and escape the mob.

Baptism In Morocco.

This is the way an infant is christened in Morocco: "When the first child is born—and the parents are accustomed to wish for a girl as a happy omen—the mother of the young matron sends a basket containing the layette of the infant, along with henna, eggs and pigeons. The baby is stained with henna from head to foot and the little body smeared with butter and wrapped in flannels. The seventh day is the day of baptism. At the first hour of the morning the friends are invited to the repast. About 9 o'clock a 'taleb,' or, better still, a 'shereef,' sacrifices a sheep on behalf of the child and as he cuts the animal's throat pronounces the sacramental words, 'In the name of God it is the baptism of such an one, son of such an one.' Then the child is washed for the first time, henna is put on its hands and feet, khol under its eyes; it is clothed in its finest robes and put into its mother's bed, at the head of which lighted tapers are burning."

Setting Mother Right.

"I'm sure, Ethel," said the girl's mother sternly, "that I saw him kissing you last evening."

"Nonsense, mother! He's entirely too bashful"—

"Don't contradict me, child! I saw the performance with my own"—

"Pardon me, mother. You merely saw me kissing him."—Detroit Free Press.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

is better than other Soaps but is best when used in the Sunlight way. Follow directions.

SUNLIGHT WAY OF WASHING

FIRST.—Dip the article to be washed in a tub of lukewarm water, draw it out on a washboard and rub the soap lightly over it. Be particular not to miss soaping all over. THEN roll it in a tight roll, lay in the tub under the water, and go on the same way until all the pieces have the soap rubbed on, and are rolled up.

Then go away for thirty minutes to one hour and let the "Sunlight" Soap do its work.

NEXT.—After soaking the full time rub the clothes lightly out on a wash board, and the dirt will drop out; turn the garment inside out to get at the seams, but don't use any more soap; don't scald or boil a single piece, and don't wash through two suds. If the water gets too dirty, pour a little out and add fresh. If a streak is hard to wash, rub some more soap on it, and throw the piece back into the suds for a few minutes.

LASTLY COMES THE RINSING, which is to be done in lukewarm water, taking special care to get all the dirty suds away, then wring out and hang up to dry.

For Woolens and Flannels proceed as follows:—Shake the articles free from dust. Cut a tablet of SUNLIGHT SOAP into shavings, pour into a gallon of boiling water and whisk into a lather. When just lukewarm, work articles in the lather without rubbing. Squeeze out dirty water without twisting and rinse thoroughly in two relays of lukewarm water. Squeeze out water without twisting and hang in the open air.

The most delicate colors may be safely washed in the "Sunlight" way.

SAVE THIS IT IS VALUABLE PREMIUM COUPON FOR SUNLIGHT SOAP PREMIUMS

$5,000 REWARD will be paid to any person who proves that Sunlight Soap contains any injurious chemicals or any form of adulteration.

They Scorned Doctors.

The learned ladies in olden times took great comfort and pride in their skill in medicine. With true professional scorn they looked down upon the regular doctors as upon quacks. "For God's sake beware what medicines ye take of any fyssissyans of London. I shall never trust to them because of your father and my uncle, whose souls God assoil." So wrote a lady in conscious pride. She knew she could have saved the lives of her unfortunate relatives if she had only had a chance to dose them with some of her wonderful concoctions or to have put upon them some such plasters as those for which Dame Margery Paston was famous. Her husband sent for one of her plasters for the king's attorney, James Hobarst, who was suffering with an ache in his knee, and to whom Sir John Paston felt himself sentimentally indebted. "He is the man who brought you and me together," he wrote to Margery, "and I had leaver than £40 that ye could with your plaster part him and his pain."

Grease In Wool Fabrics.

Few persons realize when they put on woolen garments what a large amount of animal fats wool contains, for to the touch woolens are not greasy. In the big clothing shops where men's garments are cut, however, the floors around the tables where electric knives clip out the odd shaped pieces soon become as slippery as though they were waxed for a dance.

"Why do you wax the floors—to keep the fabrics clean?" is a common query from visitors.

But the clothing cutters explain that this accumulation of grease comes from the friction of wool cloth over the wood. The wood's pores soon become so charged with it that they feel greasy to the touch, and even the harder woods in the cutting tables absorb from the woolen fibers so much of the animal fat that to all appearances they might be in steady use in the rendering department of an abattoir.

There is nothing more pleasing than praise if it is honest and you believe you have earned it.

There is a Danish proverb which runs, "No man is so tall that he need ever stretch; and none so small that he need never stoop." It might be added that no one is so rich that he need not read the advertisements.

No Sleep For The Kidneys.
Old people are especially liable to Kidney and Bladder Irritation. The organs are weakened by age. This starts up inflammation—blood is not properly purified as it goes to the kidneys—and the bladder is unable to retain the urine properly. There is a constant desire to urinate day and night—and sound, restful sleep is unknown.

BUYING WIDOWS.

Matrimonial Trafficking In the Days of Chivalry.

"Of all the matrimonial trafficking in the age of chivalry the ways of widows," says a writer in an English magazine, "are at once the boldest and most comprehensive. As a rule their methods seldom resort to blandishments. It is remarkable when tenderness is an item in their bargain. Speed was their maxim. It was one that King John honored, for he profited by it. Yet one of the rarest exceptions in the way of delicacy to these commercial negotiations has evidently been prompted by a widow who had quite an exceptional lover. In 1206 William de Landa, either one of the most famous of the crusaders or his son, offers 50 marks and a palfrey for having to wife Joan, who was the wife of Thomas d'Arescy, 'if he may be pleasing to the said Joan.' The sheriff is instructed to ascertain the widow's wishes, 'and if the said Joan shall be pleased to have him for a husband then the sheriff shall cause William to have seizin of Joan and her land,' both of which he obtained in the name of gentle love and the faith of a true soldier. It is fitting that the name of one of the men who led the assault of Acre should be preserved in such a record as the above. He was in truth a very perfect knight.

"One of the most rampageous of the northern English borderers manifested the like delicacy. Young Walter de Umfraville, son of Gilbert, had left a widow, Emma, presumably in the very blush of her charms. Peter de Vaux had fallen at her feet, but he declined to obtain her in border fashion, and this fact is the earnest pledge of the chivalry of his love. If he would not steal her he was bound to buy her, and coin with the De Vaux was always a scarcity. So he offered the King 5 palfreys for her 'if she wished it,' and with what would read as a graceful acknowledgment of the borderer's pure chivalry John absolutely drops the commercial from his reply and simply orders Robert Fitz Roger, the sheriff, 'to permit it to be done.'"

Balfour's Bete Noir.

Great Britain's House of Lords can scarcely be said to have gained, in an ornamental sense, through the elevation of the Rt. Hon. George Shaw Lefevre to the peerage on the occasion of the official celebration of the King's birthday, writes the Marquise de Fontenoy. For he trims his grizzly beard as to invariably convey the impression that he has forgotten to shave, and when he attempts to smile the contortions of his face are almost demoniacal. His voice is harsh, his utterance thick, and he interjects gasps and grunts between every few words. At one memorable political meeting somebody yelled out to him, "Speak up." This quite discomposed him. The whole thread of his ideas was broken, and he could only stammer out, "Eh? Eh? What? What?"

"Speak up, you slimy old toad," the voice retorted from the back of the hall, and the audience burst into peal after peal of laughter, owing to the manner in which Shaw Lefevre resembles a frog.

He used to be the particular bete noir of Arthur Balfour, and when the latter was Irish Secretary was wont to manifest a good deal of apprehension lest he should be arrested while speaking at political meetings in the proclaimed districts of Ireland. Balfour used to be chaffed a great deal about the matter, and when asked why he had not clapped Lefevre into jail for thus defying the law of the hour he used to reply that Shaw Lefevre was afraid.

"Afraid of what? Plank beds and prison fare?"

"No," retorted Arthur Balfour, "not of prison life but of the preliminary bath," referring to the badly groomed and untidy appearance of the statesman in question. And yet Arthur Balfour is the mildest and most gentle mannered of men. But he does not like Shaw Lefevre. The latter was reared at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge, and is the husband of a most charming woman, daughter of the third Earl of Ducie.

White Eggs and Nests.

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace once endeavored to show that the birds which lay white eggs deposit them in holes in order to conceal them, and he invented explanations for certain exceptions to this rule. But it is now believed that the interpretation is quite otherwise—that certain birds lay white eggs because they nest in holes and not that they lay white eggs. Colored eggs would become practically invisible in these dark places and would be in jeopardy of being overrun by the bird when entering the nest and broken or would, when the space was large enough, be in danger of rolling away from the sitting bird and so fail to obtain incubation. By their whiteness such faint rays of light as gain admittance to the nest are reflected by the white shell, and consequently no eggs escape the attention of the sitting bird.

English Consumption of Meat.

Last year there were 438,780 tons of beef, mutton and lamb imported into the United Kingdom, being an increase of about 75,000 tons as compared with 1904. There were big increases in Argentine frozen beef, in Australian and Argentine mutton and in Australian lamb. The Argentine meat companies, which are financed almost entirely with British capital, succeeded in wresting a considerable proportion of the chilled beef trade from the United States. While 8,372 tons less of North American chilled beef arrived in the United Kingdom last year than in 1904, there was an increase of 25,328 tons of imported chilled beef from the Argentine Republic.

Great Britain absorbs about 85 per cent. of the world's total output in chilled and frozen meat.

Artists' Blunders.

The recent criticism of The Tailor and Cutter regarding the seams and buttons in a portrait of Lord Roberts and the rural criticism of the ox driver in a picture in the Iowa capitol recall the expert objection to Turner's painting of a locomotive. A correspondent of a London paper who saw the picture in 1845 tells us how a friend took him to see it, pointing out its beauties. But the railway expert cried at once, "Why, the train is running on the wrong track!"

WATCH WORK OF CRIMPS.

Operations of Men Who Abduct Able-Bodied Seamen—Will Be Subject to Surveillance on the Pacific Coast.

The Pacific coast, the last home of the shanghaier and the crimp in the new world, is determined to remove that reproach. The State of Washington has given the blood-money men of Seattle and Puget Sound notice that the stringent laws will be enforced, and now the Canadian Government has appointed Mr. Alexander Henderson, judge of the County Court of Vancouver, a special commissioner to inquire into all the transactions of the shipping office here.

The newspapers have told of late such terrible stories of men being enticed to drink, then, as often as not, doped and placed aboard windjammers, that the Marine and Fisheries Department at Ottawa has taken official cognizance of the complaints. The shanghaiing of an old man of 68 named Keating and the mysterious disappearance of a fifteen-year-old boy called Chisholm who ran away to sea, have been instrumental in deciding the Government to appoint the commission.

It is impossible to say just how many men have been made drunk in waterfront hotels and shipped on board sailing vessels in an unconscious condition, but that a number of unfortunates have been treated this way in the last few years is absolutely certain. Of course, it is unlawful for the shipping office to allow men to be signed on when they are in a state of intoxication, and it will be the duty of the commissioner to find out if the local officials were aware that men whom they allowed to be placed on ships were in an irresponsible condition.

Two men shipped as sailors, one at Vancouver and the other in New Westminster, have been released recently after Police Court inquiries, both of whom claimed that they had been made intoxicated by "runners" and then shipped as able-bodied seamen. The Dominion Government is determined that this sort of thing shall be done away with. The shipping master says he courts the fullest investigation.

Behind the running away to sea of James Chisholm, aged fifteen years, his capture and his escape, is a charge that a boarding-house-keeper of Puget Sound who has received unenviable notoriety of late, shipped the boy and was instrumental in his eluding the police. The American, of course, wanted the blood-money of $35 which is paid for every man or boy shipped on a vessel by him.

The boy mysteriously disappeared from here several days ago, and it was discovered that he had been shipped through the American on the sailing vessel, The Pass of Leny. The lad was taken to Esquimalt by this man's agents and put aboard the ship in the Royal Roads. The police sent word to the captain to return him to his parents. The boarding-house master's launch was making a run from the ship and Chisholm was brought in, but the Puget Sound man alleges he slipped ashore and disappeared. The lad has not yet been recaptured, and the police look upon the story as being decidedly fishy.

It is possible a charge of abduction may be brought. The shipping act makes it clear that anyone who gets a boy to ship without the consent of his parents is guilty of this offence.

British Postmaster-General's Problem.

In the annual report for the year ending March 31, the British Postmaster-General says the question of reduction of postage charged for magazines, periodicals and newspapers sent from the United Kingdom to Canada is engaging his attention. "Although there are obvious objections to making in the case of Canada arrangements more favorable than can be granted to periodicals, etc., passing within the United Kingdom itself, or not to other colonies, I recognize that in consequence of the geographical situation of the Dominion the circumstances are exceptional, and I am endeavoring to concert some plan which will meet the end in view without unduly burdening the exchequer."

Following is an estimate of the weight of letters and postcards other than articles exchanged by the United Kingdom with Canada and Newfoundland despatched from the United Kingdom: Letters and postcards weighed 248,000 pounds; circulars, book packets, newspapers, 1,891,000 pounds. Destined for the United Kingdom, 18,700 pounds letters, 616,000 pounds books and papers; number of parcels despatched to Canada was 172,609; received, 76,492. The amount of money order transactions between the United Kingdom and British America were: Issued in the United Kingdom, £196,685; issued in British America, £545,584.

A Good Name For a Town.

We "effete Easterners" know, of course, of the spirit of "hustle" which animates the West, and there are few people down here who have not been told strange tales of the marvelous growth of a "town" after its location. Warman, on the Canadian Northern, is an instance which comes to mind at the moment. One day it was just prairie; next day there were a dozen stores, numerous tents, and work had begun on a school and a church. But it has remained for one little colony of Michiganders, who have settled in Alberta, to give to their town a name which is characteristic of Canada's New West. They have called their town HURRY, and that they are true to their name is shown in the fact that whereas a year ago the site of the town was just rolling prairie, it now has stores, churches, schools and practically all the comforts of civilization. Hurry is located twenty-five miles south of Vegreville, Alberta. Add it to the names in your Gazetteer, for it will be heard of again.

The Cat Came Back.

Mr. Frank Lacey, of Sprague, Manitoba, found his young chickens being killed off in a wholesale manner, and jumping to conclusions, decided that "it was the cat." And so Pussy was shipped off to a friend at Rainy River, 60 miles distant. But even after Pussy's departure, the killing of the chickens continued; a careful watch was kept; the culprit was found to be a large hawk; and it was promptly killed. Then came the coincidence. The very morning her innocence had been proven in walked Miss Pussy, weary and dusty after her tramp, but "still in the ring."

THE REAL VALUE.

How All Literature Is Contained In a Few Great Books.

Young people must every now and then hear it said or see it written that all the real value in literature can be put upon a small shelf—that is to say, the really important part of all that is written is contained in a very few good books, all the rest being either unimportant or different ways of saying the same things that have been said before. The statement, of course, is not true if it be taken literally. There are certainly many hundreds, perhaps thousands, of books that contain original thoughts or experiences that are truly valuable; but, generally speaking, the best part of all that has been written is to be found in a few volumes. To understand how this is possible we must remember that nearly all rules are the same as other and simpler rules. In arithmetic, for example, the whole science consists of only four simple ways of treating numbers. We can add, subtract, multiply and divide, and that is all we can do to numbers. The rest of the book is only the working out of these four rules; thus all of the arithmetic could easily be put into a little page that one could carry in the vest pocket.

All behavior, all right living, is also set forth in a few simple laws. These illustrations will show what is meant by saying that all literature is contained in a few great books. The Bible and the works of a few famous poets and essayists contain all human wisdom, and these are within the reach of every purse.

THE WARLIKE MOROS.

They Prize Their Weapons and Would Rather Fight Than Eat.

An inordinate military conceit is a dominant quality of the Moro. To him there is but one measure of defeat—to wit, annihilation. If beaten, he expects nothing less; if he meets less, he has saved the day, perhaps won a victory. They are all of one profession—arms. As children their first toys are wooden arms, their first instruction the play of the sword and the spear. Whatever else as men they may be—priest, farmer, robber, pirate, merchant, lawyer—they are always, first, soldiers.

For a young man to lose his creese means to lose his right to marry, and it is the desire of all to die creese in hand. In fear of loss they sleep on these precious arms or with them tied to the body. For the same reason their cannon are kept lashed to timbers in their houses.

Firearms, indeed, are their main danger with civilized people. If they see the opportunity thereby to secure such arms, Moros can never resist the temptation to rob and murder. To get them they will risk all, lose all and never whimper. To them without the best arms death were preferable.—Major R. L. Ballard in Metropolitan.

The Inns of Old England.

Efforts were continually being made in England to keep down the number of inns. In the reign of Edward I. there were only three in the whole of London. Even in 1552 no more than forty were legally permitted in the metropolis, now spreading out its boundaries on every side. York might have eight, Norwich, Exeter and Cambridge four, Bristol six and Oxford three. These regulations must have been set at naught in a very wholesale manner, for half a century later there were 400 "houses of call" in that part of London known as the City and no fewer than twenty-four clustered round Covent Garden. In mediaeval Oxford it was ruled that no "victualer" was eligible for the office of mayor, and this term included an innkeeper.

Thackeray and Dickens.

This is the way George Henry Lewes once characterized Thackeray and Dickens in the way of service to a friend: Dickens, he said, would not give you a farthing of money, but he would take no end of trouble for you. He would spend a whole day, for instance, in looking for the most suitable lodgings for you and would spare himself neither time nor fatigue. Thackeray would take two hours' grumbling indecision and hesitation in writing a two line testimonial, but he would put his hand into his pocket and give you a handful of gold and bank notes if you wanted them.

Bowling.

Bowling is one of our games that originated in the middle ages. The exact date of its introduction is obscure, but it has been clearly traced to the thirteenth century. The first bowling greens were made in England. In bad weather these could not be used to advantage, and this led to the construction of covered bowling alleys.

Hard Luck.

Caller—I have here several bills which are long overdue. Harduppe (desperately)—I am sorry to say that our cashier is out today. Caller—Oh, well, it doesn't make much difference. I'll call and pay them at some future date. Good day, sir.

His Best Bedroom.

An American physician says that while in England he saw a vaulted tomb in a London cemetery which had the following inscription engraved on the door:

Dr. John Gardner's Last and Best Bedroom.

The Lid Off.

Johnnie—Say, pa, who was Pandora? Johnnie's Pa—Pandora, my son, was a little girl who started a lot of trouble because she didn't keep the lid down.

There is certainly something of exquisite kindness and thoughtful benevolence in that rarest of gifts, fine breeding.—Bulwer.

THE SHEPHERD BOY'S SONG.

He that is down need fear no fall,
He that is low no pride;
He that is humble ever shall
Have God to be his guide.

I am content with what I have,
Little be it or much;
And, Lord, contentment still I crave,
Because thou savest such.

Fullness to such a burden is
That go on pilgrimage;
Here little, and hereafter bliss,
Is best from age to age.
—John Bunyan.

MIXED THEIR METAPHORS.

Amusing Blunders Made by Members of British Parliament.

Frequenters of the House, an authority writes to The Daily Mail, have for a long time remarked a woful depreciation in the art of Parliamentary speaking. Notable exceptions are Mr. Balfour, Mr. Chamberlain, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Mr. Asquith, Mr. John Redmond and Mr. T. Healy; the last named, during an Irish land debate last session, delivered one of the finest speeches it has been my pleasure to hear.

Curious enough is the fact that probably the best grammar and the most lucid and finished sentences come from the Labor side in the example set by Mr. Keir Hardie. Only an unfortunate but no doubt conquerable jerkiness of delivery prevents the Labor leader from being numbered in the front rank of modern Parliamentary orators.

The mixed metaphor gives many unsuspecting members a fall. Mr. Asquith not long ago amused the House with the phrase: "Our tongues are tied, our hands are fettered, and we are really beating the air to no purpose.

Mr. John Burns improved on this by declaring, in reference to the Children's Employment Bill, "I will now repeat what I was about to say when the honorable member interrupted me." Then there was the wealthy manufacturer member who, dealing with the legal position of trade unions, asseverated that "the interests of the employers and employed are the same nine times out of ten—nay, I will go further, and say ninety-nine times out of ten."

A member of the present Opposition, observing signs of dissent from a Liberal, exclaimed: "Ah, the honorable member opposite may shake his head, but he cannot shake mine." "Sir," said Mr. Walter Long on education matters, "we are told that by this legislation the heart of the country will be shaken to its foundations."

The House of Commons is too hurried, too strenuous, too utilitarian in these times to encourage the ornamental in oratory. Moreover, every member in the chamber appears anxious to have his say. Up to the present some 400 legislators out of 670 have delivered speeches during the session. These are regarded as the principal causes of the decadence of Parliamentary style.

Mr. Charles Seymour, the elocutionist, who coaches many Parliamentary candidates and before whom not a few members rehearse the speeches they hope to deliver before the House, pronounced the suggestion of a class for politicians impossible.

"Members who honor me with their patronage," he said, "creeps stealthily into my studio. They would not have their mission known under any circumstances. It is not shame; it is shyness."

"Division" in Parliament.

When a division is called a bell rings to enable all M. P.'s to collect from the smoking room, the library, etc. Then the outer door is closed, and the Speaker puts the question. There is a shout of "Aye!" and of "No!" on which he declares that either the one or the other "has it." If this be challenged he says, "The 'ayes' to the right, the 'noes' to the left." This means that the "ayes" and the "noes" go into respective lobbies.

This takes some time, for they go leisurely. When at length they are both within their respective pens all the doors leading to them are closed, and after a minute or two the one door through which the prisoners in each lobby are to make their exit is opened. Before reaching the exit they have to pass on either side of a desk at which two clerks sit and check off on a printed list of members those who vote. After this they pass in single file through the exit door, which is a few yards from this desk. Just outside this exit door stand two tellers, one representing the "ayes" and one the "noes." Their business is to call aloud one, two, three, four, and so on, as the members pass. Consequently for each division four tellers are necessary, two for the "aye" lobby and two for the "no" lobby.—London Truth.

Death of a Balaclava Captain.

Sir William Gordon, Baronet, of Earlston, Kircudbright, died a few days ago. He led the left squadron of the 17th Lancers in the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava. He received four sabre wounds, and was dismounted. He succeeded, however, in reaching the British lines, and was promoted captain next day. He also served with the 17th Lancers in the Indian Mutiny, when Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood was one of his subalterns. Sir William Gordon retired from the army in 1864, being then in command of his regiment. He had the British, French, and Turkish decorations for the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny medal. Sir William was 76 years of age at the time of his death.

An Old Chartist's Death.

Mr. W. E. Adams, late editor of the Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, died at Madeira recently from asthma. Born at Cheltenham in 1832, he became an ardent Chartist, with intimate association with Charles Bradlaugh, George Jacob Holyoake, Julius Harney, Joseph Cowen and others. His "Caractacus" letter in Bradlaugh's paper, The National Reformer, attracted Mr. Cowen's attention, and he was given an appointment on the Newcastle Chronicle. For years he was the editor of The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, and was the author of several publications.

COURAGE IN DIFFICULTIES.

Stories Showing How Two Persons Faced Great Peril—How a Woman Saved the Situation.

Women display courage in their own incomparable fashion. Typical of woman's method of encountering danger is the story of the woman who observed as she was concluding her toilet for the night the presence of a burglar under her bed. Without letting the man know that she had perceived him, this woman quietly put on her dressing gown and knelt down at the bedside to say her prayers. She prayed aloud. She made her own personal intercessions to heaven and then prayed for all poor sinners living in the darkness of estrangement from God, "particularly this unhappy man lying under my bed, meditating the wickedness of stealing and perhaps of murder." This woman saved the situation.

I cannot imagine a worse situation than that of a certain steeplejack who found himself one day at the top of a church steeple with a madman grinning into his eyes. The madman was his mate. Both men had been at work on this steeple for many days and had talked together while they hung in the saddles with the utmost accord, but on this particular day one of the men looked up to see madness in the eyes of his companion. In that moment he was alone with danger. No shout could avail. From the street below he looked like a spider snoozing in its web. The roofs and chimneys of the houses seemed to be level with the ground. High up in the loneliness of the empty air he was alone with a madman.

The man kept his wits about him, and addressed some cheerful remark to his mate. The madman only grinned. The man bade him look alive, that they might the sooner get below and enjoy themselves. The madman chuckled, and announced that they would get below in double quick time, for that he was going to jump from the steeple with his friend in his arms.

The other laughed as if at a good jest, and turned to his work. Then he began pushing with his feet against the steeple to get a swing into his saddle; he meant to grab the madman and hold him till help came. But the madman was also swinging his saddle, and before the sane man realized his danger the madman's fingers were closing round his throat.

There they swung in the dizzy air, high over the unconscious city. By something of a miracle the man found his hand clutching at his tool box as he swung back. His hands closed on a wrench. He grabbed it, made an upward thrust with his strangled body, and caught the madman a jangling blow across the side of his head. Then he clutched the fellow's body to save it from falling and, after a moment's breathing, quietly lowered himself and his unconscious mate to the ground below.—Strand Magazine.

EXIT PLUG HATS.

England's Social World Appears to Be Tired of Them.

At every race meeting, morning or afternoon ceremony, or function of business or pleasure this year the doom of the frock coat and top-hat has been more and more emphatically denounced. The social world is tired of them.

At Epsom during race week, even the presence of the King did not prevent a third of the visitors in the boxes, stalls, and club stands from appearing in comfortable grey suits and "bowlers" on Thursday and Friday. At Eton 4th of June celebration, nearly half the male visitors had discarded black clothes and top-hats, and appeared in grey or blue summer country cloths which five years ago would have caused a boy to "cut" his father or his best friend. To-day every man is nervously asking his friend what will happen at Ascot. Will lawless, licentious freedom invade this innermost adytum, this sanctum sanctorum, of fashion?

"The question could not exist," said an arbiter of male costumes, "in an ordinary year; but this year unconventional visitors will take courage from the absence of the state procession, and will dare anything. I prophecy that on Tuesday and Thursday top-hats will be in a bare majority, and on Wednesday and Friday in a considerable minority."

Top-hats, as every visitor will remember, were not universal at the Windsor Castle garden party last year; they have been in a hopeless minority on the club lawns of Kempton and Sandown this year, and it seems to be a very open question whether in the future they will often be seen outside the streets and parks of London.

Never Lost a Day's Work.

William Pierce, who lives in High Wycombe, was born on Jan. 29, 1823. He is now a pensioner, and throughout his life he never lost a day's work. He was in one service for seventeen years and in another for fifty-one years. He had four brothers and four sisters. Two of his brothers were christened Joseph and the other two Edmund, and two of his sisters had the name of Ann. A sister, a brother, a brother-in-law, a niece, and a nephew were married three times.

A Restaurant Acquaintance.

"When you go to New Zealand, I wish you would enquire after my great-grand-father, Jeremiah Thompson." "Certainly," said the traveler, and wherever he went he asked for news of the ancestor, but without avail, according to The Dundee Advertiser. One day he was introduced to a fine old Maori of advanced age. "Did you ever meet with an Englishman named Jeremiah Thompson?" he asked. A smile passed over the Maori's face. "Meet him?" he repeated, "Why, I ate him!"

£50,000 For Presbyterians.

Sir William Dunn, Bart., has given £50,000 to the Presbyterian Church of England. He sat as a Liberal in the last Parliament for Paisley, his native town. He is senior partner in the banking and mercantile firm of William Dunn & Co., of London and South Africa. He owns an estate at Lakenheath, Suffolk, while his town residence is in Phillimore Gardens, Kensington. Sir William was created a baronet in 1895.

EYE-STRAIN, CONTINUED.

The subject of Eye-Strain, including the need of wearing glasses, has for some years been rapidly forcing itself into prominence and has assumed an importance far beyond expectation. It is in no sense a "fashion" or "fad," though there are many such in medicine. The eyes are, and have been in the past, the unsuspected cause of a great variety of nervous disturbances that were never understood and never satisfactorily explained. Modern methods of study, which have lately accomplished such wonders in all branches of science, when applied to the eye have brought order and truth out of what had been a tangle of theory, supposition and uncertainty. The eye has always been studied simply as a part of the body, under physiology; it needed to be studied as an optical instrument, under optics, a branch of science in which our knowledge is mathematically accurate. It is found to be an actual fact that eye-strain is often the principal factor producing nervous debility hysteria, melancholia, vertigo, nausea, insomnia, nervous dyspepsia, palpitation, general nervousness, irritability, faintness, weariness, headaches, constipation, "brain fag," and dozens of other annoying conditions. We remove the cause of all these with the proper glasses.

It Was "Twenty-Three" For Mr. Fred Renfrew.

MAN WANTED FOR HOUSEBREAKING IN TORONTO 'SKIDOOED' FROM COUNTY JAIL THIS MORNING.

A few weeks ago Fred Renfrew, who is well known about this city, was arrested, on a charge of stealing a lady's gold watch, some liquors and cigars from the Victoria Hotel, the same being the property of Mr. and Mrs. Brain. For this offence he was tried before Judge Fraleck, pleaded guilty and received a sentence of two months in jail.

During the last few days Renfrew had been doing some work about the jail premises, and this morning, between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock he was working about the grounds, when, seizing the opportunity, he made good his escape.

He was missed soon after he disappeared, but, although officials and police officers were detailed to find, if possible, the fugitive, up to the present time their efforts have proved futile.

Renfrew knows the city and vicinity well, and would no doubt make good his escape.

RENFREW'S REASON.

In a few days Renfrew would have completed his term in the jail here, but he was wanted in Toronto for a rather serious charge, namely, housebreaking. This probably explains why he considered it would be a wise move to get away if the opportunity presented itself, which it evidently did.

The escaped prisoner had been in jail here before and had also served terms in other penal institutions. He is a married man whose wife and family reside in this city.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"RED FEATHER" TO-NIGHT.

In writing for "Red Feather," Reginald DeKoven's efforts must have been guided by the same touch of genius that inspired the splendid music of "Robin Hood." The score of "Red Feather" is expressive, containing nerve and spirit and no lack of brightness, brilliancy, color and sparkle. Some of the more important of the numbers are "Conspiritors," "The Little Milliner," "Song of the Guard," "Prince of Good Fellows," "Lessons in Verse," "To Call Thee Mine," "The Humorous Ghost," "The Merry Cavalier," "The Highborn Rooster," "A Madrigal," "The Rose and the Breeze," and "The Garden of Dreams." To give proper interpretation to the music Manager Jos. M. Gaites supplies a special orchestra. "Red Feather" will be presented at the Carman to-night.

CLEVER COMEDY ON FRIDAY.

Now that we are to have "A Trip to the Highlands," which comes to the Carman on Friday, it will be worth while for those desiring to hear this musical play to secure their tickets in advance. The sterling worth of this little play must be great, for it awakens enthusiasm from all classes of amusement seekers. The appearance here of Mr. Spottiswoode Aitken, the clever Scotch humorist in connection with "A Trip to the Highlands" has aroused more than ordinary interest, and a crowded house is assured. Mr. Aitkin's monologues during the first and second acts are said to be as clever as ever seen on a stage. The performance throughout is said to reach to a high artistic level and one which pleases all classes of people.

Mr. Robt. McMichael Dead.

Mr. Robert McMichael, aged 85 years, died this morning at the family residence, West Bridge St. Deceased was born in the County of Kavanagh, Ireland. He came to this country when a young man and for over 60 years resided in Thurlow township. He was a carpenter and builder by occupation. Deceased had lived in Belleville 11 years. He was a member of the Methodist Church and in politics was a Conservative. A grown-up family of four sons and four daughters survive.

Y.M.C.A. Work Will Be Continued Here

A well-attended and representative meeting of those interested in Y.M.C.A. work in this city was held in the rooms last night. One of the provincial board was present, and the proceedings were such as to be very gratifying to those who were desirous of seeing the work continue in Belleville. The consensus of opinion among those present was that the work should go on, and the people who talked that way backed up their opinions with liberal subscriptions. It was resolved to open the rooms again before long. The directors have their eyes on a young gentleman whose services as secretary they believe they can secure, and who would be well fitted for the work in Belleville. To-day some of the directors were interviewing different citizens in regard to subscriptions, with, we are told, gratifying success.

Carpenters' Union Formed Last Night.

Mr. John Tweed, organizer of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union of Canada, was in the city last night, and formed a union of the above workers in this city. London Bribery Cases Show Up Witnesses Who Are Neither Poor Nor Disreputable—Some Dockages.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The London bye-election bribery case was continued yesterday in spite of vigorous protests from Mr. Robinette as to the magistrate's jurisdiction. A warrant was issued for Thomas Lewis, the London hotelkeeper, who is wanted as a witness for the crown, as most of the bribery occurred at his place.

It will soon be a question not who did, but who didn't, get $10 for voting for Hyman. In London they seem to have had the habit. Man after man was called and each in his own way told the story.

Col. Denison was inclined to be jocose. Indeed, serious as the matter is, the trial is illumined by flashes of humor. None of the witnesses seemed to think there was anything strange or out of the way in selling a vote.

A Little Money Useful.

"I thought a little money would be useful just then," explained Charles Forward, a little white-headed white-whiskered old man, who turned his back on the lobby and told his story in a cozy way to the court.

"Yes, a little money comes in very handy, at times," the colonel assented.

"The very words that I used, your worship," replied the witness, quite delighted.

But there was a fly in his ointment. Collins had promised him ten, but he only delivered $9. There was a commission. Collins had said of ten per cent. Indeed the rake-off seems to have been general. Fifty cents or a dollar was held out in every case.

Bribed Though Respectable.

As a rule the witnesses were neither poor nor disreputable; they were fairly respectable people. All of them tried to shield every one whom they could, and as a rule only Jeremiah Collins, Serviss and Hardy were implicated. One or two witnesses mentioned Mulloy. Some witnesses claimed that the money did not influence their votes, and they saw no harm in taking it.

Who They Are: What They Got.

George S. McCoy swore he got $10, less $2.50 he owed Jerry Collins.

George H. Bowyer got $10 from a man in a buggy when it was so dark that he couldn't distinguish the man.

Charles Forward got his $10, less $1 commission.

John Arder received his $10, but was docked 50 cents.

William Iler was to have received $10, but he wouldn't take the oath and so lost the money.

Henry Donahue got his $10, less 50 cents commission.

John W. McKay got his $10 from his father. It was promised him by Collins.

Loaned Collins $90.

James McDonald said Collins got $90 from him for election expenses. He got $45 of it back. He was told to go to London and get his bankbook and cheques.

James Mallock would not admit he paid anything out for election expenses, except the janitor, so Mr. DuVernet said: "I want you to go back to London and bring your bankbooks, cheques, and other papers connected with this election, and bring them here to-morrow."

Nicholas Kargus was to have got $10 promised by Collins, but "I have it coming to me," said he.

The case goes on this morning.

MURDERED IN RUSSIA.

CONTRADICTS HEPBURN

Butler Says Hepburn Offered Money to Settle Hotel Case.

Magistrate Convicts Butler of Keeping a Disorderly House and Reserves Judgment—Butler Exonerates David Marshall From Having Anything to Do With Bringing Charge—East Elgin Inspector Andrews Makes Denial.

Aylmer, Oct. 3.—The Orwell hotel case, out of which came the retirement of W. F. Hepburn, the Liberal candidate in East Elgin, was concluded yesterday afternoon.

Magistrate Hunt convicted Proprietor Butler on the charge of keeping a disorderly house on Aug. 2, but reserved sentence until Tuesday, when argument will be heard as to whether it is a second or a first offence, Butler having previously been convicted on the charge of having the blinds drawn on barroom windows.

When the case was resumed yesterday morning, E. C. Sanders of St. Thomas appeared for Mr. Butler. Butler in his evidence, and Mr. Hepburn, both exonerate David Marshall from having anything to do with bringing up this charge.

Contradicts Hepburn.

David Butler was recalled and stated that W. F. Hepburn was called Monday contrary to his (Butler's) desire. The evidence given by Hepburn was not true. He (Hepburn) had said he did not know the woman, Mrs. Gilroy. In defendant's house, Hepburn had made him acquainted with the woman Gilroy. Hepburn had asked him to bring three drinks upstairs. The drinks were for Hepburn and the two women.

To the magistrate Butler said he had taken the bottle of whiskey and glasses to the parlor just before closing time on Hepburn's order. When he was in the parlor Mrs. Stinger, Mrs. Gilroy, and Mrs. Stinger's little boy, were present.

Witness said that Hepburn's statement in this evidence Monday, that he did not see anyone between the time he went to bed and when he arose in the morning, was not true. Witness went after midnight at the call of Hepburn, to serve drinks, and found him and the woman Gilroy together. He (Butler) said: "This is pretty good," or something like that, and Hepburn said: "Dave, hitch up the horse and I will take her away." He did not know anything wrong of the women.

Hepburn Offered Money.

Butler said Hepburn had yesterday sworn that he (Butler) demanded money to settle this thing. That was not true. The fact was Hepburn had proposed to settle the thing. He was the man who brought the case on. He (Butler) had not asked for money from anybody. Hepburn, after witness had got into trouble, had offered to pay money to have the matter settled.

To Mr. Cameron, Butler said he had never said to Hepburn that he could get $1,000 from the Conservatives, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Boughner, or any person else. The statement was false, absolutely unfounded.

Butler was questioned as to what was said in reference to Hepburn staying with the other woman after he came back that morning. Butler said Hepburn told him about it, and what he wrote on the paper shown yesterday in that regard was based on what Hepburn said. Butler denied what Hepburn said in reference to the interviews with Boughner. Hepburn talked to Boughner on the night mentioned, and witness did not hear what was said.

No Money Offered.

Mahlon Boughner, recalled, said Hepburn and Butler called to see him. Hepburn wanted him to keep the matter of his staying at Butler's house with Mrs. Gilroy quiet. The statement that money had been offered him by Hepburn, Marshall or anyone else was false.

William Andrews, license inspector for East Elgin, said the charges that he had entered into a proposition to obtain money from Hepburn or anyone else in connection with this charge was false in every particular. He did not know of any such conspiracy and any statement of that kind was absolutely false. Mr. Andrews said he had tried to find the woman Gilroy, also Mrs. Stinger; he had issued subpoenas but could not find any trace of them.

To Mr. Sanders he said he had no personal acquaintance with the women in question; he had heard of one Mrs. Gilroy, and the reports were not favorable as to her character. Her general reputation was bad. He did not know until after the charge was laid that the woman in this case was the same woman.

The magistrate said this was a remarkable case. He had been anxious to find out who was lying, but had not been very successful, so far as he could see.

Contest in North Bruce.

Tara, Oct. 3.—At the adjourned convention of the North Bruce Conservative Association yesterday, Abraham McLelland of Hervic, Kincardine Township, was the unanimous choice of the delegates.

Mr. McLelland has accepted the nomination and enters into the contest with the full support and confidence of the party.

Mr. McLelland is a popular farmer and drover.

Three Run in North Renfrew.

Pembroke, Oct. 3.—Thomas Murray, Liberal; G. V. White, Conservative, and Dr. McKay, Liberal, were nominated here yesterday for the north riding of Renfrew bye-election to fill the vacancy caused in the House of Commons through the death of the late Hon. Peter White.

Four Horses Burned.

Thamesville, Oct. 3.—Fire destroyed over half the cattle sheds on the east Kent Exhibition grounds last night. Four very valuable horses, owned by Eli Jillings and Ed. Brien of Ridgetown, were burned. A large number of horses, cattle, wagons were got out.

A Reasonable Plea For the Stomach.

IF YOUR STOMACH IS LACKING IN DIGESTIVE POWER, WHY NOT HELP THE STOMACH DO ITS WORK—ESPECIALLY WHEN IT COSTS NOTHING TO TRY?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach? Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in your digestive apparatus.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected 40 critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives.

Chemical Laboratory. Telegraphic address, "Diffindo," London. Telephone No. 11029 Central. 20 Cullum St., Fenchurch St., E.C.

London, 9th Aug., 1905.

I have analyzed most carefully a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (which I bought myself at a city chemist's shop for the purpose), manufactured by the F. A. Stuart Co., Temple Chambers, London, E.C., and have to report that I cannot find any trace of vegetable or mineral poisons. Knowing the ingredients of the tablets, I am of opinion that they are admirably adaptable for the purpose for which they are intended.

(Signed) JOHN R. BROOKE,
F.I.C., F.C.S.

There is no secret in the preparation of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Their composition is commonly known among physicians, as is shown by the recommendations of 40,000 licensed physicians in the United States and Canada. They are the most popular of all remedies for indigestion, dyspepsia, water brash, insomnia, loss of appetite, melancholia, constipation, dysentery and kindred diseases originating from improper dissolution and assimilation of foods, because they are thoroughly reliable and harmless to man or child.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are at once a safe and a powerful remedy, one grain of these tablets being strong enough (by test) to digest 3,000 grains of steak, eggs and other foods. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food for you when your stomach can't.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package or send to us direct for a free trial sample package and you will be surprised at the result. F. A. Stuart Co., 64 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

REBELS ASSIST TAFT.

Ex-President Palma Departs From the Scene of His Brief But Turbulent Regime—Business Improves.

Havana, Oct. 3.—It is believed that all the revolutionists about Havana will have been peacefully dispersed in three days. Generals Guerra and Del Castillo are actively co-operating to this end.

Together with Guzman, the commander-in-chief of the rebels in Santa Clara Province, they called at the American legation yesterday and renewed their promises of assistance.

They also thanked Governor Taft for his courtesy and discussed the projected American amnesty proclamation. Governor Taft told his visitors that he would take up this subject later, not having time now to give the necessary attention, and said that when the matter did come up he would investigate personally all cases which might require his attention in order that justice be done.

Palma Leaves Havana.

While the departure yesterday from Havana of ex-President Palma was the most important event of the last 24 hours, the former President left the capital so quietly that the public did not realize he had gone until the news was given in the afternoon papers. Only his Cabinet Ministers and a few intimate friends accompanied the ex-President and his family to the railroad station.

Business is picking up wonderfully.

Dominion Loan Falls Due.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—A Dominion 4 per cent. loan amounting to $12,166,666 falls due on Nov. 1, and will be taken up, but in what manner the Department of Finance will not state. The present condition of the money market in London is unfavorable to fresh loans. Between now and 1913 about $135,000,000 of Dominion loans, less $50,000,000 of sinking funds, have to be provided for.

Wheat Elevator Collapses.

Weyburn, Sask., Oct. 3.—The MacKinnon elevator collapsed yesterday. The foundation gave way. The elevator contained 250,000 bushels of wheat at the time of the fall, which will likely be saved, with the exception of a thousand bushels. The elevator is a total wreck.

Girl's Sad Plight.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 3.—An 18-year-old girl, who says that her name is Lizzie Allen, and that she recently came from Windsor in search of employment in Detroit, was picked up in a fainting condition from lack of nourishment. She had been walking the streets two days.

Wants Railway Laborers.

London, Oct. 3.—(C. A. P.)—J. A. Smart, the former Deputy Minister of the Interior for Canada, is advertising for laborers to work on Canadian railways.

SUFFOCATES IN GAS WELL.

Fergus and Cape Breton Men Go Down to Death Twenty-Five Miles South of Regina, Saskatchewan.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 3.—Two men named Richen and Moffat, natives of Fergus, Ont., and Cape Breton, respectively, were suffocated by gas, twenty-five miles south of here, Monday night.

They were sinking a well on the farm of George Vail, and one of the men had gone down to adjust some of the machinery.

When he did not give the signal to haul up, his comrade followed him into the well, and both were dead when taken out yesterday morning.

A heavy flow of gas had been encountered, and when lanterns were lowered into the depths of the shaft they were immediately extinguished by the fumes.

Shot on Duck Hunt.

Chatham, Oct. 3.—James F. Riddell, 29 years, was found dead near Erie Eau, south of this city, Monday night, with a gunshot wound in his head. The young man had been missing since Saturday, when he went duck shooting alone. He was shot in the head.

Barnardo Boy Killed.

Minden, Oct. 3.—Near Minden Monday, John Kenyon, a Barnardo boy about 16 years old, was accidentally shot by his companion, William Little, aged 13, and died yesterday morning. The boys loaded their guns and started out for a hunt, Kenyon taking the lead. After proceeding a short distance, he turned to his companion, and Little's rifle was accidentally discharged, the ball striking Kenyon in the breast and piercing his body.

Run Over by Trolley.

Hamilton, Oct. 3.—Joseph Schuler, a man 60 years of age, who lives at Mount Hope, was run over by a street car in charge of Conductor Chase and Motorman McWilliams last evening. One of the unfortunate man's feet was cut off, and he was taken to the City Hospital, where his condition is regarded as critical.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Brockville, Oct. 3.—In a group of boys playing at Rockport stood Albert Hunt, with a loaded rifle. His request that one of the company discharge the weapon was promptly complied with by one of the party. As the marksman raised the rifle and fired, little Charlie Collins ran past, receiving the bullet in the hip. He will recover.

Head Crushed In Machinery.

Kingston, Oct. 3.—Robert Burke, a young man working in the Canadian Locomotive Works was yesterday killed, his head being crushed beneath a plunger of a slotting machine. He put his head under the plunger to adjust work and did not get it out in time. His head was terribly crushed.

Ran In Front of Express.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—In the sight of his wife and child, and a friend, Horatio Wrahall, an Englishman, was instantly killed by the C. P. R. express from Hamilton at Swansea early last evening. Just what possessed Wrahall to run on the track, leaving the others, they cannot imagine, but he was struck while he was fairly between the rails and carried on the cowcatcher a considerable distance before the train could be stopped. Wrahall, who is about 27 years of age, was employed at the Canada Foundry. His wife swooning as she witnessed the awful sight. They have not been long in Canada.

LOST IN MOBILE TORNADO.

Capt. Morris, Wife, Sister and Three Children Drowned.

Halifax, Oct. 3.—In the storm at Mobile, Ala., the schooner King of Avan was lost, and Capt. Morris, his wife, sister and three children, as well as Mate Fleston of Halifax, were drowned. The King of Avon was dismasted, capsized, and driven ashore.

Capt. Morris and his wife were in Port Arthur with the King of Avon when the Japs bombarded the city.

Grand Trunk Report.

London, Oct. 3.—The G. T. R. report issued yesterday states that the gross receipts for the half year ending June 30 were £3,021,63?, compared with £2,729,008 last year. Working expenses were £2,184,821, compared with £1,923,428. Net revenue receipts for the half-year, after adding receipts from all sources, were £944,867, and the directors recommend dividends on four per cent. first and second preference, and to carry forward £16,077. Passengers carried totalled 4,616,957, compared with 4,393,705. On the Canada Atlantic there was a net revenue deficiency of £20,296.

Gallery Appeal Heard.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Justice L. P. Duff of British Columbia took his seat on the Supreme Court Bench yesterday. The Gallery election case was the first on the list. The argument was not concluded at adjournment. Mr. Gallery is asking relief from personal disqualification for seven years.

Power Company Directors.

Cobourg, Oct. 3.—A special meeting of shareholders for reorganization of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co. was held yesterday.

Twenty-one directors were elected from Cobourg, Port Hope, Colborne, Campbellford and Belleville. J. A. Culverwell was elected president.

Cars Should Carry Jacks.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The jury, called to find out the cause of the death of Macklem Reade, find that the lad rolled between the fender and the steps of the car, and that the motorman did all in his power to avert the accident. It recommended that one or two jacks be kept on each car.

Deferred Receipts From Land Sales to Be Distributed.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. yesterday the report of the directors was unanimously adopted. The retiring directors, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, Thomas Skinner and Clarence H. MacKay, were re-elected.

Resolutions were passed, authorizing the lease of the lines in Ontario and Quebec, aggregating 166 miles.

In moving the adoption of the report, the president said the increase of more than $11,000,000 gross earnings marks the progress and development of the territory served by their lines, and the very satisfactory allowance in their working expenses for the maintenance of their property. He also said the land fund interest will, during this year, be about equivalent to 1 per cent. on the ordinary share capital. In the current year the directors propose to distribute this 1 per cent. to the shareholders in semi-annual instalments of one-half per cent., payable April 1 and Oct. 1, 1907.

At the meeting of the board, subsequently held, Sir William C. Van-Horne was re-elected chairman of the board, and Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy president of the company.

75 Miners Entombed.

Explosion at Pocahontas Company's Mines In Virginia.

Rescue Men Unable to Enter the Shaft and the Imprisoned May Die—Two Men Taken Out and Revived—Crowds of Men, Women and Children Anxiously Remain at the Drift Mouth.

Bluefield, Va., Oct. 4.—As the result of an explosion yesterday afternoon at the West Fork mines of the Pocahontas Coal Collieries Co., where the explosion of 1902 occurred, in which Superintendent O'Malley and 16 others lost their lives. 75 men are supposed to be entombed.

Two rescue parties have entered the mines, and up to 11 o'clock last night two men named Dolbert and Godash have been rescued and revived. The mine is reported to be on fire, and the work of rescue is retarded.

The cause of the explosion is not determined.

Great excitement prevails in the neighborhood of the mines. Crowds of men women and children remained around the drift mouth anxiously awaiting news of relatives and friends among the missing.

The definite results of the explosion will not be known for perhaps 12 hours.

A number of men in the south mine were almost suffocated before they were rescued.

Fatal Football In Toronto.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—As a result of injuries received in football practice on Varsity campus yesterday afternoon John Cameron Paulin, a student from Arthur, died in the General Hospital late last night from a fracture of the base of the skull. FLAMES LAP WINE.

Ontario Grape Growing and Wine Manufacturing Co. at St. Kitts Destroyed—Loss $150,000.

St. Catharines, Oct. 4.—One of the most costly fires the Niagara peninsula has ever had occurred early yesterday morning, when the entire plant of the Ontario Grape Growing and Wine Manufacturing Co., located on the old Welland Canal, on the outskirts of the city, was entirely destroyed. George Barnes, manager and principal owner, says the loss will reach fully a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with insurance of about $75,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown. It was not discovered until it had gained such headway in the cellars that nothing could be done.

As the great wine vats in the cellar caught fire the wine boiled and sizzled and ran down the incline into the canal in streams which would have carried a good-sized boat.

Canal Colored With Wine.

It is estimated that fully a hundred thousand dollars' worth of wine was destroyed, some of it of rare vintage. The canal water was colored with it.

Several days ago about $9,000 worth sugar was put into the plant, and this was burned up with an amazing heat.

The grapes already brought in by the growers went with the general conflagration.

The grape-growers who have not yet harvested their crop will be in a bad way, as now that the Wine Manufacturing Co. are burned out there will be perhaps no place to sell them.

The burned plant is one of the largest in this country, and it is said that it will take three years for the company to get into the same position as they were yesterday. Mr. Barnes will rebuild. He has had his vineyards and wine process there for over 20 years, and for years has been the principal buyer of grapes around here.

Four thousand tons of grapes is the output of the Niagara peninsula this year.

Burns 36,000,000 Feet of Lumber.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—The fire which swept Fraser Bros. lumber yards yesterday destroyed well on to 36,000,000 feet of lumber, with loss fixed at fully $50,000, covered by insurance. The fire jumped from one pile to another with appalling rapidity. Sections of the Ottawa, Hull and Aylmer brigades assisted the mill men and kept the mill and surrounding houses deluged. All the big fire insurance companies with offices in Ottawa are interested. The lumber companies who had purchased the burned lumber included Shepard and Morse, W. C. Edwards & Co., the McArthur Export Lumber Co., Watson and Todd, and three or four big American firms.

Attempted Suicide.

Hamilton, Oct. 4—Donald Sutherland, for many years a grocer in Hamilton, attempted to commit suicide at his home on the beach yesterday morning. It is supposed that despondency over business matters was the cause of his trouble. He threatened to end his life, and his wife ran out for assistance. When she returned he had cut his throat and was lying in a pool of blood. It is thought that he will recover.

Laurier and the Provinces.

Quebec, Oct. 4.—Lorette was this afternoon the scene of the largest political meeting ever held in the County of Quebec. The meeting was in the interest of the Liberal standard bearer, George E. Amyot, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he was disposed to do all he could to give satisfaction to the provinces in the important matter of the federal subsidy.

Rebels Laying Down Their Arms.

Havana, Oct. 4.—The alacrity with which the rebels are laying down their arms to the disarmament commission is the greatest surprise the provisional Government has yet encountered. Seven hundred of Guerra's men, with their horses, have been entrained for Pinar del Rio, while one brigade marched to Gunanajay yesterday.

A Mysterious Corporation

During the last session of the Dominion Parliament some enquiry was made into the transactions of the Intercolonial Railway with the concern calling itself the Eastern Railway and Supply Co. This is one of the several mysterious corporations and firms with which the Government chooses to do business. Others are the North Atlantic Trading Company, which has received $300,000 of Canadian money, and the Conservative members of the House have been unable to obtain from the Government the names of the men who got the cash and who compose the alleged company. Then there is the Arundel Printing Co., of London, England, to which $60,000 was paid, apparently for $20,000 worth of printing. This firm is not a company at all but comprises a single person, the son of a former Liberal member of Parliament, who was found by Immigration Commissioner Preston acting as the London agent for Butterick's Fashion Magazine. F. L. Brooks & Co., is another concern which the Public Accounts Committee found it impossible to resolve into its original elements. The Canadian Fog Signal Co. is another sample of concerns from which the Government buys by hundreds of thousands without revealing the names of the parties.

The Intercolonial in the course of a few months paid out over $40,300 on four contracts awarded to the Eastern Railway & Supply Co. The only one of these which was given to the lowest tenderer and carried through by the party obtaining the contract was the undertaking to supply wheel-barrows. The amount paid under this contract, which is said to have been unprofitable, was only $150. One of the others was a contract for oil. This was taken in the name of the Eastern Supply Co., and immediately transferred to the Imperial Oil Co., which did not tender, though it had supplied the railway the previous year. A third contract was for steel, which was given to the Eastern Supply Co. without competition at its own price. The fourth order was one for leather belting which went to the Eastern Supply Co., though a lower tender for the same goods, by the same maker was before the Government. This last contract has been continued for a second year on the same terms.

Considering the favor which the Minister of Railways shows to the Eastern Supply Co. it is natural to ask who compose the corporation. But the answer is not at hand. The company's charter was obtained in Newfoundland, though all its business appears to be done at Moncton, and its only customer seems to be the Minister of Railways. Three names of incorporators have been given and they are all connected with one firm, Mr. B. F. Pearson, of Halifax, M.P.P., and owner of three Government newspapers, his son and law partner, G. Fred Pearson, and Mr. B. F. Pearson's confidential clerk and relative, F. J. Lordley. All the contracts obtained by the firm were secured by Matthew Lodge, political and personal associate of Mr. Emmerson, and former director with him in the New Brunswick Petroleum Co., which also has carried on business with the Intercolonial. Mr. Lodge obtained the oil contract, which he had previously arranged to transfer to the Imperial Oil Co. He obtained the steel contract at his own offer without a call for tenders. He obtained the belting contract, with the assistance of a letter from the Deputy Ministers of Railways. He transacted all the business. But in his evidence before the Committee Mr. Lodge stated that he referred these matters to the office of the Supply Co. in Halifax, No. 45, Sackville street, and that he himself was only assistant secretary with power of attorney. No. 45 Sackville street is the office of the Pearson firm, but both Pearsons, father and son, have written to the papers saying that they have no financial interest in the Supply Co., or in the Government contracts.

Evidently there is a mystery here that ought to be cleared up. Who are the parties to this contract. What is the secret of their influence with the Minister of Railways and his Department? What becomes of the profit made out of this business? Does it go into the same pockets that contain the profits of $2000 made on an investment of $5000 in the Moncton land deal, which was also arranged by Mr. Lodge? It is commonly believed by those who have the best chance to know how that $8000 was divided, he might be able to trace the profits on the four contracts made by the Eastern Supply Co. and set forth in the Auditor-General's report for 1905.

Hamilton Spectator: There has been altogether too much "It will do during my time" in connection with the management of the waterworks in this city.

When you come to sit down quietly and think it over, doesn't that motto seem to pretty well describe conditions in Canada as a whole? Have we not, as a people, the instinct for "skimping" things, rather than making a permanent and enduring job? Is there not a "here to-day and gone to-morrow" feeling among our people? If one wanted an object-lesson, to be used as a text for this sermon, he might instance those gas pipes on Bridge St. east, which, some years ago, had to be uncovered and rejointed because the plumbers who put them down had made connections of a quarter of an inch, instead of two inches, as the law, we are told, directs in the Old Country. That is only one instance of the temporary and makeshift work which has been done in the past in this city. And what holds good here probably holds good in many other places in Canada. The Spectator man's little sermon is a timely one. It's a pity it could not be taken to heart by all his fellow-countrymen

The man on the next block wants to know if there is any truth in the rumor that there is to be a "shake-up" in the Board of Education, and some "new blood" injected next January. The story might be true, but we accept it with reserve. The age of miracles, alas! is past and gone.

In the opinion of many people, the members of the Board of Education should be elected by general vote, as the members of the Council are. Some present members of the Board, it may be observed, are of that opinion. But others are not. The change, when it does come about (if ever), must, we are told, be initiated by the Boarders themselves, and the majority of those grave and reverend seigniors do not feel like voting themselves out of a job.

Did you hear about Ald. Knox getting his bumps? Yes, sir. Rode his auto up and down Front street this afternoon.

By the way, inasmuch as automobiles are becoming quite numerous in this city, the following "Rules for Auto Guests" may profitably be studied. If you go riding with a man;

Always tell your host that this is the finest machine you ever rode in.

Ask him if it isn't the best make there is.

Say you thought so, when he says yes.

Ask him what really makes it go.

Listen while he tells you.

Ask him if it isn't going very swiftly.

Express surprise when he says the machine is merely warming up and for you to wait.

Wait.

Remark that automobiling is the poetry of motion.

And that you never before knew what it meant to really live.

And that you feel an exquisite, inexplicable elation.

Admire his motoring get-up.

Tell him how well he looks in automobile togs.

Ask him if you may suggest a name for his machine.

Ask him what are the spark plugs.

Look wise.

Ask him how to spell carbourecter.

Express no surprise at his reply.

Say that you would be afraid to go as fast if any one else were driving.

Ask to have all the parts in sight explained to you.

Inquire minutely about the others.

Introduce no subject save automobiles.

Disparage all others and praise the one you're in.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who has returned from St. Paul, where he has been on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Jamieson, says the report which appeared in The Intelligencer on the 25th Sept. of some remarks made by him at a meeting of British-Americans at St. Paul, in which he is reported to have said,

"I believe it is right and proper "that Englishmen and Canadians "should move to America and that "Americans should take up their "residences in Canada."

Is not correct. What he says he said was that it was "natural" that "Englishmen and Canadians should," etc., and not that "he believed it is right," etc. Quite a difference.

A wireless special from New York announces that the Belleville pilgrims, who went there on the excursion, are having a great time. A couple of Belleville ladies, it is said went out with a bundle of laundry, already "damped down." They were looking for the Flat Iron building. Our genial post office janitor, Mr. Steve Haight, has been engaged to give an illustrated lecture to New York post office employees, on "The Proper Way to Run a Post Office." He may, it is said, hold up the Belleville Post Office as an example. The pilgrims have been met on every corner by reporters who want to know whether Mayor Sulman has yet announced himself for a third term. They can't understand why he hangs fire. Ald. Knox's chances of heading the poll at the municipal elections next January are not, according to the despatch, believed to be good in New York.

Toronto now turns up with a football fatality. These accidents happen in different parts of America about every week. And still they talk of the "awful brutality" of pugilism. Pugilism is ping-pong compared to football.

RUBBER

When you buy rubber it pays to get it. There are few things in which quality counts for more than in rubber goods.

The demands of our trade require us to carry more than one quality of rubber goods, but each quality is sold for what it is, and is sold at an honest price. We carry practically everything in the line of Syringes, Hot-water Bottles, Sick-room Supplies, etc.

Respected Farmer Dead.

Our Balfour correspondent writes: Mr. John Minaker, of Point Traverse, died on October the 2nd, after an illness of some two years with diabetes. He suffered much but now will enjoy much, for his end was peace. He died trusting in God, whom he had served and trusted for years. The funeral was conducted at the Carmel Church, Rev. Mr. Coombe preaching the sermon.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Cantharides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Growers.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

A Fine Convention.

DELEGATES TO THE B. OF L. F. AND E. RETURN FROM MILWAUKEE.

A gentleman in the service of the G.T.R., who is an enthusiastic member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, returned yesterday afternoon from Milwaukee, Wis., where he spent the past three weeks, attending the sessions of the biennial convention, which proved a most successful gathering. Over 700 lodges were represented by 675 delegates gathered from all parts of the United States and Canada. The deliberations of this august body occupied twenty-one days and a large amount of important business was transacted. The Brotherhood was found to be in flourishing condition, financially and numerically. One hundred and ninety-five disability claims, not covered by the constitution, were considered and acted upon. Though the organization was not duty bound to entertain these claims, yet the convention generously paid the large sum of $95,000 to their crippled brethren, which will be met by a special assessment on the members throughout the entire order.

Our informant says general dissatisfaction was expressed over the treatment accorded the Brotherhood by the authorities of Milwaukee, who went back on their promise to provide a hall for the meetings. It was found necessary to rent a suitable building at a cost of $75 per day. This item of expense totalled $1,500.

The next convention will be held in Columbus, Ohio.

Sweet September.

Toronto, Oct. 3. — The month of September was one of the finest in a long record of 64 years. The mean temperature for the month was 61.6, or six degrees above the average. This was exceeded but once, and that was in 1881, when the mean temperature for the month was 67.6. The nearest approach to the past September was in 1865, when the mean temperature recorded was 64.5.

The highest temperature was on the 9th of September when 90.4 was recorded, and the lowest on the 25th, when it was 41.7. The hottest day was the 9th, and 116 was registered in the sun.

Rain fell on seven days to a depth of 3.67 inches or .39 above the average. The greatest portion of this rainfall was on Saturday last.

There were 241 hours of sunshine, or 3½ hours more than the average.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says: "I suffered from chronic constipation which stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. Samples free. To be had at R. Templeton & Co., drug store.

A Distinguished Trio

The Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is fond of relating an incident that occurred while he and Lord Rosebery were returning from the theatre one night. While crossing the street they were accosted by a ragged boy who, after sweeping the mud from their path, asked for alms.

Lord Rosebery was about to give the boy a coin, when an idea struck him.

"My boy," said Lord Rosebery, 'if you will hit that policeman a swat on the back with your muddy broom I will give you ten shillings.' Prompt to the word, the boy crept in back of the officer, and, raising his broom, struck him in the back, and ran, but to the dismay of Rosebery the officer caught the boy after a chase of a few yards.

Not wanting to leave the boy in a fix Rosebery tried to fix things up with the officer, but the worthy gentleman would not listen and took them all three up to the station.

They were then taken before the judge of the station and after surveying them through his glasses he took down a book and turning to Chamberlain, asked his name. "Hon. Joseph Chamberlain," was the reply, and the judge smiled.

Rosebery responded also with his full title, 'Lord Rosebery."

The boy was next and stepping to the front he drew himself up to his full height, and waited for the usual question, "Your name?"

"My name?" said the boy. "Well, judge, I'm not the kind as goes back on me pals, I'm the Duke of Wellington."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure Send for circulars and testimonials.

E. ROONEY DEAD

POPULAR HORSEMAN SUCCUMBS TO AN ATTACK OF BRONCHIAL PNEUMONIA.

The death occurred at St. Luke's hospital, Ottawa, on Saturday of Edward Rooney, particularly well known to horsemen in Eastern Ontario. A few days ago he underwent an operation and was doing well after this when acute bronchial pneumonia developed and caused death.

"Ned" Rooney, as he was familiarly known, had spent a life time in the training and speeding of horses and had participated for years in the leading racing events in this part of the country. A good natured whole-souled fellow, he will be missed by a great many people who have learned with much regret of his sudden demise. The deceased belonged to Amity Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Prescott. He was 49 years of age and unmarried. His mother resides at Trenton, a sister Miss Rooney, of Rochester, and another in Montreal. The remains were forwarded to Trenton where the services and interment took place.

Parliament to Meet Early In November

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The Government is straining every effort to get its business in shape in order to call Parliament together on Nov. 8th. The object of meeting so early in the month is to get in five weeks' useful work and to dispose of the tariff if possible before the Christmas holidays. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and some of his colleagues are of necessity to be in England by the 26th of April to attend the Imperial Conference, and, therefore, it will be necessary to put forth every effort to conclude the business of Parliament before they leave.

Under the circumstances, the Christmas recess will be short, certainly not exceeding two weeks.

A new copyrighted serial story, "The Crimson Blind," will begin in The Intelligencer in a few days.

Fortune Slipped Away From Toronto Man.

Toronto, Oct. 4. — For many years, eighteen to be exact, there has been on exhibition in the bar of the Leader Hotel a small painting on copper, the subject of which was a legend of Venus and Adonis. Mr. Edward Sullivan purchased it at an auction sale in the eighties for $25. It was understood at the time that it came from the collection of the late Hector Cameron, Q. C., an eminent barrister of Toronto, and a lover of art. For eighteen years the picture followed the fortunes of Mr. Sullivan, and was admired by many callers. During the progress of the Industrial Exhibition Mr. M. Wetzstein, of South Bend, Ind., happened along, and he at once took a strong fancy to the picture. He offered Mr. Sullivan $250 for his prize, and after some deliberation the offer was accepted, and the picture became the property of Mr. Wetzstein. It now transpires that since returning to the United States Mr. Wetzstein has had the picture submitted to experts, and they have pronounced it a genuine Rubens. Mr. Wetzstein, so Mr. Sullivan is informed, has already received two offers for the picture, one of $5,000 and the second of $10,000, but has so far refused to part with his treasure.

Mr. Thomson's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mr. Robt. Thomson took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon, from the family residence, Bridge street east. Services at the house were conducted by the Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, pastor of St. Andrew's Church. A large number of citizens were in attendance at the obsequies. Many floral tributes were placed upon the casket. The bearers were Messrs. C. M. Stork, J. W. Murray, R. Tannahill, W. Hamilton, J. Caldwell and T. Ritchie.

Back to Nature

BILEANS ARE PURELY HERBAL.

"You cannot get any remedies so potent, so beneficial, so eminently designed for the use of mankind, as the essences and juices of the herbs of the field," says an eminent authority. This description sums up exactly the constituents of Bileans. Bileans are purely herbal, and they have been proved in every clime to meet the needs of ailing humanity. They operate on the liver and stomach and cure all disorders arising from derangement of these important organs. Liver complaint, biliousness, indigestion, headache, female ailments, constipation, piles, debility, liver chill, all yield to Bileans. From their use both rich and poor are every day benefitting. One correspondent says: "I had to do laundry work to get the money for a course, but they gave me health." As a contrast to this Sir Charles Clifton Browne, of Deal (Kent) says: "Bileans cured me of biliousness and bilious headaches. I think they are a really good remedy." Of all druggists at 50 cents a box.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

BASEBALL.

Chicago Gets Two Pennants.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 3.—The Chicago American League Baseball Club became the winner of the pennant for the season of 1906, when both games of the double-header at St. Louis today, in which the Chicago team was scheduled to play, were called off on account of wet grounds, while Philadelphia and New York split even in the two games played at Philadelphia. The Chicago Club cannot be overtaken, even though they lose the four games yet to be played. The best the New York team can do is to win the remaining three games, in which event they will finish second, just one-half game behind the pennant winners.

Only one game separates Cleveland and New York for second honors. Cleveland has four more games to play, and if they can win all four, New York losing one, the Cleveland team will take second place by half a game.

ATHLETICS.

Good Boy, Bennett!

Says the Chicago Record: "Hail to Canada, mother of Marathon winners. Dip the grand old flag in her honor, for another son of the northland, Dennis Bennett, of Hamilton, Ont., has stepped into the front rank of the world's long distance runners. With nearly a mile of city streets between him and his nearest opponent, the gallant little Canuck loped across the finish line yesterday afternoon, winner of the New Illinois Athletic Club's second annual Marathon. Bennett's time for the twenty-five-mile grind, two hours, forty-one minutes and thirty-three seconds, smashes all Marathon records in the west, and comes within a little over twelve minutes of the world's mark, 2.29.30, made by another Hamilton man, Jack Caffrey, at Boston in 1902."

Bennett finished at Chicago waving a Canadian flag. He did not stand on ceremony on his journey through the streets, upsetting one spectator, who encroached on the road, and knocking a bicyclist over who came too close.

Exercise For Business Men.

The average city business man without physical impediments to fight against can probably get along successfully on such an exercise schedule as the following:

First.—Five minutes each day of purely muscular exercise, such as can be taken perfectly well in one's room without any special apparatus.

Second.—Short intervals during the day of fresh air, brisk walking, deep breathing. This can all be secured in the regular order of the day's business. A man can easily spend as much as half an hour walking out of doors every day. This is for heart, lungs and digestion.

Third.—The reservation of at least one day a week for rest and recreation, for being out of doors, for playing games, etc. This is essential. This is for both body and mind. A man who thinks he can get along without at least one vacation time a week simply proves his ignorance.

The Bite of a Girl.

The bite of a girl may be as productive of poisonous germs as improperly prepared foods, according to the statements of Professor W. D. Miller of the University of Berlin. In a lecture the professor said that a bite of a pretty girl would often bring a quicker and more horrible death than the bite of a serpent. Professor Miller, who has made a special study of the bacteria of the mouth, said that only a short time ago he experimented on a beautiful girl in Germany and found that an arrow dipped in saliva from her mouth would send its victim in death throes more terrible than one dipped in the venom of the most deadly snake.

Twins Born in Different Years.

"I have often been present at the birth of twins," said an old nurse. "Only once was I present, though, when the twins were born in different years."

"Twins born in different years? You are crazy," said the young bride.

"Not a bit of it," said the old nurse. "The thing happened in Pittsburg in 1899. The first twin was born at 11:30 o'clock on the night of Dec. 31, 1899, and the second was born at 1 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 1, 1900. There are, ma'am, a number of other cases recorded of twins born in different years."

The Cat Had Chickens.

The old housekeeper met the master at the door on his arrival home.

"If you please, sir," she said, "the cat has had chickens."

"Nonsense, Mary," laughed he. "You mean kittens. Cats don't have chickens."

"Was them chickens or kittens as you brought home last night?" asked the old woman.

"Why, they were chickens, of course."

"Just so, sir," replied Mary, with a twinkle. "Well, the cat's had 'em!"

A Comprehensive Verdict.

A child in an English town was killed by a steam atomizing apparatus falling on it. The coroner's jury brought in the following curious verdict: "Death resulted from shock following bronchitis and whooping cough, caused through the shaking of the house by the firing of a gun at the government proof butts on the Plumstead marshes."

THIRD LINE.

The recent rains were very welcome as the pastures and roots were needing it. Ploughing will be pushed now as the season for that work will be short.

The box social held at Mr. James Clarke's was a success. A pleasant evening and a good crowd were present.

A good many were going to the World's Fair on Saturday, but the rain put a damper on it.

Master Georgie Snarr is dangerously ill at present.

Mrs. O. Coutts, of Lakefield; Mrs. Rev. W. Telford, of Ottawa, and Miss Coutts, of Sine, were guests of Mrs. Jas. Bailey on Wednesday last.

A number from here took in the fair at Stirling.

Mrs. Orser spent Thursday with Mrs. G. Deloe.

Mr. Geo. Bailey was in Belleville a couple of days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were guests at Mr. S. Horton's on Thursday.

Miss Bella Armstrong has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. W. Broadworth at Sine.

The bear excitement is still making the people have big eyes; it has been seen by several and a large number of men are hunting each evening for it. Two young cubs have also been seen.

Our young people are preparing to give a concert in the near future which will be a treat, as Harold talent is something choice.

Mr. Geo. Tompkins has purchased a single driver.

UNEQUALLED SERVICE.

In all the world over, among all the railways of all nations, there is one line whose service stands pre-eminent—The Lake Shore Railway. Luxurious comfort, speed, safety, punctuality, personal attention and service, have here reached their highest development. Lake Shore trains run on time and when connections are to be made the schedule is so arranged that long waits and delays are avoided. In a word, here is a railway whose service in every respect leaves nothing to be desired. Travellers of experience know this to be so and all are careful to see that their tickets read "via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway." You can obtain full information by addressing J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N. Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, O., or W. J. Lynch, Passenger Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

GOVERNMENT WILL ACT.

Magistrate Hunt's Observations On Local Option Hotels to Have Effect.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Premier Whitney stated yesterday that in his judgment Magistrate Hunt's assertions as to the immoral conditions existing in connection with unlicensed hotels in East Elgin certainly called for investigation. Asked if that meant the Government would take action he replied that it had.

Mr. Hunt declared from his own observation that many of the hotels in the local option districts were no better than brothels and that the people who were aware of it and prayed for divine interference would not lay an information and allow him to enforce the law.

May Sue Magistrate.

St. Thomas, Oct. 4.—The hotelkeepers in the local option townships of Elgin are talking of taking action against Police Magistrate Hunt to compel him to prove his assertion that many of the hotels are nothing more than houses of prostitution.

Scott Will Go to Country.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 4.—The Standard yesterday afternoon says that in order to avert the numerous election petitions that must follow on the inevitable opening up of the cases, the Scott Government will appeal to the country early next year.

TIMELY TOPICS.

THE APPLE CURE.

In these days of indigestion,
Of fever and congestion,
A new and pleasant remedy has lately come to light,
'Tis a cure-all pure and simple,
The very latest wrinkle,
Just eat a big round apple and you'll be all right.

Then good-bye to inflammation,
To pain and ulceration,
The vermiform appendix will be forgotten quite;
Throw away your pills galore
You won't need them any more,
Just eat a big round apple and you'll be all right.

Then good-bye to all narcotics,
To tonics and hypnotics,
The medical profession will soon be lost to sight:
Throw away your pills galore,
You won't need them any more,
Just eat a big round apple and you'll be all right.

PRESBYTERIAN FRENCH.

(Toronto Presbyterian.)

The Rounder had a holiday last week and went to Quebec. Before starting he carefully furbished up his stock of French so as to be ready for all emergencies, as he had been informed that in the quaintly beautiful old city even the children speak French and the horses do not understand English. In the Lower Town he asked a man in his very choicest French what car he should take to get to the Chateau Frontenac.

The supposed habitant looked at him with a grin, and said; 'Bedad, sor, av yez take the car fornist yer nose an' transfer at the trassle ye'll git to the Chaity Frontenac all right But av yez want to keep out av the loonatic asylum ye'll not talk anny more av that kind av Frinch."

CUPID'S VICTORY.

"Ah, Cupid, you are sad!" I said.
"Perchance you've found a love untrue.
What circumstance of unkind fate
Can bring this doleful phase to view?"

Then Cupid clinched his little fist
And fiercely struck his chubby knee.
"Oh, some reformers," he replied,
"Have been investigating me!

"A widow and a widower
My every art and charm discussed,
And subsequently both agreed
That I was just a common trust."

I later met the little elf,
Who cried aloud in roguish fun,
"Oh, say, I married those fresh folks,
And their investigation's done!"

HUMOR

THEY WERE ALL SKINNERS.

Why Nothing Could Be Done With Missouri Timber Thieves.

Having been notified that some one was cutting timber on a piece of land I owned in Missouri, I made quite a journey to investigate the matter. I found the information to be correct and I found a farmer near by who appeared willing to tell me more.

"Yes, I reckon I know who stole your timber," he replied to my question. "The first I knowed about it was when I saw old Jim Skinner chopping in your woods. I asked him what he was a-doing there and he told me to go to the devil."

I put down Jim Skinner's name and my informant continued:

"Soon after that I saw Tom Skinner hauling out wood and I asked him what he was a-doing on another man's land, and he told me to go to the devil. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Then I saw Hank Skinner hauling out timber to make a barn and I asked him who gave him permission to cut and he told me to go to the devil. Hank Skinner it was."

"I've got it so."

"Then Pete Skinner comes along and cuts down about fifty trees and makes saw logs and has 'em hashed up into boards for a house. He was getting out the logs one day when I asked him if he had a permit and he told me to go to the devil."

"I see."

"The last Skinner I saw around was Walt. He went in and cut down trees to build a mewl shed. He was drawing out when I asked him if he wasn't afeared of a lawsuit and he told me to go to the devil."

"There seem to be lots of Skinners around here," I observed.

"Heaps of 'em, stranger. The sheriff is a Skinner, the justice of the peace is a Skinner, the only lawyer around the diggin's is a Skinner and you can't run amiss of 'em."

"If that's the case it doesn't look as if a suit for trespass and damages would hold."

"You never could make it stick in this world, sah."

"But what am I to do?"

"I'll tell you, sah. I am old Mose Skinner, the father of 'em all, and I've stolen mo' timber than all the rest, and I'm telling you, sah, that you can go to the devil and be durned to you!"—Chicago News.

No Butts.

The kind old gentleman with a bundle of missionary leaflets under his arm stopped a moment in the street for the purpose of administering a stinging rebuke to the newsboy smoking a cigarette.

"Young man," he said in tones of terrible intensity, "throw that cigarette away!"

"Ah, g'wan!" replied the newsboy contemptuously. "Buy one uv yer own!"—Judge.

Obeying Him.

"Here, you, sir," cried the irate old gentleman, "didn't I tell you never to enter this house again?"

"No, sir," replied his daughter's persistent suitor. "You said not to 'cross your threshold,' so I climbed in the window."—Boston Transcript.

A Centenarian's Chair.

A curious chair stands at one of the entrances to the citadel of Cairo. It was placed there for the gatekeeper, who died aged 125. It bears the inscription, "Only he who by the favor of God has lived a hundred years may sit here."

Marmalade.

Marmalade, then made only of quinces, was known in Henry VIII.'s reign. The word is derived from "mermelo," a quince.

Smallest Reptile.

The smallest reptile is the gecko, a thick tongued lizard which runs about in the night. It averages two inches in length, tail included, and lives in Africa. It can walk on the ceiling backward.

Arctic Mosquitoes.

The mosquito is most common within and about the arctic circle. On coasting trips to the North cape vessels are sometimes invaded by maddening swarms at every stopping place. In Alaska they are said to form clouds so dense that it is impossible for sportsmen to aim at objects beyond, while native dogs are sometimes killed by them.

Chamois Skins.

The annual crop of chamois skins in Switzerland does not exceed 6,000, not more than enough to supply the United States for one day. What is usually sold as chamois is really an oil tanned sheep or lamb skin lining.

Walking Beam Engines.

There are no walking beam engines on European river or lake steamers. Most of them use a horizontal engine made in Zurich, and all of them are long, low, rakish craft, much faster than American boats, in addition to being safer if less comfortable

The small waists of Frenchwomen are believed by some scientists to be the result of heredity. Ages of tight lacing, they say, have produced a physical peculiarity in the nation

Cologne.

An excellent cologne may be made with half an ounce of oil of bergamot, quarter of an ounce of oil of lemon, half an ounce of oil of orange, half an ounce of oil of English lavender, half a dram of neroli and one quart of alcohol. Shake the bottle several times a day for four or five days.

South Carolinians.

South Carolinians are "weasels," "sand hillers" and "ricebirds," the first an allusion to the thinness of the early natives, the second to their place of residence, the third to a common crop and bird which feeds on it.

Ancient Catacombs.

Interesting catacombs with well preserved natural paintings have been discovered at Kertch, in the Crimea, the ancient Panticapaeum. Although the vaulting shows that they must have been built after the Christian era, the subjects of the paintings are pagan, representing Pluto, Demeter and Hermes.

The Cucumber Plant.

A scientist by the name of De Candolle has proved that the cucumber plant has been under cultivation between three and four thousand years.

Hongkong.

Hongkong is one of the most active shipping ports in the world, but it is not a market. It is a convenient point for the transfer of cargoes from or intended for the different ports of China, Japan, Korea, the Philippine Islands, Siam and other parts of the east, but it is a small island, with a limited population, who produce nothing and consume comparatively little, but handle a great deal of trade in transit.

Damp Walls.

Walls inclined to be damp should be gone over with a varnish made of one part of shellac to two parts of naphtha and allowed to dry before papering.

Balkan is a Turkish generic term, referring to a range or mass of wooded hills with pasturage and meadow land on their slopes.

The Hottest Spot.

The hottest place in the world is the southwestern coast of Persia, on the Persian gulf. Here in July and August the thermometer climbs to 130 in the afternoon and never, day or night, falls below 100.

First Melodrama.

The first melodrama was produced at The Covent Garden theater, London, on Nov. 14, 1802, and was called "The Tale of Mystery."

Skyrocket Mail.

Perhaps the most unusual way of delivering mails is that adopted for one of the islands of the Tonga group in the Pacific, where the danger of approaching inshore renders it necessary for the mail steamer to use a skyrocket as a postman.

Singing and Whistling Mice.

Singing and whistling mice are occasionally reported, but it is not generally known that these musical efforts of the little rodents are signs of fast approaching death. The "music" is caused by a parasite in the liver, and the sounds are the result of spasmodic breathing caused by its presence.

For the Stork.

The German house builders always contrive to leave a small flat place on the roof of each house for the storks to rest and build on.

SELECTIONS

TRAINED NURSES.

How They May Obey the Doctor and Win the Family.

Why antagonism exists so frequently between the trained nurse and the members of the household where she is in attendance was explained in a striking manner in an address delivered by Dr. John J. Tuller before the graduating class of nurses of the Children's Homeopathic Hospital Training school.

"This question of the relationship of the nurse in the home is one of vast importance," Dr. Tuller said.

"It has come to be a common complaint that the trained nurse rules the members of the family with an iron hand, as if this had been the instruction issued to her by her physician. This is in nowise the case.

"Remember that you are the scientific adjunct to the doctor, and that while you are bound to carry out orders not to let them conflict unnecessarily with what the family is desirous of.

"You take for the moment the position of the wife, the mother, the sister, at the bedside of the patient. But, whatever you do, remember that kindness goes much further than dominant command, and if you fail to use good judgment the only one who really suffers is the patient.

"On the other hand," Dr. Tuller continued, "I feel called upon to say in this connection that the obligations of the members of the household are no less than those of the nurse.

"You are sent to the patient's side to administer in a scientific manner things impossible for them to do. There will be moments when neither wishes nor direct demands on you should make you swerve from your duties. But even if such moments arrive remember that from the point of view of the family what they ask is what they think is for the good of their dear one.

"That is the occasion when you can show your character in the truest light. Few are the instances where through persuasion and the kindest remonstrances you will not be able to win over the opposition to your way of thinking.

"Let me say again that it remains with you to offer the olive branch in the home tried through illness, and not to begin warfare the moment you enter the home."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Motors and Prices.

The automobile is largely responsible for several noteworthy disturbances in the commodity markets. It lifted the price of rubber to an almost intolerable figure for the common uses. Gasoline is another commodity whose price has soared under the auto demand. Prices of leather are now reaching record figures, and the demand for it in the luxurious upholstering of auto carriages is said to be an important factor. The Shoe and Leather Reporter notes that the price of "spready steer hides" advanced to 17¼ cents, while during the paper money inflation period of the civil war the highest price reached was 14½ cents, which had stood as the high record in all the succeeding years until now. We may have to go without rubbers or rubber coats, and we may have to go without boots or shoes, but we must have our automobiles.—Springfield Republican.

Frogs In a Fight.

A desperate fight took place between two parties of frogs, each composed of not less than 10,000, in a large ditch in Ojimura, Harima prefecture, on June 24, at about 1 p. m. Toward 9 in the evening the operation became very hot, a corps of about 4,000 standing firmly in the ditch against two other corps of over 3,000 each, which apparently seemed to be the invading army. The noise and bustle were more than can be described. In spite of the hard struggle, however, the battle did not end until 10 o'clock the next morning to the great annoyance of the peaceful human noncombatants around the battlefield, when over 700 warriors killed and 2,000 wounded were to be seen on the spot.—Japan Times.

The Highest Dam.

On Salt river, Arizona, there is in course of construction what is said to be the highest dam in the world. When it is completed in 1908 Roosevelt, the town on the site, will be 172 feet below the level of the water. It is anticipated that the head obtained will be the means of securing abundant power. A temporary power plant, a cement mill, ice plant, lighting plant and sawmill have been completed. A telephone line has been installed to the head works of the power canal, eighteen miles above Roosevelt, and extended in the other direction to the site of the great dam, which is thirty miles from Phenix.

Musical Typewriter.

Among new inventions is a typewriter for writing musical scores. It was a crying need and has just been patented. The difficulty was with the keyboard. The notes with their musical notation were easily arranged, but to shift the type and set in chords was the great obstacle that the inventor claims to have finally overcome. The paper used is the ordinary music ruled sheet. The notes of the treble clef are first written, then those in the bass. So far they have only been able to do this much, but they promise to write music in both clefs simultaneously in a short time.—New York Press.

IN PORTO RICO.

No One Who Is Anybody Will Stoop to Manual Labor.

Porto Rico has its problems, social, political and economic, but none of them will prove more difficult of solution than that of labor. What needs to be done is to make labor honorable where it has been held in disrepute. This is to overcome ingrained prejudices, a task for a Hercules. Mr. Fowles' recent book, "Down In Porto Rico," pictures the condition of labor as it is in the island today.

To carry a package on the street is indicative either of poverty or lack of breeding.

A family must be very poor if they cannot afford several servants. To do any kind of housework cannot be considered by the lady of the house. She sits in the parlor dressed in loose garments and spends much of the day in idly rocking to and fro in a rocking chair. When she goes out shopping, either she is accompanied by a servant who carries her small purchases or she hires a boy to carry them for her. If she is so poor that she must do some kind of work, the fact must be carefully concealed from her neighbors.

Among the men there is the same contempt for manual labor. The merchants must of necessity be busy men, but they are very careful not to degrade themselves by doing any kind of common labor. They object to performing work that can be done by an employee. Business men do not carry bundles home at night. They seldom lend a hand when some little mishap occurs or when repairs are needed. They are gentlemen, and menial tasks are for common workmen.

The same spirit is shown among the mechanics. When a plumber is sent for he usually comes attended by his man. His business is to tell the man what to do, while he himself stands by and watches him. The farmer does not go out to work upon his farm. He mounts a horse and rides round, telling his laborers what work must be done.

Ask a common laborer to carry your hand luggage to the boat or to the station and very likely he will come at the appointed hour with a colored boy, whom he orders to take up the load and carry it, while he himself receives the money and walks by the side of the boy.

Apples and the Throat.

By ordering his patients to eat heartily of certain fruits and forbidding them to touch others at all, Dr. Nadal, one of Paris' most famous scientists, is treating the throats of the great opera singers. There is no medicine at all in his treatment. In some cases he adds nothing to the patient's diet and secures results by forbidding them to eat apples and pears. According to Dr. Nadal an apple or pear each day is enough to keep the sensitive throat out of order all the time. A singer of course notices the first symptom of throat disorder in the form of congestion of the vocal cords. These, instead of being white and thin, like a tendon, become red and swollen with congestion of blood. The high notes become difficult and the quality of the voice is impaired.

Librarians and Liberia.

The American Library association lately held a meeting at Narragansett Pier. Among the persons in attendance on the proceedings was a buxom lady of color, who took a prominent seat and listened to all that went on with an air of evident pride. As she did not appear to be a regular delegate she was finally questioned regarding her identity and revealed herself as a fairly well known laundress of the place. Further questioning brought out the fact that she had mistaken the librarians for a mission from Liberia. The joke is perhaps in part upon the librarians, whose debates and literary performances had not in the least served to dispel her illusion.—Bookman.

The Paris Guillotine.

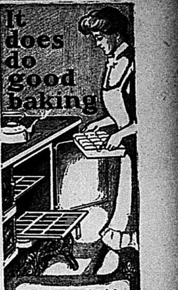
No convicts have been guillotined in Paris for ten years, and the sentences of those condemned to death have been commuted to imprisonment for life. The reason for this lies in the fact that the law provides that all capital executions shall be held in public, and since the guillotine was removed from the Place de la Boquette ten years ago no other place has been found for it. The residents in the neighborhood of every place suggested object to its erection near them. The authorities were lately put in a quandary when a condemned man refused to ask for a commutation of his sentence and declared that they must put him to death.

The Most Important Years.

"The recent death of Carl Schurz calls to mind," says Enos Clarke of St. Louis, Mo., "a conversation with Mr. Schurz some years since while in St. Louis, when he spoke of his return a few years previous to Germany and of a long and friendly interview with Prince Bismarck. During this interview the prince asked Mr. Schurz his age, and on being answered that he was then nearing his seventieth birthday the prince quickly replied, "Let me tell you, General Schurz, that the first seventy are the most important years of one's life."

Rifles For the Philippines.

Colonel Frank H. Phipps, commanding officer of the United States armory at Springfield, Mass., has received orders from Washington to issue as soon as convenient 25,000 of the 1903 model rifles, commonly known as the new Springfield rifles, for the use of the troops now stationed in the Philippines. These guns will all be supplied with the new knife bayonet, and will replace the Krag-Jorgensen guns with rod bayonets, which the troops are using at present.



It does do good baking

This is the range that bakes better because the diffusive oven flue draws in cold air from the kitchen-floor, carries it around the oven, and pours it HOT down into the oven FROM THE TOP in a current that moves all round the whole oven and up and out the flue. When that clean, hot air leaves the oven it takes with it all the moisture, all the odors, which in OTHER ovens stay in and saturate the baking food. Perfect draft control, perfect oven, draw-out oven rack for easy basting,—all points singular to

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Oct. 3.—Receipts were 600 cattle, 50 milch cows, 500 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 100 calves. There was no change in the condition of the market for hogs. Supplies were fairly large, for which the demand was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $6.75 to $6.90 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. Leading packers have arrived at an agreement to pay $6.90 for hogs coming from points west of Brockville and $6.75 from Brockville and east, until the market warrants change. Trade was better than is usually the case on Wednesday markets, and the prices of cattle had an upward tendency, while good lambs were higher in price, owing to the demand for shipment to American markets. Prime beeves sold at 4¼c to 4½c per lb., and choice animals would bring more. Pretty good cattle sold at 3¼c to 4c, and the common stock at 2c to 3c, while old, lean cows and bulls sold at 1½c. Milch cows sold at $30 to $50 each. Six good, large calves were sold for $60, or 4c per lb.; good veals would bring 5¼c per lb., and the grassers 2½c to 3½c; sheep sold at 3½c to 4c per lb.; lambs at 5c to 6c.

HIDDEN GOLD MINES.

There May Perhaps Be One In Your Own Back Yard.

There may be a rich gold mine in your back yard if you happen to be living on the site of an ancient lake, writes Waldon Fawcett in Technical World Magazine. In scores of places scattered all over the country there are pits and mounds of black sand out of which gold, platinum and other precious minerals may be extracted. The national government itself is the promotor of this latest mining sensation, which promises to make as many overnight gold kings as the discovery of Alaska itself.

It had long been known that platinum existed in marketable quantities in what are known as the "black sands" of the Pacific coast, but the deposits were practically useless because of the lack of an efficient and economical method of concentration or treatment. It was to the solution of this problem that the government experts applied themselves. As a first step a general invitation was extended to Pacific coast property owners whose holdings included such deposits to send to the government samples of the wealth bearing sand for free tests.

From the very outset the results were both gratifying and surprising. The government investigators not only found platinum in quantities that exceeded their expectations, but they discovered that the black sand, or sediment, was rich in many other valuable substances, notably gold. In some instances it was evident that a given deposit was well worthy of treatment, merely for the extraction of one or two minerals, as, for instance, a large shipment of the sand from Humboldt county, Cal., which showed as assay value of $1,000 per ton in gold and platinum alone.

Dr. Day and his assistants have accomplished such wonders on the Pacific coast that the government has hastened to broaden the scope of the work, and an experiment station has been established at Chapel Hill, N. C., for the treatment of the low grade gold deposits of the mid-Atlantic and southern states.

Buenos Ayres.

Buenos Ayres today boasts rightly and truthfully of nearly 1,100,000 inhabitants. It is growing faster than any city in the United States excepting New York and Chicago, and the time is soon coming when it will run an even race with Paris as the first Latin city of the world. We have no place like it in North America. It might possibly be described as having the beauty of Washington, the wealth of New York and the hustle of Chicago in well measured proportions. It can point to parks and boulevards more beautiful than any in Washington, opera houses, clubs, newspaper buildings finer than any in New York, street car systems and hotels better than those of Chicago.—New York Times.

A Record In Denmark.

The first degree of doctor of medicine to be given to a woman in Denmark has recently been conferred on Froken Eli Moller. This title is not attained by passing an ordinary examination in medicine, but must be gained by writing a treatise of actual value to the community or by setting forth some novel and important theory, and, moreover, in the latter case the candidate must stand prepared to defend this theory against the arguments of certain appointed professors of the subject treated. In truth, this honor is not lightly given in faraway Denmark, nor is it to be easily won apparently.

Sven Hedin's Perilous Trip.

There is something that stirs the imagination in the thought that Stockholm's most distinguished son—surely no one will deny the title to Sven Hedin—is even now crossing over from Turkestan to the starting place on the Tarim river, in the heart of Asia, which knows him so well already. His rooms on the Blasieholm are shut up, and no one knows less than himself whether he will ever enter them again. For the third time he is essaying the most dangerous journey that yet remains on this law abiding planet—that to Lassa.—London Telegraph.

Medical Secrecy.

The question of a medical man's obligation of secrecy has again risen in the striking case of the Gironde assizes. In 1868 two Jonzac doctors who called to attend a sick person, suspected it to be a case of criminal poisoning. They believed that they knew the guilty person, but hesitated to denounce him. They consulted their confreres, who said, "A crime discovered by us in the exercise of our art becomes a professional secret." This theory, however, is not universally held.—Petit Parisien.

The Wealth of France.

The population of France is about 40,000,000 people; the wealth of France is nearly $45,000,000,000. Robert P. Skinner, United States consul at Marseilles, in some recent statistics, shows how evenly this wealth is distributed. The number of estates administered in 1904 was 394,787, and of these one-half were for values ranging from less than $10,000 to a little over $100,000. Only three were over $10,000,000.—Review of Reviews.

A South African Spellbinder.

Litia, the son of King Lewanika, is described by Trevor Battye as a most intelligent man, anxious for the improvement of the people and probably sharing the view of his father, who, on his return from attending the coronation, began the opening speech to his people with the words: "You are simply baboons! Simply that!"—London Spectator.

FOR $2,000 EACH

By C. B. LEWIS.

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Young James Harper, farmer, and Sarah Lee, daughter of another farmer, married for love. They had two or three lovers' quarrels, as was quite on the cards and very natural, but for two years after marriage no couple ever lived more happily. This state of affairs might have continued at least two years longer but for Abner Jones, Esq., country justice of the peace and agent for the Farmers' Fire Insurance company, and sewing machines of all makes, bought and sold. He made his appearance at the farmhouse one day.

"Well, Jim," he said, "what do you and Sarah think? I've got the agency for a life insurance company and am going to branch out a little. I want to insure the both of you. I've got Tom Spooner and his wife, Bill Wheeler and his wife, Silas Johnson and his wife and several others, and I'm here to get you. I want you to take $2,000 apiece. If you die, Sarah, Jim has got $2,000 to buy you a monument, pay funeral expenses and go away to Niagara Falls to get over his grief. If you die, Jim, Sarah has got money to bury you decently and carry on the farm without having to rush off and marry again."

The squire went into further explanations. He talked life insurance and stayed to dinner. He talked life insurance and stayed to supper. He talked life insurance and stayed until 9 o'clock in the evening. Then he drank two glasses of cider, ate three fried cakes and a piece of mince pie and went home to make out two policies for $2,000 each.

Jim and Sarah had decided that such insurance was a good thing. Neither wanted to die, but if death must come they would not be selfish about it. It would be a bond to draw them still closer together. In the course of a couple of weeks the policies were delivered, the premiums paid, and Squire Jones stayed to dinner again and said as he finished and wanted to lick his plate, but remembered his dignity in time:

"Now, then, young folks, this is the best thing you have done so far in your lives. Keep on loving, keeping up your premiums as they fall due, and don't worry about the future. With $2,000 coming to the survivor in case of death you needn't either of you begrudge the Astors or Vanderbilts. Sarah, you can dress in the most expensive mourning, and Jim, you can wear patent leather shoes and hear Niagara roar till you get tired of it."

It was Squire Jones who was responsible for the insurance, but it was Aunt Deborah who was responsible for what resulted. The policies had been carefully laid away in the bottom bureau drawer and the subject talked out when Aunt Deborah came visiting one afternoon. She had not been invited, nor was she expected, but she proceeded to make herself at home, and by and by announced:

"Sarah, I have heard that you and James have had your lives insured for each other's benefit, but I told 'em you were not the woman to go into anything like that."

"But we have," replied Sarah. "We were insured two weeks ago."

"Upon my soul! No one could have made me believe it."

"But why? What's the matter."

"Sarah Harper, do you know that you have the same as doomed yourself to death?" asked Aunt Deborah, in a hoarse whisper.

"What do you mean, Aunty?"

"I mean that there isn't a man on the face of this earth who wouldn't kill his wife for the sake of $2,000 in cash. That insurance is a temptation to murder. Hundreds of wives have been killed off every year, and you will be one of them to go before another year rolls over your head."

The young wife laughed merrily at the idea, but Aunt Deborah grew more solemn and serious, and said:

"Don't fool yourself, Sarah. Jim is just as good a husband as any of 'em, but you have put temptation in his way. He'll be thinking of them $2,000 all the time, and the longer he thinks the easier it will come for him to murder you. Two thousand dollars in cash and you out of the way so that he can marry again is more'n he can stand up under. I shan't be a bit surprised any day to hear that you have been found murdered. Squire Jones ought to be prosecuted for coaxing you into such a thing, and I'll tell him so before the week is out."

Sarah continued to laugh and make fun at the idea, and it was finally dropped to take up soft soap and carpet rags. When she set about getting supper Aunt Deborah made a sneak outdoors and caught the husband as he came up from the cornfield.

"Well," she began, after he greeted her, "you want Sarah to chop you up with the ax or pour melted lead in your ears, I see?"

"What is it, aunty?"

"It's that life insurance. Henry Harper, I'm astonished at you. Do you know how many wives killed their husbands last year to get the insurance?"

"A million perhaps, but Sarah isn't going to kill me."

"Time will tell, James; time will tell. Sarah is sweet and lovely and innocent, but when there's $2,000 at stake who can tell what a woman will do? With this farm and all that money behind her if she was a widow she can catch a better looking man than you."

The good natured young man continued to laugh, and at the supper table his wife laughed with him as they chaffed Aunt Deborah, but the old lady continued to shake her head and reply:

"Wait till the ax or the melted lead get to work and then we'll see whether there is anything to laugh at or not."

That night at midnight Sarah woke up with her heart beating rapidly. She was about to nudge Henry with her elbow, when a sudden thought came to her. Aunt Deborah's grewsome predictions came up, and she wondered if she had been awakened by some move on her husband's part—some move to take her by the throat. She smiled at first, but presently the smile faded away. Wives had been killed that the husband might profit by the insurance. Aunt Deborah was always predicting, but at the same time many of her predictions had come true. She knew that Henry loved her with a great love, but there was that $2,000. For an hour she lay awake and thought, and the longer she thought the more miserable she was.

Sarah had only fallen into a troubled sleep when the dog barked and Henry awoke. He did not get up for fear of disturbing his wife, and after listening to the dog for a few minutes the thought of Aunt Deborah's predictions and solemn face came to his mind.

He grinned at the idea of Sarah killing him off for that $2,000, and yet he began to recall cases where wives had done that same thing. She could push him into the well, push him down the cellar stairs or dispose of him in other ways to enable her to escape detection, and with that $2,000 she would be a rich widow, and windmill men, wire fence men, piano agents and men with patent farm gates would tumble over each other to ask for her hand. She might not even put a $10 headstone at his grave.

There was constraint between them when the couple woke up next morning. They tried to make out that there wasn't, but realized that there was. Sarah claimed to have a headache, and James said he had a touch of rheumatism.

At noon when the husband came up from the field he had been thinking things over and almost wished he had turned Aunt Deborah out of the house. She was a meddlesome, gossipy old thing, and he would let nothing she had said annoy him in the least. Sarah had also been thinking, and about the same thoughts, and so there was a return of love and confidence.

It did not last thirty-six hours, however. Henry had to sharpen the ax, and Sarah saw him at it and felt that he was contemplating a crime. Sarah asked if the handle of a table knife could not be made fast by a little melted lead, and Henry said to himself after answering her question:

"Ah, ha! Got melted lead on her mind, has she? Well, I've got to look out for my ears."

For the next four weeks the pair were hypocrites toward each other. They dissembled and deceived. They thought black thoughts of each other. James wanted to sleep in the barn o' nights, and Sarah wanted to go home and tell her mother all about it. Things were hastening on toward a separation when, as they sat on the veranda one night after supper, saying little, but thinking a great deal, farmer Joe Collins came driving along and halted to say:

"Say, you folks heard the news?"

"No. What is it?"

"It'll take your breath away."

"But let's have it."

"Wall, that life insurance company you are insured in has busted higher'n Gilroy's kite!"

"Oh, James!"

"Oh, Sarah!"

And as they went dancing around the veranda in each other's arms Mr. Collins looked at them in astonishment and said to himself:

"By George, but they seem to be durned glad of it!"

And so they were.

A Little Misunderstanding.

"A young lady I know," said an Englishman, "got married last year in London and had only been keeping house a week or two when a cousin in the country sent her a brace of pheasants. Some people like to 'hang' pheasants—to keep them a week or two, letting them get 'high,' on the ground that the fresh flesh is tough and stringy. The cook knew this, but her young mistress knew nothing—positively nothing—of cooking.

"'Please, ma'am,' said the cook when the pheasants arrived, 'do you like the birds 'igh?'

"'The bird's eye?' said the mistress, puzzled.

"'What I mean, ma'am,' the cook explained, 'is that some folks likes their birds stale.'

"'The tail?' repeated the mistress, more puzzled than ever.

"And then, in order not to appear ignorant in the cook's eyes, she smiled brightly and said:

"'Prepare the birds, please, with the eyes and the tail both.'"

Drank a Hogshead of Wine.

Of the great scholar and writer, George Buchanan, it is related that he was told by his doctors that if he abstained from wine he might live five or six years and that if he continued to drink he could hold out three weeks at longest.

"Get you gone," he exclaimed, "with your prescriptions and your course of diet and know that I would rather live three weeks and be drunk every day than six years without drinking wine!"

He was as good as his word. Having discharged his physician, like a desperate man, he ordered a hogshead of grape wine to be set at his bed's head, resolved to see the bottom of it before he died, and he carried himself so valiantly that he emptied it to the lees.—Blackwood's Magazine.

THE PINK KIMONO

By IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

It lay on the massive settee in the hall, an innocent looking parcel, flat and somewhat square. Three of Warwick's letters lay on top of it, neatly, as the hall boy had placed them, also his weekly paper from home.

Warwick glanced at the letters, again at the clock, tossed off his hat, coat and gloves and carried the whole lot, parcel, letters and paper, into the comfortable study and dropped into a deep chair.

There was an hour before the crowd would arrive. Everything was ready. The spread would be sent up at 8:30 sharp. He hoped Stanton would be able to get away. He liked Stanton. The boy needed a good friendly grip just now. He knew himself what it was to be in New York a stranger. Money could not give one the password that admitted one to the inside of things, the "getting next to the itness of all," as Stanton said. And if the right path did not open, and one happened to be lonely, there were others wide and welcoming. Warwick knew.

The boy was young and clever. The only thing that ailed him was too much money, and the confidence he had therein. He was a bit handy with it all—the whirl and the swing and the chance for big success. Warwick had kept an eye on him for weeks, measuring and judging him, and now he was satisfied. All the boy needed was direction and a cool hand checking him now and then, and he would win out.

Warwick opened the weekly paper from home and smiled to himself at the familiar heading, the Weekly Visitor. Ever since he could remember the Weekly Visitor had visited regularly at the quiet, big gray house that crowned Warwick's hill, up in Hillsboro, N. H. And Stanton was from the country, too, some place out west, out in Nebraska. He wondered if he had a weekly paper, too, to keep him in touch with the old world, and the ethics and standards of something besides New York.

The letters were unimportant. He took up the parcel and slipped off the cord. Laundry probably. He had not ordered anything.

The paper fell to the floor and he sat staring at the thing in his hands. It was a pink, delicate, shimmering, silken thing. He stood up and shook it out to its full length. It reached to the floor. It was not a bath robe. It could not possibly be a smoking jacket. It was a woman's garment, unmistakably.

The texture was the softest Japanese crape, the silk interwoven around the sleeves and neck in a border of golden butterflies. There was no mark on it nor on the paper. Warwick looked carefully.

The door bell buzzed imperatively, once, twice and a long one. That was Billy Trainor's ring. Warwick hesitated, cast the pink silk thing behind him on the chair and opened the door.

Billy stepped in smilingly, interrogatively looked about the room and spied the pink silk thing.

"Rex," he said reproachfully; "why, Rex!"

"It was left here by mistake," said Warwick hastily. "The hall boy did it. What is it?"

Billy lifted it by the shoulders and beamed with the appreciative eye of a connoisseur.

"It's a kimono, the real imported article. No bargain sale. Who's the lucky lady?"

The door bell buzzed again. Warwick took the kimono with deliberate forethought, went to the wardrobe in his dressing room and concealed it therein.

"It's Stanton," Billy announced, "and the rest."

Warwick played the host with more inner discomfort than ever before in his life. It was not the mere fact of the mistake that troubled him, nor that he minded the boys knowing of it, but he didn't want to see that particular—what had Billy called it?—kimono?—handled and laughed about and speculated over. Somewhere there must be the girl who wanted that kimono. He hoped she was a brunette. Pink was best for brunettes. Not too much of a brunette, perhaps with blue eyes, or gray—yes, gray—a gray eye or so.

Billy was pushing back the chairs and taborets for the spread. Stanton was singing at the piano. Out in the kitchenette Yates and Rogers and the Danforths were rummaging for dishes and knives and forks. Big De Vean was up on the divan with its red Turkish cover draped picturesquely about him; reciting some original poetry.

"Rex, don't you own a decent tablecloth, you beggar?" called Yates.

Warwick smoked without replying. Through the haze he saw the brunette girl with the pink kimono about her smiling deliciously like a geisha—no, he didn't want her to be a geisha—smiling, well, just as a girl should smile when she had the right one to smile at.

Stanton left the piano and came over.

"Say, you're a prince to get me here tonight," he said. "I didn't know you had a place like this. Beats hotels, doesn't it? What do you call it?"

"Studio apartment," said Warwick, lazily. "Half den, half home, not confined to bachelors. I like it. When a fellow's had a home, it always sticks to him a bit. There's a Jap comes in and cleans up for me, and if I want a meal, I can have it."

"I—I am going to housekeeping too," began Stanton awkwardly.

"Honeymoon?" Warwick's eyes lighted with amusement. He had not dreamed the boy had gone so far.

"No, not as bad as that," Stanton hesitated, glancing at the joyous, riotous crowd about the piano. "It's my sister. Mother's sent her on to take care of me until she can come herself. I guess they didn't get very good accounts of their little boy in Manhattan. But I wrote home and told them about you and what sort of a chap you were and how you had taken me under your wing, and I promised to cut out the hotel and—well, a whole lot of things mother didn't like the flavor of and today"—

"Whoopee!" yelled Yates from the dressing room. "I've found Warry's tablecloth. It's a dream!"

Warwick sat up and dropped his cigarette. Waltzing dizzily, radiantly, wickedly out from the dressing room came Yates, arrayed in the pink silk kimono. There was a silence, then a long drawn howl of delight from the crowd. They caught Yates in their arms, and swept him up on the center table. They handed him a Samoan fan of dyed plumes and a Mexican peaked hat. Trainor at the piano crashed into the "San Toy" overture. And suddenly Warwick stood up, white and mad, mad clear through that they should dare even in jest to touch anything that belonged to the dear, unknown girl, the brunette with the gray eyes.

"Take that off!" he said.

The music stopped short, but not from his words. Every face in the crowd was turned toward the door of the hall, and Yates looked helpless and miserable. Warwick turned, too, and held his breath. She stood in the doorway, one hand lifting aside the heavy drapery. Behind her was George, the colored hall boy. Her face looked startled, and yet there was amusement, too, in the wide gray eyes, as they glanced from face to face and finally rested on Yates.

"There is some mistake, I think," she said gently. "George tells me a parcel of mine was left here tonight. I have only moved here today, and he made a mistake. I think that gentleman has on my kimono."

Wretched, limp and apologetic, Yates was assisted from the table, and divested of the pink silk gown.

"I am sorry to spoil your amusement"— she stopped, and turned her head toward Warwick as the host, when all at once her eyes met Stanton's.

"Marjorie!" he gasped. "Marjorie, you blessed kid!"

Silently and discreetly the crowd averted its composite face while Stanton kissed Marjorie ecstatically. Warwick looked unhappy.

"Boys," cried Stanton, "this is my sister, all the way from Nebraska to Manhattan to take care of her little brother."

"Mother is here, too," Marjorie explained, blushing at the effusive welcome accorded her. "We had the address of these apartments and you wrote that they were very nice, you know, and that Mr. Warwick lived here"—

"That's Warwick," interposed Stanton. "He's a bully fellow."

Warwick bowed. Suddenly he felt a great, supreme gladness steal over him. She had gray eyes, Stanton's sister from Nebraska.

"So we came right here from the depot, and mother wanted to surprise you by having everything ready. I bought my kimono on the way here, because our trunks haven't come yet, and the boy made a mistake delivering it. We have the apartment just across the hall."

"Boys," cried Stanton, "come on to the apartment across the hall and be introduced. You've got to make us welcome, because we've come to stay."

Decorously and quietly the crowd crossed to the apartment next door. With dignity and beautiful grace they were introduced to Stanton's mother and to Stanton's home, and Stanton knew he was accepted and admitted forever to the "itness of things."

But Warwick sat in a corner watching Marjorie make tea, tea from his teapot, which the Jap servant had brought over, and over the back of her chair hung the pink silk kimono. He was wondering how she would look in it.

"Sugar?" she asked. "One or two, Mr. Warwick?"

"Two," said Warwick, with a half suppressed sigh. "Say, do you know Mar—Miss Stanton, I'm awfully glad you're a brunette, with gray eyes."

"Why?" Marjorie's head bent lower over the teapot. Tea making does require so much careful attention.

"Because," said Warwick, "pink is so becoming to that type."

"And to Mr. Yates' type, too," laughed Marjorie, but her face was flushed as she slipped the pink kimono around her, over her gray traveling suit, and poured the tea a la Japanese for the crowd, and for Warwick.

Grasshopper Glacier.

One of the small glaciers in Montana is of special interest on account of the fact that in the mass of ice there are imbedded two strata of grasshoppers, each about a foot thick. There are literally tons of grasshoppers in the ice, and the question naturally arises as to where they came from. The most obvious explanation is that centuries ago two enormous swarms in course of migration were caught in a snowstorm, chilled and buried in the snow, where they have remained till now in a perfect state of preservation. In the accounts of the early western explorers a few instances are related of meeting large swarms of locusts on the mountain tops in the Rockies. It is a very fortunate circumstance that the great extension of agriculture in the west has broken up the breeding grounds of these insects.—St. Louis Republic.

The First Coins.

The first coins were struck in brass about 1184 B. C. and in gold and silver by Pheidon, tyrant of Argos, about 862 B. C.

Toast.

Butter a slice of bread, then toast the side not buttered. When nicely brown turn the buttered side to the fire long enough to let the butter soak into the bread. This makes a much nicer toast for invalids and elderly people than the ordinary toast.

Borneo Clubs.

The famous savage clubs of Borneo were modeled after a thorny fruit which grows wild in that island.

Shoe Blacking Flower.

An Australian flower of the hibiscus species is often used as blacking, the juice squeezed from four blossoms giving enough liquid to coat a shoe with a fine luster.

Fowling and Falconry.

Fowling and falconry were practiced by the ancient Greeks, but were carried to greater perfection in mediaeval England.

The Burning Tree.

The leaves and stems of the "burning tree" of India are covered with stinging hairs after the manner of the common nettle, but are of a far more virulent nature. When touched the sensation felt is as of being burned with redhot iron, the pain extending over other parts of the body and lasting several days.

Early Ink.

For several centuries an infusion of nutgalls treated with sulphate of iron composed the only known ink.

Towns In Holland.

The country in which the large towns are most nearly equidistant is Holland. They are at an average distance of twenty miles from one another.

Snails.

Compared with oysters, snails contain about 100 per cent more nutritious substance.

Official English Wigs.

The king's footmen wear wigs which have eight rows of curls, whereas those of the Prince of Wales are allowed but seven rows and those of the lord mayor of London have only six.

A Snail's Pace.

A snail's rate of travel was ascertained by experiments in Florence. Half a dozen snails were permitted to crawl between two points ten feet apart. Exact time was kept from the start to the finish, and thus the average pace was learned. The figures were then put into tables of feet, yards and furlongs, and it was found that it would take a snail exactly fourteen days to travel a mile.

Three Baths.

The Abyssinian peasant is bathed but thrice in his life—at birth, at marriage and at death.

Brain Workers.

Brain workers are proved to be long lived. Five hundred and thirty eminent men and women were taken as a basis, and their duration of life gives an average of about sixty-eight and a half years.

If the Earth and Moon Should Meet.

The scientists have discussed the question, What would be the result if the earth and the moon should come in collision? The general opinion seems to be that it would result in the temperature of the earth rising several thousands of degrees and its whole surface being converted into a boiling ocean by the waters being thrown out of place.

The Teeth of Tibet.

The most perfect teeth in the world are said to be those of the Tibetans, although there is not a toothbrush in the whole country and no form of cleansing the teeth is ever practiced.

Distribution of Population.

Of every 1,000 inhabitants of the globe 558 live in Asia, 242 in Europe, 111 in Africa, 32 in America, 5 in Oceania and the polar regions and only 2 in Australia. Asia contains more than one-half of the total population of the earth and Europe nearly one-fourth.

Torture In Africa.

Among African tribes it is customary to torture prisoners of war. One of the legs of a prisoner is pushed through a hole in a heavy log and a spike driven through to hold it in place.

Mixed Metaphor.

The bar furnishes some happy examples of mixed metaphor, such as this aquatic opening: "These gentlemen have fished about until they have found a mare's nest, and on that they hang their bill." The latest addition to this class of mixed utterances comes from a detective agency which states that its officers "thought they had a good clew, but it exploded."

The Butcher Bird.

The shrike or butcher bird hangs out a bait for his prey. After killing a large insect or small bird he impales its remains on a thorn or twig and waits for other insects or birds to be attracted.

Stone Cream.

Stone cream is a very simple recipe. First dissolve half an ounce of gelatin in a little water; then add to it a pint of sweetened milk which has been boiled with lemon peel. As soon as it is cold pour this slowly over a layer of jam in a deep glass dish. When quite set stick strips of blanched almonds into the cream and serve.

EYE-STRAIN, CONTINUED.

The subject of Eye-Strain, including the need of wearing glasses, has for some years been rapidly forcing itself into prominence and has assumed an importance far beyond expectation. It is in no sense a "fashion" or "fad," though there are many such in medicine. The eyes are, and have been in the past, the unsuspected cause of a great variety of nervous disturbances that were never understood and never satisfactorily explained. Modern methods of study, which have lately accomplished such wonders in all branches of science, when applied to the eye have brought order and truth out of what had been a tangle of theory, supposition and uncertainty. The eye has always been studied simply as a part of the body, under physiology; it needed to be studied as an optical instrument, under optics, a branch of science in which our knowledge is mathematically accurate. It is found to be an actual fact that eye-strain is often the principal factor producing nervous debility hysteria, melancholia, vertigo, nausea, insomnia, nervous dyspepsia, palpitation, general nervousness, irritability, faintness, weariness, headaches, constipation, "brain fag," and dozens of other annoying conditions. We remove the cause of all these with the proper glasses.

Gypsies Made Things Lively.

IN THE VICINITY OF CANIFTON LAST NIGHT, AND PAID FOR THEIR FUN THIS MORNING.

Last evening John Whiteman, who resides near the village of Canifton, came to the city and procured a warrant for the arrest of one Williamson and wife, gypsies, who he accused of doing damage to his house. It appears that the plaintiff's house is situated near where the defendants and other gypsies are camped. Williamson and his wife came to Whiteman's place after tea, and acted in a most disorderly manner, and went so far as to throw stones through the windows. Both were subsequently placed under arrest by County Constable Duffin, on the warrant issued by the Magistrate.

This morning the accused were up before Magistrate Flint and admitted the offence. They agreed to pay all damages and costs in the matter, which was satisfactory, and after the payment of the same they were allowed to go. Mrs. Williamson appeared in court with her head bandaged up, the result, it is alleged, of a quarrel which she was engaged in with some other members of the party.

Mr. Anderson represented the Crown in the case, and the accused were undefended.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"RED FEATHER" LAST NIGHT.

"Good house; fine performance" just about covers last night's happenings at the Carman. "Red Feather," which held the boards, was one of the very finest attractions seen in this city for many a long day. The cast, chorus, costumes and scenery were of the very best.

Red Feather is a comic opera with a great many distinctive features and at times a tinge of drama was displayed, lending a more substantial setting to the dainty plot which circles around the love and political intrigues of the Countess Hilda Von Draga, who also appears as the mysterious Red Feather in the closing scene. Captain Trevors, a stalwart soldier, seeks the heart and hand of the Countess, but he makes a wager with the Crown Prince of Romancia and his rival, to capture Red Feather or lose his titles and his name in the army of Romancia. His efforts to take Red Feather single handed are fruitless until the conclusion of the last act, when the Countess appears in his costume just as he was about to be taken prisoner.

Cheridah Simpson in the title role is an accomplished actress and cut a rather striking figure in her various costumes. She has a soprano voice of considerable strength, which showed to advantage in "The Garden of Dreams." The baritone and tenor of the company played the parts of the Crown Prince and Captain Trevors, respectively, and in the song "The Prince of Good Fellows," the former made a decided hit. Three comedians were among the cast and whenever they appeared, with the least effort easily provoked to mirth the big audience. The comic Baron Strauss, who made the hit of the evening, acts in an easy manner and quite neglects to strain himself to maintain the humerous vein of the piece. The others were a disguised Colonel and nondescript personage not unlike the style of "Sunny Jim," of Force renown. Their dancing in concert was also a feature, and the funny way in which they played their respective roles appealed delightfully to the listeners. The little Baron made a hit in the song "They All Looked at Me," and the Colonel in "The Humorous Ghost."

The costumes were unusually fine and fairly cracked with newness and the chorus work was excellent.

A THEATRICAL TREAT.

One of the most successful musical plays that is now being presented is "A Trip to the Highlands," which is booked to appear at the Carman on Friday evening. It is a refined musical play, free from slap stick comedy, and contains a bright and sufficient plot with a chain of incidents better connected, and more consecutive than is usually found in plays of this sort. Such are the features that have won a verdict of approval. What stands for success in "A Trip to the Highlands." There is the captivating chain of neat lyrics and catchy melodies, and there is the deep interest we feel in the first appearance here of the popular Scotch humorist, Spottiswoode Aitken.

Boys Caught a Fox.

At a few minutes after 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, some boys brought to the police station a small fox which they had caught. It appears that the animal belongs to a family named Foote, who reside near No. 1 fire hall, and it had escaped from its place of abode. It was returned to its owner.

There is nothing that takes away the beautiful, womanly charms like a plodding, stooped, awkward carriage. There is absolutely no excuse for that as long as Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is made. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—D M. Waters.

The Deseronto Stabbing Affray.

PRISONER WAS ARRAIGNED, BUT CASE WAS ENLARGED FOR A WEEK.

On Tuesday, at Deseronto, the preliminary examination was commenced in the case of Archie Green, who is accused of inflicting grievous bodily harm upon one Andrew Culbertson, an Indian of the Mohawk Reserve. It appears that a few days ago an altercation took place at Deseronto between the parties, and Green used a knife and stabbed Culbertson in the back, inflicting a serious wound.

The wounded man was not able to appear at the investigation, and only the evidence of Dr. Vandervoort, who is attending him, was taken. The Doctor described the wound as a serious one, but did not consider that it would by any means prove fatal. An enlargement of the case was made for a week, when Culbertson may be able to appear and give evidence. In the meantime Green will remain in the jail here

Mr. Anderson, County Attorney, conducted the prosecution.

Phillips Denies Theft.

CROWN CLAIMS PIANO COMPANY AND YORK COUNTY LOAN WERE IDENTICAL CONCERNS — HIS BAIL $5,000.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—Joseph Phillips, bronzed and smiling, was arraigned before Judge Winchester in the Sessions this morning on the indictment returned against him yesterday by the Grand Jury. He pleaded not guilty, and on application of Mr. Arthur Ardagh, the case was traversed to the December sittings. He pleaded that material witnesses were absent and it was impossible for him to get ready for trial, as another charge had been laid, and not the one on which Phillips had been committed at the police court.

The former financier who has been in charge of the bathing beach at Sunnyside this summer, renewed his bail, Mr. A. M. Robberlin again becoming surety on a bond of $5,000.

The Grand Jury is still investigating Phillips' conduct in connection with the company, and may be engaged for some time.

The charge on which Phillips now stands indicted arises out of his connection with the Liszt Piano Co.

The company had an account with the Bank of Montreal, which was opened by Phillips, and money could only be withdrawn by cheques signed by him. The Crown claims that the Liszt Piano Co. was in reality the York County Loan and Savings Co. It is alleged that Phillips drew a cheque on this account for $2,500 and handed it over to the York Loan to be applied by that company to his credit as a payment of his on the purchase price of a house, No. 171 Macdonnell avenue, which he was buying from the company.

Y.W.C.T.U. Officers

The Y.W.C.T.U. held their first annual meeting on Sept. 25th. The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows:

President—Mrs. Williams.
Rec. Sec.—Miss Margaret Sanders.
Cor. Sec.—Miss Edna Farley
Treasurer—Miss M. Mallory.

The meeting was well attended and the work promises to go on with more enthusiasm. The next meeting will be Tuesday, Oct. 9th, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the President.

Theft at Tweed.

The till at F. Diyoume's barber shop was relieved of a sum of money one day last week, says the Tweed News. Mr. Diyoume is perfectly satisfied that the work was done by some of the riffraff brought here by the American-Madoc Mining Co. to work at the Bogart mine. Several of these men were in his shop, some in the pool room and a couple in the barber shop. Those in the pool room called to him to arrange the balls for another game and on returning to the barber shop to put the money for the previous game in the till he found that it was empty. On looking around he also missed a razor. Being alone in the shop Mr. Diyoume could not leave to summon assistance, otherwise the thief might have been taken in charge.

Railway Wreck At Tweed Village

Tweed, Oct. 4.—Shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon, as the west bound way freight was backing down east of the C.P.R. bridge for the purpose of shunting some cars into the Powder Co.'s siding, a west bound freight, consisting of six cars and caboose, crashed into the caboose of the way freight. Some three or four cars were completely wrecked and thrown into the ditch alongside of the track. The engine of the west bound freight telescoped the caboose of the way freight. Fortunately there was no one in the caboose at the time, and the engine of the west bound freight was not seriously damaged, nor was anyone injured to the slightest extent.

It is impossible to state where the responsibility rests. The brakes were applied to the through train, but not soon enough to materially reduce its speed.

SELL STALE EGGS.

KINGSTON MERCHANTS COMPLAIN THAT FARMERS HOLD THEM TOO LONG FOR A RAISE IN PRICE.

Kingston merchants according to the News, are complaining that many decayed eggs are being sold to them which are supposed to be fresh. A commission merchant was asked about the matter, and this was what he said.

"Farmers are bringing in stale eggs, and the city people are the victims. Expecting a raise in price, they have held their eggs for weeks instead of bringing them in when fresh laid. The price has gone up some points, but no much. Eggs at wholesale are selling for 18 cents a dozen. The retailers are disposing of them at 20 and 21 cents a dozen. The present scarcity of fresh eggs has not been experienced by us for many years."

A man was fined in the Ottawa police court the other morning for packing stale eggs. This is what the judge said to him;

"Selling eggs that are bad is one of the meanest tricks that one could do," remarked the magistrate in fining Otto. "Despite your denials, Mr. Otto I believe that you purposely packed those eggs, the good ones on top and the bad ones below to deceive Mr. Brown. You could not have done a meaner act, because you apparently did it with the intention of defrauding poor people, some of whom depend entirely upon the business which they do at the market for their living. I fine you $20 and $2 costs, and hope that your experience will prove a lesson to others. If you repeat the offence you will be given far greater punishment."

The Intelligencer this morning interviewed some local grocerymen, and asked them if they had any complaints to make about the eggs brought in by the farmers. The replies spoke well for the farmers of this district. No complaints to make at all they said. The eggs were good. The only trouble was they couldn't get enough of them.

Ladies' Missionary Gathering.

The auxiliary of the Presbyterian churches of this city held a united meeting yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's lecture room, which was well attended and very enjoyable. Mrs. (Rev.) McKay, of Madoc, the Presbyterial president, gave an interesting account of the annual meeting recently held in Winnipeg. The work of the women of the church, not only throughout this country but also in China, India, Corea, etc., was described as reported by the delegates in attendance. Much advance had been made in overcoming heathen prejudices, and in India especially a remarkable spiritual blessing had been experienced. Refreshments and a social hour closed the meeting.

New London Witnesses Swear to Receiving Bribes.

Jerry Collins So Ubiquitous As to Know Whether Voters Registered For Hyman or Not—Wm. Serviss Acquitted of Charge Against Him and Put In Box But Makes Unsatisfactory Witness—Gives Him Time to Think.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Yesterday London witnesses continued before Police Magistrate Denison to testify to receiving money to vote for Mr. Hyman. The ruling price was $10.

Arthur Bentley was promised $10 if he would vote for Hyman. He voted for Gray and didn't get the money.

Charles Leach was paid $9 in Lewis' hotel, Jerry Collins having kept $1 for his rake-off.

Ubiquitous Jerry Collins

Alfred Gatecliff swore that Jerry Collins said he was deputy of a subdivision, and would know how every man voted.

David Thomas remembered voting, but he didn't know whom he voted for. He said his memory had failed him seven or eight years ago.

William Serviss was acquitted of the charge against him, and gave indefinite evidence.

The magistrate said that if Mr. Buchner, returning officer, did not appear in court, a warrant would be issued for his arrest.

Not Telling the Truth.

The magistrate took Serviss severely to task for the nature of his evidence.

Magistrate Denison: "This man is not telling the truth, he is beating around, he says he does not remember, but, when pressed, admits what he is asked. He is shirking. He has not forgotten. He is trying to mislead the examiner. It is hard to drag the truth out of him; he is trying to cover up crime."

As Serviss was leaving the box he remarked: "Think it all over by to-morrow, and try to remember more."

TEN DOLLAR BILLS IN N. S.

Current Price of Votes Figures in Bluenose Election Case.

Annapolis, N. S., Oct. 4.—Two cases of especial interest were before the Supreme Court here yesterday. They were brought by A. Davidson, Conservative provincial organizer, against parties accused of bribery in the interests of T. A. Daniels, M. P. P.

Fred Armstrong of Round Hill, admitted bribing a voter to vote for Mr. Daniels with $10. His counsel asked that the full penalty of $100 for the offence be not imposed. Judge Townshend took the matter in consideration.

In the other case, in which Z. Hall, postmaster of Hampton, Annapolis County, was alleged to have offered $5 bribes to various voters to vote for Mr. Daniels, the case was allowed to proceed to trial. The defendant failed to put in an appearance. Two witnesses, Saundler and Taylor, testified that Hall offered them $5 to vote for Daniels. Judgment was reserved in this case.

Phillips Case Traversed.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—The York County Loan smashup was recalled, when Joseph Phillips, the manager, was arraigned before Judge Winchester in the sessions yesterday on a charge of stealing $2,500. At the request of Arthur Ardagh, the case was traversed to the December sessions. Phillips pleaded not guilty. A. M. Hobberlin again became bail bondsman for $5,000.

McINTOSH BROS.

HON. GEORGE E. FOSTER

Not Able to Engage in Politics and Make Money at Same Time.

Former Manager of Union Trust Co. Makes a Statement to the Insurance Commission—Tells of His Dealings in British Columbia Land Transactions—Mr. Peter Ryan Also Makes a Statement—Got No Part of $55,000.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Peter Ryan, at his own request, went into the witness box when the Insurance Commission opened yesterday and made the following statement:

"My first connection with this business was when a few years ago I was induced to put $15,000 in an industrial enterprise in British Columbia. This led on from $15,000 till I was out about $200,000, and in addition to that another shareholder invested $50,000. We borrowed $45,000 more from the Bank of Hamilton. I was not receiving any interest and no principal. I felt my capital was being exhausted, and I expressed the wish to sell out. Mr. Levesconte secured for me a customer, and I was glad to get the customer, although I was selling the property, remember, cheap. I do hold out this—I did not give due consideration to the importance of the changing of the consideration. I never stipulated nor did I receive a portion of that.

"I was doing business with Mr. Fowler. Mr. Fowler asked me to do it. I wasn't one of their Levites; I wasn't even worshipping in the temple, looking upon it as an ordinary occurrence.

No Apology to Offer.

"I have no apology to offer; I admit the ethics were not exalted and when you consider I was very heavily involved and I was anxious to get rid of the property, it presented an attraction to me. My arrangements were carried out in good faith, as far as I was concerned. They sued me for the $225,000, which it is very true I received, but of which a portion had been handed back to Mr. Fowler.

"I kept no portion of the excess back; I gave them fair count, a fair deal and a fair divide. Do not forget I was doing business not only for myself, but for four other beneficiaries.

"I regret very much my name has been bandied up and down about 'letters to Ryan,' etc. The simple substance of what I did was I made out the transfer at $225,000 instead of $170,000, which is done time and again by men who do not consider it wrong.

"There is no evidence which can be produced that I care about. Mr. Shepley shakes his head in my face as though there was something I kept back. My testimony in British Columbia was the truth.

"No one in the room there dared contradict me, although there was a roomful of the 'whelps.' I have given the Commission the truth of the statement."

Mr. Fowler's Accounts.

Assistant Manager Shurman of the Bank of Nova Scotia was next called and explained the account of Fowler, which had been opened Nov. 4, 1903, with $15,000 and reduced by Feb. 9, 1904, to $17.30, but on that day the $12,000 cheque from Peter Ryan was deposited. By March 21, however, the account was reduced to $421. Sums paid out included $1,000 to Irving, $1,000 to McCormack, $2,500 to Foster, $100 to Borden and $200 to McNab. On May 11 a cheque for $11,000 from Peter Ryan was deposited, and on June 11 Fowler deposited $10,000, of which $5,000 was a Ryan cheque. On July 4 a cheque for $20,000 from the Union Trust was banked on the purchase of the Okanagon Lumber Co. On Nov. 1 and 22 other deposits of $40,000 and $20,000 were made by Fowler, and on like sums were paid over by the Kamloops Lumber Co. to Fowler. The sum of $57,855.48 changed hands Feb. 1, 1905. Now only $27.44 was left to the credit of Fowler.

Mr. Shepley went into the joint account of Pope and Fowler, beginning with the sum of $20,000 on Sept. 2, 1903. On Sept. 8, $14,000 was chequed out, the marks, the witness believed, indicating Mackenzie and Mann, $2,000 went to Lefurgey, and other sums were transferred to Ottawa.

Mr. Foster on the Stand.

Hon. George E. Foster was called. He said he was made an honorary member of the Foresters.

After the deal was all through, Fowler had given him an option in a portion of his shares at the par value, plus interest and expense.

"It was intended to give you an interest in the capital stock of the Kamloops Co. which was not disclosed?"

"It was not disclosed."

"What means did you take of ascertaining the value of the property you were acquiring?"

Mr. Foster said the board had gone fully into the matter, had maps of the property and had sent two gentlemen to make a thorough examination of the British Columbia property. They reported favorably as to location and cost.

"Who were these?"

"Messrs. McCormack and Irwin. I have always regarded Mr. Irwin as a straight man and an authority on lumber, and Mr. McCormack was also a lumberman."

Irwin had dropped out rather than join in a joint note.

"There were two principles the board acted on, one that in any considerable investment, it would not be made if one or two directors strongly objected; another invariable rule was that the outside directors, representing but a small number, never insisted on a single investment which had not the assent of the Foresters," said witness.

"What was the reason for adopting that policy?"

"To undertake a profitable investment and to make money out of it for the company."

"Had you any discussion as to the wisdom of a trust company carrying on a manufacturing business?"

"Yes; I don't remember there was any objection. The board was a unit on the transaction."

A Statement.

When Mr. Shepley broached the payment to Mr. Foster of $2,500 by Fowler as indicated by the bank accounts, Mr. Foster made the following statement:

"First, that in so far as any interest, actual or prospective, in any of the properties bought by the Kamloops Co., I had no interest at all, consequently there was no inducement for me to have these properties purchased. Secondly, the prices that were paid for these several properties were the actual prices that went into the hands of the people who sold them, and that no inducement was ever offered to me to induce me to favor this purchase; that I never received one dollar of commission with reference to these transactions. Now, you ask me for an explanation as to a cheque paid me by Fowler?"

"Yes, and apparently from that very deposit?"

"Well, I will make the explantion to which I think you are entitled.

"Not being a lawyer and having been in politics for a number of years, I am not rich, having had some difficulty in bearing up under the financial burden. From the time I left the ministry, it has not been a pleasant road for me to travel, but I have traveled it. About the year 1904-5 I had large obligations which had been incurred long before, but which came to a head then and had to be met. These obligations were on account of debentures, transactions and businesses into which I had gone. I was unable to meet these out of my own funds and had to call on a number of my old friends to assist me. At the present time I have discharged these obligations. I called on Mr. Fowler, with whom I had business transactions for twenty years.

Was a Loan.

"I did receive money from Mr. Fowler, this $2,500 included, on account of a transaction which has nothing to do with the Union Trust Co., the Kamloops, or any other company in which the Foresters are interested.

"He paid me," continued Mr. Foster, "not only the $2,500 referred to, but other sums as well. They were $5,000, but would not exceed $7,500. That is as near as I can say."

"They were not absolutely advances out of pure accommodation. Mr. Fowler and I were in other transactions, a gold mining deal. Mr. Fowler guaranteed me a certain interest. It was supposed that this interest was secured, but it was afterwards found that it would probably go to another party. This interest was worth as much as the advances. The advances had nothing to do with any commission in any way whatever."

"Did these obligations arise from business or political reasons?"

"I will explain," replied Mr Foster. "I went into politics in 1882 and remained in until 1896, being a Minister the last few years. Afterwards I was a private member. I hadn't that peculiar ability which enabled me to get rich while attending to my political duties. I came out of politics poorer than I went in. I had to go into several business ventures, some of which I regret, some of which I am glad I did. It was only by the assistance of kind friends that I was able to carry them through and Mr. Fowler was one of those friends."

Took No Commission.

"Have you any acknowledgement of this interest you say Mr. Fowler owes you?"

"None in writing. If Mr. Fowler would hand over the interest I would pay back the money."

"Would you mind telling us if you think proper what this interest is?"

"There are a good many others interested, and I do not care to have the matter spread all over the newspapers on the report of this Commission. I give you my oath that this interest exists, and that I have never taken anything in the shape of commission on those transactions. If you are not willing to accept that I am willing to explain to the Commission what that interest is."

The Commissioners did not press witness further.

"Do you know where Mr. Fowler is now?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"No. I saw him last in Toronto about the opening of this court. He said he was going to British Columbia—nothing more definite."

Mr. Shepley then turned to the purchase of the Okanagon property. Mr. Fowler said he relied on Mr. Irwin and Alex. Hamilton for valuation.

"Would your experience persuade you not to go into similar ventures again?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"Experience would teach me not to, chiefly for this reason — I have found it only to me unmitigated trouble and nuisance to try to manage from Toronto industries situate and operating in British Columbia. I have never had any doubt about the prospects of success," was the reply.

Prospects Were Splendid.

Mr. Foster related the organization of the land company. The syndicate knew there would be difficulty in financing it for the first three years. He himself felt that the prospects were splendid for ultimate success, and when it became a matter of getting capital, it was decided to substitute the Union Trust for outside capital.

"You were fully alive to the general objection to directors occupying dual positions?" asked Mr. Shepley.

Mr. Foster thought so.

"Is it, then, fair to say that the proposition appealed so from its intrinsic merit that your belief regarding its propriety was forgotten?"

"We were convinced it was a good investment," said Mr. Foster.

The next stage was the laying of the proposition before the board on June 3, 1903. Those present were Oronhyatekha, Sir John Boyd, George E. Fowler, Matthew Wilson, John A. McGillivray and Col. Davidson.

Says Sir John Boyd Understood.

Here Mr. Shepley stated that Sir John Boyd had said that it was always present to his mind that the gentlemen coming in were to put up their own money.

"What have you to say to that?" he asked.

"I would not dispute Sir John, but nothing was kept back from him. I can't explain his idea."

Mr. Shepley read the minutes to the effect that a loan be made to the New Ontario Town and Farm Sites Co. Mr. Foster said the board approved of the loan in principle, and fixed the amount at $140,000, taking as security the 337 shares of bonus stock.

"Did you recall at that meeting you discussed your own personal interest in the transaction?"

"I can't remember."

"Speaking about the position of directors," said Mr. Shepley, "is what I am after."

Boyd to Get $1,000 Stock for Nothing.

"For its advance of $140,000 the Union Trust Co. were to own 337 1-2 shares. Witness did not know that Oronhyatekha was to get 100 shares, but he did know that Sir John Boyd was to get $1,000 worth of stock for nothing so that he could qualify."

Mr. Shepley read the agreement, and Mr. Foster explained it. The syndicate was to get 445 shares. Witness was to have the regular 10 shares and 7 1-2 more so to avoid division. Union Trust Co. 337 1-2 shares, McGillivray and Wilson 10 each, and Dr. Oronhyatekha 100 shares.

Mr. Shepley wanted to know how the Supreme Chief Ranger came to have these shares.

Mr. Foster said the 100 shares belonged to the syndicate, and that Dr. Oronhyatekha suggested that they be put in his name. He could give no reason for it.

"He was not holding it for the benefit of the three of you?"

"No. In some way he was holding for the benefit of the company, which might return to the owners some time."

Boyd Subscribed For Stock.

Diverting for a minute, Mr. Shepley asked the witness if Sir John Boyd and Schofield had subscribed for stock. Witness said that they had on the understanding that if——

"Why did these three gentlemen, Schofield, Rogers and Boyd, have to subscribe for 40 shares each?" broke in the counsel.

"That was the requirement, that they should subscribe for more than the qualifying amount."

"What was the reason?"

"They got 10 shares of bonus stock."

"Were they allowed to have bonus stock if they subscribed for 40 shares of stock?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"Yes."

Mr. Shepley asked why Col. Davidson and Mr. Stevenson were not taken into the deal, but witness could not tell.

The next minute on July 9 was read. The Great West Land Co. was the new name taken at this time, as it was thought to be a more appropriate name. The provisions of the old charter had nothing to do with it.

The exercise of the option was suggested by Mr. Stevenson, and that in March, 1904, it was carried through.

Mr. Stevenson Objected.

Mr. Foster explained that Mr. Stevenson raised the objection as to the keeping up of the relation between the Union Trust Co. and the Great West Land Co. His reasoning was that it was a better-looking investment for the Union Trust Co. to have a straight loan than to have control of subsidiary companies.

Mr. Shepley went back to the origin of the New West Land Co. when Pope and Fowler got the lands. Witness did not know that they had got in on the ground floor as to price.

"Did you hear about the recent information from Mr. D. Mann about the route of the Canadian Northern?"

"No; I did not."

The stock book was the next worry. Witness had 303 1-5 shares. He had originally 17 1-2 shares, and then he received 148 for his share of the 445 shares, 10 he bought from Pope and Fowler, 112; one-third of the 337 1-2 shares of bonus stock, and 14 shares, one-third share of half the stock taken out at first. Matthew Wilson had 380 shares. McGillivray had 148 shares, J. Walter Curry 5 shares, the original incorporators five shares, and Pope and Fowler 559 shares.

Witness had no interest other than was specified in the stock book.

Mr. Shepley announced that he had a telegram from George W. Fowler to the effect that he was on his way to Toronto.

PILES CURED QUICKLY AT HOME.

WITHOUT PAIN, CUTTING OR SURGERY—INSTANT RELIEF.

WE PROVE IT—SAMPLE PACKAGE FREE.

Seven people out of ten are said to have piles. Not one man in a million need have them, and we are proving it every day at our own expense. We send a sample package of the wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure to any person absolutely free.

We don't do this as a matter of amusement or philanthropy, but because it is to our interest to do so. We know that the sufferer from piles, tormented and driven almost crazy by this wretched trouble, will find such immediate relief that he will go at once to his druggist and buy a box and get well.

We know that we have got the greatest remedy in the world for piles, and we are ready and willing to stand or fall by the verdict of those who make the trial. We have been doing this for some years now and we never yet have had occasion to regret it.

And the remedy at the drug store is exactly the same as the sample we send out. As, for instance, here is a man who got such immediate relief from the sample that he at once bought a box. Was it just the same? Undoubtedly, since it cured him after all sorts and kinds of things had failed.

Here is a sample of the kind of letters we get every day and we don't have to ask for them:

Received your sample of Pile Cure and have given it a fair trial and it has proven the best I ever tried and effected a complete cure. I can recommend you highly in this vicinity. Have used your sample and one box and it has been a complete cure. It has been worth $100 to me.

Thanking you for the sample and the cure, I will recommend you to everybody. Yours respectfully, Julius Mayer, Dealer in Feathers, Ginseng and Hides, Bedford, Ind.

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist's at 50 cents a box, or, if you would like to try a sample first, you will receive one by return mail by sending your name and address to The Pyramid Drug Company, 59 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

KITCHEN TINS.

Be Sure They Do Not Become a Home Poison Factory.

The dread ptomaine poisoning develops through the action of acid in tin, a fact that all householders should lay to heart, for the poison can very easily be developed in any kitchen unless great care is exercised in regard to tin receptacles.

A number of women were reported ill from eating salad at a reception. So many were the victims and so severe their illnesses that rigid investigation was set on foot, which disclosed the fact that the salad dressing, containing a good deal of lemon juice, had been allowed to stand in a tin pail The physician who had made the investigation was satisfied that enough poison had been generated to kill forty persons, the only circumstances that prevented such a frightful catastrophe being that the bottom of the liquid had not been disturbed.

Every can of meat, vegetables or fish should be turned out immediately after opening into a dish or earthenware vessel. Refrozen ice cream is a fruitful source of ptomaine poisoning, as are loose oysters.—Vogue.

An ounce of contentment is more beneficial to a woman's complexion than a pound of cosmetics.

A GIRL'S GIRL.

When You Meet One Make Her Your Companion and Friend.

Whenever you hear a girl called a "girl's girl" try to know her, if you do not do so already. She is sure to be nice in the best sense of the word. In nine cases out of ten you will find her true and sympathetic, always ready to listen to confidences and, above all, ready to keep them as such. She is always doing a kind act for some one, and thought for herself comes nowhere in her calculations. Such a girl is always popular with her friends and you will hear golden opinions of her on all sides. There may be nothing specially about her to attract notice; it seems to be just an individual charm in her nature that stamps her with this engaging characteristic. She is generally frank and honest in expressing an opinion and her friends may be sure it is a genuine one. She is at once unaffected and simple and ready to show an interest in all her friends' undertakings. If you cannot count among your friends a girl who earns this title try to find one, and when you find her congratulate yourself upon your success.

A Perjurer Or Stupid.

Magistrate Denison's Characterization of "Tom" Lewis.

"You Are Not Even Trying to Lie Consistently," Said Man on the Bench—He Saw Mr. McEvoy Before Leaving London For Detroit—More Evidence of Bribery in Hyman Election—Against Beck Votes Were $5.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—"This man is either a perjurer or he is very stupid; and I think he is both."

Thus Col. Denison summed up his opinion of Tom Lewis, the London ex-hotelkeeper, who turned up in the Police Court in the London bribery case yesterday.

Warned by the Magistrate.

At another point in his examination, during which Lewis knew nothing although contradicting his old associates right and left, the magistrate said: "I must say that in all my experience I never encountered a witness who was so utterly reckless. You are making no effort to tell the truth. You are not even trying to lie consistently. You simply answer anything that comes into your head at the moment. Unless you are careful, I will direct that an information be laid against you at once for perjury."

At the close of the afternoon session, Lewis was allowed to go on his own recognizance until Thursday next at 11 a. m., to which time the hearing has been enlarged, to suit the convenience of counsel.

"Tom" Lewis went into the witness box at 1.10 o'clock. He admitted having gone to Detroit, but did not know before arriving there that he was wanted in Toronto. He saw Mr. McEvoy before leaving for Detroit, but not, he said, in connection with the bribery case.

More Evidence of Bribery.

Hamilton Ramsay says he was given $10 by Sifton, he thought. He also told as to the selection of polling booths.

John Redman got $9.50 less 50c. deducted by Collins for expenses. He said he received $5 from Collins at the Provincial election for voting against Mr. Beck.

Charles Stevens got $9.50 from Collins at Lewis' hotel.

John Weiner, employed in Mr. Hyman's tannery, said he got $5 from Collins in Lewis' hotel.

William Serviss was recalled and asked as to his handling of the "bribery" envelopes. His answer was almost invariably: "I don't remember."

MARSHALL'S MAJORITY 126.

Aylmer Conservative For the First Time in Its History.

Aylmer, Oct. 5.—The bye-election in East Elgin yesterday resulted in the election of David Marshall of Aylmer, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of 126 over Granville Haight, Liberal.

It was one of the hardest-fought and bitterest campaigns in the history of Elgin County.

The Conservatives made gains all along the line, especially in Aylmer, which gave a Conservative majority for the first time in its history, a tribute to the personal popularity of Marshall in his home town. Port Stanley and Port Burwell, in spite of the Government works being done there, also favored him.

The majorities by divisions, as far as can be learned, are as follows:

	Haight.	Marshall.
Yarmouth township	19	—
Malahide township	—	35
Bayham township	—	62
South Dorchester	3	—
Aylmer	—	41
Vienna	—	1
Port Stanley	—	18
Springfield	9	—
Total	31	157

Majority for Marshall, 126.

The majority of Andrew Ingram in the general election of 1904 was 21.

SBARRETTI PLEASES POPE.

Delegate's Report On Condition In Canada Is Most Satisfactory.

Rome, Oct. 5.—The Pope yesterday received in private audience Monsignor Donato Sbarretti, the apostolic delegate in Canada, who arrived here Wednesday.

The Pope was most satisfied at the delegate's report on the condition of the church in Canada.

After hearing the Canadian representative give an account of the great progress of Catholicism in Canada, the Pope remarked that the time was approaching when the whole of North America would be mainly Catholic in religion.

Supreme Court Allow Appeals.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—In the Supreme Court, in the Halifax election case, Hetherington vs. Roche, the court gave judgment allowing the appeal with costs and directing that the petition should go back to the election court for trial on the merits.

In the Halifax election case, Hetherington vs. Carney was next called, and the same judgment pronounced, the issues being similar.

The Shelburne-Queens election case, Cowie vs. Fielding, was called at 3.50 o'clock. Argument will be continued to-day.

Germany Worsted by Canada.

London, Oct. 5.—(C. A. P.)—The Frankford Gazette says it is betraying no confidence when it admits that Germany got the worst end of the stick in the tariff war with Canada. Germany exports to Canada are only half in 1906 what they were in 1903, while Canada exports to Germany nearly double.

Big Earthquake Recorded.

Goettingen, Prussia, Oct. 5—The seismograph at the observatory here registered a powerful earthquake 14,000 miles distant from the town. The vibrations lasted two hours.

Teheran, Persia, Oct. 5.—The Shah of Persia, Muzaffar-ed-Din, is reported to be seriously ill.

Raising His Wages.

Y.—You know I told you a few days after he employed me that he said he'd raise my wages in a month or so?

Z.—Yes. And didn't he?

"No. I misunderstood him. He said he'd try to raise my first week's wages by that time. I haven't had a shilling yet."—London Tit-Bits.

Compromise.

"I have a little granddaughter," said a senator, "who is very fond of animals, especially dogs. Her mother has taught her to pronounce the word until it sounds like dahg. Her father sticks to the good old fashioned dawg, so the child has compromised, and now every canine is a dahg-dawg."

British Markets Unchanged—Cattle and Hogs Firmer at Chicago.

London, Oct. 4.—Canadian cattle in the British markets are quoted at 10c to 11¾c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9¼c to 9⅝c per pound.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Receipts of live stock as reported by the railways since last Tuesday were 110 car loads, composed of 1634 cattle, 938 hogs, 2500 sheep and lambs, 110 calves and two horses.

Butchers.

Trade was good for the best butchers, but dull and draggy for the rest.

Exporters.

Picked lots of butchers sold at $4.25 to $4.40; fair to good at $3.75 to $4.10; medium at $3.50 to $3.75; common at $3 to $3.25; cows at $2 to $3.50; canners at $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. Murby reports a better trade in stockers and feeders to-day. Altho prices didn't advance to any extent, there were a goodly number of buyers present and sellers got a pretty good clean-up. Choice, breedy steers, from 1000 to 1100 lbs., are scarce, and a great many more of this kind would sell. Mr. Murby bought about 250 this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $3.75 to $4; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.40 to $3.75; best stockers, 700 to 900 lbs., at $3 to $3.40; light stockers, 500 to 600 lbs., at $2.50 to $2.85; light stockers, common, $2.12½ to $2.25.

Milch Cows.

A large number of milkers and springers was offered, many of which were of common to medium quality. Prices ranged all the way from $25 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was strong at steady prices, ranging from $3.50 to $7 per cwt. The bulk sold at $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Considering the heavy receipts the market for sheep and lambs was strong. Export sheep sold at $4 to $4.75 for export ewes; bucks at $3 to $3.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

About 1000 hogs sold at unchanged quotations. Mr. Harris quotes selects at $6.65, lights and fats at $6.40 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Oct. 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 150 head; nothing doing, prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 200 head; active and 25c higher; $4.50 to $9, a few $9.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 3100 head; active on heavy, slow on light; heavy and mixed, $6.90 to $7; pigs, $6.50; dairies, $6.25 to $6.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 3000 head; steady; lambs, $5.25 to $7.85, a few $7.90; Canada lambs, $7.00 to $7.75, a few $7.85.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Oct. 4.—Beeves—Receipts, 181; feeling steady for good and choice beeves; weak for others; about 70 cars reported for Friday's market.

Calves—Receipts, 286, mainly grassers and westerns; veals quiet but about steady; grassers and westerns dull and neglected; veals, $5 to $9; throw-outs, $4.50; good grassers, $3.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2851; sheep almost nominal; lambs dull and easier except for strictly prime stock; sheep, $4 to $5.50; culls, $3; lambs, common to good, $6.50 to $7.50; prime stock quoted at $8; culls at $4.50 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 1810; market steady; good heavy to light state and Pennsylvania hogs, $6.85 to $7.

Hard to Catch Up.

Two Silesians, seated in a music hall, began to argue about the music of Wagner. The argument as it progressed grew heated. The upshot was that the younger challenged the older Silesian to a duel.

But the older Silesian declined to fight.

"No, no," he said. "I refuse to meet you. The risks are not equal. You, you see, are a bachelor, whereas I am a married man with three children. I'll tell you what to do. Go get married and wait till you've a family as large as mine. Then, when our risks are alike, come and challenge me again."

The younger man complied. He married. Three years passed and one day three years later he went, accompanied by a nursemaid, to his opponent's home.

"Here I am," he said fiercely. "My wife is at home. In this coach are my three children. Now for the duel."

But the older man shook his head.

"Not yet awhile," he said. "I have five now."

Str. Charterhouse Foundered Off Hainan Head, Sept. 30.

Capt. Clifton Was Among the Lost—North German-Lloyd Kohsichang Picked Up 23 of Crew and Two Women Who Had Been Adrift on a Raft For 43 Hours—Coat-Coal Sole Survivor Landed.

Hong Kong, Oct. 5.—The emigrant steamer Charterhouse, voyaging between Holhow and Hong Kong, foundered off Hainan Head on Sept. 30. Capt. Clifton and 60 passengers were lost.

The North German-Lloyd steamer Kohsichang picked up a raft belonging to the Charterhouse, on which were Chief Engineer Dowce, twenty-three of the crew, and two women, after they had been drifting for 43 hours.

The home port of the steamer Charterhouse was Singapore. The steamer was built in Greenock, and flew the British flag. Her capacity was 1,278 net tons.

Texier the Sole Survivor.

L'Orient, France, Oct. 5.—The mate the sole survivor of the French steamer Coat-Coal, has been landed at Genoa. His name is Texier. He declares that after the vessel sank on the night of Sept. 15, the crew, numbering 12, clung to floating bits of timber. One by one their strength gave out, and they sank to their death. The Coat-Coal left L'Orient Sept. 15 for Newport, England, and was never heard from again.

Schooner Rams Ferry.

New York, Oct. 5.—Bowling along under full sail in a fine sailing breeze, the schooner Julia A. Berkie, yesterday struck the Long Island ferry boat Rockaway fair in the side. The schooners bowsprit tore through the wall of the woman's cabin, spreading terror among the women passengers. No one was injured, however, and the Rockaway quickly righted herself.

50 Dead in Pocahontas Mines.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 5.—A Times-Star special from Pocahontas, Va., says: "After 24 hours' work the rescuing party in the west mines of the Pocahontas Collieries Co., is nearing the point in the mine where the explosion took place. The officials are unable to determine how many men are caught, but the number is estimated at from 30 to 50."

Five Killed In Wreck.

Lansingburg, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Five passengers were killed outright and a score of others seriously injured in a rear-end collision between a regular passenger train and a military special on the Boston and Maine Railroad, three miles north of Troy, N. Y., yesterday.

Injured by Thresher.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Leonard Vennicomb, 14 years old, was brought to the city from Snelgrove, Ont., last night suffering from severe injuries caused by a threshing machine. He was taken to St. Michael's Hospital.

Killed In an Elevator.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Percy Hill, aged 25, a carpenters' laborer, had his neck broken by the weights of a passenger elevator on the thirteenth floor of the Traders' Bank building yesterday. Coroner Aikens will hold an inquest to-day. Hill and his wife lived at 5 Clarence square.

Falls From Steamer, Drowns.

Owen Sound, Oct. 5.—Robert Simpson, shed foreman of the C. P. R., was accidentally drowned Wednesday night somewhere in Owen Sound Bay, off the pleasure steamer Venettas. He was with a shooting party to Griffith Island, and fell off the stern of the boat.

"REDS" TAKE REVENGE.

One Officer Killed, Another Injured and More Are Threatened.

Moscow, Oct. 5.—Capt. Dziankowsky, who was shot and killed in a street here Wednesday, was assassinated in pursuance of a sentence of the revolutionists.

He was the commander of a company of the Pernova Regiment, which, on Aug. 16, killed two political prisoners during an outbreak among the political offenders confined in the central prison of Moscow.

Governor of Simbirsk Wounded.

Simbirsk, Province of Simbirsk, Russia, Oct. 5.—Gen. Starynkewitch, governor of Simbirsk, had a narrow escape from assassination yesterday. A bomb was thrown at him, wounding him in the hand and leg. His injuries are not fatal.

Will Sell Estate to Peasants.

Pavlograd, Province of Yekaterinoslav, Russia, Oct. 5.—Count Vorontzoff-Dashkoff, viceroy of the Caucasus, has offered to sell his estate here to the peasants, with the proviso that the allotments shall not be less than ten acres to each purchaser. The estate consists of 80,000 acres.

G. T. R. Employes Sue C. P. R.

Goderich, Oct. 5.—As a sequel to the railway trouble at the harbor, three Grand Trunk employes have issued writs for damages against the C.P.R. people.

W. Hanna has entered suit against the Guelph and Goderich Railway, Mr. Peterson and Mr. Roberts, for unstated damages, for assault, imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

Wm. Purcell and D. Conway claim $5,000 damages from the same defendants for malicious arrest and prosecution.

In Dresden 300 years ago "epicures" used to eat Venetian oysters that had been on the way three weeks.

Boy Guilty of Manslaughter.

Guelph, Oct. 5.—Peter Wilson, who was charged with manslaughter through shooting and killing little Berdina Swackhammer, in Erin Township, was found guilty at the fall Assizes yesterday. Because of his youthfulness he was handed over to the Children's Aid Society of this city.

Jury Accuses Brother.

Carleton Place, Ont., Oct. 5.—At the coroner's inquest Wednesday night the verdict of the jury was that John Bradley came to his death by a blow from a paddle in the hands of George Bradley, his brother. They are said to have quarreled.

Awarded $3,950 Damages.

Sandwich, Oct. 5.—Mrs. James Hanly of Maidstone was given a verdict for $3,950 damages against the Michigan Central Railway. Mrs. Hanly's husband was killed while returning home, as were also his horses. The verdict covers the damages for the horses and wagon also. She sued for $25,000.

A Reasonable Plea For the Stomach.

IF YOUR STOMACH IS LACKING IN DIGESTIVE POWER, WHY NOT HELP THE STOMACH DO ITS WORK—ESPECIALLY WHEN IT COSTS NOTHING TO TRY?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach? Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in your digestive apparatus.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives.

Chemical Laboratory. Telegraphic address, "Diffindo," London. Telephone No. 11029 Central. 20 Cullum St., Fenchurch St., E.C.

London, 9th Aug., 1905.

I have analyzed most carefully a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (which I bought myself at a city chemist's shop for the purpose), manufactured by the F. A. Stuart Co., Temple Chambers, London, E.C., and have to report that I cannot find any trace of vegetable or mineral poisons. Knowing the ingredients of the tablets, I am of opinion that they are admirably adaptable for the purpose for which they are intended.

(Signed) JOHN R. BROOKE, F.I.C., F.C.S.

There is no secret in the preparation of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Their composition is commonly known among physicians, as is shown by the recommendations of 40,000 licensed physicians in the United States and Canada. They are the most popular of all remedies for indigestion, dyspepsia, water brash, insomnia, loss of appetite, melancholia, constipation, dysentery and kindred diseases originating from improper dissolution and assimilation of foods, because they are thoroughly reliable and harmless to man or child.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are at once a safe and a powerful remedy, one grain of these tablets being strong enough (by test) to digest 3,000 grains of steak, eggs and other foods. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food for you when your stomach can't.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package or send to us direct for a free trial sample package and you will be surprised at the result. F. A. Stuart Co., 64 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

The Advance In Agriculture.

The development in agriculture in the past twelve years is simply immense. The official figures show that the market value of the field crops of Ontario in 1904 was $131,000,000, or $35,000,000 more than in 1895. Even this does not tell the whole story. In 1895 our field crops were largely sold as grain; now to the greater part of these additional value is given, over and above the market price at time of harvest, by feeding the grain to live stock. In 1904, as shown by the report of the Bureau of Industries, there were 55,000 more sheep, 25,000 more horses, 316,000 more cattle, and a million more hogs in this province than there were in 1895. The value of all the live stock (including poultry) disposed of in 1904 in Ontario was nearly $30,000,000 greater than in 1895. And other provinces as well as Ontario have been progressing along agricultural lines. In Quebec there has been a great increase in dairying, and in Manitoba and the West a series of good crops, with a satisfactory level of prices for wheat. Apple and cattle exports from all Canada each increased by $3,000,000 in the nine years ending with 1901: butter exports increased by $4,000,000; bacon by $9,000,000; cheese by $10,000,000, and wheat and flour by $13,000,000.

Agriculture certainly bulks largely among Canadian industries, and the bulk increases at a rapid rate.

Judges as Directors

Very questionable, indeed, is the position of Sir John (Chancellor) Boyd in one of the associate companies which figures in the I.O.F. investigation. The Telegram remarks on it as follows;

> "There is not a doubt that Sir John Boyd would not have tolerated the transactions that went through without his knowledge but under the shadow of his name. There is also not a doubt that if a lay director had admitted his lack of knowledge as a judge - director admitted it yesterday, G. F. Shepley, K.C., would have had more to say to the lay director than he had to say to Sir John Boyd.
> "The judge director may be a survival of the times when the judiciary was underpaid. The judiciary is no longer underpaid. Ontario wants no more judges on the directorates of public companies or in the witness box at enquiries.'

Very true. The fame of the judiciary should be like that of Caesar's wife. There is no doubt that Sir John Boyd's relation to the Gamey case was considered by many not to be all that a judge's should be, and his appearance in the land deal now intensifies the prejudice against him.

Canada wants no more judge-directors.

Wedding at Albury

A very pretty wedding was recently celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Peck, Albury, P.E. Co., when their eldest daughter, Effie Alberta, was united in marriage to William Allison, of the same place, the ceremony being performed by Rev. De Pencier Wright in the presence of about sixty-five guests. As the Wedding March was being played by Miss Mary Peck, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, the bridal party entered the drawing-room, which was beautifully decorated. The bride was given away by her father and looked dainty in white organdie over taffeta, trimmed with lace and insertion, and carried white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Peck, who was gowned in white silk organdie and carried pink roses. Mr. Andrew Allison, brother of the groom, did the honors as best man. The bride received a great number of costly and useful presents. After congratulations the guests partook of a bountiful repast, comprising all the delicacies of the season, then the young couple left, amid showers of rice and the best wishes of a host of friends, for a trip down the St. Lawrence to Montreal and other points. The bride's going-away dress was navy blue cloth, with hat to match.

The Kingston News, after discussing and condemning the practice of people sending out of town for their supplies, tells the following story;

A Kingston merchant who once lived in Belleville had a friend who wished to buy a pair of curtains Every store in Belleville was visited, and at last a handsome pair of curtains found. But the friend thought they were too high priced. So he refused to pay seven dollars for them. Weeks afterward he went to Toronto to save money, and returned with a pair of fine curtains. Calling the home merchant in, he proudly exhibited the articles.

"What a handsome pair they are," he exclaimed. "I got them in Toronto for nine dollars. That's what I call a bargain." The merchant turned to him;

"That's the same pair of curtains you were looking at in my store," he said. 'I sent that pair up to So and So's in Toronto because I couldn't sell them in Belleville. You bought them at the same place, didn't you? I thought so—and you paid two dollars more than I asked? Again I am right. Good morning, Mister Easy Mark."

A "refreshing" experiment, it seems, is to be tried among the Methodist congregations of Toronto during the coming winter, when refreshments will be dispensed at the close of the evening services. Coffee and cake will be brought on as soon as the doxology is sung. This will be done with a view to entice the young people to attend church. It is thought that a social hour spent in this way would be a good thing for the young men and young women who board. Then when they get into the way of attending church, it is hoped that they will continue to attend, not so much for the coffee and cake as for the good it will do them in a mental and spiritual sense. The scheme has been tried in Hamilton, says the Times, but for some reason or other it was not followed up. Perhaps the supply of coffee and cake ran out.

How many more sins the Ross Government has to answer for only the stars can tell, but hardly any could be worse than the one depicted above.

"My dear, sir" said the worthy priest, "if I knew half as much about theology as I do about dogs I'd have been a cardinal long ago.

Liberal papers are now busy in condemning the man who "peached" on them and exposed the bribery and corruption, by which the Hon. Mr. Hyman was elected in London in 1905, as "a wife-beater; a gambler and a breaker of the license law." Yet this is the man selected by these same Liberals as a Deputy Returning Officer. Why? Because his character was known to them, and that he was the very man to perpetrate the villainies which were required to secure Hyman's return. Truly, Gritism is sinking to a low level in Canada.

A STERLING INVESTMENT.

Business Chances Which Bring 100 Cents on the Dollar.

In the past few years the commercial world has had practical demonstration of the good judgment of business men who buy high-class goods. In Saskatoon recently a merchant sold his stock at 100 cents on the dollar, and the chief reason the buyers ascribed for paying the price was that the seller had the Slater Shoe Agency A franchise for the exclusive handling of the Slater Shoe is a valuable asset. The Slater Shoe stock usually brings a premium, and would have done so in this case but for the fact that other goods of shrinkable value were in the stock. — J. J. What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 10 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Life Saving at Fires.

If lives are in danger at a fire it is a universal rule that life saving takes precedence over fire fighting. If fire escapes are lacking or seriously obstructed all hands devote their entire energies to the work of rescuing by raising ladders, by forcing a passage through smoke filled hallways or by other emergency means. Life nets are spread and held ready for those who have not the nerve to wait for their rescuers. Life saving consumes valuable time which could be applied to advantage in fighting the flames, and the probable necessity for expending this time, governed as it is by many considerations, plays an important part in studies of underwriters. Occasionally pompier ladders or window scaling ladders are used in emergencies for making rescues. These furnish thrilling incidents for the newspapers, but are less efficient, slower and a great deal more dangerous both to the firemen and the rescued than the plain or extension ladders.—Insurance Engineering.

A little Philadelphia boy was taken by his father for his first visit to the zoo. Stopping before an inclosure, he asked, "Papa, what animal is that?" Reading the sign tacked up to one side, his father responded, "That, my son, is a prong horned antelope." "Kin he blow his horns?" was the question that promptly followed.

Praise and Flattery.

We must define flattery and praise. They are distinct. Trajan was encouraged to virtue by the panegyric of Pliny. Tiberius became obstinate in vice from the flattery of the senators.—Louis XVI.

Two Girls.

It is just as easy to fall in love with a rich girl as it is to fall in love with a poor one, but it is generally easier to marry the poor one.

A Useful Auto

An automobile that saws wood is one of the sights of Indian Orchard, Mass. Its owner motors around the streets until he is hailed by some one who wishes to have some wood sawed, and then he clambers out and sets the buzz saw fastened to the rear of the machine in motion.

Andre La Roches, who owns the automobile, is a sawyer of wood by trade and his chief assistant in his work was an old mare. A short time ago, however, he secured in a "swap" trade an automobile, and at first felt that he had an elephant on his hands, for he was in no financial condition to maintain the automobile for pleasure purposes alone. Finally he invented the contrivance which enables the machine to help him earn his living. He attached a circular saw to the rear of the body of the machine in such a way that he can connect it with the motor, and he added to the equipment a large tank of water to cool the same, as the machine was apt to get overheated when worked too rapidly. A carrier for holding the logs to be sawed was fastened to the rear, and the auto-wood-sawing machine was ready for work.

Now he chug-chugs in style up to a wood pile, backs his machine in, connects the saw with the motor, and cuts up a cord of wood in about ten minutes. If it is a big job he employs a boy to pass him the sticks and take away the pieces.

The fame of his machine has extended beyond the confines of Indian Orchard, and he often rides twenty miles to tackle a wood pile. He intends to have the invention patented.

Literary Notes.

RAILROAD BUILDING IN THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST.

For twenty-five years there was but one great railway in the Canadian Northwest. Commerce grew slowly, even along its right of way. Back ten miles from the line of steel the green, unbroken prairie lay like a sea, asleep. The Canadian Pacific was an iron-clad monopoly. The records seem to show that there was much of oppression in its rule, much that now might happily be forgotten. The towns came up slowly. Outside of Winnipeg there is no great city of the Canadian plains. Regina, Brandon, Portage la Prairie, Edmonton, Calgary are little towns — indeed, mere local trading centres.

It is a different story nowadays. A few years ago came William Mackenzie and D. D. Mann, daring promoters, rich with the spoils of commerce gathered under every flag that flies, from Buenos Ayres to the Arctic Circle. They sought and obtained from the Manitoba Government a guaranty on the bonds of a new railway, to be called the Canadian Northern. They sold their bonds to the English, and sent their men out into the plains to dig. That was five years ago. They have pushed their road from the head of the Great Lakes away out to Prince Albert, a little trading post on the Upper Saskatchewan. They are headed for the Rocky Mountains, and are planning a new route to bring them down from Winnipeg to the Atlantic. In fact, their ambitions stop not short of another system to duplicate the Canadian Pacific.

Two years ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Canadian House of Commons, fought his campaign upon a platform that called for the creation of another road from seas to sea. This project, the Grand Trunk Pacific, leaves the Atlantic at Moncton, N. B., crosses the St. Lawrence at Quebec, pierces the unbroken forests south of Hudson Bay, cuts through Winnipeg and the prairie country, threads the Rock Mountains by Peace River Valley, and debouches upon the Pacific Ocean at Fort Simpson, with a branch north to Dawson City. In all, it is five thousand miles of pure adventure. No other railway project in the world, unless indeed it be the Cape to Cairo Railroad, holds so much of fascination, so much of the romance that dwells about the memories of the mighty pioneers. — From "The Greatest Year of Railroad Enterprises," by J. D. Latimer, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

HUNTERS' EXCURSIONS.

The fact that the C.P.R. line runs for so many miles through ideal hunting lands, where moose and deer and smaller game galore wax fat and await the advent of fall and the accompanying guns and dogs, is, of course, the principal reason why, about this time of year the enthusiastic sportsman turns to the well-known yellow covered folder and studies time tables and maps so industriously. Hunters' excursions are round again, and single fare will soon be the order of the day. The C.P.R. announces that from Oct. 9th to Nov. 6th return tickets to all stations on their main line, Mattawa to Port Arthur, and Mattawa to Temiskaming and Kippawa, will be on sale at single fare, and from Oct. 25th to Nov. 6th tickets at the same low rate to stations on the Lindsay Branch, stations between Sudbury and the Soo and Havelock and Sharbot Lake. All tickets will be good to return until Dec. 8th, with stop-overs allowed anywhere. Special steamship rates to the Soo and Port Arthur will also be in effect. Intending hunters should make a point of calling at the nearest C.P.R. ticket office for further information and for copies of "Fishing and Shooting," "Sportsman's Map," and "Open Seasons and Game Laws," all of which are of particular interest and use to sportsmen, and are free for the asking. C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, C.P.R., Toronto, will gladly mail them to any address, if difficulty is experienced getting copies. 5-3td

The Horse Industry Of Ontario.

At the last session of the Legislature the Minister of Agriculture secured an appropriation for the purpose of making an investigation into the condition of the horse industry in the Province of Ontario. This work is now being undertaken by the Department of Agriculture of Ontario and will be commenced early in October. The object of this investigation is to obtain information to be used in deciding as to the best policy to adopt to encourage more extensive breeding of a better class of horses.

Following are the principal points which will be considered in the course of the investigation:

1. The number, type, quality and breeding of stallions and brood mares in the Province.

2. What conditions have affected or are affecting the quality and number of stallions and brood mares in the various sections of the Province, and if the effect is for good whether or not the same conditions could be applied in other sections; and if the conditions have not a good effect what could be done to improve them.

3. What class of horses can most profitably be raised in different sections of the Province under the natural conditions found in those sections.

4. The system of owning horses by a syndicate and any other plan at present adopted in Ontario other than private ownership.

5. The views of horsemen generally as to the advisability of a Stallion Inspection Act.

6. Suggestions from those interested in the horse business as to what can be done to improve conditions of the horse business generally.

In order to procure this information the Province will be divided into eight districts. Two competent and expert horsemen have been selected and allotted to each district. From five to six weeks will be spent in each district by the Committee appointed for that district. The districts will be composed of a number of counties grouped together, the number making up each district being decided by the length of time required to go through a county. Each county will require from four to nine days. The information regarding stallions will be as detailed as possible, each stallion in the Province being inspected. The information regarding mares cannot be got so accurately, but a great deal of information can be procured from the stallion owners in each district as to the number, type and quality of the brood mares, the Committee having an opportunity of confirming this by noting the appearance of the mares seen while travelling through the districts. Regarding the other matters of a more general nature, information will be procured by close observation and by conversation with those met by the Committee who may have any knowledge of the local conditions.

In addition to the work as above outlined, it is being arranged to have one public meeting in each county at some point centrally located, and where a special interest is taken in the horse industry. The object of the meeting is to give any person who so desires an opportunity of expressing his views to the Committee. The meeting in each county will be held immediately after the Committee has completed the work in that county.

In each Farmer's Institute district the Secretary has been asked to assist in the work of procuring the names and addresses of the stallion owners and laying out the most convenient route for the Committee to follow while in his district. He has also been asked to accompany the Committee, and to arrange for the public meeting in the county. In cases where the Secretary was unable to do the work, the President of the Farmers' Institute has been asked to make the necessary arrangements. The dates and points at which the public meetings will be held have been selected. Arrangements have also been completed for the dates allowed for each Institute division, and the points at which committees will transfer from one Institute district to the one following.

The work should have the sympathy and co-operation of all owners of stallions and of all who are interested in the horse industry. It is hoped that the Committees will be given every facility for procuring the information required, and that every person interested will take advantage of the opportunity being given to express his views as to how the horse industry of this Province can best be improved.

A DELIGHTFUL WINTER RESORT.

It is announced that this year the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's fine hotel at Caledonia Springs, Ont., will be kept open for accommodation of visitors all winter. The Company has great faith in Caledonia Springs as an all-year-round resort, something better than a mere summering place, and this action will without doubt be appreciated by many people to whom the Springs have been hitherto closed more than half the year owing to lack of accommodation. 5-3t

Heavier Engines For the Grand Trunk

Montreal, Oct. 4.—The Grand Trunk Railway system has placed an order with the Locomotive & Machine Company, of Montreal, for fifty-five new Richmond Compound Consolidation engines, to be delivered as soon as they are turned out, and all to be in service on different divisions of the system before the end of the present year. A number of these engines are now in freight service, and are showing excellent results. They are powerful machines, as large as any on the continent except those used in heavy mountain service, and are 40,000 pounds heavier than the compound freight engines that have been used as the standard on the Grand Trunk in the past.

The Richmond Compound was decided upon in preference to the simple engine on account of practical tests having shown that engines of this class effect a saving of from twenty per cent. to twenty-five per cent. in fuel, without any corresponding increase in the cost of maintenance.

These engines have a calculated tractive power of 36,000 pounds, and a haulage capacity of 5,723 tons in freight cars on the level track at a normal speed, and a haulage capacity of 1,300 tons on a one per cent. grade. They will haul from 350 to 400 tons more than the ordinary standard Mogul engines.

The size of the cylinders of these engines is 22 1-2 inches by 35 inches by 32 inches; the driving wheels are 63 inches in diameter; the total weight of the engine and tender is 354,500 pounds. The capacity of tender is ten tons of coal and seven thousand gallons of water.

The World's Championship Games.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 4.—The admission prices for the world's series have been tentatively adopted by the National Commission, and the tickets for the games are being printed. The prices will be just double that of the regular admission; box seats, the only ones reserved, $2; grand stand, $1.50; pavillon, $1; bleachers, 50 cents.

Betting on the series is active. It seems that the backers of the Cubs will be asked to give comparatively long odds on the series, and shorter ones on the individual games. Many bets of 2 to 1 that the Cubs beat the Sox have already been made, but it seems that the Sox followers are holding back, waiting for a better price. The only games which are likely to be an even betting proposition are the ones in which Doc White, the star Sox twirler, performs.

SPORTING NOTES.

Ralph Gerow, of Picton, has gone to Sault Ste. Marie, where he expects to play professional hockey. Gerow has the speed, weight and aggressiveness, but his stick-handling will have to be better than it used to be if he makes good in fast professional company.

Dr. E. M. Grace has been an active figure in the cricket field since 1861. In the intervening 55 years he has missed playing in only one season—in 1885, through an injured knee—so that his record of taking 362 wickets this year is extraordinary. On Wednesday he played his 46th match this season for the Thornbury club, and took five wickets for 35 runs. In the course of his long career Dr. E. M. Grace has seven times taken over 300 wickets in one season. He first accomplished the feat in 1862, when he secured 312 wickets; in the following year he took 339; and in 1864 he obtained 370. Ten years elapsed before so large a measure of success rewarded his efforts, and in 1874 312 wickets fell to him. In the next season he took 369 wickets. It was not until 1905 that he again obtained 300 wickets, and he followed up his 303 in that season with 362 this year. Between 1851 and 1906 he has taken in all 11,747 wickets. On eight occasions Dr. E. M. Grace has gone in first, carried his bat through the inning, and then dismissed every one of the opposing side. His most successful season with the bat was 1863, when he scored 3166 runs

John Lyden, of Toronto, left yesterday for Gananoque, to take over the kennel of some twenty dogs belonging to the late Father O'Gorman. The list includes the famous terrier Celtic Badger and some twenty or thirty others, including a son of the champion. There are also twelve Boston terriers and a couple of fox hounds. The entire kennel will be shipped to Charley Lyden, at York, where they will be sold.

THE WOODWORK

How It Should Be Treated to Keep It In Condition.

Enamel finishes require to be well washed in clean warm water, using the merest suspicion of soap or scouring sand upon dirty or grimy spots. Afterward they must be rubbed with flannel brisk enough to make them extremely hot. This develops luster in them quite as it does in hardwood.

Grained and varnished imitations of hardwood are best cleaned with borax soapsuds, never letting water touch them, but rubbing well with cloths wrung dry. Afterward they should be rubbed with a flannel barely moistened with kerosene. If there is too much kerosene it will dissolve and blur the colors. Clean hardwood with a flannel wet in turpentine and rub afterward lightly with boiled linseed oil. Take off spots with fine sand mixed in oil. Apply it with a leather and rub with clean leather afterward to bring back the polish.

Once in two or three years hardwood ought to be well washed in borax soap suds, then rubbed dry, lightly oiled and rubbed with leather polishers until the surface burns the hand.

It cannot be said too forcibly nor too often that in every kind of cleaning the first thing is to brush or wipe away every particle of loose dirt.

Keen Sense of Humor.

"There is nothing like a sense of humor," said a naval officer, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin. "In a woman, in a soldier, in a sailor, in a clerk, a sense of humor is a help and a blessing through life. At the same time even a sense of humor may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about. This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but under the rain of blows the soldier laughed.

"'What are you laughing at?' the sergeant finally asked.

"'Why,' the soldier chuckled, 'I'm the wrong man.'"

An Arab Fishing Yarn.

A fishing yarn from Algiers: "Some Arabs were fishing from a boat with lines off the coast when a dolphin seventeen feet long, eleven feet in circumference and weighing four tons swallowed one of the baited hooks and dashed off at a tremendous speed. The fishermen paid out as much line as possible and then made it fast. This brought the dolphin up sharply, but the strain snapped the line. The monster then attacked the boat and capsized it, flinging the fishermen into the water. Other Arabs ashore waited till the dolphin was clear of the men and then killed it with rifles."

A RAIN MOOD.

(McClure's.)

We prayed for a day of rain
  In the sunny summer weather
  And for long hours spent together
  In the heavy hush and gloom
  Of a dusky silent room
And the patter of drops on the pane,
  And a murmurous sigh in the leaves
  And the swish of the rain in the eaves
  And the tremulous trouble and start
  Of the wind in the great tree's heart—
We prayed for a day of rain
  That the world might seem less wide
  That severed us side by side
  And the minutes might seem more long
  Sung to the drowsy song
  Of the patter of drops on the pane.
  For the glory and glamor and green
  Were a barrier set between
  Our souls that strove to be one
  In the glare of the blazing sun.
We prayed for a day of rain
  And the exquisite infinite sense
  Of a being more intense
  And the needlessness of speech
  For the lips and hands of each
In the patter of drops on the pane.

Some figures have been prepared recently showing the value of the trade of the great ports of the world, from which it appears that the trade of London is worth £285,000,000 a year, while that of Liverpool stands at £277,500,000 a year. These figures for the other great ports are as follows: New York, £221,000,000, Hamburg (including the coasting trade), £230,000,000, Marseilles £180,000,000, Antwerp (inclusive of river and canal traffic) £150,000,000, Calcutta £59,000,000, Bombay £51,000,000, Singapore £13,000,000, and Sydney £38,000,000. It should be noted that the figures for the two great British ports do not include the value of the coasting trade. The probability of London being able to maintain its position as the greatest port of the world is becoming somewhat doubtful.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says: "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents Sample free. To be had at R. Templeton & Co., drug store.

Women of Ancient Rome.

"We are assured by Seneca," says the historian Sage, "that there were women in ancient Rome who counted their ages not by their years, but by the husbands they had had. Juvenal tells of one woman who had married eight husbands in five years. Divorce was granted on the slightest pretext. Many separated merely from love of change, disdaining to give any reason, like Æmilius Paulus, who told his friends that 'he knew best where his shoes pinched him.' Rich wives were not much sought after by wise men. Their complete emancipation made them difficult to manage. Accordingly, since both rich and poor wives were objectionable, the large majority of men never married at all. In most cases a Roman bridegroom knew practically nothing of his wife's character until after marriage. Marriage for the Roman woman meant a transition from rigid seclusion to almost unbounded liberty. She appeared as a matter of course at her husband's table whether he had company or not. She could go where she liked, either to the temples of Isis and Serapis or to the circus and amphitheater. She had her own troops of slaves, over whom she ruled without interference."

Tolstoi and the Bear.

When Count Tolstoi was a young man he took part in a bear hunt that nearly ended fatally. When the beast charged him Tolstoi fired and missed. He fired a second shot, which hit the bear's jaw and lodged between his teeth. Tolstoi was knocked down, falling with his face in the snow. "There," he thought, "all is over with me." He drew his head as far as possible between his shoulders, exposing chiefly his thick fur cap to the beast's mouth till she was able to tear with her upper teeth only the cheek under the left eye and with the lower teeth the skin of the left part of the forehead. At this moment the famous bear hunt leader Ostashkof ran up with a small switch in his hand and cried out his usual: "Where are you getting to? Where are you getting to?" This, says Tolstoi, sent the bear sent [illegible] utmost speed.

SPOTLESS SERVICE.

Service over the Lake Shore Railway may well be called spotless service. Throughout this entire system there is a noteworthy lack of dust and dirt. Sparkling linen and white-clad waiters greet the traveller in the dining cars, and this "spick and span" appearance extends throughout the train. One steps down at a journey's end over the Lake Shore as clean as when he boarded the train. Cleanliness is but one feature that has made The Lake Shore the most popular road in America. Others are its luxurious coaches, absolute safety, highest speed and punctuality. Tell the agent to have your ticket read "Via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway," and write for information concerning rates and routes to J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N.Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, Ohio, or W. J. Lynch, Pass'gr Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

Temper may be a troublesome thing, but you never mend matters by losing it.

The Siren of La Prensa.

La Prensa is the greatest and most influential paper in South America. Its offices are in Buenos Ayres, Argentina, situated in a magnificent building in the Avenida. This building is said to be one of the most imposing in the world. It has a tower crowned by a great golden statue of a young woman representing the Spirit of the Press. The proudest possession of La Prensa is a 5,000 horsepower steam operated siren. Whenever there is an appalling disaster—the death of a crowned head or other event of worldwide interest—whoop goes La Prensa's siren and is heard for a while throughout the city. The local government exacts a fine for this performance, $100 per minute, with a minimum of $200, and if the fine is not paid on the nail the charge is double, so when one man is sent to operate the screecher another is sent running with a two hundred dollar bill to the courts. The next operation is to drape the above referred to young woman's torch with red velvet in case of a catastrophe; with crape in the event of a death. All this causes the most extraordinary sensation.

A Real Celebrity.

The local pride of the natives of Cape Elizabeth, Me., is so intense that it takes the attitude of pity for all who have the misfortune to dwell elsewhere. This, says a writer in the Lewiston Journal, is known to regular summer visitors, and by most of them is respected. One rainy day a newcomer, who had joined the gathering in the store, composed of fishermen and summer visitors, ventured to enumerate some of the distinguished men who had come from Maine.

"There's Longfellow," he said, "and Hannibal Hamlin, and James G. Blaine, William Pitt Fessenden, Thomas B. Reed and"—

Here an old fisherman looked up from his work of splicing grass blades, and broke in. "Smart? Those fellows smart?" he questioned. "You just come down an' see Josh Pillsbury skin fish!"

Shooting From an Elephant.

The elephant's howdah is that bed of Procrustes, in which one can neither sit nor stand with any approach to reasonable ease, and in which a recumbent attitude is impossible, says Blackwood's Magazine. Its advantages are, first, that standing in it a man can shoot on every side of him; second, that it is convenient for the carriage of the occupant's paraphernalia—his guns on racks on either side, his ammunition in a trough in front, his other requisites in leather pockets here and there on the sides of the machine and his bed blanket on the seat—and, third, that in a hinder compartment an attendant can stand to hold that monstrous umbrella over his head, or when quick loading is required take from his hand the gun just fired and recharge it. These are the advantages. Otherwise the howdah is an abomination.

Most Famous Saying.

"What is the most famous saying ever made by man?" an editor asked.

Some thought that Caesar, some thought that Socrates, some that Lincoln, some that Nelson, had said the most memorable thing; but finally the palm was awarded to Euclid, the mathematician.

Euclid went to Alexandria to teach Ptolemy Soter, the king of Egypt, mathematics. Ptolemy plodded at his problems a week or two, and then asked Euclid impatiently if there was not some special, shorter way by which he could be taught.

"Sire," Euclid answered, "there is no royal road to learning."

A. M. and P. M.

Here is an excellent catch: Ingenuously ask any friend or acquaintance the meaning of a. m. and p. m. You will receive some such answer as "Why, morning and afternoon," or "Before dinner and after dinner," or "Up to 12 o'clock high noon and after 12 high noon," or "From midnight to noon and from noon to midnight," or "Ante meridian and post meridian; before and after noon." It is a conservative wager that every one to whom the question is put will stake his happiness on the word meridian, while the correct word is meridiem. Ante meridiem and post meridiem are abbreviated to a. m. and p. m.

Paying Him Back.

"Will you please pull the bell?" said an elderly woman in a car to a young college looking fellow hanging to a strap in front of her.

"No, madam, but I shall be glad to pull the cord which rings the bell," he answered.

"Oh, never mind," she said. "The cord is connected with two bells—front and back—and you might stop the wrong end of the car."

Her Valuable Tip.

"Here's a letter from a woman," said the answers to correspondents editor, "who wants to know how to make a lemon tart."

"That's just like a woman," rejoined the snake editor. "Tell her if the lemon isn't tart to begin with she'd better consign it to the dump and let it go at that."

At the Wrong Counter.

The lady who went to the book department of a big modern store and inquired for "Crabbe's Tales" was told that fish and provisions were on the ground floor.

Zam-Buk

The old Roman charioteers, and heroes wounded by wild beasts in the now ruined Colosseum at Rome, anointed their wounds with secret balms made from the roots and herbs of the field. Instinct tells us to rub a place that hurts, and in Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm, is found the ideal substance with which to rub. Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves, ointments, etc., in the important fact that it contains no trace of any mineral substance, and is also free from animal oil or fat. It is composed of the finest herbal essences and juices, and is so refined that the most delicate skin can absorb it with beneficial effect. It is at one and the same time healing, soothing and antiseptic. It does more, does it better, and does it in less time than any other known balm.

ECZEMA, SCALP SORES AND ERUPTIONS CURED.

Mr. Henry Harvey, of Cataraqui, Ont., says:—"I am glad to state that Zam-Buk in my case has done all it was recommended to do. I had some sores on the scalp, which at times caused me such acute pain that I could not bear to touch the part. This continued for nearly two years, and defied all remedies I tried. Zam-Buk was recommended to me and, after a fair trial, I am glad to report the sores are quite cured. I can strongly recommend Zam-Buk for scalp diseases."

Mr. T. Bull, of Cooksville, Ont., says:—"I consider Zam-Buk splendid value. I have used it on Burns, Pimples, Cuts and Sores, and have found it to contain more healing qualities than any preparation used before, and can recommend it."

Mrs. Nellie Campbell, of Inverary, Ont., writes:—"I think Zam-Buk a splendid healer. I had a bad spot of Eczema on one of my fingers that bothered me terribly. I obtained a supply of Zam-Buk and, to my delight, it healed the Eczema very speedily. I shall keep a supply of Zam-Buk handy, as I think it such an excellent remedy. I would not be without it in the house."

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES:

Cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, eczema, pimples, running sores, sore feet, poisoned wounds, festering sores, piles, bad legs, diseased ankles, abscesses, boils, ringworm, sore backs, scrofula, itch, sore breasts, barber's rash, and all injured or diseased conditions of the skin. From all druggists, 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Colborne Street, Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

AN ANGEL ELEPHANT

By GRETCHEN GRAYDON

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

"I wonder if you dream how adorable you are in that blue gown," Hetherton said, trying to possess himself of Philomena's hand.

She drew it away, pursed her lips daintily, and flung back at him, "Oh! It's the gown, is it? Thank you for telling me. I shall be sure to wear it the next time the MacCarty comes to see us."

"Confound the MacCarty!" Hetherton ejaculated. "I'd like to break his head for him, the presumptuous oaf. What business has he even to admire you?"

"Mayn't a cat look at a king?" Philomena interrupted demurely, her eyes dancing in the screen of their long lashes.

She had the charm of infinite variety. Some days she was positively ugly, others ravishingly beautiful. This was one of the beautiful days. She knew it, and acted upon the knowledge. She owed Hetherton for several things, chiefly Miss Mannering. He should be paid in full. He had never proposed to her outright, but all along assumed gayly that she would marry him, speaking openly, in a light comedy manner that might mean everything or nothing. She had not resented the light comedy manner, being by no means sure of her own mind.

Still it had been distinctly aggravating to have him run off after the Mannering girl the same as the other men. For two whole days he had kept in the new beauty's train; worse still, he had come back to Philomena not merely repentant, but with the air of one who feels that he has discharged the duty of a proper man.

"A cat may look at a king; the proverb is silent as to queens," Hetherton retorted. "Moreover, you can scarcely stretch it to fit an elephant, which is the MacCarty's animal prototype."

"Now I know how I came to promise him two dances—I adore elephants—always did," Philomena murmured, reflectively, as if aside.

Hetherton caught both her hands and drew her to her feet. "Do you mean to keep the promise?" he asked, his face darkening. She smiled up at him audaciously as she answered:

"Who knows? He may prefer to sit them out. But if he should, you needn't mind, we will take care to keep out of earshot of you and Miss Mannering"—

"Oh! I see," Hetherton laughed, not quite easily, but with a magical lightening of countenance. "I must say that will be handsome of you," he went on; then, his hands slipping up to her shoulders, "Sweetheart, let's run away from everything—the grand ball, the elephant, the Mannering—run away and get married. Listen! It will be so easy; only a spin across country to that dear little stone church we saw last week—we'll take along witnesses—and telegraph for our traps to follow us. 'If 'twere done, when 'twere done then 'twere well 'twere done quickly.' Think how much we shall escape, all the fuss and frills and upsetments of a big wedding. And this is the only way to escape them. I know your aunt has her heart set on St. Thomas', with twelve bridesmaids, and all the rest of it. Say yes, there's a darling. I will live just to keep you from being sorry for it, even one time."

"It sounds enticing," Philomena said, then with a reflective sigh: "But it can't be done. You see if I ran off with you, the Mannering would inevitably get the MacCarty and his millions. That's what she is here for, and that's what I'm bound not to let her do."

"Have your joke," Hetherton grumbled, trying to draw her to his breast.

She put him away with gentle dignity, saying: "But it is not a joke. That's why I am so provoked with you; you let yourself be one of her bait gudgeons. Oh, she's a shrewd piece—she knows a man like the MacCarthy means to pick a wife as he has picked a racing stable, from among those other men want very much."

"How do you know?" Hetherton demanded.

Philomena opened her eyes very wide. "Why, he told me so," she said. "You know we are great friends and talk of many things. And he is really vastly entertaining—such a big bulk of raw human nature, with streaks of wit and other streaks of understanding through its honest ignorance."

"H-m! You are somewhat a belle. How many times has he proposed to you?" Hetherton asked.

"Only once, the first day," Philomena said, smiling wickedly. "I asked time for consideration, but he wouldn't give it. He wanted a straight yes or no, but consoled me by telling me that if after awhile he was not engaged he would give me another chance. So I must be sure and make up my mind. I know he is not engaged, not unless Miss Mannering has landed him since morning."

"Is your mind made up?" Hetherton asked teasingly.

Philomena shook her head, but said brightly: "Not yet. Still, there's no telling what may happen between dances."

"Then you refuse—my plan and everything?" Hetherton said, paling visibly.

Philomena shot a glance at him and shivered faintly, but said, with an accent of gentle surprise, "Why, I did that some time ago."

"You will fight the Mannering woman for the MacCarty. You would not even raise a finger for me," Hetherton began bitterly.

Philomena laughed a soft, malicious laugh. "One saves a novice from drowning. A swimmer who knows the waters is apt to regard help as an impertinence," she said.

Hetherton set his teeth. "Goodby," he said, hardly above his breath, holding out his hand. Philomena looked at him doubtfully and asked, "Where are you going?"

"I don't know—to the devil most likely," he answered recklessly.

"Beg pardon, telegram for you, sir," a footman said, coming to the pair with a yellow envelope on his tray.

Hetherton tore it open, glanced at its contents, then stood twisting it between his fingers and smiling an odd, dazed smile. After a long breath he took Philomena in his arms and kissed her, saying in her ear:

"Luck has stood your friend. I'm a beggar, or shall be in two hours more. That was a call for margins I can no more put up than I can fly. I've been speculating wildly. I wanted you so badly I thought I must offer you millions no less than myself. Until today they seemed in my grasp. That was why I dared. But I'm losing everything at once."

"Not quite," she said, clinging to him, her eyes shining up at him through a mist of tears. "You may have me, if you lose everything else. I'm not afraid of poverty if I may have love."

"Seems like it's time I took a hand in this game," a throaty voice said behind them, and there stood the MacCarty, very red, and all over perspiration. He had been ambushed all the while in the summer house outside which the lovers stood. "You folks think list'nin' ain't the right thing," he went on. "No more it ain't, but I waked from a nap as you were in the midst o' talkin' and it didn't take ten words to show me the lay o' the land. I like the lay of it. The little lady thar," nodding toward Philomena, "has got me doped out fine and pat, but she didn't make sport of the old galoot. She said it in sport, but she has looked out fer me. And more'n that, she's made me understand thar was at least one woman money couldn't buy. You ain't half good enough fer her," this to Hetherton with a chuckle. "But since it appears she likes the looks o' ye, be hanged if you're a-goin' to take her and try love in a cottage. At least, not onless the cottage's got all the fixin's. No need to tell me how you stand. I ain't quite out o' the market if I am up here in the mountains, courtin' and rusticatin'. If you need margins, I know the reason why. Go right straight to the telephone. I'll be along o' ye; together we'll get the straight o' things down to a dot over my private wire. I'm goin' to see you through if it takes one million or even two. But when you are through you git married and keep out of sech messes."

"I will," Hetherton said, holding out his hand.

Before the MacCarty could take it Philomena flung herself between them, threw her arms about his thick neck and kissed him on both cheeks. "You're an angel elephant," she murmured. "I shall love you always, no matter what he says," with a nod toward Hetherton.

"He says, 'Amendment accepted,'" Hetherton said, wringing the MacCarty's hand.

That gentleman laughed apologetically, but returned the grip heartily, and said as he puffed away with Hetherton at his elbow:

"It takes jest an angel elephant to skeer the bulls and bears good and hard."

Peevishness.

Peevishness may be considered the canker of life that destroys its vigor and checks its improvement; that creeps on with hourly depredations and taints and vitiates what it cannot consume.—Johnson.

Probably.

Probably a woman would be a bride to her husband longer if she should continue making company of him. Most women begin to save their jam for visitors when they have been married three months.

Gin Pills Will Cure Your Sick Kidneys

OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Don't you want to be rid of that nagging, biting, torturing pain across the back and through the kidneys? Don't you want to sleep through the night without being disturbed by the sick kidneys? Don't you want to feel well and be well? Here's the way:

"I suffered from pain and stiffness in the back. Sharp pains would catch me unexpectedly, which were sometimes so severe as to produce fainting spells. Rheumatism followed, and the sharp pains were so severe that I had to take to the bed for several months. I started to take Gin Pills, and in five days I was up and around the house. My pains are gone now, and I have not had a return of the old trouble since. And Gin Pills gave me the first painless passage of urine I have had in two years.

"ROBT. DERRAUGH, Winnipeg, Man."

You can't honestly doubt Gin Pills after such testimony as this. Gin Pills hold out certain relief from pain. They are sold with an ironclad guarantee to cure or refund your money. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. At all druggists. We will send you a trial box free if you will send us your name and address and say the paper in which you read this. Put down the paper—get a post card—and write us now before you forget it. The Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man.

WOMAN'S WORLD

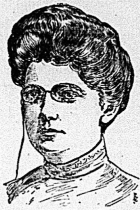
MRS. ALICE M. BUTLER.

The Only Woman Railway Promoter In This Country.

Missouri is the home of the only woman railway promoter in the United States—Mrs. Alice M. Butler of St. Joseph. Mrs. Butler has had experience in promoting many railway lines which are now in successful operation. Mrs. Butler plans great things, but she is far from being a feminine Mulberry Sellers. She has not had a failure in all her career.

Mrs. Butler has done most of her work in Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Ohio. She promoted a line from Davenport, Ia., to Le Clair and Clinton, which is now in successful operation. She has already tapped the fertile Nodaway valley of Missouri and has plans to gridiron the state with a network of interurbans that will revolutionize farm life in Missouri.

With all her strenuous labors, and Mrs. Butler is a hustler in every sense of the word, she retains her womanliness, is quiet voiced, ladylike in every action, unassuming and extremely modest. She dislikes to talk of herself, but to a Post-Dispatch correspondent lately had this to say of her work:



MRS. ALICE M. BUTLER.

"So far as I know, I am the only woman promoter of railroads in the country. It is a work in which I am interested beyond power of words to express, and it is a work in which I believe I am competent. When you come to consider it there is no reason why a woman should not do such work. It is the idea that counts in this world, whether it originates in the brain of a man or a woman. If a capitalist sees a chance to invest and make every dollar earn five or ten, does he stop to ask whether it is a man or a woman who first gave him the idea? There are no sex distinctions in business.

"With all my comings and goings, I might add, I have had many strenuous experiences, but I have never been treated in any manner which any lady would find in the slightest way distasteful. I have to deal often with politicians, but I am always treated like a lady.

"So long as I demean myself properly I can command the respect of any man with whom my business brings me in contact. We hear much of the corruption of politics, but I have seen little of it. I have been cheated out of my rights, and I have had hard times to obtain my rights, but business is business, and the body politic is far from being corrupt and rotten, as pessimists would have us believe."

While Mrs. Butler can hardly be said to have any permanent home, as she is always on the go, her permanent address is the Hotel Metropole, St. Joseph. She is at home, however, wherever an idea from her fertile brain can be made to work out.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Sewing Room.

A sewing room depends upon the extent of the industry carried on therein. The more important things which will make it a comfort and a pleasure to work in are an old pier glass, which you can either hang or have mounted, and, if possible, a discarded piece of furniture of the "dresser" variety, which will give a mirror to stand opposite it. This can be turned a little so that it is possible to get a full length view both back and front. A table long enough to hold a skirt can be found in a kitchen table often, and, by having an extra leaf put on the back, you can "square" it when an extra large table is wanted. This shape and size are especially called for when doing a circular skirt. With scrapbasket, workbasket and a hamper for keeping rolls of linings and materials that are left, bits of which may be wanted any time, and with a low folding table and one low and one high chair, and the machine, your sewing room is equipped.

A manikin and a tree rack, which garments can be hung on when half finished, are also great helps.

A much larger amount of sewing is apt to be accomplished in the house in which there is a place where half finished work can be left, as it is possible to take advantage of every bit of spare time, which never would be done if things had to be got out.

Hardwood Floor Polish.

A good mixture for polishing a hardwood floor may be made from one-third raw linseed oil and two-thirds paraffin. It should be used sparingly or the polishing afterward will take a long time. In cleaning such a floor it is better to use a soft hairbrush rather than a stiff one. After being well swept the floor should be wiped with a dry, soft cloth in order to take up all dust. If there are any spots they may be removed with a cloth wet with turpentine or they may be rubbed with a cloth wrung dry out of warm water. This will take off the polish, but it may be restored by using a weighted brush. This brush has a long handle and is pushed back and forth till the polish is again restored. Woolen cloths may be used, but of course it will take longer and the work will be tedious. The weighted brush as well as others should be thoroughly cleansed two or three times a year by washing them in warm water to which a few drops of ammonia has been added.—New York Post.

Brushing Velvet.

The whole secret in the care of velvet lies in the management of the brush. Take a hat brush which is not too soft and which has bristles elastic enough to return at once to their original state after being pressed aside. Hold this firmly under the palm of the hand in the direction of the arm and with the bristles downward. Press them at first gently into the velvet; then twist the arm, hand and brush altogether, as on an axis, without moving them forward or backward. The dust will be drawn up and flirted out without injury to the velvet, and the brush must be lifted up and placed in a similar manner over every part required to be brushed. By this method velvet will last for years.

Torn Wall Paper.

When a hole has been jammed in the wall paper, as sometimes occurs in moving a piece of furniture, if one has no paper like the one on the wall or dislikes the appearance of a patch, a judicious use of water colors will work wonders. The torn paper should be first straightened as neatly as possible and glued down. Then touch up the vacant spaces and the seams with paints the color of the paper at that place. The break will be almost invisible if the water colors are used carefully. In patching wall paper always tear the patch irregularly instead of cutting it unless it is the full strip. The edge will be less noticeable.

Fretful Babies.

When the baby cries and frets at night, instead of drifting peacefully off to slumberland, do not give him medicine at once. Try first some simple, natural remedy. Spanish women put restless infants to sleep by rubbing their backs, and this method should prove equally effective with American tots. As a second resource put the baby into a warm bath, which will take all the congestion from the brain and spinal cord, and the little child will fall asleep in a few moments.

Saves the Ice.

If you cannot afford an asbestus lining for your icebox you will find that it will materially lessen your ice bill to lay old newspapers thickly over the top and sides, but not on the bottom of the ice. This keeps the warm air of the room from striking every time the door is opened, and as it melts much slower the food in the chamber below is kept at a lower temperature.

The Elbow.

To remove callous places from the elbow, soak them every night for ten minutes in warm water in which a teaspoonful of borax has been dissolved. Then carefully dry and rub with a good cold cream. If the habit of leaning on the elbows has been formed it should be broken immediately, as it is this habit that causes callous spots.

Sedative Skin Lotion.

A very fine sedative lotion for the skin and one which will remove the oily shine is made by combining one and one-half ounces of witch hazel, three-fourths of an ounce of rose water, one-half an ounce of boroglyceride, one-fourth an ounce of pure oxide of zinc and one-half an ounce of the pure essence of rose. Apply at night and morning.

Mind the Frock.

Do not overrate your power of mind and underrate that of your pretty frocks, says a modern philosopher, and while he may excite the scorn of some strong feminine minds there is not a little evidence that many women of emancipated aspirations have already taken unto themselves this gem of wisdom.

A Good Tooth Powder.

The following is a most satisfactory tooth powder: Mix well together two ounces each of powdered orris root and camphorated chalk. Add twelve drops of eucalyptus oil and again mix. Keep in air tight tin if possible.

In choosing a stair carpet it is always in better taste to select a perfectly plain carpet than a figured one, but if the latter be preferred then choose a small, close set design, with subdued colors well mingled.

Pictures always look best on a warm toned, plain surfaced background. So when you are papering a room choose rather a paper with no figure than one with sprays.

If scars remaining from pimples be bathed in a saturated solution of boric acid and then anointed with zinc ointment they will readily disappear.

Fine table salt rubbed on marble will remove a stain unless the latter be of too long standing.

I will refund your money if it fails.

RHEUMATISM

Price 25c.

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure seldom fails to relieve pains in legs, arms, back, stiff or swollen joints in a few hours. Positively cures in a few days. It does not put the disease to sleep, but drives it from the system. —MUNYON.

No Sleep For The Kidneys.

Old people are especially liable to Kidney and Bladder Irritation. The organs are weakened by age. This starts up inflammation—blood is not properly purified as it goes to the kidneys—and the bladder is unable to retain the urine properly. There is a constant desire to urinate day and night—and sound, restful sleep is unknown.

Bu-Ju

gives the vigor and strength of youth to kidneys and bladder. It soothes and heals the irritated surfaces—tones up the organs—enables them to do their work easily and naturally—and cures all kidney troubles.

Headache

They Hurt You. Use Zutoo.

Don't think because the drug cures for headache do not make your heart palpitate, dull your nerves or upset your stomach just when you take them, that they are not hurting you, for they are.

The magazine "Health" speaks truly when it says: "Every dose of such drugs is at the expense of vitality, and sooner or later the penalty for outraging nature will be exacted."

You can avoid this penalty and cure your headaches just as quickly by taking the vegetable cure, Zutoo.

Stylish Fall Millinery

Paris, London and New York have with the aid of our own artists, worked out some very dainty and stylish ideas in Ladies' Headwear for the fall season.

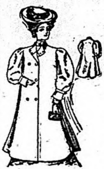
Feathers, Wings and Plumes are trimming favorites while for shapes, velvets hold the leading position. The trimmings are in shades to match the new suitings, as plum, old rose, wines, navy, greens etc.

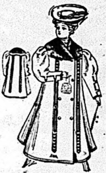
We have bent our every effort to make this season's showing eclipse all previous. The world's greatest markets have been searched and all the newest ideas brought forward are well represented.

Any lady can purchase from our selection, feeling confident of the correctness of her headwear. All are marked at moderate prices.

New style ideas are advanced almost daily. We will be pleased to have you make inspection whenever convenient.

Fashionable Jackets





Never before has our Mantle Department been so filled with the very latest in Ladies' Ready-to-wear Garments. The markets of the world have been thoroughly searched and you will find here the best that Canada can produce, some specially choice silk and velvet coats from England and the best German makes are also represented.

This year when braids and embroideries are so fashionable for trimming, the imported coats are taking the lead as there are no people in the world who have the machinery and facilities for doing this class of work equal to the Germans. There is a big feeling for Black Coats and we never showed such pretty ones. All we ask is that you come and see and it will not take long to convince you that this is the place to buy your winter coat if you want the best values and the latest style—another large shipment of Ladies' and Children's Coats just put into stock.

A WORD ABOUT

IS IT BECOMING?

The Test Women Should Apply to Every Article of Clothing.

"Heaven help the woman who thinks it doesn't matter what she wears; she is not only vain, but idiotic," is the cry of a contributor to the London Ladies' Field. This writer dilates on the absurdity of any woman fancying she can afford to be independent of her clothes or that men "never know what a woman has on," whatever they may say to the contrary.

"There is no doubt," as she acknowledges, "that men are genuinely sincere in making this assertion and really do believe in their own indifference to such paltry accessories to feminine charms as hats and chiffons. But every woman knows in her heart the great part clothes play in her life, and so long as men persist in falling in love only with well dressed women it is useless for them to proclaim the relative unimportance of such matters.

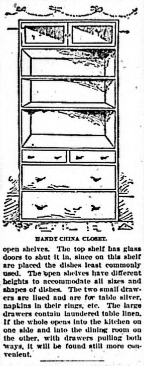
"A well dressed woman need not necessarily be expensively dressed—at any rate, from the male point of view," sagaciously continues the author, "and where women make their mistake is in assuming that it is enough for clothes to be merely beautiful or merely smart. The really vital question for every woman in reference to every hat, gown, coat or fur she buys is or ought to be, 'Is it becoming?'

"Life, indeed, for a woman must always be more or less a question of appearance, and none is so good or so beautiful or so intellectual that she can afford to be dowdy. The art of dressing and of making the most of her own appearance, far from being a sign of supreme feminine folly, as many people would have us believe, is in reality one of the most important arts a woman can master. The really foolish woman is the one who neglects her appearance, who is too lazy or too conceited to take any trouble with her clothes and who thinks it does not matter what she wears."

HANDY CHINA CLOSET.

It Is Simple and Convenient as Well as Attractive.

The accompanying cut of a china closet is presented as one of the most convenient arrangements that can be devised. The whole closet may have a door or a curtain to shut it in from the outside, but probably the most attractive and convenient plan would be a dainty curtain sliding on a brass rod and covering only the fronts of the open shelves. The top shelf has glass doors to shut it in, since on this shelf are placed the dishes least commonly used. The open shelves have different heights to accommodate all sizes and shapes of dishes. The two small drawers are lined and are for table silver, napkins in their rings, etc. The large drawers contain laundered table linen. If the whole opens into the kitchen on one side and into the dining room on the other, with drawers pulling both ways, it will be found still more convenient.



HANDY CHINA CLOSET.

A Tea Table Accompaniment.

A woman whose afternoon tea is always served with exceptional daintiness has in addition to her tea table a tiny hanging cupboard in which the tea table furnishings are kept. This cupboard, which matches the table itself, is in mission-style and is furnished with glass doors. Behind these the little cups, saucers and other necessaries are kept free of the dust deposit which is so often found on the best intentioned tea tables. The possessions are safer, too, less subject to accident from the brushing of an incautious skirt or the friskings of the household pet. Across the table lies a pretty runner embroidered in art nouveau style on which is placed the heating apparatus, electrical, by the way, and the kettle, nothing else. The little cupboard is swung where it will be within reach of the hostess' hand as she sits to pour the beverage, the cups being reached for one by one as needed.—Philadelphia Press.

Making Over a Cloth Suit.

If you are making over an old cloth suit nothing freshens it up more than to responge it and thoroughly press it. Do not of course attempt to sponge any made up garment or treat it in the same way that you would the uncut material, but to renovate an old skirt thoroughly and make it over it is best to rip it apart in every seam and then thoroughly cleanse and responge. To do this saturate a piece of muslin in warm water, then roll up the muslin and the cloth together and allow them to remain for several hours. The damp muslin should be placed on the wrong side of the material.

THE IVORY MARKET.

Tusks by the Acre Exhibited at the Big London Docks.

One of the sights of London is the great ivory floor at the London docks, where previous to and during the periodical sales ivory may be seen literally by the acre, for the tusks are laid out in lots on the floor of one of the great warehouses for inspection by intending purchasers. For weeks previous to the actual sale the special staff of the ivory department has been busy preparing the various consignments and arranging them according to the sizes and quality and classing them into the various grades, each of which has some particular use for which it is especially adapted.

There is practically no waste in the manufacturing of articles from ivory. The smallest chip is not thrown away, but carefully preserved to be utilized for some purpose. Even the shavings from the turning down of a billiard ball have a market value for use in inlaid work. Consequently the lots in an ivory sale by no means consist of tusks and sections of tusks alone, but include the residue from many previous sales. Buyers purchase the particular class that they require for their own individual industry and subsequently return what in most other materials would be waste to be resold to manufacturers of a different class of goods.

Though there is "no waste," oddly enough the most important consideration, from a buyer's point of view, is "how much waste" will a certain lot produce in the course of transforming it into his own particular line. Thus a lot that would be dear to one would be a gift to another, and vice versa. The most valuable class of ivory is that suitable for making billiard balls. To conform to the requirements the tusk must be perfectly sound and solid, without the slightest suspicion of a crack or flaw, and, moreover, they must measure only a trifle more than the regulation size billiard ball or they will cut to waste, from the manufacturers' point of view. On the arrival of a consignment of unworked elephant ivory from abroad the first preparation for the sale floor consists of a thorough cleaning of the interior or hollow part of the tusk. This is done by means of wads attached to long sticks. The exact length of the hollow is thereby revealed, and in addition cracks and flaws that cannot be observed on the exterior are at times disclosed. Soundness is the one thing that sways every class of buyer; flaws mean waste; waste means resale at a lower figure per pound.

An Avaricious Woman.

A woman who carried love of money to an incredible extreme was Lady Margaret Jardine, sister of the first Duke of Queensbury. Although her husband was a rich man, Lady Margaret would actually carry foot passengers across the little river Annan for a halfpenny, and whenever there was a fair or market day she would sit on the banks of the stream all day long waiting for customers. She usually wore rags to save her clothes, but on the rare occasions when she visited anywhere she packed up a few decent garments which she slipped on before entering the house, exchanging them for her dirty ones when leaving.—London Queen.

The Point of View.

Zangwill, the noted writer, had an experience which convinced him that in deciding what constitutes real greatness a good deal depends upon the point of view. At a political meeting he fell into conversation with a man who knew all the speakers and pointed them out as they sat on the platform. "There," he said, "sits Senator Lodge." "What?" exclaimed Mr. Zangwill. "Do you mean Henry Cabot Lodge, the literary man—the great historian?" "No, sir-ee!" replied the other with distinct contempt. "That's Henry Cabot Lodge, United States senator from the great state of Massachusetts."

Unnecessary.

"Now, Tommy," said the boy's mother, giving him final instructions, "you must remember how to behave at the party. If you're asked to have something and you want it you must say 'Yes, thank you,' and if you don't want it you must say"—

"You needn't bother about that part of it, ma," interrupted Tommy.

The Maneuvering Mamma.

"The maneuvering mamma" is practically extinct. The modern daughter has an almost free hand in managing her love transactions. The mere love marriage, which was so disturbing a thought to the mother of even twenty years ago, is seldom heard of in Mayfair in these altered circumstances, says the London Graphic.

SAVE YOUR STRENGTH.

Don't Stand When You Can Sit; Don't Sit When You Can Lie Down.

Women sit too much, and women stand quite too much. Nothing is more wearisome than "standing about," even to the well trained body that has been drilled into good poise, and sitting is not resting, however cleverly women may delude themselves on this point.

The young girl who desires to keep away crow's feet and the jaded look and to retain the suppleness and bloom of youth should when off parade and duty and in her own room make a couch or the floor her habitual resting place.

Absolute repose comes to the tired muscles only when the body is in a reclining position, and absolute repose comes to the overstrung nerves only when the muscular system is perfectly at rest, relaxed.

The middle aged woman can woo back much of the freshness and litheSomeness of girlhood if she will be at a little pains to learn how to rest.

Five minutes of rest flat on the back on the floor or on a hard, smooth couch are worth half an hour of so styled rest in an armchair or in that unreposeful tempter, the rocking chair.

Some one has said to the woman of today: "Never stand when you can sit; never sit when you can lie down." This exhortation, applied with some elasticity, is an excellent beauty recipe.

INFANT DRUGGING.

A Bit of Medical Advice That Mothers Should Heed.

You may ask, "Why has the baby pain if it is healthy and needs no medicine?" It is sick and in pain because it has not been nursed properly and carefully. The mother has been indiscreet in her diet, or, if bottle fed, the bottle may not have been cared for properly; the milk may have been stale, or it has not been properly prepared. The baby gets angry and cries because some one has fondled it, made love to it and now is not here to take it and caress it as desired. It is hungry and cries because it has not been nursed at the proper interval or either the quantity or the nutritive value of the milk is deficient. These are points worthy of study in infants that cry much. Prescribe little medicine, but teach the mother a few hygienic laws in reference to the care of the child, and do not allow her to give soothing sirups of any sort, as they contain, as a rule, either bryonia or an opiate. The harm done to infants by the use of improper medication in the form of soothing sirups is great indeed.—Medical Bulletin.

DRESS HINTS.

In facing a sleeve turn it and place the facing inside the sleeve before sewing it on.

The proper corset will make the abdomen less prominent. Have the hose supporters placed at the front of the corset and drawn fairly tight.

If woolen dress goods are hung out of doors, right side out, for three or four hours or all night (if safe) they will be shrunken as satisfactorily as if done by a professional tailor.

The shine that shows a serge skirt or jacket to be no longer new can easily be removed by sponging the garment with bluing water, such as is used to launder clothes. While still damp press the goods under a thin cloth.

For holding a dress skirt in place in front make a little strip of the goods, doubled, and about four inches long and an inch wide. Stitch to the inside of the skirt band in the middle of the front. When the skirt is put on, this strip is pinned to the corset with a safety pin.

Well Kept Hands.

"Over my sink are two bottles and a nail cleaner," said a housekeeper. "One bottle contains five parts of lemon juice to one of alcohol, which will keep indefinitely. The other contains the following lotion: One-fourth of an ounce of gum tragacanth added to one pint of softened water, one ounce each of alcohol, glycerin, witch hazel and a dash of some sort of perfume. After washing dishes or preparing vegetables I apply a little of the lemon juice, then the lotion, and in a moment my hands are dry, soft and very smooth. All stains disappear as if by magic, and the nails are cleaned easily. The time required is not over two minutes. The expense of the lotion is comparatively nothing."

Care of the Hair.

The hair responds quickly to a little care and attention. Every night make it a habit to brush your hair thoroughly, afterward rubbing into the scalp a small quantity of this antiseptic and grower: Forty-eight grains of resorcin, one-fourth ounce of glycerin, diluted alcohol to fill a two-ounce bottle. Every fortnight get a good shampoo with eggs and hot water. If possible take electric scalp massage, which will invigorate the growth generally and promote the cultivation of the young hairs that will gradually become a part of the old halo. Before shampooing, say twenty-four hours before, rub olive oil into the scalp. Braid the hair loosely at night.

How a Child Should Sleep.

One should not sleep with either arm raised above the head. It is a pretty gesture, as watched in the slumbers of a child, but it is better, if not so pretty, that the arms should lie by the sides than stretched upward. One knows, when one stops to consider, how fatiguing the attitude is if persevered in for a few moments of reaching up into a closet or arranging high draperies at a window, says Woman's Life. What then must be the effect when kept up throughout the whole night?

THE TABLES OF STONE.

A Curious Calculation From the Talmud and the Bible.

Did you ever figure on the probable size and immense strength of Moses, basing your calculations on the dimensions of the tables of stone, as given by the Talmudic writers? In the Talmud (folio 38, column 8) it is said that the tables of stone upon which the commandments were written were six ells long, six ells broad and three ells thick. In the Bible, Exodus xxxii, 15, we are told that "Moses went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand."

"Hand," mind you, not hands, though it must be admitted that it would have taken a strong pair of hands to perform the task of carrying them, even on the level. Now, we will put the Talmudic and the Biblical accounts together and apply the mathematical rule. The Hebrew ell or cubit was, at its least estimate, a measure of eighteen inches, which would have made each of the tables a stone block nine feet long, nine feet wide and four and one-half feet thick. If common stone weighed as much to the square foot then as it does now the tables would tip the beam at about twenty-eight tons! Was Moses one of the giants of those days or has some one made a mistake in calculations or in the statement of supposed facts?—Exchange.

SARDINES.

The Way They Are Cooked and Prepared For Market.

Sardines are caught in nets, and after being well washed the heads are cut off and the fish are sprinkled lightly with salt. After lying for a few hours they are placed on grids in rows almost perpendicular. The frames are then placed in pans containing boiling olive oil. The oil is changed as soon as it becomes too black and dirty for continuing the cooking process.

As soon as the fish are considered sufficiently cooked, they are withdrawn from the pans of oil and the grids are placed on the tables covered with zinc, the surface of the table inclining toward a groove in the center. The oil is thus carried to a vessel prepared to receive it. Round the table stand the women whose business it is to pack the fish closely and uniformly in boxes.

The boxes being full, the fish are covered with fresh oil and the lids are then soldered down. Thus hermetically sealed they are placed in iron baskets and immersed in boiling water. The smaller boxes are thus boiled for half an hour and the larger ones somewhat longer, in proportion to size of box. The fish are then ready for the market.

The Wearing of Hats.

More or less of a modern habit is the constant wearing of hats. Even as late as 1759 Horace Walpole mentions as a matter of course that he never wears a hat. "Remember," he says, writing to a friend notoriously careless about his dress, who was expected home from Holland, "everybody that comes from abroad is supposed to come from France, and whatever they wear at their first reappearance immediately grows the fashion. Now if, as is very likely, you should through inadvertence change hats with the master of a Dutch smack in a week's time we shall all be equipped like Dutch skippers. You see, I speak very disinterestedly, for, as I never wear a hat myself, it is indifferent to me what sort of a hat I don't wear."

Dangerous.

A contributor to the "Transactions of the Devonshire association" says that when he came to a certain place as vicar he asked whether there were any sick to be visited.

"Oh, no, sir!" was the answer. "Nobody is ever ill in Berrynarbor. There is an old man, to be sure, over ninety, who has taken lately to his bed, but there hain't much the matter with him that I know of."

"I thought to myself," added the vicar, "of the story of the Scotchman who said to his doctor:

"'Ye pu' a vara long face, doctor. D'ye think I'm dangerously ill?'

"'Na, na,' was the reply. 'I don't think ye're dangerously ill, but I think ye're dangerously old.'"

The Missing Key.

One telegraph operator was telling another of a quarrel he had had with another at the other end of a wire.

"I gave him fits over the wire for about two minutes."

"What did he say?"

"Did not give him a chance to say anything. I just opened the key and he could not come back at me."

"Goodness," put in a bystander, "wouldn't it be fine if we could work a scheme like that in matrimony? Just open the key and that would be the end of it."

Trees.

Authorities on forestry say that seventy-five years are required for the oak to reach maturity; for the ash, larch and elm, about the same length of time; for the spruce and fir, about eighty years. After this time their growth remains stationary for some years, and then decay begins. There are, however, some exceptions to this, for oaks are still living which are known to be 1,000 years old.

Possibilities.

"But," protested the first dear girl, "I haven't got the face to ask a favor of him."

"Well," rejoined dear girl No. 2, "you might visit a complexion specialist and have your face remodeled."

To smile at the jest which plants a thorn in another's breast is to become a principal in the mischief.—Sheridan.

Uncle Peter

By EDITH M. DOANE

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

Thomas Coleman, cold, reserved, ambitious, sat at the head of the heavy library table. Beside him his pretty, fashionable wife drummed softly with her finger tips on the polished mahogany and watched her husband sideways out of her dark, inscrutable eyes.

The other Coleman, Elizabeth, stood by the window, a letter with a queer South American postmark in her hand.

"Poor, lonely old man," she said softly. "Listen, Tom. 'I'm kind of hungerin' for the sight of a face that belongs to me,' and this—'I jest want to get acquainted with my own folks'—isn't that pathetic?"

"'I ain't beholden,' she went on, scanning the letter swiftly. 'I don't ask no favors, but I'd kind of like to feel that them that is to have the little something I leave will have a kindly feelin' for the old man who scraped it all together, when he's gone.'"

She looked up with swift comprehension at the tense attitude of the other two. "You do not suppose that 'little something' can be a fortune, do you?" she said half nervously.

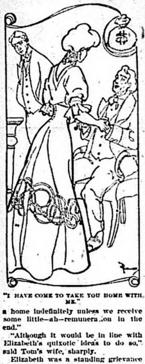
"It might be as well," Thomas Coleman suggested, "to acquire more definite information concerning it before—ah—committing ourselves." Thomas Coleman was a man whom his friends called "level headed."

"May be nothing in it," he added.

"But if there should be?" suggested his wife, still drumming softly on the polished wood. Only his wife knew how fearfully Thomas Coleman had been hampered in money matters lately.

"Whether there is or not, he has a claim upon us," put in Elizabeth, hotly. "He's a poor, lonely old man—our father's brother."

Thomas Coleman raised a remonstrating hand. "Be reasonable, Elizabeth. We do not know him. It is not to be supposed that we can offer him a home indefinitely unless we receive some little—ah—remuneration in the end."



"I HAVE COME TO TAKE YOU HOME WITH ME."

"Although it would be in line with Elizabeth's quixotic ideas to do so," said Tom's wife, sharply.

Elizabeth was a standing grievance with her sister-in-law—Elizabeth, who was supremely indifferent to the value of money—Elizabeth, tall and straight and splendid, who preferred a self supporting life in a tiny flat to dependence in her brother's beautiful home, and who proposed to "throw herself away" on a fellow whose only lack was that of money.

She confronted them now indignantly. "It is a shame!" she flashed, looking like an enraged princess, with her flaming cheeks and heavy, red gold hair. "A lonely old man begs for affection. He freely offers us all he has. Be it much or little, it is all. In return you weigh and appraise and calculate. Oh," she broke off, "I am ashamed of you. Let us make him honestly welcome, whatever he brings."

And in that first day, while the others held aloof, it was Elizabeth who, in warm hearted, impulsive fashion welcomed the little old man enveloped in a shaggy greatcoat, who regarded his "own folks" with shrewd blue eyes which looked out rather wistfully from under the shaggy brows.

On the second day Uncle Peter approached Thomas Coleman.

"Some mornin' when it's convenient I'd like to go downtown with you. I want to find Willie Moore's office," he added apologetically.

Thomas Coleman looked up quickly. "William T. Moore, the lawyer?"

The old man nodded. "Willie Moore's father and me was boys together, and I always had considerable confidence in Willie. I've got a few papers I'd kinder like him to keep," he added.

The few papers turned out to be $5,000,000 worth of shares in the El Juarez gold mines.

Uncle Peter's welcome was assured. For six months he was the recipient of every attention which the solicitude of his beloved and happily surprised nephew and his wife could devise; then, one day, like a bolt from a clear sky, the storm burst.

The El Juarez mines were flooded!

The rumor started in the Mining Exchange when stock that had been $150 was quoted at $25 a share; then the reporters got it and the journals flaunted great headlines of "Panic In Wall Street!" "El Juarez Mines Flooded!" Later the report was confirmed, and by 3 o'clock the shares of the El Juarez mines were not worth the paper on which they were written.

The old man to whom the mines had been a lifelong companion stared desperately at the flaunting headlines, then, covering his face with his rough, worn hand, gave way to his grief with the abandon of a child.

"Them mines was jest like my own child," he sobbed. "I knowed they wasn't actin' up jest right when I left 'em, but I never suspicioned they'd fetch up where they hev," and again tears flowed unrestrainedly down the furrowed cheeks.

Disappointed, imbittered, almost maddened by the loss of sorely needed wealth just within his grasp, Thomas Coleman broke the silence.

"Don't worry," he said coldly. "You are not too old yet to find some suitable employment."

Uncle Peter looked up in astonishment, then as the meaning of the cruel words dawned upon him his face went suddenly and pitifully white.

"I kinder thought if I was ever in trouble I could depend on my own folks," The old voice quavered piteously as the curtains parted and Elizabeth entered the room. Sweeping past the others, she took the old man's hands in her young ones.

"I have come to take you home with me," she said simply.

"But the mines," he said unsteadily.

"Never mind. There isn't much room in my little flat, but there's a loving welcome, and soon"—she blushed happily—"there will be a little house in the suburbs."

"But how about that young feller you're goin' to marry?" questioned the old man doubtfully.

"He told me to come for you," answered Elizabeth, with proud, happy eyes.

The old man rose and, still holding Elizabeth's hand, faced Thomas Coleman and his wife.

"You said I wasn't too old to find suitable employment," he said, "and I ain't. I've found it. I'm goin' to buy that house out in the suburbs, and it won't be no little one, either. An' I'm goin' to set the young feller up in whatever business he wants to be set up in, an', what's more, I'm goin' to give Elizabeth a million dollars in government bonds fer her weddin' gift. I ain't through with the other million yet, but when I am she an' her children gits it. My money wan't in them mines. I told Willie Moore how they wuz actin' up, an' he took it out fer me three months ago. I ain't denyin' I felt bad about 'em, but 'twarn't the money I wuz thinkin' of.

"No," he repeated, "I warn't thinkin' of the money, an'"—he patted her hand lovingly—"neither wuz Elizabeth, but," he added slowly, with a shrewd glance at Thomas Coleman's white, baffled face, "it kinder looks as though there's others that wuz."

Puncturing a Fallacy.

The barber applied the rich brown dye with a fine tooth comb, combing it evenly into the grizzled locks of the old man.

"Hair dye, sir," he said. "Plain, unvarnished hair dye is the base of that absurd fallacy about people turning gray in a single night.

"If you investigate those yarns you find that invariably they concern persons in prison. Orsini, pining in jail, had his hair go back on him. Marie Antoinette, languishing in a cell, found the deep hue of her hair changing to an ugly gray. Raleigh, imprisoned in the tower, developed grayish streaks with incredible speed.

"The secret of all that, my dear, is this:

"These prisoners in order to conceal their gray hair dyed it, using a poor sort of dye, one of those sorts that have to be applied every day or two. In prison, naturally, they could not get hold of this dye, and hence their locks whitened at a miraculous rate. When people said of them pityingly that their terror or sorrow had turned their hair gray in a single night they acquiesced themselves in the deception, for is it not embarrassing—I leave it to you, sir, is it not embarrassing—to explain to the world at large that one uses hair dye?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Well Timed Puns.

A southern clergyman, an inveterate punster, says that while he is well aware that puns belong to the lowest order of wit he is seldom able to resist the temptation to make one when opportunity offers.

On one occasion after preaching an eloquent sermon he was met by two friends, one of whom began to praise his discourse in enthusiastic terms. When he paused for breath the other man said, with a laugh:

"Well, doctor, can you stand as much soft soap as that?"

"Indeed I can if there isn't too much lye in it," returned the minister quickly.

At another time he was present at the marriage reception of a young couple of the name of More. The occasion was somewhat stiff up to the time of the minister's entrance, and he quickly discovered the state of affairs.

"Madam," he said, with his radiant smile, addressing the awkward young bride, "how fortunate you are! There are so few people who can say with truth, 'The More I want the More I have.'"

The laugh which followed put the company at ease.

SELECTIONS

A CURIOUS CLOCK.

Novel Timepiece Made by a German Horologist.

A globe clock, described in a recent number of a German paper, is very interesting from the point of view of its mechanism. The clock complete on its base measures 18 cm. (about 7 inches) in height, and its sphere has a diameter of about 12 cm. (4¾ inches). This sphere is made of copper, and the oceans and continents are laid on the surface of that metal in enamel. The globe is made in two parts, the northern hemisphere and the southern hemisphere, united by a large circular band, representing the equator, and is divided to mark the twenty-four hours. It is in equilibrium in a Cardanic suspension.

The movement of the clock has a cylinder escapement and runs eight days. The winding is done at the lower part—that is, at the south pole. In two holes made in that part the two tines of a special key are inserted and the globe is then turned, like the knob of a stem winder. The barrel is in the center of the globe and turns once every twenty-four hours. It drives a pipe whose extremity projects through the north pole of the sphere and carries a hand ornamented with a sun. At the lower end of this tube the weight is attached, which gives the desired inclination to the globe.

This weight is designed to keep the hand constantly in the same place and to compel the sphere, which is free, to turn in its stead in the opposite direction. The tube to which hand and the weight are fastened is provided with an oiled bearing, so that the clock easily gives the correct time. The circle marked with the hours is turned in such a way that the figure 12—that is, noon—is always on the meridian of the place where the clock is. In this way, the hand remaining fixed, the time is indicated by the figures which slowly revolve one after the other. Besides this, the rotation of the sphere brings the different meridians successively under the hand—that is, under the sun. The clock therefore not only gives the time of day where it actually is, but also shows whereabout on the globe it is noon at the same moment.

Most Disastrous Day at Sea.

Sir Henry Hozier, who has just retired from Lloyd's after thirty-two years' service, said that the most disastrous day at sea he could remember was in October, 1881, when 108 vessels were posted as lost in twelve hours. When a vessel is lost it is announced by the tolling of the bell which hangs beside the crier's box. It is tolled once when a vessel is lost, twice when a missing vessel comes to port. The bell belonged to the Lundine, a vessel which went down in the Zuyder Zee over a century ago with a million and a half in coin on board, out of which less than a million was wrenched from the jaws of the sea.

Unique Military Address.

General Kuropatkin's address to the army of Manchuria on laying down the command has been published. In one respect this document is probably unique, in that the superseded generalissimo frankly lays upon his own shoulders the responsibility for Russia's failure to make head against her enemy. "I had not," he said, "the talents for remedying the defects against which the army had to contend or for so using the army as to command victory." The general, having dealt faithfully with himself, then draws a graphic picture of the army's utter unpreparedness and, what was worse, its grossly inefficient training for war.

Edison as a Critic.

Thomas A. Edison's latest discovery happens to be in the realm of aesthetics and criticism. "A few years ago," he said the other day, "when the talking machine business was still a dubious proposition, a list of the new records was often handed me for approval. After hearing them I would mark 'Good,' 'Fair' or 'Rotten' against the compositions so as to class them for the trade. The 'rotten' records always made a hit with the public. Now all I have to do is to condemn a bit of music and the factory works overtime to supply the demand."

The Cigarette In the Orient.

Says a writer in the Peking and Tientsin Times: "The cigarette has caught the popular favor in the east and far east, being a smoke seemingly peculiarly adaptable to Asiatics. The long stemmed pipe is giving way everywhere to the cigarette. All classes of Chinese take to it, even rickshaw coolies, some brands of the cigarettes being so cheap that the beggars in Peking are seen often indulging in a quiet smoke."

Uncle Sam's Soldiers.

According to George B. Winter, the London military tailor who was engaged by the United States government to reorganize the uniforms of the American army, that army "contains the pick of American manhood. The soldiers are as hard as nails, lean and muscular. They are indeed a magnificent lot of athletes and are capable of standing any amount of hardship."

Everybody Going to Jail.

In 1850 the ratio of prison population was one in 3,443 inhabitants. In 1860 it was one in 1,647, in 1870 one in 1,171, in 1880 one in 853 and in 1890 one in 757. In other words, in the forty years from 1850 to 1890 the prison population increased nearly five times as fast as population.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The value and usefulness of every optical instrument is well known to depend primarily on the exactness of the shape of the lenses and on the accuracy of their position; and every instrument, though built to be correct for general use, has to have some means of adjustment, to focus or to adapt it to the varying conditions of light and distance. The eye is a camera, with its lens inside; the pupil the stop, or diaphragm; the eye-lids the shutter; but instead of a plate or film to take each picture, it has the retina, or expanded optic nerve, ever ready to feel and to convey to the brain countless pictures in constant succession. It has also its adjusting power; not a screw nor a draw tube, the delicate ciliary muscle, which acts on the lens and changes the focus according to the nearness of the object looked at, but which is not needed for distant vision. Being an optical instrument, the eye cannot escape the fixed laws of optics, the necessity for extreme accuracy in the original shape and position of its parts. But since instruments have been invented to make accurate measurements, it has been found that the eye varies in a large majority of cases from a very small error in some cases to very great errors in other cases.

Muskoka Girl Was Strong and Plucky.

Toronto, Oct. 3. — The following story was brought to-day from Windermere, Muskoka, by a Torontonian who is reliable:

A big black bear has been lurking around there for a fortnight. It was first seen by Mrs. Ingram, a Toronto lady summering there. As she was strolling over the rocks near her cottage on Eaton Bay she saw the dark fellow in the bushes. An alarm was given but the settlers round about were unable to again catch sight of him.

Yesterday the animal was killed under interesting circumstances. Miss Edna Hough, a girl of 13, together with her younger brother and Dick King, a strong millhand, were out rowing near Windermere. They were turning to go home when the girl insisted she saw an animal in the water ahead of them. They went ashore got stones, and threw at the dark object, but no movement followed. They got more missiles and a club, but this time the object moved and struck for the shore. The three in the boat arrived at land first and as the bear scrambled up the rocks Dick deftly clubbed him on the head. The animal, half-stunned again endeavored to climb ashore. The girl, whose father is reputed to be the strongest man in Muskoka, grasped the brute by the back of the neck and doubled its head back while Dick cut its throat.

Windermere people could hardly believe the story, but a photograph, which was taken shortly after by Matthew Macron, Dr. Elmore Harris' engineer, proved the story to be true.

Boys and a Watch

Yesterday, as Mr. S. Lawrence was delivering bread in the vicinity of the wharf, two small boys approached him and requested him to buy a watch which they were offering for sale. Mr. Lawrence took the timepiece to examine it, and when he commenced to make enquiries of the lads as to how they came in possession of it they ran away. The watch has been turned over to the police. It is an open-faced silver watch, with a good movement.

The intense itching characteristic of salt rheum and eczema is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Salve. As a cure for skin diseases this salve is unequalled. To be had at R. Templeton & Co.'s drug store.

A new copyrighted serial story, "The Crimson Blind," will begin in The Intelligencer in a few days.

Witness Said the Siding Was Short

Napanee, Oct. 4.—The inquest into the cause of Engineer Blaine's death in the recent Grand Trunk Railway collision near this town was resumed last night. A witness, who measured the siding on which a freight train of 53 cars was being put to allow the express to pass, found the siding to be 2,000 feet long, whereas a previous witness said the 53 freight cars measured 2,016 feet.

The Grand Trunk Railway will be given a chance to cross-question the new witness next Wednesday, to which date an adjournment was made.

Interesting News

The news contained in the Ritchie Company's big advertisement, which appears to-day, should prove very interesting to the good ladies of Belleville. Even a mere man can see that some of the bargains offered are wonderful, and when the said bargains are backed up by the reputation and guarantee of Belleville's famous dry goods store, which has for fifty years stood for all that is best in the trade, well, what better "news" can ladies want than the said ad.? Read it. It may save you money.

The Ornament Fell

AND ONE OF THE FINE PLATE GLASS WINDOW OF THE RITCHIE COMPANY WAS SMASHED.

At about 5 o'clock this morning an iron ornament over a window sill in the second storey of the Ritchie Company's establishment fell to the pavement, and, rebounding, went through the plate glass window, shattering it badly. The pane broken was one of the largest in the city, or in Canada, for that matter. It appears the ornament was fastened over the top of the window by an iron bolt which had become rusted to such an extent that it broke off. The piece of metal weighed about 60 pounds. It was fortunate that it did not fall whilst many were about the street, or a fatal accident may have resulted. A careful examination of all the coping ornaments has been made, and there is no danger of further accidents.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

A MUSICAL TREAT THIS EVENING

Nothing but praise of the most unstinted character greeted the first performance in America of "A Trip to the Highlands," which comes to the Carman to-night. The company has been appearing at all the famous watering places, including Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Newport, Bar Harbor and Saratoga. The company presenting this play is an organization of clever people, supported by the eminent Scotch comedian and humorist, Spottiswoode Aitken, who will be seen here for the first time. Mr. Aitken has been applauded and smiled upon by Royalty in London—for years he was the principal Scotch comedian at Daly's Theatre, London. This year he will make a tour of all the principal cities in Canada and the United States.

Misses Hudson Wanted In York Loan Case

Toronto, Oct. 5. — Crown Attorney Drayton applied to Judge Winchester for warrants for the arrest of Lilian and Gertrude Hudson, former employees of the York County Loan and Savings Company, who acquired considerable notoriety from their relations with Phillips in the intricate transactions revealed at the enquiry into the company's affairs.

Subpoenas for their attendance before the grand jury were served at their addresses as well as at Phillips' home on Wright Avenue, but they failed to appear.

The grand jury are still busy on the Phillips case and only adjourned at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The non-attendance of the Misses Hudson is impeding progress very seriously at the stage reached by the examination.

What Fred Renfrew Was Wanted For.

Toronto, Oct. 5.— Fred Renfrew, the prisoner who escaped from Belleville jail, was to have been brought to Toronto when his term there expired on Oct. 26th, to answer the charge of entering the home of Michael Walls, 49 Duchess street, on Jan. 11, 1906. The local police say he probably feared the outcome of his trial here.

DRESS ECONOMY.

The Way to Renovate a Gown When It Begins to Show Wear.

When a walking skirt begins to look shabby, or, indeed, any skirt for that matter, hang it out of doors, first of all, to air thoroughly, then carefully remove every stain and cut off the worn binding around the bottom edge. If the waistband is pulled out from much pinning or the skirt is commencing to "pull up" because the band is a little tight remove that, too, very carefully, says the Portland Express.

Now hang out of doors until sponging (to remove stains) has dried, when the skirt may be given a new binding round the bottom and a new waistband, letting out a little of the fullness from the plaits at the back and replacing all hooks and eyes that are necessary. "Give the skirt a thorough pressing, using a warm, not hot iron, and taking plenty of time. Press on the wrong side or lay a damp cloth on the right side and iron until it dries. Hang up for twenty-four hours before wearing, as any wrinkles that are made in it before it is perfectly dry are apt to remain in the goods until pressed with a warm iron. A skirt fixed in this way is equal to a new one, and one feels very luxurious and comfortable in it when it has been renovated in this way.

Knew From Experience.

"I say," said a friend the other day, 'you are an old hand at it. I have only just got married, and don't understand much about the business, but has a married man any rights left when he once assumes the hymeneal responsibilities?"

"Rights? Yes, lots! He's a right to pay all the bills, to"—

"Stop. I mean this. Let me give you an instance. Every box and drawer and portmanteau and, in fact, every available receptacle of every description is stuffed full of my wife's property and when I want to put away a few cuffs and collars"—

"Hold hard! I know what you mean. Listen, young man. If your bedroom were 200 yards long and lined from the floor to the ceiling with drawers and you wanted a place to stow away a couple of collars, you couldn't find a nook that wasn't full of hairpins, tufts of frizzes, pads, scent boxes, old gloves, powder puffs, rings and things. So just accept the inevitable. Wrap your personal property in an old newspaper or some brown paper and hide the parcel under the bed."

The inquirer smiled loudly and ironically and passed on a wiser if not a better man.

A Nice Distinction.

A well known Atlantan has a wife with a sharp tongue. Jones had come home about 2 in the morning rather the worse off for a few highballs. As soon as he opened the door his wife, who was waiting for him in the accustomed place at the top of the stairs, where she could watch his uncertain ascent, started upbraiding him for his conduct. Jones went to bed and when he was almost asleep could hear her still scolding him unmercifully. He dropped off to sleep and awoke after a couple of hours, only to hear his wife remark, "I hope all the women don't have to put up with such conduct as this." "Annie," said Jones, "are you talking again or yet?"

Clams' Eggs.

The clam's eggs are carried by the mother on her gills. When there are fish in the water with them the mother clams discharge the eggs which soon hatch, but if there are no fish they carry the eggs until they decay. The reason of this strange behavior is this: When the eggs are set free in the water they soon hatch and the little ones swim about until they find some fish to which to attach themselves. They live for a time on the mucus of the fish and then drop off, sink to the bottom and form burrows for themselves. This curious semiparasitic life is no doubt a reversion to the habit of some ancient ancestor.

The Perverse Golf Ball.

A collector of evidence on the subject maintains learnedly that the golf ball is the most perverse of human institutions. Here is a list of strange lies noted by a follower of the ancient game: In another player's pocket, where it had dropped after traveling 200 yards; in a cow's mouth; on the roof of a clubhouse; behind the glass protecting a painting hanging on a cottage wall; in a clump of daisies, which it so resembled that it was not found for an hour. When it fell in the cow's mouth the frightened animal galloped 276 yards nearer the hole and then restored the ball to its owner. He promptly claimed to have driven it 297 yards and the right to play it from where it lay.

McINTOSH BROS.

HON. G. E. FOSTER ALL DAY

Mr. Shepley Insistently Questions About Dual Position.

Witness, However, Could Only See Academical Conflict Between Duty and Interest in Circumstances of the Land Deals as Explained by Him—Dual Position Occupied by Him Not Concealed From Other Directors.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Mr. Foster was called to the box when the Insurance Commission resumed yesterday morning.

Witness told the story of the disposal of 8,640 acres of land which had been held by the Union Trust Co. in trust for Pope & Fowler, to the Great West Land Co., at $5 per acre. The syndicate bought the 8,640 acres of land but did not know, nor did not enquire, where Pope and Fowler got the option, beyond the fact that they had the option from the C. P. R. There was no idea that the land was included in the original option of 200,000 acres.

Mr. Shepley read the option and pointed out that the 200,000 acres were not scheduled and set out, but were to be selected from a large area. Witness could not agree, claiming that Pope and Fowler got a definite fixed number of acres, all scheduled and laid out.

Counsel wanted to know if the witness knew that these lands were originally rejected in the first selection. Mr. Foster answered in the negative. The purchase was made for the Great West Land Co. by George E. Foster as the agent at the advance of $1 an acre to the syndicate, who would in turn hand the lands over at an advance of 50 cents per acre to the company.

All parties in the Union Trust Co. and the Great West Land Co., according to the witness, were aware that the syndicate was making 50 cents an acre. The directors' report, however, showed that these lands were bought at $5 per acre.

That Dual Position.

Mr. Shepley again pointed out the dual position held by Messrs. Foster, McGillivray and Wilson in this deal. They were the agents of the Great West Land Co., the executive of the Great West Land Co., and at the same time making money on the deal. Mr. Foster recognized this.

In answer to the counsel, Mr. Foster said he did not know that Sir John Boyd was aware of the facts, but Mr. Schofield was.

Mr. Foster said that he had never had any deal with Pope and Fowler in regard to these lands.

Mr. Pope had said that there were three of them in the deal, and Mr. Shepley asked Mr. Foster if he knew who the third party was.

"It might have been the syndicate," he suggested. He (witness) would not have gone into the deal if he had known these were discarded lands.

"The lands," continued Mr. Foster, "were presented for sale. Our interest demanded that we should see that they were worth the money, but our interest ended there."

Duty vs. Interest.

"Do you see any conflict between duty and interest?"

"How?"

"In taking up the option from Pope and Fowler and passing it along at a profit?"

"Well, theoretically there may be a conflict between interest and duty, if we had an interest in these lands we had an interest in their being worth the money given for them. As far as getting the lands, they were reasonable in price and quality. The interest we had and the interest the Great West Land Co. had were the same."

Counsel dissected the price paid, witness assisting him. Eight thousand three hundred and twenty dollars was to be given in stock and $34,880 in cash; $12,960 was the gross profit for the two syndicates. Pope and Fowler got all the cash and the Foster syndicate got the stock.

The next phase of the matter was the readjustment on the basis of the 200,000 acreage. All the money that had been paid in the selection of Pope and Fowler had been paid by the Great West Land Co. The total acreage sold by Pope and Fowler was 193,197 acres. There had been no accounting of the differences. The stock itself had never been adjusted, certain reasons for which were advanced by the witness.

A Hard Question

The Great West Land Co. had paid to Pope and Fowler just the same as to the C. P. R. Witness understood that Pope and Fowler had given all the land defined in the schedule.

"Are you aware that Pope and Fowler did not transfer to the Great West Land Co. all the lands selected by the C. P. R. option?"

Mr. Foster could not answer the question. He insisted that he and the counsel were at cross purposes, and refused to answer a question he did not understand.

Mr. Shepley traced the matter from the beginning and repeated his question five times, when finally Mr. Foster admitted that at the outset he had understood it was the whole selection, but since then he had indefinite knowledge that this had not been done.

"You are surprised to hear that they were retaining some of these lands for their own use?"

"I did not know."

"Yes and No."

"Were the additional 8,640 acres turned over with the view of making up the quantity which they were not able to hand to you out of the selected lands?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"Yes, and no. After comparing schedules we came to the conclusion we had not the 200,000 acres. We found it would not amount to 200,000 acres and the 8,640 might be taken because we wanted 200,000 acres."

Mr. Shepley read a deposition of Mr. Lefurgey, showing that Pope and Fowler bought 203,000 acres, and after giving 192,000 to the Great West Land Co., and the 8,640, they still had left 6,000 acres.

"Did you know this?"

"No."

"Are you surprised?"

"I won't express an opinion."

Mr. Foster stated that he had no interest in these lands, or any lands bought by Pope and Fowler from the C. P. R. at any time.

"Are you able to say that the Great West Land Co. got all they paid for?"

Mr. Foster explained that he thought the company had all they were entitled to.

"You paid the C. P. R. for 200,000 shares?"

"Yes."

Minutes Unsigned.

Mr. Shepley turned his questions to the connection of the Union Trust Co. with the transaction up to the time of the mortgage. Mr. Foster said he advocated the holding of stock as security, but Mr. Stevenson had favored a first mortgage.

"My impression," said Mr. Foster, "is that Mr. Stevenson wanted to be rid of stock transactions absolutely, bonus stock as well as the ordinary stock, but if Mr. Stevenson says he wished to retain the bonus stock, I would not contradict him. Whatever the Foresters' representatives wanted was carried out."

Mr. Shepley called the attention of the witness to the minutes of the Union Trust. The minutes of Nov. 7, 13 and 28 were not signed. On Nov. 13 Mr. Stevenson was credited with moving the resolution authorizing the company to enter into the contract. Mr. Foster said Mr. Stevenson, as vice-president, was in the chair at the meeting on Nov. 13. He did not consider it unusual for the chairman to move a resolution. He said Mr. Stevenson had left the next day for England, and hence the minutes had not been signed.

"The contract," Mr. Fowler said, "was entered into on the initiative of the Foresters and without any insistence by us. Instead of a stock partnership as at first agreed, they changed to a first mortgage. My opinion of that is that you can't have your cake and eat it, too. Under the preceding contract, if there had been any loss, the Union Trust Co. would have had to shoulder its share of the loss, according to the stock. Mr. Stevenson, to prevent this, took first mortgage, thus having the whole security, while the loss, if any, would fall on the stockholders."

Stock Assignments.

The examination was resumed in the afternoon.

Mr. Shepley took up the assignments in the stock books. One was found to be for 300 shares, made to Matthew Wilson, in trust for the syndicate. It was signed by George E. Foster. The other certificate, 237 shares, was also assigned to Wilson in trust, signed by Foster, and neither stamped the Union Trust Co.

The agreement of the surrender of the bonus stock was taken up. It was signed for the trust company by McGillivray and Foster and for the Great West Land Co., by Wilson and Foster.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Union Trust was held shortly after to carry out the transfer. Counsel took exception to the notice sent out calling the meeting, claiming that it did not recite the reasons for the meeting, nor anything about bonus stock.

"Is there anything in your notice giving the shareholders any idea that they were about to give away some of their property for nothing?"

"I did not make out the notice."

Put It Through First.

At the meeting of the directors of Dec. 11, at which were present Sir John Boyd, Matthew Wilson, McGillivray, Davidson and the witness, Matthew Wilson explained the agreement of the surrender, but witness could not swear that the documents were read. Both Dr. Oronhyatekha and Mr. Stevenson were away from home, and Mr. Shepley pointed out that the shareholders present were the syndicate and two others.

At the same hour the shareholders of the Great West met. The same were present, and in addition, Schofield, Vandusen, L. Gregory and the Union was represented by proxy.

Mr. Shepley asked if the witness was aware that the Union Trust Co. were about to undo the transaction. Witness was. Mr. Shepley asked what Mr. Foster's attitude toward that matter.

Mr. Foster did not intend to give it up without a fight. The Union Trust Co. and the syndicate were abundantly able to take care of themselves.

"Did you hear Dr. Oronhyatekha swear that he held that stock in trust for the Union Trust Co.?"

"Yes."

"What is your attitude in that case?"

"The same attitude."

"Who signed Dr. Oronhyatekha's name to the original transfer?"

"Mr. Davies, an official of the Foresters."

Oronhyatekha's Stock.

"What had the Foresters to do with that?" asked Mr. Shepley. "How did you assume to deal with that 100 shares of stock standing in the doctor's name by a transfer without his knowledge?"

"It was carrying out the agreement."

"An agreement to which the doctor had not part?"

"The Union Trust Co. was under agreement; it was understood that both of the blocks were——"

"Who represented the bonus stock side of the question?"

"Mr. Stevenson represented the bonus stock."

"Why was the matter not submitted to him?"

"Because he was on the water."

"Why did you not wait until he came back?"

Mr. Foster said that it was to be completed before the end of the year.

"Was there any necessity of haste?"

"We wanted to carry out the agreement."

"Who handed the stock over to Matthew Wilson? Were you going to pledge the stock?"

"Oh, no."

Foster Won't Cough Up.

"You went ahead and kept the Foresters in the dark. You and your associates have the stock, and got it in a way that was irregular, and yet you refuse to give it back?"

"I did not say that, Mr. Shepley. I may compromise."

Mr. Foster was connected with a company called the Eastern and Western Land Co. C. E. Scott is the secretary of that company, and he was a director.

Mr. Shepley dissected the minute books of this company. One minute took up the purchase of 6,500 acres at $5.75 per acre. Counsel wanted to know if the Pope and Fowler proposition was ever before the Eastern and Western Land Co., when the transaction was being put through. Witness answered in the negative.

From his brief report of a letter from Mr. Fowler concerning the purchase of land from Pope and Fowler by the Eastern and Western Land Co., witness gave a hazy answer that it was loading up to a purchase. He did not know of it.

Mr. Shepley took up other letters.

More Companies.

This brought out the fact that the board of the Eastern and Western Land Co. sold to the Union Trust Co., or tried to sell, certain lands and Mr. Foster was to negotiate for both companies. This brought out the dual position again, and Mr. Shepley pointed out the conflict between interest and duty.

Mr. Foster said the interest was too small, and that he was doing his duty to both companies.

Mr. Shepley kept on. He lead the ex-Finance Minister through statement after statement proving definitely that Foster was the accredited agent of both companies, and the witness coolly evaded the matter and said his duty was nothing more than to lay the proposition exactly as it was before the Union Trust Co.

"Had you any more interest in the Union Trust Co. than in the Eastern and Western Land Co.?"

"I—don't—know—that—I—had," murmured Mr. Foster.

"Then you don't see you had a duty to urge the sale on one side, and a duty to criticise on the other?" asked Mr. Shepley.

"I can't see it that way."

Charged 50 Cents Advance.

The agreement was read regarding the purchase of township No. 44 from Mr. Foster by the Union Trust Co. Mr. Shepley did not understand the terms of the contract. Witness explained that the price charged was $5.75, or 50 cents advance; that the Eastern and Western Land Co. bought it for. They had gone to all the expense in getting the proposition in shape, and hence got the advance in price. But when the terms were made the Eastern and Western were to receive interest on the original price, viz., $5.25 on the bonus or one-sixth cash and the balance on time.

Some weeks after Irwin dropped out of the Kamloops deal, Foster and Fowler had a conversation about the transaction. Witness was anxious to get in the company, but had not the money. Fowler said he would sell some of his stock, but nothing was done at that time. Some time afterward the matter was spoken of again, and then it was left so that if witness wanted stock at any time Fowler would give it to him.

Kamloops Again.

In the meantime Fowler would hold the shares for witness and when he could pay it he could get it at par. This was in the summer of 1904, and when certain investments came in Mr. Foster got Mr. Fowler to draw up papers and hand him the stock.

Mr. Shepley hinted that Mr. Foster should have got Wilson to advance him money to get in on this good thing. Mr. Foster's voice became weak.

"I don't think you ought to taunt a man with his 'poverty'."

Mr. Shepley then pointed out that this was the year Mr. Foster got the loans from Mr. Fowler. Witness said nothing.

The written agreement declaring George E. Foster the real owner of 300 shares of Kamloops Lumber Co., was read by Mr. Shepley. In the meantime, however, Mr. Foster was to be the trustee of Fowler until the money ($30,000) was paid over.

Mr. Foster stated at this juncture that Mr. Stevenson never challenged him about having stock in the Kamloops Co. at any time. He first told Mr. Stevenson that he had this shadowy interest in Fowler's stock. His stock in the company, and Mr. Fowler's stock had been surrendered to the Union Trust Co.

Mr. Lefurgey's Position.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—A. A. Lefurgey, M. P., has handed to the press the following statement:

"In view of some newspaper comment which has come to my notice, I would like to point out: (1) that I was concerned in a land transaction in an open market; (2) that I advanced all assessments out of my own pocket; (3) that I personally had no knowledge of any special favors, if such were granted, when I acquired my interest in the lands; (4) I had nothing whatever to do with directors of the Union Trust Co. as such.

"My position as a member of Parliament, I maintain, is not at all compromised by my connection with the land transaction. It has never affected any vote which I have cast, and for the future it shall not do so. I bought my share of the land in the open market; I paid all that was demanded for it with my own money. Out of my profits there arose no transaction that I desire to hide. My connection with the whole affair, my attitude towards all parties, was that of an honorable business man, participating in a legitimate mercantile deal."

UNIVERSITY LOST 100 PER CENT.

Allegations That Agent Entrusted With Land Disposal Acted Improperly.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Through the machinations of a trusted agent the University of Toronto appears to have lost a large sum of money.

It is alleged that T. W. Hollwey, the real estate agent, who was conducting the sale of the old Upper Canada College grounds, bought several large blocks of this land, in another man's name, but really for himself. These transfers of land went through at figures far below the market value. Sales were made from these blocks at prices which netted the agent over 100 per cent.

Mr. Hollwey said last night that he would be in a position to discuss the matter in a day or so.

Lieutenant Charged With Arson.

Emerson, Man., Oct. 5.—A big sensation was created yesterday when Lieut. George Durrand of the 90th Regiment, Winnipeg, lessee of the Strathcona Hotel, that was burned to the ground on Sept. 26, was charged yesterday before Magistrate Whitman and Mayor Hamilton of having set the hotel on fire. The case was adjourned until Friday. Durrand claims he can prove an alibi.

Big Fire in B. C. Town.

Armstrong, B. C., Oct. 5.—Fire yesterday morning destroyed a portion of the business section of the town, entailing a loss of between $20,000 and $40,000, with insurance of about $8,000.

CUBAN FLAG INCIDENT.

Taft Tells Why U. S. Bunting Does Not Wave Over Palace.

Havana, Oct. 6.—In response to the criticism made by Americans that the Cuban flag was flying over the palace while that building is being occupied by an American governor, Governor Taft yesterday said: "I am here working for the Cuban republic; therefore the Cuban flag will fly as long as I am here in that capacity."

Warwicks Get the Contract.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—Hon. Mr. Matheson handed out a statement relative to the contract for printing the R. S. O. yesterday. In it he said: "The Government has arranged with Warwick Bros. & Rutter for the printing of the revised statutes of Ontario, which will be published in three volumes of 1,700 pages each. * * * It is expected that the cost of the whole issue will not exceed that of the last issue, in spite of there being one thousand more pages and three volumes instead of two."

Mr. Chamberlain Is Satisfied.

London, Oct. 6.—(C.A.P.)—Mr. Chamberlain, in a letter to the retiring secretary of the Tariff Reform League, says he may be well satisfied with the work accomplished in less than three years Tariff reform is now definitely adopted by one of great parties of the state, and has secured the support of a vast body of public opinion and its ultimate triumph is assured.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—The board of management of Knox College have decided that it shall be sold. The undergrads will raise $50,000 by subscription which, with another $300,000 collected in the same way, and the proceeds of the sale, should afford sufficient funds for a new site and building.

The Majority Is 89.

Aylmer, Oct. 6.—The returns of Thursday's bye-election in East Elgin are now complete, the result of the only outstanding poll, No. 8, Yarmouth, having been received yesterday morning. It gives Haight a majority of 30. With all polls heard from, Marshall's majority is 89.

3 Tornadoes In One Day

One Cuts Path Through Five Miles of New Orleans.

Others Strike Pontchatoula, La., and Biloxi, Miss.—First Killed a White Man and Three Negroes and Injured Former's Wife and Four Children—At Biloxi an Engine and Three Cars Were Overturned.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 6.—Three separate tornadoes struck New Orleans and vicinity yesterday, causing loss of life and great property damage.

The first tornado was at Pontchatoula, La., about 50 miles north of here; the second in New Orleans and the third near Biloxi, Miss., about halfway between here and Mobile, on the gulf coast.

In the tornado at Pontchatoula, Geo. Hawes was killed in his home, which was blown down, and his wife and four children were badly injured. Three negroes are also reported killed.

The second tornado appeared in New Orleans and tore a narrow path through five miles of the residence and business section and doing $500,000 damages. No lives were lost here, but about 50 persons were injured.

The third tornado passed seven miles north of Biloxi, Miss., where it overturned an engine and three cars. Immense trees, which withstood Thursday's great hurricane, were uprooted.

ESCAPING GAS EXPLODES.

Seven Dead, a Dozen Hurt and Subway Blown Out.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—A terrific explosion of illuminating gas in the subway of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., under construction at Sixth and Market streets yesterday, resulted in the death of seven men, the injuring of about a dozen others, and caused property damage of thousands of dollars.

The explosion occurred shortly before 7 o'clock. It was caused by a leak in a city gas main that had been improperly repaired. The escaping gas formed in a pocket in the subway, and it is believed that a workman with a lamp ignited the gas.

The force of the explosion wrecked the subway for half a block, and the heavy timbering and other structural work, including tons of earth, fell into the excavation.

Blown Sky High.

Just as the gas blew up a double team dirt cart was being driven directly across the covered subway. The vehicle, horses and man were blown high in the air, and the horses and cart fell into the hole. The driver landed in the street and was only slightly hurt.

Several workmen standing near a derrick were blown across the street and either killed or injured, and a number of pedestrians were hurt by falling glass and signs from the houses.

In addition to the damage done to the subway, to the gas and water mains, and the electric light and telephone conduits, all the windows from Fifth to Seventh streets, on Market, and for half a square on Sixth street, both north and south of Market street, were broken, and thousands of dollars worth of goods in the show windows were damaged. Signs were torn from the roofs and walls of buildings.

Twenty-Nine Bodies Recovered.

Bluefields, W. Va., Oct. 6.—Twenty-nine bodies have been recovered from the west fork of the Pocahontas Coal Collieries Co.'s mine at Pocahontas, Va., and it was estimated last night that the number of dead will be 70. The rescuing party reached the scene of the explosion, but the immense amount of debris and wreckage has hampered the search for bodies. There is no evidence of fire.

Three Killed In Mine.

Raton, N. M., Oct. 6.—Fifteen men are supposed to have lost their lives in an explosion yesterday in the Dutchman coal mine at Blossburg, a small camp five miles from Raton. Three bodies have been recovered.

Stone Crushed Skull.

Kemptville, Oct. 6.—Joseph Dillabough was killed Thursday afternoon while helping William Barkley to deepen his well. He was down in the well when a large stone fell on him, crushing his skull.

Smothered In Dirt.

Galt, Oct. 6.—David Scott of the Galt House hostelry was found dead in a lane yesterday morning. He had been drinking. The doctor, says he fell on his face and was smothered in weeds and dirt. He was 66, came from Milton, and had friends in St. Catharines.

Dies From Poison.

Guelph, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Drum of Chicago died at the home of her cousins, the Messrs. Kennedy, Guelph Township, from poison taken in mistake for medicine.

Knocked Senseless by Horse.

Stratford, Oct. 6.—While extricating a horse from a mass of harness after the animal had fallen, W. F. Wanzell, merchant, was kicked on the head and knocked senseless, receiving a deep gash at the base of the skull. He will recover.

Soothing Syrup Kills Child.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—The coroner has been notified of the sudden death of a child named Vermette, 4 years old, who got hold of a bottle of soothing syrup and drank the entire contents. The child only lived a short time after swallowing the medicine.

Might Have Been 700.

Hong Kong, Oct. 6.—Further details of the wreck of the emigrant steamer Charterhouse, which foundered off Hainan Head, Sept. 30, with the loss of 60 lives, shows from the statement of chief engineer Dowse that the loss of life might easily have been 700, and that the ship was tossed by mighty waves like a cork. Six British officers and the doctor were drowned.

San Jose Scale Pest.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—San Jose scale has increased in Kent County to such an extent that the fruit-growers of the district have applied to the Minister of Agriculture for assistance to fight the pest.

Smallpox In Winnipeg Grocery.

Winnipeg, Oct. 6.—Three cases of smallpox were discovered in proprietor, wife and daughter of a Logan avenue grocery store yesterday. Eight persons have been placed under quarantine.

Back On the Job.

Fort William, Oct. 6.—The strike of dock laborers is over, and the men are busy again endeavoring to overtake accumulated work.

Possibilities.

"But," protested the first dear girl, "I haven't got the face to ask a favor of him."

"Well," rejoined dear girl No. 2, "you might visit a complexion specialist and have your face remodeled."

Tries to Suicide.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—At the age of 23 Mrs. Sarah Generous, wife of a teamster, with whom she resided at 495 East Front street, became tired of life and attempted to end it by swallowing carbolic acid in the yard at the rear of the house last night at 7 o'clock. The couple have only been married for 8 months. Dr. Simpson saved the woman.

Chosen Co-Adjutor Bishop.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 6.—Rev. Canon Richardson, rector of Trinity Church of this city, received the appointment of co-adjutor bishop for the diocese of Fredericton on the 11th ballot, at the adjourned annual meeting of the synod, which was held Thursday.

Hyman May Speak Later.

Ottawa, Oct. 6—The Minister of Public Works was asked yesterday if he had any statement to make in reference to the revelations of fraud in connection with the London bye-election. Mr. Hyman intimated that he might have a statement to make later on.

Police Charged With Theft.

Ottawa, Oct. 6—Constable Joseph Delorme of the city police force has been suspended, pending investigation of a charge of robbing a prominent insurance agent's office on Sparks street, stealing a pair of opera glasses, $3 in money and other stuff.

To Relieve Woolwich Distress.

London, Oct. 6.—(C.A.P.)—Negotiations are reported to be taking place between the Woolwich distress committee and the Canadian Railway authorities which will lead to 400 men emigrating for construction work.

Londoner Running For Congress.

London, Oct. 6.—A. W. Jones, who started life as a newsboy in this city and lived here until six years ago, is Democratic nominee for Congress in Spokane, Wash.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath.

BAD ODOR OF INDIGESTION SMOKING, DRINKING OR EATING CAN BE INSTANTLY STOPPED.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning,—that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozengers, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who talk with you. "You've had onions," or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you belch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the odor. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath pure, fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy They are absolutely harmless

Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 60 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Do You Live In the City of

IF ?

The city of IF is the Babylon of the modern world. Its population consists of the majority of people who live on earth. It is a world wide city—a city of limitless boundaries, limitless limitations!

If you live in any part of the city of IF you are apt to have for neighbors some members of the PERHAPS family and their poor relations, the Forlorn Hopes: These people are a poor sort of neighbors. Then there are the Maybe folks, and the Notyets, the B. Carefuls, the Goslows, and the Cautious and Timid families. They are a gloomy company —a company of "ALMOSTS," of people who just miss doing things and getting things.

If you have been sharing the lots and lives of such people as these—if you have been missing opportunities and chances of success all your life—isn't it time that you MOVED?

To get out of this city of IF is not so hard a task as it may seem. It requires a small amount of "nerve," of "backbone," of "git-up-and-git." and some "gumption." And it requires something more—the rational use of a little advertising space. Publicity will sell all of your property in this city of IF; it will enable you to move to the town of HUSTLE, or the town of ENTERPRISE, where you will have better neighbors—such people as the CLIMBERS, the EXCELSIORS, the MONEYTONS, the NEVERQUITS, the WINOUTS—all folks who live well and in an atmosphere of good cheer and healthy discontent.

ADVERTISING Will Get You Out of the City of IF. There is no "IF" About That! : : : :

REACH MODUS VIVENDI.

Britain and the United States Fix Up the Newfoundland Fisheries Trouble For Season.

Washington, Oct. 6.—It was announced at the State Department yesterday that a modus vivendi had been reached with the British Government relative to the Newfoundland fisheries, that will, it is believed, be satisfactory to the Gloucester fishermen.

The modus vivendi was concluded by Ambassador Reid with the British Foreign Office. Under it the British Government agrees for Newfoundland not to interfere with the use of purse seines by American fishermen. Newfoundland passed a law prohibiting such seines, which the United States fishermen claim are necessary.

Another law passed by Newfoundland, which, it is agreed, will not be enforced, is that forbidding the shipping of Newfoundland sailors and fishermen by American fishing schooners.

The United States agrees not to fish on Sunday, to pay light dues, and when practicable to report to the custom houses when they go on the fishing grounds. The American fishermen claim that often ice prevents them from reporting to the custom houses, and this, according to the modus, is regarded as a valid excuse.

The American Government recognizes the right of Newfoundland to require that the fishermen shall report to the custom houses so that the Newfoundland authorities may know what fishing vessels are on the grounds.

The modus is to continue during the present fishing season.

HOPES FOR RECIPROCITY.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux Speaks For Amity Before U. S. Audience.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 6.—At the sixth annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce last night, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks were the principal speakers. While their speeches touched upon subjects of vital importance to the people of both countries, no mention of the recent lake troubles was made and the vein of talk led entirely along the line of the friendship and peace which exists to-day between the two nations. Mr. Lemieux said in part:

"We have enjoyed prosperity, your country and mine, and, as was said by your late lamented martyred president, William McKinley, 'The only avenue to civilization is commerce,' let us believe that forever this great continent will be large enough to admit of two magnificent nations, the United States and Canada. Let us believe that neither nation will present a problem that we in our mutual relations cannot solve."

Hopes For Reciprocity.

Mr. Lemieux spoke of the commercial relations of the two countries, and stated that although at one time the United States tried to bring Canada into submission by waging a severe tariff war, the commerce of the nation on the north had suffered but little, and had eventually overcome all obstacles.

"This difficulty had been forgotten now, and it was his earnest hope that reciprocity between the two countries would be established that better advantages might come to both."

In his speech Vice-President Fairbanks remarked that the best wishes and hopes of future success go from the American people to the great Canadian nation, and that springing from one blood both countries would be bound together by ties of identical purpose and advancing civilization.

Goes to Hamilton to Suicide.

Hamilton, Oct. 6.—Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Patterson, 306 North Hughson street, found the following note on the Hughson street bridge: "From Detroit two days, Oct. 1, 1906, you will find me in the bay at the Turbinia dock." The note was handed over to the police, who had scarcely finished reading it when they were notified that the body of a woman had been found at the Turbinia dock. The body is that of a woman between 45 and 50 years of age, brown hair, dark clothes, a rubber stocking covering a sore on the left leg, and wearing three rings on her fingers. The police have been unable so far to identify her.

HUNTERS' EXCURSIONS.

The fact that the C.P.R. line runs for so many miles through ideal hunting lands, where moose and deer and smaller game galore wax fat and await the advent of fall and the accompanying guns and dogs, is, of course, the principal reason why about this time of year the enthusiastic sportsman turns to the well-known yellow covered folder and studies time tables and maps so industriously. Hunters' excursions are round again, and single fare will soon be the order of the day. The C.P.R. announces that from Oct. 9th to Nov. 6th return tickets to all stations on their main line, Mattawa to Port Arthur, and Mattawa to Temiskaming and Kippawa, will be on sale at single fare, and from Oct. 25th to Nov. 6th tickets at the same low rate to stations on the Lindsay Branch, stations between Sudbury and the Soo and Havelock and Sharbot Lake. All tickets will be good to return until Dec. 8th, with stop-overs allowed anywhere. Special steamship rates to the Soo and Port Arthur will also be in effect. Intending hunters should make a point of calling at the nearest C.P.R. ticket office for further information and for copies of "Fishing and Shooting," "Sportsman's Map," and "Open Seasons and Game Laws," all of which are of particular interest and use to sportsmen, and are free for the asking. C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, C.P.R., Toronto, will gladly mail them to any address, if difficulty is experienced getting copies. 5-3td

The Man With the Dog

Kingston News; Mr. Moulday called at the News office to say that the man Bell, who came from Belleville and was arrested at his place in connection with an alleged dog steal, did not leave the dog at his place, and that he (Moulday) knew nothing of it. The man had worked for him some years ago, and being in this vicinity, it was natural he should visit his former employer. Mr. Moulday also says that he does not believe Bell intended stealing the canine. But being the worse of liquor he simply picked the dog up, put him in the hack, and then took him on the train to Shannonville and thence to Kingston.

Daily Intelligencer.

Hon. Mr. Hyman Should Resign.

The appalling revelations of bribery and corruption in the bye-election at London forces upon the Hon. Chas. Hyman—if he be an honorable man—his immediate resignation. Any one who has read the evidence cannot come to any other conclusion but that the Minister of Public Works is in Parliament by virtue of the generosity in which ten dollar bills were distributed in his behalf.

What Collins, O'Gorman, Malloy, Serviss and others received as a reward for their dirty work is of no concern to the public. We do know, and are all concerned in the fact, that Charles Hyman is the main beneficiary of the conspiracy. Politically Mr. Hyman stands charged with being the receiver of stolen goods. While he may not be called upon to prove that he did not know they were stolen it is his imperative duty to give up possession at the first possible moment.

Nor should the investigation terminate with the proof of the bribery of the voters by the hirelings now arraigned before the court. The Crown is charged with a still greater responsibility in the case—that of searching out and punishing the chief offenders, the contributors of the debauchery fund. The men who passed around the ten dollar bills were not passing their own money. Everybody knows that. Indeed the evidence shows that in many cases they paid themselves an additional sum for their services by taking a ten per cent. rake off from the voter's bribe. Where did the money come from? That is the question that is pressing for an answer, and the answer to it will reveal the chief criminals in the outrage on public morals and public decency which resulted in the election of Charles Hyman in London.

General Bombastes

"Some people would call it Providence, but it is business management, and the men of brains in the Government, who are largely responsible for the present era of prosperity in the Dominion."

The above remark was made, not by a two-by-four Grit orator in some cross-roads school-house, but by the Prime Minister of this Dominion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, at Lorette, P. Q., on Wednesday last. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Surely Sir Wilfrid is either moonstruck, or thought his hearers in the Quebec village were men of small intelligence. "It was not Providence!" Of course not. Providence could not make this country prosperous without Laurier's help! The Mail and Empire, in a caustic article treats Laurier's well-nigh impious remark in this way;

> "The Mad Mullah surely never risked his authority over the fanatics who followed him by any such daring pretensions as this. John Alexander Dowie abused the credulity of his sectarians beyond all reason, but he had some saving respect for their intelligence, and was not altogether sacrilegious. Is it possible that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's head is so completely turned that he fancies the weather has shaped its changes in accordance with his bidding, and that the heads of the grain all turn towards the quarter in which his benign countenance is in the ascendant. 'He was a god to me,' said the grateful shepherd of his beneficent ruler. Intoxicated with office, the Canadian Premier would have himself so regarded by the tillers of the soil, whom he rebukes for allowing to Providence and not to him the praise for the blessing of a full harvest."

Truly, Sir Wilfrid is a puffed-up politician. If he has any failings that lean to virtue's way excessive modesty is not one of them. His vainglorious boast that he found Canada a colony and made it a nation, as the Mail and Empire points out, still provokes a smile. When, some years after he made that boast, he was reproached for giving up a part of the nation to the United States as the issue of the arrangement into which he had entered for the settlement of the Alaska boundary dispute, he petulantly laid the blame on the Mother Country, pleading Canada's dependence upon her as a determining condition, uncontrollable by his genius. The nation he had cut loose from Britain's apron-strings had somehow lapsed back into its colonial status. In another moment of braggadocio he claimed to have wrought the miracle that changed our Northwest from a wilderness into a land bringing forth abundantly. He is the egotist, too, who posed as the discoverer of the British market, that devourer of the surplus foodstuffs of all nations. By his strategy it was, he says, that John Bull was bamboozled into denouncing the commercial treaties with Germany and Belgium.

The extravagancies of Laurier must make even his friends pull wry faces. His latest "break" is worthy to be ranked with the famous "Me und Gott" ascribed to the German Kaiser.

Justified by Merit.

As you know, it is an uncommon proceeding on our part to so emphatically endorse any remedy as we have endorsed Bu-Ju.

But the more we know of it, the more earnest we are. All we say is, Bu-Ju can help anyone suffering from kidney trouble, as no other remedy can. It works for itself—shows more plainly than words its real use to all who seek a cure.

If it is not just as represented, you can have your money back. Fifty cents a box.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Worst thing about the rain is that it puts Front street in such a mess.

The summer is over, but the open season for short sermons is still "in our midst."

Ten pages in to-day's paper. This great family journal is growing fast.

The Toronto Globe of Thursday last contained the following paragraph among its editorial notes;

> "Woodstock, having an armory, is now trying to lay in a stock of soldiery. It is to be hoped the effort will be successful. The young men of Woodstock may be in worse places during their leisure hours than in the armory."

The above reminds one how beautifully the Laurier Government gets into line with the fitness of things.

Look at Woodstock, which has had no regiment for years, and where the authorities are now figuratively going out into the highways and byways looking for recruits. Woodstock has a fine, new expensive armory, just finished. Look at Belleville, with a city regiment, the Fifteenth, the same having a record second to none. This city is at the same time headquarters for the Forty-ninth, which for three years in succession has carried off the palm for being the best regiment at camp. What sort of armory has Belleville?

We have the Globe's word for it that "young men may be in worse places during their leisure hours than in an armory." Why, then, does the Government which it supports through thick and thin discriminate against the young men of this city who delight to wear the King's uniform? Why are not all young Canadians used alike? The question is not easy to answer, but if what some people say is true, then the answer does not say much for the local patriotism of some parties in this city. The work of the erection of the Belleville Armory, as most people know, comes under the direction of the department of which Hon. Mr. Hyman is the head. We are told, on what we believe to be most excellent authority, that personally Mr. Hyman is, and has been for some time, favorable to the erection of the Belleville armory, but always, just when operations were believed to be about to begin, something turned up to block the scheme, the consequence being that drill season after drill season passed by, and still the gallant Fifteenth were star actors in that great melodrama, "Without a Home."

It is hinted — mind, we do not say it—that the pernicious influence which prevents Belleville from getting her rights is a local one. As to the truth of that we have nothing to say. Perhaps some of those who do the Laurier Government's confidential work in this city could enlighten us if they would. In the meantime, let fair-minded people ask themselves this question: Why does the Laurier Government build armories for places which haven't even a corporal's guard to occupy them, while Belleville, which has a splendid city regiment and a first-class company of another regiment recruited from among her young men, has for years been compelled to ask for her rights in vain? It is a shameful state of affairs. Who is blocking the erection of Belleville's armory?

A wealthy Guelph man writes to the Herald, claiming that there is only one way to solve the health problem, which, he says, consists of installing sewerage and a plentiful water supply for flushing and laundry purposes. Then, he says, the authorities should close up all cesspools and forbid their use in future. The next step would be to dry wells, which, with cesspools prohibited, would, he says, furnish the ideal drink for man. Only in "living springs," he says, can perfectly safe and pure drinking water for the human race be found. The idea seems to be worthy of thought.

The weather man is not very kind to fall fairs this year. Roblin's Mills fair is surely "up against it" to-day.

The truth of the scriptural dictum, "In the midst of life we are in death," is very forcibly brought home to one by that dreadful accident last evening. Considering that an inquest is to be held, comment upon the matter would be ill-timed at present.

Who will say that Belleville is not putting on metropolitan airs, when the Board of Education complains that a city school is overcrowded?

• • •

The figures furnished by Dr. Amyot, provincial analyst, in regard to Belleville water, will surely make many people sit up and think. Dr. Yeomans is to be commended for his action in endeavoring to find out the cause of the prevalence of typhoid fever. Undoubtedly the dry season has impaired the purity of much of the water in the wells. Speaking from the standpoint of punctuation, the presence of colon bacilli in the water one drinks is apt to put a period to his existence. Nuff sed.

RUBBER

When you buy rubber it pays to get it. There are few things in which quality counts for more than in rubber goods.

The demands of our trade require us to carry more than one quality of rubber goods, but each quality is sold for what it is, and is sold at an honest price. We carry practically everything in the line of Syringes, Hot-water Bottles, Sick-room Supplies, etc.

Your Doctor

Can cure your Cough or Cold, no question about that, but—why go to all the trouble and inconvenience of looking him up, and then of having his prescription filled, when you can step into any drug store in Canada and obtain a bottle of SHILOH'S CURE for a quarter.

Why pay two to five dollars when a twenty-five cent bottle of SHILOH will cure you as quickly?

Why not do as hundreds of thousands of Canadians have done for the past thirty-four years: let SHILOH be your doctor whenever a Cough or Cold appears.

SHILOH will cure you, and all druggists back up this statement with a positive guarantee.

Estimable Lady Died Last Night

MISS ALICE M. PURDY.

Miss Alice M. Purdy, who has been ill for some time, died last night at her home, corner of Moira and Yeomans streets. Deceased was the eldest daughter of Mr. Ralph Purdy, and was born at Ernestown, on October 24th, 1862. She had lived in Belleville the greater portion of her life.

The late Miss Purdy spent some ten years at Vancouver and in California, where she was engaged in teaching physical culture. At the former place amongst her pupils were children of the Japanese Consul. She was also for some time engaged here as a teacher in the Deaf and Dumb Institution. Some three years ago she returned to the city. Miss Purdy was a member of the Baptist Church, and for some time took an active interest in church work. The remains will be taken to Cataraqui cemetery, at Kingston, to be placed beside the remains of her mother, who died some years ago. In addition to the father, three brothers and one sister survive.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

The City Water.

ANALYSIS SHOWS THAT IT IS PURE, AND SAME CANNOT BE SAID OF ALL THE WELL WATER.

It is a common belief that the well water in the city of Belleville is much more reliable and more conducive to health than the water supplied by the city waterworks.

Well water is as a rule superior in color and flavor but the results of the actual tests made this season show that well water is much more liable to sewage contamination and other dangerous impurities than the water supplied by the city from the Bay of Quinte.

The outbreak of several cases of typhoid fever in the vicinity of College Hill has caused the Medical Health Officer to carefully investigate the water supply in that locality and he has found that in many cases where fever has developed, well water has been constantly in use.

Five samples were sent to the Laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health for examination, with the following result which speaks for itself:—

Where Collected from	Reason for Examination	Colon Bacilli	Chlorine parts per million
Public Water Supply Tap in Canning Factory.	To test purity	None	1.5
Public Water Supply Tap in No. 1 Fire Station.	To test purity	None	2.
Private Well S. H. Delong, Evans and Geddes St.	2 cases typhoid	Present	170.
Private Well George Martin, N. Front Street.	1 case typhoid here and others near by.	Present	17.
Private Well Albert College.	No sickness To test purity	Present	51.

The first two waters show neither chemical pollution nor infection with harmful bacteria.

The last three waters are chemically polluted, probably from siepage from the surroundings and are at the same time infected with colon bacilla, intestinal basteria, and should not be used without previous boiling.

In this age of agitation for pure, clean foods, it is refreshing to know that "SALADA" Ceylon Tea is sold to the public in all of its native freshness and fragrance, preserved in sealed air-tight packets direct from the gardens, to the consumer, insuring a cup of tea "in perfection" hitherto unknown. This fact is alone accountable for its enormous and ever-growing popularity. But as in the case of many other successful articles, many worthless imitations abound, therefore it is necessary to demand "SALADA" and steadfastly refuse substitutes.

To-day's Market

The market to-day was not largely attended, owing, no doubt, to the inclement weather. Prices do not seem to get any lower, but in some cases get higher. A few eggs were sold as high as 22 cents per dozen, but this was not the ruling price. Butter also commanded a good price, namely from 28c to 30c. Dressed poultry is slightly cheaper.

Our quotations are as follows:—

Eggs—20c to 22c per doz.
Hay—$8 to $10 per ton.
Fall Wheat—68c to 70c.
Spring Wheat—75c
Barley—45 to 48c.
Oats—36c.
Rye—56c.
Buckwheat—55c.
Timothy—$150.
Clover—$7 to $8.
Alsike—$4 to $6.
Butter—28c to 30c.
Dressed hogs—$8.50 to $9.00.
Dressed beef, fore—$4.00.
Dressed beef, hind—$5 to $5.50.
Chickens—50c to 75c per pair.
Butchers' trimmed hides—9 to 10c.
Rough hides—9c to 9 1-2c.
Spring Lamb—16c to 18c lb.
Mutton—6c to 7c.
Shearling—25 each.
Horse hides—$2.50 to $3.00 each.
Veal hides—10c lb.
Deakins—75c.
Pelts—85c to $1.00.
Tallow, rough—2 to 2 1-2c.
Tallow, rendered—4c.
Wool—25c to 26c.
Potatoes—80c to 90c per bag.
Tomatoes—50c per bushel.
Lamb skins—40c to 45c.
Geese—$1 to $1.75.
Ducks—$1 to $1.50.

SPORTING NOTES.

Harry Brown, the Belleville hockeyist who played cover point for Smith's Falls last year, is in Kingston, and the Whig says he may settle there. MAKES NEW BLOOD.

THAT IS HOW DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CURE THE COMMON AILMENTS OF LIFE.

Making new blood. That is just what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are always doing—actually making new blood. This new blood strengthens every organ in the body, and strikes straight at the root of anaemia, and the common ailments of life which have their origin in poor, weak, watery blood. Mrs. A. H. Seeley, of Stirling, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams Pink Pills did for her fourteen year old sister, Miss Annie Seger after other treatment had failed She says: "For some years Annie had not been well. She would take spells of dizziness and headaches that would last for several days, and her whole body would become dry and hot as though she was burning up with fever. Her lips would swell until near the bursting point, and then when the fever would leave her the outer skin of the lips would peel off. She doctored with two different doctors, but they did not succeed in curing her, and the trouble seemed gradually to be growing worse. Then we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and under this treatment she has recovered her health. The headaches and dizziness have gone; her color is improved; her appetite better, and she has had no further attacks of the fever which baffled the doctors. We are greatly pleased with what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for her, and recommend them to other sufferers."

It was the rich, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make which cured Miss Sager. That is why these pills cure all common ailments like anaemia and debility, headaches and backaches, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and the special ailments that prey on the health and happiness of girls and women of all ages. Get the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, with the full name on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Far Famed and Prosperous Institution.

The great and ever increasing reputation of the Ontario Business College of this city, and its consequent power to attract students from great distances is (as is the case each year), demonstrated in the present attendance. From Brazil in South America a student entered this week; on the same day two came from Antigua West Indies. In addition to the students from these far-off countries there are now in attendance young men and women from Barbados, St. Vincent and Grenada, West Indies, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and all parts of Ontario.

The famous text book of O. B. C. "The Canadian Accountant," of which Principal Johnson is the author and publisher, is in greater demand than ever. By freight, express and mail great quantities of the book are being sent throughout the English-speaking world.

O. B. C. is now in its 39th year; for 30 years of that time Mr. Johnson has been at the head of the Institution, and to-day it is the most prosperous and successful Business College in Canada and the most widely attended in America.

A Quiet Wedding

A quiet wedding took place at the Holloway St. parsonage, Hillside St., on Wednesday afternoon last, when Miss Carrie J. Tuttle, of Elgin, Man., was united in marriage to Mr. Fred L. Smith, of Sidney, by Rev. R. H. Leitch. The young couple were unattended.

The most awkward and ungainly woman can be transformed into a beautiful lovely creature if she has the brain power to absorb the fact that Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do the business. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—D. M. Waters.

A DELIGHTFUL WINTER RESORT.

It is announced that this year the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's fine hotel at Caledonia Springs, Ont., will be kept open for accommodation of visitors all winter. The Company has great faith in Caledonia Springs as an all-year-round resort, something better than a mere summering place, and this action will without doubt be appreciated by many people to whom the Springs have been hitherto closed more than half the year owing to lack of accommodation. 5-3t

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure Send for circulars and testimonials.

Are Ministers' Sons Bad?

A bishop marked the names of those whom he deemed worthy of remembrance for some service performed in religion or politics or literature or science or art or commerce or philanthropy or warefare, or some other aspects of the various life of the nation. Of such names he found 1,270 who were the children of clergymen or ministers, taking no account of those who were grandchildren of clergymen or more remote descendants. Of the children of lawyers, there were 510, and of doctors 350. The sons of clergymen who became themselves clergymen were 350. He further asserts that the superiority which the clergy enjoy in respect to their children to the other professions lies beyond dispute. The superiority has been not of numbers only, but of degree. From clerical homes have sprung more distinguished sons than from the homes of any secular profession.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Man May See But it Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

THE OLD HOME.

An old home, an old gate, an old house by a tree,
A wild wood, a wild brook—they will not let me be;
In boyhood I knew them and still
they call to me.

Down deep in my heart's core I hear them, and my eyes
Through tear-mists behold them beneath the old-time skies,
Mid bee-boom and rose-bloom and orchards lands arise.

I hear them, and heartsick with longing is my soul,
To walk there, to dream there, beneath the sky's blue bowl—
Around me, within me, the weary world made whole,

To talk with the wild brook of all the long ago;
To whisper the wood-wind of things
we used to know
When we were old companions, before my heart knew woe.

To walk with the morning and watch
its rose unfold;
To drowse with the noontide, lulled
on its heart of gold;
To lie with the night-time and dream
the dreams of old.

To tell to the old trees and to each listening leaf,
The longing, the yearning, as in my boyhood grief,
The old hope, the old love, would ease my heart of grief.

The old lane, the old gate, the old house by the tree,
The wild wood, the wild-brook—they will not let me be;
In boyhood I knew them and still
they call to me.

One has heard of morsels of straw being driven clean into solid timber by the force of a tornado. Somewhat similar and equally unexplainable was the result of a stroke at golf made by A. Wyndham on the famous Westward Ho course two or three years ago. He found his ball in a bed of rushes, actually impaled upon a rush, so that it was possible to pick up the ball and hold it suspended upon the rush. That a golf ball, which is almost as hard as wood, should be spiked in this fashion upon the point of so brittle a thing as a rush is a most remarkable phenomenon. —London Sphere.

"In their way," said the old fisherman, "fishes are good weather prophets. If a storm is approaching the fish stop biting and they won't bite again until the storm is well over. They appear to know when a storm is coming and when it has really passed, and to fishermen and farmers living along shore, fish foretell the near approach of cold weather. Hours before it comes fishes leave the shallow waters and go out to the deep waters, for they know that in its depths will stay warm and keep an equable temperature after the shallower and surface waters have turned cold. Oh, yes, fishes know a thing or two about the weather."

The following is a list of husbands that her daughter says Mrs. Chaffee has had:

Josiah Brown, Norfolk County, Ont.
Samuel Allen, Toronto, Ont.
Robert Pick, Middleton County, Ont.
John Horning, Otterville, Norwich County, Ont.
Adam Crysler, Pontiac, Mich., and Francis Chaffee, Pontiac, Mich.

THE TWO GREAT COMMANDMENTS — GOLDEN TEXT IS: "THOU SHALT LOVE THE LORD THY GOD WITH ALL THY HEART."

HISTORICAL SETTING.

Time—Tuesday, April 4, A.D. 30.

Place—The Temple Court in Jerusalem.

Place in the Life of Christ.—The last day of His public ministry. Seeking to persuade the Jews to accept Him as the Messiah.

1. The First and Greatest Commandment.—Vs. 28-30. 28. And one of the scribes, who was a lawyer (Matthew), that is, one of the men learned in the Jewish law, who copied, preserved, interpreted, and taught the Jewish Scriptures. Having heard them reasoning (R. V., questioning) together. According to Matthew he was one of the company of Pharisees who had been discussing the wise and convincing answers of Jesus to their theological opponents, the Sadducees. They also would test him with one of the stock questions which divided the Jewish teachers into rival schools. The scribe seems to have been an honest man, whom the Pharisees were willing to use as a means of entangling Jesus into some unpopular statement. Which is the first commandment. Better as in R. V., "What commandment is first of all?" Which is not the common relative pronoun; but poia, "what kind of," "what by nature, by its decisive and noble quality," is the commandment that stands first in importance?

29. Jesus answered, quoting, with the addition reported by Mark, from Deut. 6:4, 5, the very words which "every devout Jew recited twice every day; and the Jews do it to this day," and which they inscribed on the parchment enclosed in their phylacteries, and wore on their foreheads and arms during prayer. Thus Jesus' answer from their own Bible, in words they regarded as supremely sacred, led him out safely from the snares the Pharisees had set for him. Hear, O Israel; the Lord our God is one Lord. This is the preface to the commandments in Deuteronomy.

30. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God. Love is an all-inclusive affection, embracing not only every other affection proper to its object, but all that is proper to be done to its object; for as love spontaneously seeks to please its object, so, in the case of men of God, it is the native well-spring of a voluntary obedience. It is, besides, the most personal of all affection, the tenderest, the most unselfish, the most divine.

With, or from, all thy heart, the general word of the inner man. It is the seat of the desires, passions, affections, emotions. With all thy mind. It is to be an intelligent love, free from choice under the direction of the reason and the judgment. With all thy strength. The utmost energy of heart, soul, and mind. This is the first commandment.

Why is this the first and greatest commandment?

1. It is greatest in its nature, being the highest and noblest act of the soul.

2. It is the sum of the first table of the law.

3. It has the greatest value, being the fountain and source of all virtue, of all love to our neighbor, because it is the consecration of self to the Father of all good, and all men.

4. It is the act, the outgoing of the whole nature of man. It is all inclusive.

5. It is the most difficult of all things. Love is not a mere sentiment, a general good feeling toward God, when all things go right with us; but it is a devotion to God and His cause when that devotion makes up martyrs; that enables us to trust Him in the darkest night, and say with Job, "The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord," and "Though he slay me, yet will I wait for Him."

II. The second great commandment. Love to man.—Vs. 31-34. 31. And the second is like. The scribe did not ask for this, but it was necessary to state the second, lest the truth about the first be distorted. "Our Lord wished to show that this first commandment did not stand at the head of a long list of heterogeneous commands, among which it was simply primus inter pares (first among equals), but that it was one of two homogeneous commands which exhausted the idea of righteousness." The second is like the first because it likewise is an enthronement of love; it is the sum of the second table of the law; it is almost a twin commandment with the first, for love to God will certainly manifest itself in love to man. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Love to one's self should be the measure of our love to our neighbor, and express the kind and quality of our love as expressed in action. Many difficult practical questions, as to how we should treat our neighbor, are solved by the application of this measure and test. This love is the principle in the heart from which flows the Golden Rule in practice. He that possesses a heart of love, loving his neighbor as himself, will necessarily obey the second table of the law; for obedience to those laws is the natural fruit of such love. The heart of love is a fountain of living waters, and the commandments are the channels through which the streams flow out. The commandments are the fences by the roadside which show love the way in which it should go.

32. Master, thou hast said the truth. The scribe saw that Jesus had touched the root of the matter and had settled the controversy.

34. Jesus . . said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. (1) He was intellectually convinced. He accepted as true the basal principles of the kingdom. (2) He showed that he was sympathetic with its spirit, and hence it was within his ability to feel the force of the motives presented by the kingdom of God.

3. By loving our neighbor we can test and express our love to God. This is more effective than even prayers and songs of praise, though these help to inspire and cultivate love to God. So St. John says, "If a man say, 'I love God,' and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" (1 John, 4:20.)

4. Love to God and love to man transform earth into heaven.

38. In his doctrine, his teaching. Beware of the scribes. This warning is given in much fuller form in Matthew 23. The scribes and Pharisees as a body, not every individual, were setting an example before the people in exact contradiction to the twin laws of love just laid down by Jesus.

1. They were self-seeking and ambitious instead of loving. They called attention to themselves by their long robes. They desired to have the salutations of the people in the market places, the open squares where the people assembled.

39. They sought the honor of the chief seats in the synagogues and at feasts. They made broad their phylacteries which were worn during prayer, and enlarged the symbolical fringes of their garments, to lead men to regard them as unusually holy. This conduct was contrary to the law of love, for it was self-centred, while love is an outgoing to others. They were the Dead Sea into which rivers flowed, but from which there was no outlet.

2. 40. Their conduct was contrary to love. For instead of helping the widow and the fatherless, they were accustomed to devour widows' houses.

3. They were hypocrites, masquerading before men in the semblance of good men, for a pretence making long prayers.

Vs. 41-44. This charming story comes in with dramatic effect, after the repulsive picture of the greedy praying scribe. The reference to the widows victimized by the hypocrites may have suggested it.

41. Jesus sat over against the treasury. The thirteen brazen trumpet-shaped receptacles in the court of the women, in which the offerings of the people for the temple service were deposited.

42. A certain poor widow. . . . threw in two mites. Small copper coins, each worth one-eighth of a cent. It was a Greek coin (Madden, p. 245), the smallest in circulation. A farthing here is kodrantes, equal to one-fourth of a cent, and is a different word from the Roman farthing, assarion, of Matt. 10:29, worth four of the kodrantes, or one cent.

43. This poor widow had cast more in than all. Her property consisted of two pieces, and she cast in both, leaving nothing for herself. She gave more in proportion to her means than did the rich. St. Paul expresses the same principle in 2 Cor. 8:12. "If there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not."

If a man perish in the attempt to cross a foaming torrent on a tight rope, we may be sorry, but we shall not be filled with admiration; if a man perish in thus reaching a foundering ship, we erect a monument to him who has thus laid his gift on the altar of true heroism.

The measure of a gift lies not in the largeness of the gift, but in the largeness of the love and sacrifice it expresses; not the size of the gift, but the cost to the giver; not the number of the sheaves, or of the measures of fruit, but the love and gratitude and faith that fills them. And in that great day when we present our fruits at the judgment seat, some large sheaves will grow larger by that measure, and some will shrink into a handful of half-grown stalks; and pebbles which the gatherer blushes to present as the only fruit from barren fields, will grow into gems and gold; and homely plants will be transformed into blossoms of Paradise; and the widow's mite will become a harp of gold, and a handful of grain become the seed of the Tree of life.

If it were true as some metaphysicians tell us, that all action is necessarily selfish—the only difference being that some people admit their selfishness, others try to conceal it from the rest of the world, and a few go so far as to conceal it from themselves—the whole social order would centuries ago have gone to pieces. If it were true, as a large section of the community seems to believe,—that a man's success is measured by the money and the offices which he can command, or that the test of a good education is "to be found in the fact that it fits a man to make money and to get offices, the American Republic would be fast approaching its end.

"Grand Peninsular"

The Ideal Kitchen Range

The "Grand Peninsular" is my ideal of what a perfect cast-iron range should be.

It is the most reliable cooker of its kind—because the oven is built exactly like the oven of an expensive steel range.

Steel radiates heat quicker than cast-iron. Instead of using only a steel BOTTOM—I make the ENTIRE OVEN—top, bottom and sides—of patent Levelled Steel Plate.

That's one reason why the "Grand Peninsular" is such a quick, even cooker—and saves so much fuel.

Then I do away with all guess work about the baking, by putting a thermometer on the oven door. The oven is perfectly ventilated—the air kept fresh and dry—thus preventing soggy baking. I make the Grate Bars large and strong and easily removable.

All the ornamentation—the nickeled parts—can be lifted off the range when cleaning, without loosening a single bolt. You can see Peninsular Ranges at your local dealer's store. 40

Talks on Orange Meat No. 3

(The Pure Food)

Popping Corn and Popping Wheat

Ever pop corn? Take a handful of tiny grains—heat them over the fire—and you have "about a peck" of pop-corn.

Corn is pretty nearly all carbo-hydrates, or starch. And it would take a lot of chewing to break up all the tiny cells so that the starch could be acted on by saliva in the mouth and be converted into sugars. Heat does it better than chewing.

Wheat is 75% carbohydrates. Like popcorn, the tough cell walls in wheat are broken by heat. That is why we cook the wheat in making ORANGE MEAT. It goes in huge steam cookers under 20 pounds steam pressure. Steam and moisture soften the cell tissues—the heat causes the starch to swell and burst the cells—the carbohydrates are free. That is why Dyspeptics, Rheumatics and all who can't eat "starchy" foods, may enjoy ORANGE MEAT. By adding malt, all the starch is converted into wheat sugar.

Orange Meat

Orange Meat weighs 1/3 more than any other package. 15c. and 25c. a package. At all grocers. Mercerized paper lining of the cartons insure Orange Meat being always fresh, crisp and clean. 15c. pkg. contains a coupon, good for premiums. 25c. size contains 2½ times as much as 15c. size. Write "Orange Meat, Kingston," for new premium catalogue.

Stylish Fall Millinery

Paris, London and New York have with the aid of our own artists, worked out some very dainty and stylish ideas in Ladies' Headwear for the fall season.

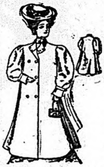
Feathers, Wings and Plumes are trimming favorites while for shapes, velvets hold the leading position. The trimmings are in shades to match the new suitings, as plum, old rose, wines, navy, greens etc.

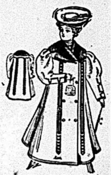
We have bent our every effort to make this season's showing eclipse all previous. The world's greatest markets have been searched and all the newest ideas brought forward are well represented.

Any lady can purchase from our selection, feeling confident of the correctness of her headwear. All are marked at moderate prices.

New style ideas are advanced almost daily. We will be pleased to have you make inspection whenever convenient.

Fashionable Jackets





Never before has our Mantle Department been so filled with the very latest in Ladies' Ready-to-wear Garments. The markets of the world have been thoroughly searched and you will find here the best that Canada can produce, some specially choice silk and velvet coats from England and the best German makes are also represented.

This year when braids and embroideries are so fashionable for trimming, the imported coats are taking the lead as there are no people in the world who have the machinery and facilities for doing this class of work equal to the Germans. There is a big feeling for Black Coats and we never showed such pretty ones. All we ask is that you come and see and it will not take long to convince you that this is the place to buy your winter coat if you want the best values and the latest style—another large shipment of Ladies' and Children's Coats just put into stock.

The value and usefulness of every optical instrument is well known to depend primarily on the exactness of the shape of the lenses and on the accuracy of their position; and every instrument, though built to be correct for general use, has to have some means of adjustment, to focus or to adapt it to the varying conditions of light and distance. The eye is a camera, with its lens inside; the pupil the stop, or diaphragm; the eye-lids the shutter; but instead of a plate or film to take each picture, it has the retina, or expanded optic nerve, ever ready to feel and to convey to the brain countless pictures in constant succession. It has also its adjusting power: not a screw nor a draw tube, the delicate ciliary muscle, which acts on the lens and changes the focus according to the nearness of the object looked at, but which is not needed for distant vision. Being an optical instrument, the eye cannot escape the fixed laws of optics, the necessity for extreme accuracy in the original shape and position of its parts. But since instruments have been invented to make accurate measurements, it has been found that the eye varies in a large majority of cases from a very small error in some cases to very great errors in other cases.

Board Of Education Expels Three Pupils

Who Were Alleged to Have Been Guilty of Misconduct--Boarders Were Very Talkative Last Night, and Burned City Gas Till After Midnight.

The first meeting of the Board of Education for some time was held last night, and considerable business was transacted. The members were in a rather talkative mood, and in consequence the session was one of considerable length, lasting until after midnight.

Those in attendance were Messrs. J. F. Wills, Chairman; J. H. Anderson, G. A. Bennett, I. Diamond, W. Johnson, A. E. Lewis, B. Mallory, W. S. Morden, H. Naylor, F. E. O'Flynn, Col. Ponton, C. M. Reid, H. Walker and A. A. Roberts.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From the officials of St. Thomas' Church, stating that the Board of Education can, if they desire, have a portion of land and building adjoining the High School grounds.

From Miss McCaughey, thanking the Board for an increase of salary.

From Principal Dyer, of Albert College, in reference to having some of the children from the Public School take domestic science at the college.

From Miss M. Rous, asking the Board for a donation of $10 to assist in beautifying the grounds of Queen Victoria School by the planting of shrubs, etc.

From the Lindsay and Owen Sound School Boards, asking for information regarding teachers' salaries and grading of increases in salaries.—Referred to the Secretary-Treasurer to answer.

From the pupils of Grier Street School, thanking the Board for the beautiful flags provided for the rooms.

REPORTS.

The Finance Committee recommended the payment of the following accounts;

G. Madden	$203.50
Chas. Stapley	.75
Globe Printing Co.	1.48
J. Weir	3.55
A. Hinds	.75
L. Marsh	2.25

C. N. Sulman	46.60
Intelligencer Printing Co.	15.00
R. McCoy	3.00

The committee recommended that the fee paid for the departmental examination by Grace Shanks be refunded to her, she being unable to write thereon owing to sickness, and that the Secretary-Treasurer be authorized to pay her.

The School Management Committee recommended that, owing to Mr. W. G. Anderson going to Woodstock, no extra teacher be employed in the High School.

The committee unanimously decided to do away with the present system of grading in the different classes in the Public schools, and return to the former system, believing from the experience now had that the change will be in the best interest of the schools.

The committee further recommend that Mr. E. F. Milburn be reappointed Principal of the High School for the current year.

That the Committee on Supplies be instructed to purchase, for the primary teachers, folders and other supplies required, not to exceed $10

That the arrangement with Albert College be continued for lessons in domestic science, and that it be on the same terms as in the past year.

That your committee held a joint meeting with the head masters of the city schools, and beg to report that the teachers have taken up the curriculum prescribed by the regulations instead of those in the past, which change was approved of by your committee.

That the examinations be taken in the note books provided by the Board, and retained by the teachers for the purpose of promotion.

That an examining board consisting of the Principals of the Public schools and the Chairman of the School Management Committee be appointed to prepare the examinations for promotion below the Ontario examinations.

That the Grier Street School is seriously overcrowded, and your committee recommend that steps be taken immediately to remedy the evil.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Mr. Mallory in the chair.

The Finance Committee's report was first taken up and the various items of expenditure were passed.

The recommendation re Miss Grace Shanks was adopted.

Mr. Bennett asked if the flags provided for the schools were correct. He had been informed by one of the teachers that the flags were not purely Canadian flags.

Col. Ponton said the flags should not be paid for if they were not correct. He would rather have no flag than one that was not correct.

Mr. Johnson said that, since the flags had been ordered, two new provinces had been taken in by the Dominion and the coats of arms for them were not upon the flags.

The item for the payment of the same was passed.

The recommendation that no extra teacher be employed in the High School was adopted.

In reply to a question why the School Management Committee recommended the change in grading, Mr. O'Flynn said the results were not satisfactory by the grading which was in vogue, and hence the change. The committee were almost unanimous for the change, which, he believed, would be beneficial.

The recommendation of the committee was sustained.

It was unanimously decided to allow a number of the pupils to attend domestic science classes at Albert College upon the same terms as in the previous year.

The matter of alleged over-crowding at Grier St. School was, after some discussion, referred to the School Management Committee, with power to act.

The report of the Principal of the High School, regarding the names of those promoted during the past year, was ordered to be filed, as was also the letter of thanks from the Grier Street scholars.

The matter of purchasing some additional property from St. Thomas' Church, which adjoins the High School premises, was referred to the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee to look into and report. The committee were also instructed to report as to the advisability of securing lot No. 19, on Grier street, north of the school.

A motion prevailed that a grant of $10 be made to Miss Rous, to assist in beautifying the school grounds, the work to be under the supervision of the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee.

MOTIONS.

A motion was passed, by a standing vote, which gracefully welcomed back two members of the Board, Mr. C. M. Reid and Col. Ponton, who had recently returned from the Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, in London.

Messrs. Reid and Ponton replied in an appropriate way.

A motion expressing great regret at the illness of Messrs. Tennent and Hudson, two members of the Board, was passed.

ENQUIRIES.

Col. Ponton desired to know if any steps had been taken to appoint a School Inspector. It was an important matter and should be attended to.

Mr. Wills said the matter had been discussed by the School Management Committee, but nothing definite had been done.

Mr. Johnson said the County Council had appointed a committee to confer with the Board, but that committee had not yet done so.

Col. Ponton moved that the matter be left in the hands of the various chairmen of the committees and the chairman of the Board.—Carried.

Col. Ponton asked if it was true that there had been some mutilation of a room or rooms at Queen Victoria School.

Mr. Johnson said that such was the case, and the matter had been placed in the hands of the police.

Mr. Bennett stated that the boys who committed the offence had been found out, and a member of the Board had spoken to the Chief of Police in reference to having the matter settled.

Mr. Wills gave a detailed statement of what had actually been done, namely, the wall in one room disfigured, ink placed in the water tank, books thrown about, and other nuisances committed.

Mr. Morden said that two boys had confessed to doing this, and had implicated a third, who was already being punished for another offence.

A lengthy discussion ensued in which nearly all the members participated. It was unanimously decided that some punishment should be meted out.

A motion at last prevailed that Edwin Wallace, Jas. Marshall and James Collins be expelled from the school, and that the Principals of all the city schools be so notified; the notice of expulsion to be read in all the schools.

Col. Ponton suggested that a farewell letter be sent to Mr. Armistead, an old teacher who had left the city. He had been a faithful and efficient teacher, at least previous to the past year.

No action was taken, as a motion to adjourn was made and prevailed.

Lost Two Fingers.

A young lad named Fred Lester, who is employed by the W. W. Chown Co., had two fingers taken off by a machine this morning.

There is nothing that takes away the beautiful, womanly charms like a plodding, stooped, awkward carriage. There is absolutely no excuse for that as long as Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is made. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—D. M. Waters.

Killed By Live Wire.

William Welsh, a Young Man of This City, Met Swift and Terrible Death Last Night--Was Trying to Ensure Safety of Others When the Grim Messenger Overtook Him--An Inquest to Be Held.

Swift and terrible was the death which last evening came to William Welsh, a young man of this city, who met his death by coming in contact with a live electric light wire.

The accident was such an unusual one in this city that people, when they heard of it, discussed the matter with bated breath. It was hard to conceive that a strong, bright young fellow who, a few minutes before, had been full of life and strength, should, in the twinkling of an eye, be changed to a corpse.

The circumstances of the case are these;

It seems that, between 5 and 6 o'clock last night, an electric light wire which runs along Moira St., between St. Charles and Strachan Sts., became lowered from its fastenings, and was observed to be lying on the ground in a dangerous position. It is said the piece of wood to which the glass insulator was fastened became loose from the pole, allowing the wire to sag to the ground.

Young Welsh, who was working near the spot with his father, James Welsh, who, with other men, was doing some excavating, saw the wire and, it is said, warned a carter, who was about to run into it. The carter, it is said, then drove down to the city, with the avowed intention of informing the Trenton Electric Company that one of their wires was down.

It seems that, after going home to his tea, young Welsh came out again and put out lanterns around the excavations where he and his father's party had been working. Just at this time Mr. James Ross, a resident of that section, was putting up a lantern to warn people away from the live wire, realizing that, in all probability, it meant death to anyone who came in contact with it.

Young Welsh, it appears, had more lanterns than he needed to safeguard the excavations, and thought he would add the extra lanterns to the one Ross had put out, thus making assurance more sure in the case of the live wire.

TOUCHED THE WIRE.

Mr. Ross and the young fellow were, it seems, placing the lanterns around in such a way that drivers or pedestrians could not fail to see that there was danger, and Mr. Ross had just warned the young fellow not to touch the wire, as it was probably heavily charged. The wire, it seems, was propped up with boards, so as to be off the ground. Mr. Ross had turned round, with his back partly turned to the unfortunate young man when he heard a slight "S-s-s-t," and a stream of fire shot out from the wire where young Welsh was. At the same time he was thrown five or six feet in the air. It had been raining previous to the accident, and the ground upon which young Welsh was standing was wet. This, of course, as Dr. Yeomans, coroner, explains, made the shock much more severe when the young fellow touched the wire, as he is believed to have done accidentally.

The victim was picked up and taken to his parents' home, only a couple of hundred yards away. It was not believed that he was dead as there were no signs of injury, and while people thought the shock would render him senseless they had no thought that death had resulted. Two doctors were soon on the scene, and they did all they knew for the unfortunate lad, but it was no use.

The spirit of William Welsh had gone to his Maker.

The grief of the parents, so suddenly bereaved, was painful to witness. They could hardly realize the blow that had befallen them.

The unfortunate young man was 16 years and five months old.

There is, we are told, not a sign of any injury on the body other than what looks like an abrasion of the skin on the forearm, which may have been caused when he fell after touching the live wire.

There was, we are told, a current of 2280 volts on the wire last night when the accident happened. This is the estimate of practical men, though stories are abroad to the effect that 3000 volts passed through young Welsh's body.

AN INQUEST TO BE HELD.

Dr. Yeomans, Coroner, investigated the matter, and after consultation with the Crown Attorney, Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, decided that an inquest should be held.

COMPANY HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

Representatives of the Trenton Electric Company, when seen by The Intelligencer this morning, refused to discuss the matter at all, especially, as an inquest had been ordered. They claimed, however, that the Company had attended to the repair of the broken apparatus just so soon as they were notified. Further than this they had nothing to say.

At 6.45 last evening, Mr. Brintnell, liveryman, notified the police station that an electric wire was down on Moira St. That was the first notification the police had of the matter. Shortly afterwards they heard that young Welsh had been killed.

THE INQUEST BEGUN.

At noon to-day those empanelled as jurymen assembled at the residence of the deceased's parents, on St. Charles street. The following were sworn in as jurymen;

Wm. Binniger, Robt. McCoy, R. Duffin, Thos. Manley, J. Ross, W. R. Gill, C. Moore, J. McCormick, L. R. Terwilligar, W. A. Pringle, S. Greaves, W. H. Lingham and A. Carr.

Mr. W. H. Lingham was selected as foreman.

After viewing the remains and the place where the young man met his death, the proceedings were adjourned until 8 o'clock on Monday evening, at the police court room, city buildings, when the circumstances of the unfortunate affair will be investigated.

WHAT
Fruit-a-tives
OR "FRUIT LIVER TABLETS" ARE

Fruit-a-tives are the marvels of modern medicine. They have accomplished more actual cures—done more good to more people—than any other medicine ever introduced in Canada for the time they have been on sale.

Fruit-a-tives are fruit juices. They are nature's cure for —CONSTIPATION

—BILIOUSNESS
—BAD STOMACH
—DYSPEPSIA
—HEADACHES
—IMPURE BLOOD
—SKIN DISEASES
—KIDNEY TROUBLE
—RHEUMATISM
—IRRITATED HEART

Fruit-a-tives are the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes. These juices are concentrated—and by a secret process, the juices are combined in a peculiar manner. This new combination is much more active medicinally than fresh juices—yet so perfect is the union that Fruit-a-tives act on the system as if they were in truth a natural fruit, medicinally stronger than any other known fruit.

To this combination of fruit juices, tonics and internal antiseptics are added, and the whole made into tablets.

These are Fruit-a-tives—sold everywhere for 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets
Are just for women
and Contain just what every Sick and Run-down Woman Needs.

Do you know that distinguished physicians say that ninety per cent. of the ills of women result from your peculiar organism.

This should make clear to you the need and advantage of taking a remedy that contains uterine and female tonics.

You know, of course, that remedies made to sell to men as well as women do not contain these. They cannot.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women (not for men) contain them all, and you don't have to take our word for this. Chemists and physicians, whose standing makes their statements reliable, say that not one single medical ingredient of any value to women has been omitted from them.

What is the result? Simply this.

When you buy a box of these tablets you get a remedy compounded just for your special needs, and one containing all that medical science can supply in this twentieth century to make you a healthy woman. What more could you ask?

And unless your experience should be different than that of other women, you need nothing more. If you don't feel as well as you would like to, try these tablets.

They Make Healthy Women.

McINTOSH BROS.

MINUTES NOT SIGNED

Col. Davidson Had No Recollection of Such Meetings.

Neither Did He Know of the Personal Interest of Union Trust Directors in Western Land Speculations—Matter Was Not Discussed, He Says, at Meetings — Commission Adjourns Till Tuesday Morning.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—The Insurance Commission adjourned yesterday at noon until Tuesday, when, it is hoped, that Messrs. Pope and Fowler will be ready to go into the witness-box.

Col. Davidson a Witness.

Lieut.-Col. John I. Davidson was called and said he joined the Union Trust Co. at the solicitation of Mr. Wm. Laidlaw, K. C., after the company had been formed. He bought ten shares of stock at a premium of 10 per cent., for which he paid $1,100, in order to qualify himself as a director. Mr. Shepley asked Col. Davidson to give his recollection of the initiation of the transaction, which the witness did. The project was, he said, introduced by the manager of the company (Hon. Geo. E. Foster), and it was intimated that the transaction would involve a large expenditure of money. He understood that the Great West Land Co., composed of Sir John Boyd, Messrs. Foster, Schofield, McGillivray and Wilson, had taken over an option from Messrs. Pope and Fowler and wanted an advance to carry through the transaction.

An Interest Not Exposed.

Col. Davidson was clear in his recollection that he did not then hear that Messrs. Foster, McGillivray and Wilson were interested personally in the transaction to the extent of 50 cents per acre profit. He became aware that the Union Trust Co. was to get 237 shares of bonus stock for its own use, but did not become aware of the intermediate transactions by which the profit of 50 cents an acre went to Messrs. Foster, McGillivray and Wilson until the investigation. Col. Davidson said that he took very little interest in the affairs of the Great West Land Co. The right to the bonus stock did not, as witness understood, depend upon whether the Union Trust took stock for the amount of its loan or remained as a lender purely and simply; it became the property of the Union Trust Co. in any event. Col. Davidson said he had no knowledge regarding the 100 shares held by Dr. Oronhyatekha.

Was a Meeting Held?

The resolution reversing the policy of the Union Trust Co. becoming shareholders in the Great West Land Co. and taking instead the position of lender was submitted to him for his paternity by Lieut.-Col. McGillivray, of whose personal interest he was at the time ignorant. At the meeting at which action was taken giving effect to the desires of Mr. Stevenson and the I. O. F. the question of the ownership of bonus stock was not mentioned and the idea that the stock was not the property of the Union Trust Co. never entered his head.

The directors' book, in which each director placed his signature at each meeting he attended, was produced. There were signatures there under the date of Nov. 7, 1905, and the next signatures were under the date of Dec. 26, 1905, and Col. Davidson said he would take it from that record that there were no meetings in the interval.

The Bonus Stock Meeting.

Mr. Shepley called the attention of witness to the minutes of a meeting on Nov. 13, at which Col. Davidson was said to have been present, and at which, according to the minutes, a resolution giving up the bonus stock held by the Union Trust and Dr. Oronhyatekha was adopted on motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Lieut.-Col. McGillivray. Witness replied that he had no recollection of any such resolution and could not understand how such a meeting could have been held. Had such a meeting been held he thought he would have recollected it.

"You would have been quite alive to the impropriety of giving up the bonus stock?" suggested Mr. Shepley, and witness replied in the affirmative.

Col. Davidson said he did not think a meeting could have been held without the directors' signatures being in the book, but he did not think minutes would be found in the book if there had been no such meeting if they were signed. Mr. Shepley pointed out that the minutes in question were not signed and witness replied that the minutes were always signed.

"We Always Signed the Book."

Hon. Mr. Foster pointed out that a blank space had been left in the signature book between the record for Nov. 7 and that for Dec. 26. Col. Davidson replied: "We always signed the book, Mr. Foster; that was the first thing; it was the invariable rule that we should sign the book."

Col. Davidson said that the same remark applied to the meeting which appeared from the minutes to have been held on Nov. 28. He was not present at any meeting at which the solicitor read the agreement showing that the bonus stock was being surrendered and had never heard of it having been done. As he understood it, the stock was given absolutely to the Union Trust Co.

Had Confidence in the Men.

The transaction with the Kamloops Lumber Co. was the next matter inquired into by Mr. Shepley. When the proposition was first submitted by Mr. Foster, Col. Davidson, having had experience in lumbering, was "chary" of it. Mr. Foster informed him that Messrs. Irwin and McCormick were going into it, and that they had an option upon the limit and mill. As he knew these gentlemen to be experienced lumber men, and had great confidence in them, he replied that if they were going into it he would be prepared, if he had money of his own available, to put it in the project. He was informed that Mr. Fowler was also going into it, and he understood the parties were putting their own money into the transaction, or, what was the same thing, they were responsible, and the Union Trust was advancing the money.

Personal Interests Not Disclosed.

He had no knowledge that Messrs. Fowler, McCormick and Irwin, who inspected and reported on it, had any personal interest in any of the property, and was not aware that the real price of the Kamloops property was $170,-660, and not $225,000. He did not remember what was paid for the Okanagon property, but thought the company was getting a fair deal from Messrs. Fowler, Irwin and McCormick. He was not aware that all the money, including operating expenses, that had been paid into that property, for which the Kamloops Co. pa'd $177,000 and $42,000 additional for the logs cut, was $60,000. Neither was he aware that Mr. Foster had an interest in the ownership of the stock held by Mr. Fowler.

With respect to the transaction between the Great West Land Co. and Messrs. Pope and Fowler, Col. Davidson said he thought all the lands selected by the parties holding the option were being turned over, and was not aware that Pope and Fowler held back 7,000 acres for themselves.

Mr. Schofield's Evidence.

Mr. Schofield, general manager of the Standard Bank, said he had joined the land purchasing company at the suggestion of Matthew Wilson. At the first meeting Mr. Foster thought it better to have only 50 per cent. paid up, and although he had objected to the principle, he took $4,000 stock and put up $2,000.

As to the 7,000 acres of land lost in the shuffle, he had been told they were under water. He did not know that the company paying for 200,000 acres was getting only 193,000. The details of the 8,640 acres' deal were also kept from him. As to the giving up of the bonus stock, he thought it was because the Union Trust were anxious to become mortgagees.

To Matthew Wilson, Mr. Schofield admitted he knew from the start the syndicate was making 50 cents an acre.

R. E. Levesconte made a statement that the $250,000 Fowler-Ryan option, which he had said was drawn by him, was only of his composition, with the exception of one entry which had been inserted.

Mr. Wilson Volunteers a Statement.

Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., asked that he be allowed to put in a written statement of his position.

Mr. Shepley, while glad to receive any statement by Mr. Wilson, declined to allow it to go on the record.

Mr. Wilson intimated that he would give a copy to Mr. Shepley, and that he intended giving his statement publicly.

Mr. Shepley admitted that he could not prevent Mr. Wilson giving any statement to the press, but said he strongly deprecated such a course. Mr. Wilson must, however, be the judge of his own method.

CANADIANS ARE IN IT.

Parties in Big Suit Reviving Crash of International Mercantile Co.

New York, Oct. 6.—A suit, an echo of the sensation attendant upon the crash of the International Mercantile Agency a year ago, has begun in the Supreme Court by the McClure Adjustment Co. against 16 of the wealthiest and most prominent business men in this country and Canada, and also against Thos. N. McCauley, the Canadian, who organized the corporation.

Everyone of the defendants was a director of the agency, and it is alleged by the McClure Co. that each conspired with McCauley, who fled the country soon after the crash, to sell to the investing public its stock, which they knew to be worthless.

These are the Canadian directors who are named in the suit: S. F. McKinnon, Toronto; Robert MacKay, Montreal; John MacFarlane, a wholesale paper manufacturer, Montreal; George W. Sadler and James Robinson of Montreal; Edward L. Gould, Brantford; John Flett and W. K. George, Toronto.

CORRUPTION IN 1900

Petitioner's Counsel Holds Mr. Fielding Responsible.

Argument in Shelburne-Queens Election Appeal Concluded and Judgment Reserved—Counsel Holds That Mr. Fielding's Motive in Paying Farrell's Account Was to Secure His Support at the 1904 Elections.

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—In the Supreme Court yesterday argument proceeded in the appeal of Cowie vs. Fielding, the Shelburne-Queens election case. Judgment was reserved and court adjourned till Monday.

The appeal is on the refusal of Mr. Fielding to answer questions with regard to the election of 1904. Mr. Fielding admitted paying to Hon. E. M. Farrel, Speaker of the Nova Scotia Legislature, a bill contracted in the 1900 election, but would not say what was the nature of the services rendered. In 1904 he gave $600 to Mr. Farrell, and the judges found that it was corruptly expended. It was argued that if Mr. Farrell spent the 1900 money corruptly Mr. Fielding's action in entrusting him with $600 in the 1900 election constituted a grave offence.

Mr. Lovitt, for the petitioner, argued that if it could be proved that Mr. Fielding was guilty of corrupt practices in the 1900 election, he would have been an unfit person to represent the party in 1904.

Turns on the Statute.

This largely turned on the wording of the statute.

Section 126 of the Dominion Election Act provides that if, in an election trial, corrupt practices are proved to have been committed by a candidate at "an" election. This, the appellants argued, allowed them to range over previous elections. Had the act intended to restrict the enquiry into the one election from which the petition arose, it would have said "such election."

Mr. Lovitt, during the course of his argument, was frequently interrupted by the bench, particularly by Mr. Justice Idington, who at one point remarked that public men must be treated as fairly when accused of crime as other men. Former crimes must not be brought against them unless there is a connecting link between them and new charges.

Mr. Fielding's Motive.

In elaborating his argument counsel for the petitioner said that the motive in Mr. Fielding's mind, when he paid Farrell's account, was to secure his support at the 1904 elections.

Mr. Justice Idington remarked that it would have to be shown that Mr. Fielding's act was "a part of the system."

Mr. Lovitt contended that the "connecting link" could not be established in the lower court because the judges refused to allow petitioner to give evidence which would connect. If Mr. Farrell had been available as a witness he would have been asked what sum of money he had received from Mr. Fielding in 1902.

Ocean Steamer Ashore.

New York, Oct. 6.—The big new steamer Bermudian of the Quebec Steamship Co., running between New York and Bermuda, ran aground on the mud flats off South Brooklyn while coming up the harbor yesterday. She had 160 passengers on board. Tugs failed to pull her off the mud, as the ship had grounded when the tide was high.

Col. R. L. Denison Dead.

Grimsby, Oct. 6.—Yesterday Lieut.-Col. Richard Lippincott Denison, brother of A. R. Denison, and cousin of Col. Denison of Toronto, died here. The late Col. Denison, who was in his 69th year, was once commander of the Toronto Field Battery and the old Garrison Artillery. A widow, two sons, Frank and John, and four daughters survive.

TO RESIGN IN PROTEST.

Bond Ministry In Newfoundland Kicks Over Britain's Surrender to the United States.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 8.—It was reported yesterday that the Ministry, following the recent example of the Natal Cabinet, intend to resign as a protest against the temporary arrangement of Great Britain and the United States, by the provisions of which American herring fishermen secure privileges contrary to the laws of Newfoundland.

Though the report lacks definite confirmations, both the Ministers and Assemblymen are known to be bitterly discussing the most effective method of expressing the sentiment of hostility towards the agreement.

BARNARDO BOYS COMING.

Final Party Leaves Thursday — Cheese Imported From Canada.

London, Oct. 8.—The final party of children from Dr. Barnardo's home leaves Thursday for Canada. The total is 955 for the year, and 18,429 since the work began. Ninety-eight per cent has been reported as doing well.

The annual report of Widdill Sons shows total imports of cheese into Britain for the year ending June 30, 139,063 tons, of which 95,584 came from Canada.

Australia imported 24,500,000 from seven principal countries. Of the former Canada sent £359,002.

Mercantile correspondents of the German press acknowledge the abstract justice of the Australian preferential tariff, in view of the financial indebtedness of the Commonwealth to the mother country. They admit the discovery of effectual means of combatting the tariff will be a difficult matter.

Big Crowd Then Leaves Mobile to Burn the Bodies.

Two Negro Prisoners, Charged With Criminal Assault, Taken From Sheriff Powers and Summarily Dealt With by a Mob of 200 Men—Child of Eight Assaulted and Murdered by a Fiend—Other Crimes.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 8.—Two hundred masked men met Sheriff Powers with the two negroes charged with criminal assault at Richardson Switch, three miles north of Mobile, on the Southern Railway, took his prisoners from him on Saturday morning and hanged them on the spot.

No others were hurt.

The negroes had been taken to Birmingham for safe-keeping and were being brought to Mobile for trial.

Tremendous crowds surrounded the railroad station during the morning and when the report of the lynching of the negroes was received the greatest excitement prevailed.

The crowd was apparently dissatisfied with the method of lynching, and a mob has departed for the scene of the lynching with the declared intention of burning the bodies.

SLAIN BY FIEND.

Eight-Year-Old Child Assaulted and Killed by Negro.

Monessen, Pa., Oct. 8.—Anna Kunpak, eight years old, was found murdered in a field near here yesterday, with her throat cut. From the appearance of the body, the child had been assaulted.

She left home early Saturday evening to bring the cow in, and never returned. After an all-night search, the body was found in a lonely spot, partly covered with ashes.

Upon approaching the spot, the men saw a negro running rapidly through a piece of woods nearby. He is being searched for.

Riot Follows Shooting.

Macon, Va., Oct. 8.—Charles Adams and William Solomon, young white men, last night were shot by a negro and seriously injured, at the fair grounds during an encounter followed by alleged insults offered by the negro to young women they were escorting. The negro was arrested, and a general riot followed. There were no further casualties.

Negro Lynched.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8.—A negro has just been lynched in Argenta.

Lynching In Michigan.

Basin, Mich., Oct. 8.—A negro Saturday attempted criminal assault on Mrs. Ketchem of this town. He was captured and lynched.

KICKED TO DEATH.

Two Winnipeg Bartenders Under Arrest and Bail Refused.

Winnipeg, Oct. 8.—Thomas Humphries of Minto, Man., was killed in the Stock Exchange Hotel on Saturday evening.

Two bartenders at the hotel are under arrest, charged with causing his death. The information obtained by the police is to the effect that Humphries went to the hotel about 7.30 and got into an altercation with the bartenders about change. It is said a fight ensued, and during the mix-up the victim was kicked over the heart.

He was removed to the boarding-house, where he died in fifteen minutes. Bail has been refused the men arrested, pending the coroner's enquiry, which is to take place to-night.

For Slaying His Brother.

Carleton Place, Oct. 8.—The preliminary hearing of George Bradley, who is accused of slaying his brother John, will take place on Tuesday. It is expected that Miss E. Pat[illegible], who saw the brawl from Mr. [illegible]'s cottage, will give testimony. The prisoner is very disconsolate. Though his life was unmarked by great industry his moral character was never before seriously questioned.

Thief Gets Five Years.

Brockville, Oct. 8.—Atwood, the ex-convict, who robbed several postoffices in the district across the line from here, was found guilty and given five years. He was also condemned to pay a fine of $2,000.

$3,000 Jewel Robbery.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—There were no developments yesterday in the theft of jewelry from Mrs. Deur, a resident at the King Edward hotel. Mrs. Deur, beyond stating that the amount of loss was not $3,000, would not discuss the matter. The police, too, were uncommunicative.

Van Horne's Gift to U. S.

New York, Oct. 8.—Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, gave a private view of some of the museum's recent accessions. On an easel in the room in which all accessions will hereafter be shown for a month before being assigned to their proper galleries is William M. Chase's "Carmencita." This canvas was painted by Mr. Chase some years ago. It is a gift to the museum from Sir William Van Horne.

Lord Mayor's Procession.

London, Oct. 8.—Sir William Trelor, lord mayor elect, has made a new departure in regard to the lord mayor's show. Instead of the traditional cars there will be a procession consisting of the representation in costume of seven centuries of civic life. There will be seven groups of ten persons each. Each group will illustrate the lord mayors and sheriffs of a century, and will be dressed in the costumes of that particular time.

True Bill Against Railway.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—A true bill against the Toronto Street Railway Co. for using tracks that are a menace to the public safety was returned by the grand jury on Saturday.

North Bruce Election, Oct. 30.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—The writ for the North Bruce bye-election was issued Saturday. Polling will take place on Oct. 30, and nominations a week earlier.

Aged Woman Suicides.

Blenheim, Oct. 8.—Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, Mrs. James Jeffrys ended her life by cutting her throat. She was an old lady about 75 years of age and leaves a husband and one son. Domestic troubles are supposed to be the cause of the deed, as she has been in good health. An inquest was deemed unnecessary.

Toronto Waiter Disappears.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Douglas Wood, formerly a waiter at the National Club of this city, left town on Sept. 8, to go to Niagara Falls over Sunday, and has not since been heard of. He has a wife and two children living at 36 Sydenham street.

Hon. Mr. Fielding In Toronto.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, spent Sunday in Toronto. He arrived in the morning and returned last night to Ottawa. Mr. Fielding declined to be interviewed.

Bribery in Nova Scotia

Conservatives in Nova Scotia having learned from experience that contested elections for bribery in the courts presided over by Grit judges have been little less than farces, have adopted other means of punishing bribers. They are proceeding under the criminal law and bringing actions against bribers, which if sustained under the Nova Scotia laws imposes a penalty of $400.

In Annapolis, N. B., the same bribery tactics that elected the Finance Minister in Shelbourne-Queens, N.B., were practiced. Punishment is likely to follow, the Conservative Organizer having entered actions against some of the criminals, and one Armstrong was accused of paying $10 to bribe a voter for Mr. Daniels, the Grit candidate. The defendant admitted the offence and thus avoided appearing on the stand. His counsel coolly asked that the full penalty of $400 for the offence be not imposed.

In another case a postmaster was alleged to have offered $5 bribes to various voters to vote for Mr. Daniels, the Grit. This case was allowed to proceed to trial. The defendant failed to put in an appearance Two other witnesses, however, Saundier and Taylor, testified in the most positive way to Hall offering them $5 to vote for Daniels, and that Councillor H. Williams was to pay over the money in the event of their voting satisfactorily.

Now for the technicalities. Defendant's counsel took the objection that the words used by Hall, as reported by the witnesses, were not offers within the intent of the statute but merely feelers. Judgment was reserved in this case.

The Conservatives of Nova Scotia are to be commended for the course they are pursuing. Fine accompanied by imprisonment is the only means by which the election villainies that have been practiced by the Grits of late can be stopped.

It is clear that bribery and other election frauds have not been confined to Ontario. The curse has permeated every constituency in the Dominion, debauching the morals of the electorate to such an extent that Tammany is a paradise when compared to Grit-Rouge committee rooms in Canada.

Penitentiary and hard labor is the only cure.

From the tone of a telegram from Paris of the 4th inst., there looms up in the future some trouble for France. The telegram says: The Catholics of Brittany have addressed an open letter to Interior Minister Clemenceau, denouncing the statements which he made in his speech on Sunday last, and adding: "The Chouans are not dead. If you attempt to unite the Jacobins of '93, if you attempt to close the churches, proscribe our priests or prevent the celebration of our sainted religion, we will rise against the infamous tyranny and die with enthusiasm for God and the King of our Fathers."

The way "grafting" is done. A new State House was dedicated at Harrisberg, Pa., to-day. This caused the spotlight to be turned in that direction. It has been discovered that the handsome new building cost $4,500,000, and did not exceed the appropriation. The furnishing, however, cost $9,000,000. A colored philosopher once protested against the extravagance of a son who had purchased a $2.50 umbrella "to keep do wet off'n a fifty-cent suit of clothes." When the furniture of a house costs twice as much as the building and ground, it looks as though some one was plundered. This should make the outfitters of Canadian exploring expeditions cry themselves to sleep.

Why should not the Pope express "satisfaction with the delegate's report." Sbarretti had his own way when in Canada and dictated terms to Manitoba, Laurier being but putty in his hands.

A refreshing incident occurred in Bridge St. Sunday school yesterday afternoon. Among those on the platform was Sir Mackenzie Bowell, an old boy of the school. In introducing Sir Mackenzie to the school, Mr Johnson, the Superintendent, said: "Here is a Bridge St. Sunday school boy who has held the highest office in the gift of his country. Now, children, how long do you think Sir Mackenzie has belonged to Bridge St. Sunday School?"

There was intense silence for a moment. Then a young hopeful in the front seat jumped up, full of explosive interest.

"A thousand years!" he said.

The scene which ensued was not on the programme laid down by the genial Superintendent.

Two Pennants for Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7. — The baseball season of both major leagues ended to-day, with games at Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati. For the first time since the two associations started the two championships have come to one city. The Chicago National League team won first honors in that organization easily, establishing a new major league record for the number of games won. Of the 153 games played by the team 116 were victories, the previous best record in this respect having been held by the New York Club, in the same league. In the American League the Chicago team upset all calculations made early in the season by winning the pennant. Tuesday the world's championship series will be begun by the two Chicago clubs. The first game will be played on the National League grounds. Another inter-league series is scheduled for St. Louis. The contests there will start Monday.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Hamilton Tigers didn't do a thing to the Peterboros on Saturday, the score at the end of the festivities being 37 to 0 in favor of the Hams. The Petes were very much like the chap who fell out of a balloon.

Torontos and Tecumsehs played a tie game of lacrosse on Saturday, which means that Tecumsehs won the round by five goals. The Cornwalls beat the Caps 2 to 1, but the Senators win the round by a margin of 6 goals, so the Tecumsehs and Capitals will now play home and home games for the N.L.U. championship. The Tecumsehs appear to have a royal chance.

The Toronto Argonauts beat the Victorias 21 to 3 on Saturday. The Hamilton Tigers appear to have the C.R.F.U. championship cinched again this season.

Strangely enough while Hamilton was beating Peterboro 37 to 0 on Saturday afternoon, Gananoque was beating Royal Military College by precisely the same score.

The Toronto Star's $15 fishing rod, for the biggest black bass caught in Ontario waters, goes this year to William Robson, of Harwood. The prize-winning fish was caught in Rice Lake, and weighed 7 pounds 3 ounces. It was 23 inches long. Mr. Barton Babcock, of Ameliasburg, gave Robson a close run, and was only beaten by one ounce, he having, at Nigger island, early in the past summer, caught a bass which weighed 7 pounds two ounces. Mr. Babcock may well say, "So near and yet so far."

Barn Burned.

At 9 o'clock last night a stone barn belonging to Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, situated on South George street, was gutted by fire. The flames had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived, and it was impossible to save the building. The fire did not spread to any of the adjoining buildings. There was not much of value in the building. How the fire originated is not known. The loss sustained is covered by insurance.

Miss Purdy's Funeral

The remains of the late Miss Alice M. Purdy, who died here on Friday night, were this morning taken to Kingston for interment. Services at the house were conducted by the Rev. R. H. Was Minaker Murdered?

THERE ARE SUSPICIONS THAT A MAN, SAID TO BE FROM WOOLER, WAS DONE AWAY WITH BY A PARTY FROM TRENTON.

Winnipeg, Oct. 7. — It is reported here that evidence has been secured which indicates strongly that a man named Minaker, said to be from Wooler, Ont., whose body was found in the bay at Port Arthur, and who was believed by some at the time to have committed suicide, was murdered by a chum for the money he was known to be carrying. His brother, who resides at Neepawa, Man., refused to accept the theory of suicide, and has been actively endeavoring to run down the man suspected of having committed the crime. His suspicion was directed to an associate who resided near Trenton, Ont., and who had travelled east from British Columbia with the dead man. The latter, before leaving the coast Province, drew $500 from the bank but none of this was found on his body when it was taken from the water. Detectives are said, however, to have found the suspect passing bills belonging to the bank from which the money was drawn. He is also known to have purchased a ticket at the same time and place as Minaker. Beyond this no further details can be learned here to-night.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Used Mirror to Cheat at Cards

Pittsburg, Oct. 5.—In a game of stud poker in the early hours of the morning at the Americus, one of the leading political clubs of the country, D. Joseph Johnston, a member, was suddenly grabbed by the wrist by Frank Sauer, another player. Johnston's captor twisted around the hand he had grabbed, revealing a mirror, about the size of a dime, attached to a ring that Johnston wore on the third finger of his right hand, by the use of which he had taken the visible supply of money of his antagonists.

The exposure of Johnston as a cheat at cards was the climax of suspicions held against him for some time. He came here less than a year ago, was supposed to be a broker, and had obtained entrance to several leading clubs. He dressed flashily. The game last night was by his invitation, to celebrate his last night in town, as he had decided to leave a field he had worked to the limit. In a few hours he had most of the money on the table and Sauer's diamond ring and shirt stud.

When the mirror was discovered there was a fight, but Johnston managed to escape with his booty. Later he was arrested on complaint of Sauer, a wealthy young man of Allegheny, who charged him with obtaining money under false pretences. The charge was not pressed, but Johnston was forced to pay back to Sauer several thousand dollars, Sauer said he had lost to him, and to restore the diamonds which were found in his pockets. He was then fined $50 as a suspicious person, and told to hurry out of town for good.

The mirror was of sufficient power to show to the practised eye of Johnston as he dealt the cards he was dealing to his fellow players.

Johnston is said to be one of ten who have made it a business to take money from wealthy club members, and the losses at cards in the big clubs here to the sharpers is said to have been little short of a million. An official of the Americus Club said to-night that five other members had been thrown out of the club within the last six months for cheating at cards.

Placed Poison on Stamp.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 5. — Two members of the Jesse James Jr., gang, of Hellertown, were arraigned before Judge Scott, pleaded guilty to the larceny of books and other articles from the public school buildings at that place, and were sent to the house of refuge. They were William Bast, 15 years old, who was captain of the gang, and Floyd Ettwin, 16 years of age. The latter's father is dead.

Chief of Police Zimpfer told how "Captain" Bast had made a confession after his arrest, and of the oath each member of the gang had taken before he was admitted to membership. This is a copy of the oath administered by the captain while the candidate for membership had his hand resting on a skull that had been stolen:

"I swear on this skull, the emblem of death, to be true to the black flag under which I have enlisted. I will be faithful and true to my comrades in all action, and will obey the commands of my captain. Father or mother, wife or child shall not be sacred in my eyes if duty demands their death. If I fail in any of these things may I be killed and my bones left to bleach like this skull I now grasp. This is my oath."

After he had been sentenced "Captain" Bast to-day reported that another member of the gang had decided to kill William Clay, a resident of Hellertown.

The boy had had trouble with Clay's sons, and the father had offended him by telling about the borough that the latter was a bad boy. For that reason the youngster had decided to send Clay a letter from Bethlehem or some other place, requesting a reply to some questions that were to be asked. In the letter he planned to place a postage stamp to be used in sending the reply, and on the stamp was to be placed arsenic or some other poison, which was intended to kill Mr. Clay when he touched it with his tongue to moisten the mucilage.

The letter was never sent, but the boy had not abandoned his plan for revenge.

SAFETY.

Never in all the history of transportation has travel been safer than it is to-day. Seated in perfect comfort in any of the mile-a-minute trains of the Lake Shore Railway you are in less danger by far than was your grandfather in the lumbering six-mile-an-hour stage of a half or three-quarters of a century ago. Trains over this line are protected and guarded in a way that is but little short of marvellous. Every device that skill or money can provide is used without regard to the expense and in spite of the high speed—the fastest in the world—you are as safe here as in your own home. Combined with safety and high speed are luxurious comfort and punctuality, all combined to make a service unequaled the world over. See that your ticket reads "via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway," and write for full information to J. W. Daly, Chief Ass't G. P. A., Buffalo, N.Y.; A. J. Smith, G. P. A., Cleveland, Ohio, or W. J. Lynch, Passenger Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

Orders for bookbinding should be left at The Intelligencer Office. It is surprising how attractive and satisfactory a volume can be made of these magazines. Books, magazines or periodicals bound or rebound in any style at very reasonable prices. Blank books, such as journals, ledgers, day books with any kind of ruling, made to order.

IT IS A PARASITE.

That Causes Itching, Scalp, Dandruff, and Finally, Falling Hair.

The itching scalp, the falling hair and the dandruff that annoys are the work of a parasite hidden in the scalp That parasite must be killed to cure dandruff; and the only preparation that will do that is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

C. H. Reed, of Victor, Idaho, says: "Myself and wife had dandruff and falling hair several years. Two bottles of Newbro's Herpicide completely cured us, after several other preparations had failed to do good." Makes hair grow glossy and soft as silk. Hundreds of other testimonials just as strong. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

Preacher Wouldn't Stand For Decollete Dress.

Chicago, Oct. 6. — Miss Lina Mae Haines, organist of the Presbyterian church at Edgewater, is still indignant over the rebuke she received last Wednesday evening, when Rev. Richard Rowley, of the Episcopal church at Rogers' Park, refused to allow her to play the organ at a wedding in his church, until she had covered her decollete gown and put on a hat. Miss Haines had taken pains to look her prettiest because the bridal couple were special friends of hers. She did not know the Rev. Mr. Rowley was so set against low-neck attire nor that he had preached to his feminine parishioners against coming to church without hats. She had, in fact, never been in his church before.

The bride and bridegroom were waiting for the wedding march to strike up, when the Rev. Mr. Rowley saw Miss Haines radiant in her low-neck dress and glistening black hair, begin to ascend the steps in the organ loft.

"Wait!" exclaimed the terror-stricken pastor. He darted from the room and returned with an old bonnet and a cotton shawl.

"You must wear these if you play in this church," he said firmly. "We don't allow our young ladies to appear that way."

Miss Haines almost wept as she donned the shawl and hat.

"I was so mortified that I could hardly play the wedding march," she said. "I wouldn't have cared so much if I had been given time to send for my new Gainsborough and a pretty silk fascinator. But to appear in those old things the parson gave me just broke my heart. I'll never get over it."

Durnan Off to Australia.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Edward Durnan, champion oarsman of America, left for Sydney, Australia, Sunday at 1.45 a. m. He goes via Winnipeg and Vancouver. He meets George Towns, champion of the world, in March, on the Paramatta River, Australia, for the world's championship and $2,500 a side. He is accompanied by Mr. Alex Solman. There was a large and very representative crowd present to see him off.

The Origin Of Boxing

Notwithstanding the general impression to the contrary, the regulated system of combat with the closed fists which now bears the name of boxing, and which as a system had its origin in England, dates only from the earlier half of the eighteenth century. The rules, including the rounds and the intervals between, were the production of John Broughton, who was born in London in 1701, and died Jan. 8, 1785. He was known as the father of the manly art and his body lies buried in Lambeth Churchyard.

Broughton kept a booth for the exhibition of boxing in the Tottenham Courtroad, and his rules bear date Aug. 10, 1743. It seems that the comparatively harmless amusement of boxing thus arose in the reign of George I, on the decline of sword combat exhibitions.

Broughton was the first to stand in the position of champion, a distinction he held for 18 years. His most noted patron was the Duke of Cumberland, the second son of George I. He once took Broughton to the continent and on showing him to those famous tall fellows of the Grenadier Guards at Berlin asked the pugilist what he thought of those fellows for a set-to. The English boxer answered that he would have no objection to fighting the whole regiment if he were only allowed a breakfast between two battles.

Broughton was admitted to have constant originality as well as great power in his style of boxing. He was a man of sense and ability apart from his profession. He was at the very height of his reputation when he was challenged by a butcher named Slack.

The champion and all his friends and advisers regarded the challenger with contempt and when the fight began the betting was 10 to 1 in Broughton's favor. Slack contrived early in the contest to hit the champion between the eyes. The blow blinded him. The champion had undiminished strength, but was unable to see his antagonist. His royal patron with characteristic brutality, roared out to him: "Why, Broughton, you can't fight; you're beat."

It was too true. The fight closed in 14 minutes with the defeat of the hitherto unmatched hero. The Duke of Cumberland lost several thousand pounds on the fight. Slack gained £600. about $3,000.

Broughton retired from the ring and lived 39 years after this defeat. He was a wise man and had saved enough money to be in comfortable circumstances for the remainder of his life.

Wedding Bells.

HUGHES—HUDGIN.

At the residence of the bride's parents, on October 2nd, 1906, by the Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., G. Reginald, son of George E. Hughes, of Hallowell, to Amelia Ann, eldest daughter of Philip Hudgin, of Waupoos Island.

The distinction of being the first wedding in twenty-eight years on Waupoos Island is accorded to the one which took place at the residence of Philip Hudgin, on Tuesday, October 2nd, 1906, at high noon. The contracting parties were George Reginald Hughes and Amelia Ann Hudgin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., under an arch of evergreen and colored maple leaves. The bride was attired in white organdie and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Laura. The groomsman was Mahlon G. Eckert, of Rednersville. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about twenty-five, partook of the wedding dinner and drank to the health of the happy pair. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Bongard, grandparents of the bride; Captain and Mrs. Wilcocks, the grandparents of the groom, as well as other relatives and friends. The presents, expressing good wishes, were useful and beautiful.

Monkeys as Nurses.

"Monkeys make poor nurses," said a zoo keeper. "When they live near a stream of water and one of the colony falls sick they invariably toss him overboard. They don't want him around. His sighs and groans annoy them so. 'Psst! Off the dock!'

"Here in captivity I have to remove at once a sick monkey from his comrades' reach. Otherwise they would soon kill him. When they can, well monkeys take a strange joy in tormenting an invalid. They bite the end of his tail, they drag him about, and they pinch him. Finally, when he dies, as many as can find room sit on his body, close together, very solemn, as though engaged in some religious rite."

Fixed Bayonets.

It is said that during the siege of Ladysmith in the Boer war the assault column of British, advancing in thick darkness, climbed up an almost precipitous wall. Once or twice they were faintly challenged. At last a Boer recognized them and shouted to the sentry to fire on the "verdomde rooineks!" As the crest was gained the fire broke out. A few of the attackers began to reply, but they were stopped, and the voice of the commanding officer was heard to give the order, "Fix bayonets!" That there were no bayonets did not matter. The men, taking up the cry, rushed on the Boer gunners, who fled at the thought of the cold steel.

The Streets of Peru.

The streets of Peru, especially on gala days or when they wear the special dress of some celebration, are said to be among the most picturesque in the world. In their narrow proportions they resemble somewhat the streets of China, and the variety and contrast of the colors used in decoration may be compared with the Chinese. There is, however, a distinct Latin character to the decoration, which lends them an atmosphere entirely their own.

Do You Live In the City of IF ?

The city of IF is the Babylon of the modern world. Its population consists of the majority of people who live on earth. It is a world-wide city—a city of limitless boundaries, limitless limitations!

If you live in any part of the city of IF you are apt to have for neighbors some members of the PERHAPS family and their poor relations, the Forlorn Hopes: Those people are a poor sort of neighbors. Then there are the Maybe folks, and the Notyets, the B. Carefuls, the Goslows, and the Cautious and Timid families. They are a gloomy company—a company of "ALMOSTS," of people who just miss doing things and getting things.

If you have been sharing the lots and lives of such people as these—if you have been missing opportunities and chances of success all your life—isn't it time that you MOVED?

To get out of this city of IF is not so hard a task as it may seem. It requires a small amount of "nerve," of "backbone," of "git-up-and-git," and some "gumption." And it requires something more—the rational use of a little advertising space. Publicity will sell all of your property in this city of IF; it will enable you to move to the town of HUSTLE, or the town of ENTERPRISE, where you will have better neighbors—such people as the CLIMBERS, the EXCELSIORS, the MONEYTONS, the NEVERQUITS, the WINOUTS—all folks who live well and in an atmosphere of good cheer and healthy discontent.

Some people suppose that London is the heart and centre of the British Empire, but they are mistaken, says the London Daily Chronicle. Rather a novel shipment was made recently by the Montcalm, which brought seventeen young horses from Alberta. They were fine animals, though, to a stranger, rather wild, and were on their way to Ireland, where they will be probably used for hunting purposes. An interesting feature in connection with the matter, is the fact that the business is being carried through by a lady who owns a ranch in the Canadian Northwest, and who accompanied the first of her consignments through their long journey overland and sea. The courageous woman who undertook this remarkable business is Lady Ernestine Hunt, a daughter of the Marquis of Ailesbury. She will bring back to Canada horses of good pedigree for breeding purposes.

The search for the Spanish treasure which is supposed to lie at the bottom of Tobermory Bay evidently appeals strongly to the Baroness Macdonald, widow of the famous Canadian statesman. After spending some time holidaying in Dumfriesshire, she has now gone to the little west-coast town, along with her daughter, Miss Macdonald. Both the ladies have interested themselves greatly in the salvage operations, Miss Macdonald so far as to go on board the steamer in order to see the apparatus bringing up the stuff from the bottom of the bay in the vicinity of the wreck of the Spanish Armada warship, sunk there hundreds of years ago. The Baroness at one time rented a villa in Connel, a small West Highland township, and before going to Tobermory she renewed acquaintance with that place. As to the treasure very little of it has yet been recorded. Old guns have been brought up, as well as other things, proving that a wreck really lies there, and recently two pieces of silver-plate were found. But the treasure chests filled with "pieces of eight" have yet to be located.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is booming ahead at a wonderful rate. Its gross receipts for the month of September were no less than $2,064,000. This means much more than doubling of the figures for the same period since 1900, which are as follows:

1900	$ 793,000
1901	995,000
1902	1,460,000
1903	1,226,000
1904	1,277,000
1905	1,666,000
1906	2,061,000

The extent of and success which has attended this enterprise is unparalled in the history of railways. What has the Hon. Edward Blake, who declared on the floor of the House of Commons, that the road if ever built, would never earn enough to pay for the grease to lubricate its wheels, to say to the above figures? Its stock is now selling at $185.

* * *

A somewhat strange decision in re transportation companies has been given by Judge Mabee, of Toronto. He has decided that a railway company contracting, by selling a ticket to carry a passenger to a point in the United States, it becomes liable for the $2 head tax which that country imposes on all foreigners with the exception of Canadians and Mexicans. One company refused to pay the tax demanded of one of its passengers, and carried the man back to the point from which it had taken him. The judge, in the absence of any stipulation on the ticket disclaiming liability for the tax, condemned the company in $100 liability. That this judgment will hold an appeal is doubtful. As well might the carrier be held responsible for dutiable goods found in travellers' trunks.

HUNTERS' EXCURSIONS.

The fact that the C.P.R. line runs for so many miles through ideal hunting lands, where moose and deer and smaller game galore wax fat and await the advent of fall and the accompanying guns and dogs, is, of course, the principal reason why about this time of year the enthusiastic sportsman turns to the well-known yellow covered folder and studies time tables and maps so industriously. Hunters' excursions are round again, and single fare will soon be the order of the day. The C.P.R. announces that from Oct. 9th to Nov. 6th return tickets to all stations on their main line, Mattawa to Port Arthur, and Mattawa to Temiskaming and Kippawa, will be on sale at single fare, and from Oct. 25th to Nov. 6th tickets at the same low rate to stations on the Lindsay Branch, stations between Sudbury and the Soo and Havelock and Sharbot Lake. All tickets will be good to return until Dec. 8th, with stop-overs allowed anywhere. Special steamship rates to the Soo and Port Arthur will also be in effect. Intending hunters should make a point of calling at the nearest C.P.R. ticket office for further information and for copies of "Fishing and Shooting," "Sportsman's Map," and "Open Seasons and Game Laws," all of which are of particular interest and use to sportsmen, and are free for the asking. FOR YOUNG FOLKS

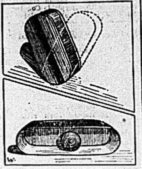
AN ACROBATIC BOX.

A Curious Little Toy That Any Girl or Boy Can Make.

This is a curious little toy that is sometimes sold in shops and by street venders. The people who see its performance wonder what sort of complicated machinery it contains. The picture answers the question. It contains nothing whatever except a lead bullet if you can find a pill box of the right size and shape all you have to do is to put the bullet in it. If not, you will have to make the box.



THE ACROBATIC BOX.

Cut out a piece of stiff cardboard an inch and a half or two inches long and about half an inch wide, with round or semicircular ends. This is for the bottom of the box. For the sides cut a half inch strip of thinner and more flexible, but still pretty stiff, cardboard and glue it to the bottom, exactly at right angles. The ends of the strip should overlap a little and be pasted or glued together. Make the cover of the box in the same way, but the merest trifle larger, so that it will fit nicely. Put in a large bullet whose diameter is nearly equal to the width of the box, put on the cover and the thing is done.

Now prop up a piece of board or a slate or a large book—an atlas—in a steeply inclined position or get somebody to hold it that way; stand the box on the top of the inclined plane on one end and turn the other end down until it rests on the plane and at once let go. If the inclination is steep enough the box will roll down the plane, but it will roll very differently from a round box. It will rise slowly on end, tremble, go over quickly, with a slap, rise on the other end, and so on, and it is likely to stop in any sort of apparently impossible position.

You see, before it makes a turn it has to wait for the bullet to roll the length of the box, and the bullet is so much heavier than the box that when it is at the bottom end the upper part of the box is so light in comparison that the least inequality of the surface may leave the box balanced on one end, not vertically, but pointing in almost any direction and looking as if it ought to fall.

THE MINER'S LAMP.

A Little Experiment That Will Show You How It Works.

It is absolutely necessary for the miner to have light to work by down in the bowels of the earth, and yet ordinary flame is out of the question because it would put the lives of the miners in peril. There is a gas in most mines called fire damp, which is a light carbureted hydrogen, and when this is mixed with atmospheric air and exposed to flame it explodes with great force. The safety lamp, however, invented by Sir Humphry Davy, a noted English chemist, does away with the danger. This lamp is constructed on the principle that flame will not pass through gauze. A simple experiment will show you. Hold a piece of iron wire gauze over a gas burner and you may readily light the gas above the gauze, for it readily passes through when unlighted. But if you move the gauze several inches above the burner the flame will not pass through, because the gauze takes away the heat so quickly that the gas will no longer burn. In the same way the fire damp of the mines can go through the protecting gauze of the safety lamp and burn on the inside, but the flame cannot get to the outside.

Jolly Spelling Game.

You can call it a "journey around the world," if you wish.

Take half a dozen or so sheets of cardboard and write the names of cities on them. Scatter them around and place a boy or girl in charge of each as ticket agent. Give each one a card containing five or more words.

The other boys and girls play they are travelers, and they stop at each station, where they are detained by the ticket agent until they have successfully spelled the five words that are on his card.

In this way a great deal of useful spelling is done, but it is a jolly game.

Millicent May.

Millicent May was very fair,
With violet eyes and golden hair,
And she was gowned with greatest care,
Was Millicent May, my dearie.

She sat in her carriage, nor even bowed
Her lovely head to the passing crowd,
For she was fair and she was proud,
Was Millicent May, my dearie.

But pride oft endeth in disgrace,
For she fell, she fell and broke her face
And in oblivion took her place,
Did Millicent May, my dearie.

So by this tale, you will agree,
That the fate is sad of such as she,
Though but a doll she chanced to be,
Did Millicent May, my dearie.

Absurdity of Titles That Descend From Father to Son.

When you find a man a most excellent runner, poet, surgeon or mariner, you give him due respect for his skill. If he is very eminent, his occupation esteemed and you chance to be some ruling power, he may receive a title. You do not confer this title because of his grandmother, and you do not make the old lady a duchess or indeed pay her any particular attention. This omission does not reflect discredit on the grandmother. It is obvious to her mind that to make her a peeress because not she, but some one else, has done something "good" would be as absurd as giving her twelve months' hard labor if he had done something otherwise.

Still less rational would it be to make the man's son a peer. The old lady has given the world this grandson. Perhaps she is in a measure the cause of his greatness, just as she might be to a certain extent responsible were he a criminal. But the son of the man did not make his father. He is not to be more greatly praised for what his father has done than for what William the Conqueror did.

The world seldom or never gives a man a title because his father earned one, but it does an equally silly thing when it allows a son to inherit such an "honor," says Home Notes.

Until a man can transmit merit it is absurd to allow him to transmit a testimonial as to merit. And, if there be no pretense of claim to exceptional worth, what solid reason can be advanced for a man receiving a designation that commands deference?

TOOTHPICKS.

A Visit to London and a Little Lesson In Etiquette.

"I ran over for a short visit to London," said a globe trotter. "On the boat was a pretty widow from Altona who disgusted and amused all hands one day by saying:

"'I am surprised that a fast and expensive boat like this should fail to supply us with toothpicks.'

"She thought toothpicks indispensable, like napkins or forks. For thinking so we set her down as a hecker. But wait.

"I dined during my visit in London at Prince's, in Piccadilly, and at the Savoy, in the room that overlooks the embankment and the river, and at the Carlton, where I paid a dollar for a plate of soup, and at all these restaurants, which are admittedly the finest and the smartest and the most fashionable in the world. At all of them there were toothpicks on the table, each toothpick done up in a sterilized envelope.

"This taught me a lesson. It taught me that it is narrow and provincial to despise people for their disregard of certain small rules of etiquette. The things we despise them for, which may be glaring errors in Seattle or New York, may be again, as like as not, the correct thing in Paris and London."

How Sound Waves Move.

The speed with which sound waves are transmitted through the atmosphere depends on several conditions. When the temperature is at 32 degrees F., sounds move with a speed of 1,090 feet per second, the velocity increasing with the temperature at the rate of about one foot of speed per second for each degree above the freezing point. Then, again, in damp air sound moves with a greater velocity than it does in dry air, no odds if the dry air be warm and the damp cold. In water sound moves more than four times as fast as it does in air, or, say, at about the rate of 4,700 feet per second.

Wooden Spoons.

A curious industry in Russia and one which nevertheless finds employment for thousands of men is that of making wooden spoons. In the district of Semenovsk, where they chiefly come from, no fewer than 7,000 men make a living at the trade. The spoons are generally made from birchwood, and a skilled workman can turn out several hundred a day. No fewer than 12,000,000 spoons are manufactured during the course of the year, which are sold at 6 to 8 rubles per thousand. They find a ready market and penetrate as far as Persia, Khiva, Bokhara and Khokand.

Husbands.

A woman who shall be nameless furnishes the following essay on husbands:

"There are three kinds of husbands—the young husbands who make us unhappy because we are so jealous of them, the middle aged husbands who break our hearts because they would rather make money or play golf than devote any attention to us and the old husbands who sicken us with their silly objections whenever we turn to look at younger men."

Different Times.

Sarasate once found his memory deserting him at a recital, but he discovered the reason of the mishap in time to prevent a failure. A lady was fanning herself in the front row of the stalls. The violinist stopped playing. "Madam," he said, "how can I play in two-four time when you are beating six-eight?" The lady shut up her fan, and the recital was concluded successfully.

When Bernhardt Was Fooled.

Sarah Bernhardt once fell victim to a sudden attack of homesickness while she was traveling in eastern Europe. She announced that she was going back to Paris immediately. Bucharest was the next city on the route and Bernhardt's impresario at once sent the following telegram to his advance agent, who was then in the Roumanian capital: "Wire me immediately as follows: 'Nobility and leaders society preparing magnificent reception. Minister of fine arts will be represented station. Torchlight procession, massed bands. Wire exact hour arrival.'" This telegram was duly sent and the impresario showed it to the actress, who forgot her homesickness in view of the magnificent reception awaiting her. When they arrived there were sixty solemn gentlemen in evening dress, with many decorations, on the platform, there were torches, flags and flowers, massed bands played the "Marseillaise" and the triumphal procession started for the hotel. "Are you not coming with us?" said the impresario to his advance agent, who showed signs of remaining at the station instead of going to the hotel. "No," he said. "I must look after the nobility and leaders of society. I am afraid they will bolt with their dress clothes." But the actress, so the story goes, never guessed that the sixty great men at the station were supers hired by the advance agent at 36 cents a head.

Didn't Belong to Colorado.

In the early days of Leadville there was a singular character living by the name of Major Martin McGinnis. The major was the important man of the camp, and when any distinguished parties came to the city they were received by Major Martin McGinnis and presented with the freedom of the camp on a gold plate. The French government sent three mining engineers over to examine and to report upon the mineral deposits of this locality. They were received by Major Martin McGinnis, who put them in carriages and took them around the camp. As they were going up California gulch the Frenchmen suddenly jumped out of the carriage and commenced to hammer and chisel upon a large black bowlder that lay alongside the road. The major watched them gesticulating to one another, and he finally said to the interpreter: "What do they mean? What are they talking about?" The interpreter said, "They say that rock don't belong here." The major said: "The deuce it don't! You say to those foreigners that I won't stand for them coming over here and running down our country. Tell them that they can find anything anywhere in Colorado."

The Frenchmen were right, however, for this black rock was a meteor and had fallen from the skies.

The First Bathing Machine.

There does not seem to be much doubt that the first bathing machine was seen at Margate and that it was the invention of a worthy Quaker named Beale, who placed his hopeful invention on the Margate beach in 1750. "The public are obliged to Benjamin Beale, one of the people called Quakers, for the invention," writes the author of "A Short Description of the Isle of Thanet," published in 1796. But it was the old story, the public became grateful after the inventor had been ruined by his enterprise. His successors had reaped the harvest. Old Benjamin Beale's widow could remember in her last days the first family that ever resorted to Margate for the purpose of bathing being carried into the sea in a covered cart. In 1803 Beale's machines were one of the institutions of Margate. It was alarmingly claimed for them that "they may be driven to any depth into the sea by careful guides."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The Busiest Street In the World.

West street in New York presents a network of piers and docks for its whole length. Most of the great steamship and railway transportation companies have their pier terminals there, and other steamship companies have built their terminals on the New Jersey shore opposite, so that all transatlantic and a large share of the continental travelers must cross West street in coming to or leaving the city. When one considers the great number of short trip travelers, including commuters, who daily make their way in and out of the metropolis across this busy thoroughfare a faint idea of its importance may be gained. Manhattan Island has thirty-two miles of water front.—John P. Fritts in Leslie's Weekly.

This Was In 1824.

English opinion of the United States in 1824, from the standpoint of the fashionable London set, is shown in the extract from the correspondent of John Whishaw:

"You must have read some time since in the papers of a few young 'fashionables,' Mr. Stanley (Lord Derby's grandson), Messrs. Wortley and Denison, ministerial members, and Labouchere, a nephew of Mr. Baring, having sailed for New York with the intention of making a tour of the United States. The scheme was thought very wild and much disapproved of by the west end of the town, and disappointment and disgust were universally predicted."

How to Remove a Corn; Try It.

Expose the corn and pass the finger tips of your right hand over it slowly and caressingly, at the same time sending a vibration from the brain to the corn. If it is a soft corn 413 vibrations per second will suffice; if a hard corn, put on a forced draft. Repeat slowly, "I am now sending a current of thought force into my corn and so separating, deducing, disintegrating, rendering, splitting, sundering, splintering, snipping, dwellicating, whittling, dispersing, dislocating, eliding, divorcing, pulverizing, slashing, slicing and dissecting it that presently it will pass away. Repeat it three times; then, with rising inflection, "Avaunt, avaunt, avaunt!" Finish by repeating the password: "The universe is mine. I am it." The corn will at first look extremely surprised, then wilt and fade beautifully from sight.—New Thought.

ON WILLIE'S ACCOUNT

By BEATRICE STURGES

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

Willie sat on the steps in a distinctly unhappy mood. It was the first of July, bright and beautiful. The garden was ablaze with flowers and he could pick as many as he wanted. His ball and books and little fire engine lay on the porch beside him, and his collie pup was begging him to come and play, but Willie had no heart for any of these attractions.

He was grieved. What was the use, he reflected, of being the only child if your father and mother go away for two weeks and leave you at home? What was the use of having a young aunt stay at your house if she shut herself up in her room and wouldn't come downstairs? And what was the use of being alive at all when the circus was coming to town in three days and nobody had invited you to go? Life was full of terrible problems. He was just wondering if he hadn't better cry about it when he saw a friend coming down the street and hastily changed his mind.

WILLIE LOOKED ANXIOUSLY FROM ONE TO THE OTHER.

This friend was no less a person than Max Harwood, chief of the volunteer fire department of Norwood, commodore of the local yachting club and a hero in Willie's eyes. By some mysterious coincidence Commodore Max appeared on the scene with great promptness and frequency whenever Willie's aunt, Miss Marjory Dean, came for a visit, and as these visits had been rather numerous during the year just passed Willie knew him well enough to rummage through his pockets and to boast about their intimacy whenever any of the other boys needed a little wind taken out of their sails.

To Willie's surprise Max was passing with merely a wave of the hand, so the little boy jumped up and ran after him.

"Hello, Napoleon!" cheerily called his hero. It was his fancy to call Willie by the names of the world's great generals, one after another.

"Good morning, commodore; aren't you coming in to see us?"

"Guess not, Hannibal; it's pretty early for company."

"You have been earlier than this," said the child reproachfully.

"Well—er—I'm kind of busy this morning"—

Willie was turning away to hide the hurt look in his eyes. Nobody wanted to bother him. Max saw this and hastily added:

"But get your cap and come along. I'm going down to fix up the boat. You can help me."

The delighted child raced back to the house for his cap and then was off hand in hand with the commodore, happy as a lark.

They worked all the morning on the boat and then the commodore took Willie up the river for a sail.

"Are you going to the circus, Agamemnon?" inquired Max, by way of conversation.

With a recurrent touch of gloom Willie was forced to admit that he didn't think he was.

"Well, I'd like to take somebody of just about your size," went on his host, "and I think that somebody is you. What do you say, my hearty?"

"Fine! Fine!" shouted Willie.

"Well, heave ho, there, and we'll splice the main brace. Keep out of the lee scuppers while I hoist the mainsail. Ha! Ulysses, what do you think of that?" And Max, who loved to mix up nautical terms for Willie's entertainment, made the cleanest kind of a landing at his own pier.

"Did you ever shiver your timbers, commodore?" asked Willie.

"Lots of times, Wellington, and still live to tell the tale. Don't forget about the Fourth—side shows, fat lady, peanuts, elephants, pink lemonade—we'll see it all."

"Indeed I won't!" cried the child, wild with delight as he raced into the house to tell his aunt.

She was watching for him anxiously. "Oh, Willie boy, where have you been all the morning?" she exclaimed, kissing him.

He told her breathlessly, and she listened to his admiration of the commodore with rising color.

"Isn't he perfectly splendid, Aunt Marjorie? They say there are ten elephants and the lions growl something awful! But I won't be afraid with the commodore. Only I wish you were coming too. Wouldn't you like it? I'm sure he'd take you, too, if you asked him."

"No, honey, I—I don't think so. I don't expect to see the commodore again; we—we aren't friends any more."

"Oh, auntie!" exclaimed Willie, in genuine dismay. "And he's so good too."

Willie thought for a minute that his Aunt Marjorie was going to cry, and then he was surprised to hear her say in a manner singularly unlike her usual gentleness. "Maybe some people think he is good, but I know his true character, and I do not think you ought to go around alone with him." This speech was rendered with all the dignity that a woman of the world, aged nineteen, could muster.

"You went with him alone to lots of places," complained Willie. "You went last night."

"Yes, and that's just the reason I'm not going again. If a man takes a girl to a dance and forgets her he will certainly forget a little boy when he takes him to the circus, and then what would happen to you?"

Really this was awful. Willie had never seen his dear little aunt in such a state, but she was very sweet to him and took him out driving that afternoon, stopping in the village to buy him candy and lots of fireworks for the Fourth. He didn't know what to think about his beloved commodore, but saw him the next day and promptly repeated the whole conversation. It seemed to him the simplest way out of the difficulty.

"Did you forget, commodore?" he insisted.

"Great Scott, Willie, maybe I did; she says so; but she wasn't lonesome," he said grimly. "Girls are queer creatures, Wellington; you'll find that out some day. But don't say another word about the circus. I'll fix it some way. You're going to see it as sure as your name is Vincingetorix."

So Willie kept his counsel and was petted much by his auntie for the next two days. On the morning of the Fourth he was firing off his crackers from the open window in his little nightclothes at 4 o'clock, and Marjorie said never a word of complaint. She had made up her mind to take him to the circus herself and to get away early to avoid any possible conflict with her former great friend, the commodore—now a stranger forever.

Before lunch was over, however, the commodore's touring car stopped at the door and the commodore was standing on the porch, cap in hand, announcing that he had come.

"Yes, I see," returned Marjorie coolly, but deliberately avoiding his gaze. Max had such a way of looking at one. "But what for?"

"Why, to take my friend Julius Caesar to the circus."

Willie looked anxiously from one to the other in an ecstasy of hope and suspense.

"I told Willie"—

"Yes, I know," he interrupted, "but if you come, too, it will be all right."

"Oh, yes, auntie!" cried Willie, jumping with joyful anticipation.

Marjorie tried hard to look cold and dignified.

"Would you spoil that child's day?" asked the commodore, coming closer. "Marjorie, please!" His eyes urged her as well as his voice.

She looked at him. "All right, I'll go. But it's just on Willie's account."

"Any reason will do," responded Max as he helped her into the car. "But maybe you can find a better one before we get home. I'm going to ride back here with you and William." He lifted the delighted child, gave him a hug, and put him in the front seat with the chauffeur. "William the Conqueror is going to have the time of his life."

The Turquoise Land.

Sinai was known as the "turquoise land" in very ancient times, and Dr. Flinders Petrie believes that it was the first mining center in the world. In his book on the subject Dr. Petrie tells of the various expeditions sent to Sinai by the Egyptian government. At the head of the party was the "commander," or "bearer of the seal of the god," the pharaoh. The official staff consisted of "masters of the house of metals," of assayers, scribes and secretaries, to make inventories of the output of the mines. Even more modern were the "devisers of metals," or prospectors. The working staff consisted of miners and their assistants. The commissariat had cooks, bread bakers, water carriers and even a doctor attached. The mines could only be worked for a certain period, from January to May, which is exactly the best period for archaeological work in Sinai today. The miners lived in camps, and the so called forts and camps were really miners' villages.

England and the Sea.

Yorkshire alone has a record of no fewer than twelve drowned towns and villages. There was Ravenspur, for instance, which was constituted a free borough by Edward I. at a cost of £300 and became a seaport of almost national importance. There it was that Edward Baliol embarked with a force of 2,500 strong in order to win the crown of Scotland. The town, bigger and more important than Hull, had five churches, a capacious harbor and a number of buildings befitting its rank and importance. Where are they now?—London Pall Mall Gazette.

COMPARISONS.

As Soon as We Begin to Make Them We Begin to Suffer.

We would not have to strive so for courage if what we vaguely call "things" were more evenly distributed among us, for no one's lot would then seem to him an evil one. If we were all humpbacked or lame or blind; if every husband were unfaithful and every child a cross; if we were all poor and no man had any more than another; if nobody's son died in his early strength and nobody was loved while we sat neglected, then who of us would know what sorrows and afflictions were? We would take each of them for granted, as a Chinaman takes his yellow skin and an Indian his red one.

It is because we see our estate differing from that of our fellows that we are tempted to comparisons, and it is in the making of these comparisons that a sense of our sorrows, like the knowledge of our afflictions, is first born. How would we have known that we were poor unless we had seen some one else who was richer or that our son was unsuccessful unless the son of somebody else were making a great mark in the world? Would our little children be unhappy with only one dress had they not seen other children with two?

It comes to this, then: When we begin to make comparisons, we begin to suffer. This may seem to be a hard saying, but it is a true one.—Lilile Hamilton French in Harper's Bazar.

STAG LEGENDS.

Ancient Stories of the Animal's Antipathy to Snakes.

There is no beast in the world to which more legendary virtues are attributed than the stag, partly owing to the tale of St. Hubert, partly to a supposed antipathy of stags toward serpents, partly to a peculiar mass of gristle in the shape of a cross which is found in the animal's heart. A whole book might be written on the miraculous power of the heart and the efficacy of different parts of him against the troubles of this evil world. Foulloux, in the sixteenth century, gives a long list, and Master Robert Topsel fills page upon page with them, but our author in his solid English fashion is chary of accepting such stories.

Men say, he admits, that when a stag is right old he beateth a serpent with his foot till she be wroth, and then eateth her, and then goeth to drink, and then runneth hither and thither till the water and venom be meddled together, and maketh him cast all his evil humors that he had in his body, and maketh his flesh come all anew. But, he adds, with the solemnity of Herodotus himself, "Thereof make I none affirmation." And this phrase occurs again and again, for the Comte de Foix is too great and noble a hunter that any assertion of his should be laughed at.

Gambling a Religious Duty.

"Speaking of gambling," a missionary said, "I know of a sect that regards it as a religious duty, like fasting or prayer. This sect is the Hindoos. They one day in each year gamble like mad from sunrise till sunset. The day is the festival of the lamps, a day sacred to Lakshun, the goddess of wealth. A tremendous lot of money changes hands in Lakshun's honor. All this gambling is done to test the financial success that will attend on each person throughout the year. If a gambler loses he knows a year of hard luck is ahead of him. If he wins he knows he may expect a twelvemonth of prosperity. Strange to say, a good deal of cheating accompanies this religious gambling."

Champion Divers.

"Larry Donovan," said a professional swimmer, "made the highest dive on record. It was 210 feet—a dive from the Brooklyn bridge. Donovan also took a dive from Niagara bridge, a good 200 feet. There are no other divers in the same class with Larry. Jack Burns made a dive of 150 feet from the topmost yardarm of the Three Brothers, the largest sailing ship of its time, and Jim O'Rourke and Julius Gautier have done some good diving, too—100 feet, 125 feet, and so on—but it is doubtful if Donovan's record will ever be broken."

The Crawfish's Tail.

The tail of a crawfish serves that animal as an oar. By a peculiar jerk of the tail the animal can retire from a dangerous object with almost incredible swiftness. The tail is much more effective in moving the animal backward than forward, a singular instance of adaptation to its situation, for by means of its tail it can withdraw into its hole with such swiftness as in an instant to place it out of danger.

SIR ROBERT HART'S STATUS.

Britain Accepts China's Verbal Assurances That It Is Unchanged.

Shanghai, Oct. 8.—Sir Robert Hart, director-general of Chinese Imperial customs, has issued a circular to the foreign colony here, saying that he has received assurances that his status with regard to Chinese customs will not be changed, and that he is satisfied that there will be no undue interference with foreign control of customs.

Britain Accepts Assurances.

London, Oct. 8.—According to a letter from Sir Edward Grey, the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, to the China association, the Government has deemed it advisable to accept China's verbal assurances in the matter of the retention of Sir Robert Hart as director-general of Chinese imperial customs, and has placed these assurances on record. The China association and some London newspapers contend that this constitutes a diplomatic rebuff, and that Great Britain should have insisted upon written assurances.

WHOLESOME WARNING

TO PREVENT THE MISSING OF THE GREAT BLESSING.

UNCHARITABLE JUDGMENT

Common Sin Which Takes Much Out of the Life of Those Who Indulge in It—Lesson to Be Learned in "Entertaining Angels Unawares"—Three Messengers of God Who Brought Joy to Abraham's Household.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 7.—In this sermon the preacher utters a wholesome warning against the common sin of uncharitable judgment of others, lest we, by such means, miss the blessing that comes of "entertaining angels unawares." The text is Genesis xviii, 2, "And, lo, three men stood by him."

When a gentlemen travels in the far east he does not stop at a public inn, but lodges with the people he meets on the way. Thus one day Abraham was sitting at the door of his tent. Off in the distance he sees three travel stained men approaching. At once, according to the social customs then practiced and with the cordial hospitality of the east, Abraham runs toward these three travelers and kneels at their feet and says: "Come and lodge with me. Tarry and rest yourselves and eat of my bread. After refreshing yourselves you can continue on your journey." The three travelers accepted this kind invitation. Abraham spread before his guests the best food he had. He killed a calf. His wife baked for them some hot bread. After the meal was over one of the strangers said, "Where is thy wife?" Abraham went and called Sarah. Then, as the three men were about to go, they said practically these words: "Oh, ye aged and childless ones, the dearest wish of you hearts is about to be fulfilled. In your old age you shall have a son." To make a long story short, Abraham and Sarah found out that their guests in human form were not simply three men, but three angelic messengers of God. What an inconceivable privilege that was! Let us think about it this morning, remembering that we, too, can entertain angelic messengers almost every day if we will. We can entertain them, as did Abraham, when strange travelers approach our dwelling and perhaps knock at the door for admittance. You may think, these strangers are men, as did Abraham, but they are not. They are messengers of God. Thus the questions which now confront us all are: "Will we let in these angelic visitors? Will we receive from them the spiritual blessings which God intends us to get?"

Shall we, in the first place, receive the angelic visitors who come from God dressed in the rough garments of poor men? These messengers come to us almost daily, as the three strangers came to Abraham in olden time. As we approach the Hebrew patriarch's tent we see him sitting under the shadow. It is almost noon. Like a wise master he had seen that his herdsmen and shepherds had cared well for his stock. Then when the hot sun begins to beat down he goes back to his tent to prepare for dinner and take a rest and have a quiet chat with his dear wife Sarah, for, though Abraham at this time was over ninety years of age and Sarah had passed her threescore years and ten, yet they were still lovers as when in their youth they had taken a journey into faroff Egypt and the king's messenger wanted to select Sarah for Pharaoh's bride.

While the busy Sarah is preparing the midnoon meal Abraham, sitting by his tent, suddenly puts his hand over his brow and begins to look. He seems to be watching something afar off. "What is it, Abraham?" says his wife. "Do you see any one coming?" "Yes," answers the aged lover. "I think I see three travelers. They are strangers to me. They must be poor men. They are coming afoot. In this country horses are so cheap that all except the poorest can own one. These men have not even a donkey with them. They must truly be very poor. I wonder if they have enough food along. Poor fellows! See how tired and hungry they look, Sarah. We have so much; let us give them a good meal and start them on their journey afresh. No man ought to be traveling in this awful heat." "All right, Abraham," I think I hear Sarah say. "All right. You go and ask them to tarry. I will hurry up and prepare some meal, and you send and kill a calf, and we will give them a feast fit for a king." Thus Abraham runs and salutes these strangers who are traveling afoot. He says, "Strangers, will you come and lodge with me?" Lesson the first. These three angelic messengers came to Abraham's tent afoot. They came as poor men. They came as God's messengers often come to us, when they look up into our faces and piteously beg: "Wilt thou feed me? Wilt thou clothe me? I am God's poor. Wilt thou care for me?"

"Oh, no," you answer; "that cannot be. You are only making a pretty figure of speech. An angelic messenger never comes clothed in rags. He may have come to an Abrahamic tent afoot, but he certainly never comes to me as one of those dirty, filthy beggars who knock at my back door. He cannot come as the poor man with that sick wife and a large brood of children who live in our back street. Why, that man and his wife do not believe in God. They never read the Bible. They never pray. The angel of God never comes as a tramp or a pauper." Does he not, my brother? Does he not? Do not speak too quickly. What says Christ in the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew? Does he say: "If you would find my messengers, you should seek them among the palaces and in the king's throne rooms? You should seek them clothed in purple and fine linen!" Nay, that is not Christ's command. He says, "If you would seek my messengers, you shall find them clothed in rags and with the pinched cheeks of want and wandering around from street to street as did John Howard Payne, piteously looking at the fireside of happy homes and yet with no homes of their own." Have you not read the parable: "When saw we thee an-hungered and fed thee or thirsty and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger and took thee in or naked and clothed thee?" And the King shall answer and say unto you, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Does not Christ mean by these words that when you look after the poor you are looking after his messengers and caring for him?

But when this noble Hebrew herdsman runs forward to prostrate himself at the feet of the three strangers I see him sharply scrutinize their faces. He not only sees that they wear the travel-stained garments of poor men, but methinks I hear him mutter: "Poor fellows! Poor fellows! Perhaps they are exiles from their own country. Perhaps on account of a king's hatred they are fleeing for their lives. Perhaps they once had sheep and oxen and horses and manservants, as I have, but now, on account of bitter persecution, they have lost all. I must be especially kind to these poor fellows who are fleeing for their lives." Cannot you imagine such thought passing through Abraham's mind as he runs forward to greet the three strangers? I can. And I firmly believe that when any man goes to the help of the persecuted and the unjustly treated he is welcoming to his home "angelic visitors," who will always bring to him a spiritual blessing from God.

How many people there are who are being unjustly persecuted! How many there are who are being lied about and misrepresented! Like the devils that were torturing the poor maniac's body, who was running naked among the tombs of the Gadara dead, their names seem to be legion. Many of these poor fellows who are being unjustly treated are dying of broken hearts, as did the late Daniel D. Tompkins, who was one of the most pathetic characters of American history. In his prime no name was more powerful in the political world than his. He rose from office to office. At last he became governor of New York State and then vice-president of the United States. The White House was almost his. But suddenly his enemies were able to head him off. Though his whole life stood for honesty and purity and truth, his political foes charged him with misappropriating some of the public funds when he was chief executive of New York State. He indignantly denied the charge, but he could not produce evidence to vindicate himself. His enemies had stolen it. His forehead, like that of Cain, had a black mark of guilt placed upon it, and he was shunned by his fellow men as an embezzler of public funds. Thus Daniel D. Tompkins was compelled to retire from public life and went down into a dishonored grave. Hardly had the grave closed over his body when vouchers were discovered which proved not only that Daniel D. Tompkins had used the public funds aright, but that he had spent a large part of his own private fortune for the public good.

Furthermore, if you and I are only willing to go to the aid of those who are being persecuted God will not only personally bless us, but we will save many men and women who are being unjustly treated from entering a life of sin and crime. I was never more impressed with this fact than some time ago, when I was visiting an old Missourian. He was telling me the history of his life. He was a young boy at the time of the breaking out of the civil war. Any one who has read the history of Missouri knows that every man who lived at that time within the state's border was encouraged to don a soldier's uniform, and there were some who volunteered who had no other motive than to commit depredations upon that suffering people. Clad in that uniform, such men committed outrage and escaped punishment. Said this old Missourian: "The people did not fear the regular soldiers. They were all right. But it was the thieves and the libertines who pretended they were regular soldiers that they feared. We were simply helpless in their hands."

Then he described how one night a lot of thieves clothed as soldiers came to his father's house and literally took everything away. They drove his mother out in the winter's cold, and she died as a result of the exposure. They put a rope about his father's neck and dragged him about and threatened to lynch him. With the butt end of a gun they mashed one of his feet so that he was a cripple for life. Then they drove away every horse and cow and pig and chicken and burned up all the grain and the fences and the outhouses and left only the bare fields. "What did you do?" I asked. "Well," he said, "I was only a boy of fourteen. But my brother and myself joined the bushwhackers. We each took a gun and vowed that we would kill every northern man we met." "What then happened?" I asked. Then the old man looked at me and answered: "The most important part of my life. In St. Charles county there lived an old minister by the name of Rev. Mr. Blackwell. He was a northern man and a Republican. He heard what we two boys had done, and he knew that if we continued as bushwhackers we would end up in a life of crime, as did the James boys, who started out as criminals because their father and mother were treated as my parents had been treated. I used to know Jesse James' parents well. And I know that what I say it true. So at the risk of his own life Rev. Mr. Blackwell, a Republican and northerner, went into the mountains and hunted up our camp and said: 'Boys, I have come to save you. Come back and live with me. Because thieves and scoundrels have robbed your parents and killed your mother do not become criminals yourselves and die at the end of a hangman's noose.' And, sir, as the result of his plea we went back to Blackwell's home and went back to honesty and truth and right."

But, stepping out into the broader interpretation of my text, we assert that angelic messengers can approach our homes with the scowling visage of hate and with the clinched fist of anger, as well as in the fluttering rags of the pauper and the distorted, terror-stricken countenances, of the persecuted. "Oh, no," you answer; "that cannot be. An angel is not a demon. An angel is one who would lead us to the higher life. How can the sullen brow of an enemy do this?" Well, my friend, let us turn again to the Bible. Study there the most powerful and the most familiar sermon ever delivered—namely, the sermon on the mount, spoken a short distance from Lake Galilee. What did Christ say? Did he lay down the doctrine that we should be kind to others just in proportion as others are kind to us? Did he say: "Men, be just to friend and foe. Never forget a kindness which a neighbor does you and never forget the injury of a treacherous foe?" Did he say, "Build a walled-in castle. Have the moat deep and wide. Have watch-towers above the walls, where you can always keep a lookout to lower the drawbridge for your allies, and have spears and swords and bows and arrows and slings with which to drive back those who have betrayed your trust?" No. That is not Christ's command. Listen how he describes the way in which you should welcome some of your angelic visitors. These are Christ's words, not mine: "Love your enemies." That means give them the best places at your table and your warmest welcome. "Bless them that curse you." That means go out of your way to speak a kind word for those who are denouncing you and trying to undermine your character. "Do good to them who hate you and pray for them which despitefully use you." Do you hear it? My Lord and my God, have we read thy words aright? How few, how very few of us have welcomed at our doors those who have reviled us and persecuted us and have said all manner of evil things against us!

Now, you have read many essays and heard many sermons upon the theme, "The Blessings of Having an Enemy," but I want to tell you that the greatest blessing of an enemy after all is to teach us to forgive those people who have trespassed against us as we expect God to forgive our trespasses. Unless we can learn this lesson of forgiveness we can never learn to be like Christ. Are you willing to live as that famous Irishman lived who recently passed away? Did you read the last will and testament of Michael Davitt? He did not have any money to give, for he spent most of his life in the struggle of home rule for the Emerald Island. So he made up his last will and testament thus-wise. I do wish I had it verbatim. He said in part: "This is my last will and testament. I have not any money to give, but I leave my blessing to all mankind. I first ask forgiveness from all those whom I may have injured in life or toward whom I have acted unjustly. Then I leave my forgiveness to all those who have done me any injury. Then I ask that when my literary executor publishes hereafter any of my works he will cull from them any bitter words which might wound the heart of any living man or the hearts of the loved ones of any of my political foes." Did you ever read a sentiment more beautiful and Christlike than that? My brother, you have greeted many friends in your home. They have dined with you and you with them. But have you ever spoken the words of a Davitt? Alas, if not, then I fear you have shut out "angelic visitors," who, if they should enter your home, would bring to you the greatest of spiritual blessings. These angelic messengers may be men who have spitefully used you. Cannot you give them a loving welcome for Christ's sake, as Abraham asked the three strangers to rest with him under the shadow of his eastern tent?

But should our hospitality end here? Oh, no. If you turn to the fourteenth chapter of Luke you find these words: "When thou makest a feast or a supper, call not thy friends nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen nor thy rich neighbors, lest they also bid thee again and a recompense be made thee. But when thou makest a feast call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind." Now, who are the maimed and the lame and the blind? Are they simply the poor who go around on crutches or feel their way with a staff? I think not. Christ would not here say "the poor and the maimed and the halt and the blind" if that was the case. I think the maimed and the halt and the blind mean the moral cripples. I think these words to a great extent mean the spiritual outcasts. I think they mean those who are like the seven deviled Mary and Zacchaeus, whom honest people shun as the healthy physical man would run from a lazaretto or a loathsome plague. Yes, we are to give a cordial welcome even to the vilest of sinners, such a welcome as Abraham gave the three strangers at his home.

And, my friends, a sinner can never sink so low but in that sinful degradation the true Christian may see the infinite possibilities of glory that will redound to Christ if his redemption could only enter that sinful soul. It is said that when the great prime minister of France, Cardinal du Bois, was about to undergo a serious operation he said to the noted surgeon, Dr. Boudon, "Doctor, be careful and don't treat me as you would one of those poor miserable wretches at your hospital of Hotel Dieu." With that the famous surgeon proudly lifted his head as he replied, "My lord, every one of those miserable wretches, as your eminence is pleased to call them, is a prime minister in my eyes." Oh, cannot we act so in our Christian work? Even among the lowest and the vilest cannot we see a possible king of heaven saved by grace? If we do this every immoral and sinful leper with whom we come in contact will be an angelic visitor, bringing us a spiritual message from Christ.

"But," some one says, "I never have the poor and the maimed and the halt and the blind coming to my door. Why, I live a most secluded life. Once in awhile the doorbell rings and the maid brings me a card, but that is all—now a friend, then another. I do my full social duty. I am very particular about returning these calls, but I cannot help my friends much. Most of them seem to have everything they want and much more than I do." Is that so? Well, I am not surprised at your answer. Of course you do not have any angelic visitors coming to your house, as Abraham did.

Friend, how is it with thy Christian life? Art thou opening wide thy doors? Art thou looking for the coming angelic messengers? Art thou trying to spy out these visitors from God when they are in the far distance? Art thou willing to run to them and greet them? Canst thou not see them? There they are in that dark alley. There they come down the street. Do you not see them? Why, they are by your side now. Will you greet them and go after them in the name of Christ?

A MENDING HINT.

Try Drawing Jagged Tears Together With Human Hair.

Did you ever try mending ragged tears in a coat or jacket with hair—human hair? Well, try it, before you exclaim in your doubt as to the outcome. You know long ago mending used to be a work of art. Clothes were much harder to get, and once obtained every care was given them until they literally went to pieces. Some one who lived in those days—a dear old lady—taught me to mend with hair, and the torn place on my jacket, or what had been the torn place, became a matter of pride, because the mending was the best kind of art—useful.

Place the torn spot in an embroidery hoop, if possible, and then take a long hair, from a head of brown or black hair, and darn with a very, very fine needle back and forth, taking up threads away beyond the tear on both sides. Press the spot with a warm flatiron, after dampening it slightly on the wrong side, and it is finished.

The embroidery hoop is useful for mending tears in the legs of hosiery, a dropped stitch in "drop stitch stockings" being taken up easily in the hoop. Handkerchiefs, napkins, table linen and tears in dresses and aprons can all be patched without a wrinkle if the goods be first stretched in the hoop.—Housekeeper.

BAKING DAY.

How One Woman Gets Splendid Bread With Little Labor.

"How is it you always have such beautiful bread?" was asked a busy housekeeper. "Sour milk and a bread mixer," was the reply. Asked to explain, she said: "I mix my bread with sour milk invariably. That is, I allow four cups of milk, one cup of lukewarm water with the yeast dissolved in it and three cups of hot water added to the milk—eight cups of liquid in all. Two tablespoonfuls of lard or one tablespoonful of butter and one of good beef drippings go into the liquid and then fifteen full cups of flour and a small handful of salt. For a long time I could not be persuaded that any mixer could make bread as close and fine as my two hands could make it. Nowadays the mixer does the work, and if I am too busy to make it myself one of the children can do it just as well if the ingredients are measured into the mixer. I no longer dread the baking day, though it comes oftener than it used to, by reason of the fact that the lovely bread we have gets eaten up so quickly. The gas stove robs baking day of much of its old terrors, by the way. 'Thirty-five minutes, no turning, no burning,' is our recipe for its use."—Brooklyn Eagle.

LAUNDRY LINES.

To clean chamois skin, wash it in cold water. You may wash a skin in this way as often as you please and still keep it soft.

Turpentine will whiten clothes in the wash if soaked in it or if added to the water in which they are boiled. It will take ink stains out of muslin when added to the soap.

An experienced laundress recommends washing white silk embroidery in lukewarm soapsuds. After washing rinse in clear lukewarm water, dip in gasoline and shake dry.

When starching anything with a fringe double the article in four parts, gather fringe tightly in the hand and hold it while you dip the middle in starch. When dry shake the fringe well and comb with a coarse comb.

If a tablespoonful of black pepper is stirred into the first water in which gray or buff linen is washed it will prevent its spotting. It will also prevent colors running in cambrics and muslins, and it will not affect the softness of the water.

Women's Employments.

There was a time when it was not considered respectable for a cultured man to choose anything but one of the learned professions. When these failed to support him he turned his ability toward the mechanical, industrial and commercial occupations and made professions of them. There is no reason why women should not organize and promote those employments from which the cry for help comes incessantly. Housekeeping, cooking, dressmaking, costume designing and the care of children are down in the depths for want of cultured intelligent organization. Because they have been considered menial does not make it necessary for them to remain so. Every one knows instances where some brave and clever woman has boldly dashed in and made a success in some of these directions and was honored for it by all who knew her.—American Magazine.

To Roll a Veil.

Too many women fold a veil up so carelessly unless they're a veil holder—often carelessly enough even then—that the veil soon looks stringy and altogether impossible. The right way is to roll it loosely from one end, smoothing out that end without actually pulling it into shape and keeping the edge pulled out as you roll, so that when the veil is all in a soft little roll the edges seem about even. This sort of care should double at least the life of a veil.

Handy Scales.

A housewife can manage very well without scales if she will follow this simple plan. One ordinary cupful of flour is four ounces, so that four cupfuls make one pound. Sugar is heavier, so do not take a full cup of it to make four ounces. Shredded suet is so light that a teacupful weighs only two ounces. With a very little experience you will measure ingredients quite accurately in this way.

DUDES OF OTHER TIMES.

Dress of a Dandy of the Early Nineteenth Century.

A cure for the confirmed railer against modern dress might be a course of inspection through a file of old fashion magazines or the perusal of such accounts as are given by the author of "Sketches of Lynn." The description is that of a suit worn in the first part of the nineteenth century.

The boots were an important article of dress. The toes were made as broad as the ball of the foot, with the corners well rounded, giving the shoe the resemblance to the snout of a shovel nosed shark. They were very snug and required strong straps. In order to get into a fashionable pair the heel of the stocking was well soaped and some pulverized soap sprinkled into the boot. The length of time it took to get one on depended on the strength of the owner and the strap.

The stylish overcoat displayed five capes, one above the other. The trousers were expected to fit as tight as the skin. Just how they were put on is a mystery. The coat was especially snug under the sleeves, and the velvet collar scraped up the back of the head. The camlet overcoats after a little wear, became as stiff as birch bark.

The thing worn about the neck was called a stock. This name was appropriate in its suggestion of an instrument of punishment. The stock was from three to six inches high, and was made stiff. A man was forced to look straight ahead. Only by careful management could he see a little on either side. About halfway between his eyes and ears two little points of collar stuck up like toothpicks.

Ruffled bosoms and wristbands finished the costume, with the addition of a tall silk hat. When inclosed in this manner, with a dash of attar of roses on his handkerchief, the man of the period was considered irresistible.

TOO HUMBLE A HUSBAND.

Position of Prince Albert, Royal Consort of Queen Victoria.

A woman looked up with a laugh from a heavy volume she was reading.

"Now I know," she said, "why Queen Victoria was so fond of the prince consort. This husband did not merely regard his wife as his equal; he regarded her as immeasurably his superior, saying that it was his duty to sink his own individual existence in her. Listen to this letter that Prince Albert wrote to the Duke of Wellington. Here is a champion of woman's rights indeed. Don't you think, though, it is going too far for a man to humble himself so low as this?"

She then read from her book in a sarcastic voice:

> My Dear Duke—In the question whether it is advisable that I should take the command of the army I have come to the conclusion that my decision ought entirely to be guided by the consideration whether it would interfere with or assist my position of consort to the sovereign. This position is a most peculiar and delicate one. While a female sovereign has a great many disadvantages in comparison with a king, yet if she is married and her husband understands and does his duty her position, on the other hand, has many compensatory advantages and in the long run will be found to be stronger even than that of the male sovereign. But this requires that the husband should entirely sink his own individual existence in that of his wife and that he should aim at no power by himself or for himself, being content to be the husband of the queen, the private secretary of the sovereign and the tutor of the royal children.

Reading on a Train.

If you travel back and forth into town every day you no doubt read your paper or a magazine on the train. While this is not, indeed, the best practice for the eyes, it seems a pity to waste so much time which might be turned to good account. Much of the annoyance which comes from train reading is due to the jolting of the cars, which continually knocks the printed line out of focus with the eye. This can be in some degree obviated by laying a card or some other object below the line to be read and moving it steadily downward while reading. This acts as a guide to the eye and helps to keep the sight fixed. Those who have tried it say that it wonderfully assists to decrease the difficulty of reading while in motion.

Trade Emblems on Tombstones.

In Scotland it was for a long time usual to place on a man's tombstone the symbols of his trade. Especially was this the case at Dunblane, where, in the burial ground of the abbey, it has been found that of those tombstones which are from 100 to 200 years old about one-fourth are thus marked, the symbols being in low relief. A sugar cane may be seen as showing the grave of a grocer; an ax and saw, with hammer and nails, occur on the grave of a carpenter; an awl and a hammer on that of a shoemaker. There are many other graves similarly marked.—London Answers.

Cutting Eyelashes.

An eyelash is pointed. A cut lash is blunt. A lash once cut never again becomes pointed. Every lash lives a variable time and then falls out to be replaced by a fresh one. When a cut lash so falls the newcomer is pointed. So any mischief resulting from cutting the lashes will be remedied by time. Opinions differ as to whether lash cutting promotes growth. That it renders the lashes unsightly is very certain.

RED OR GREEN.

Color Troubles of the Color Blind Poet, Whittier.

It is well known that the poet Whittier was color blind and unable to distinguish red from green. He once bought for himself a necktie which he supposed to be of a modest and suitable olive tint and wore it once. He never wore it again, for his friends soon made him aware that it offended against the traditional quietness of costume enjoined alike by the habits of the Friends and by his own taste. The tie was of flaming scarlet.

On another occasion, when he found a little girl in distress on account of a new gown, made over from her elder sister's, which was not becoming to her coloring and complexion, he tried to console her.

"I wouldn't mind what a rude boy says about it, Mary," he said kindly. "Thee looks very well indeed in it, like an oread, Mary, dressed all in green."

Unfortunately, Mary was not dressed in green. She was red haired, and her dress was red. That was the trouble.

Once, on a day in mid-March, when out walking with a Friend and deeply engaged in conversation, Mr. Whittier approached too near for safety to a place where blasting was going on. The danger signal was shown, but neither Friend noticed it until a workman, violently waving his arms and shouting, leaped before them and warned them back.

"I didn't see the flag at all," said Mr. Whittier's companion.

"I saw it," rejoined the poet, with a twinkle in his eye, "but I thought it was in honor of St. Patrick. Thee knows my defect. I can't tell Erin from explosions except by the harp!"—Youth's Companion.

ROMAN ROSES.

They Are Beautiful and Abundant Because They Eat Meat.

"I have yet to see a rose equal to those grown in Rome," said the amateur horticulturist. "They bloom in the greatest abundance all through the winter, and they are as large and rich and velvety as American Beauties, living out of doors, climbing like ivy or honeysuckle over the crumbling marble walls of ruined temples, gleaming in crimson and green masses upon ancient columns, giving to the grimmest and saddest of mediaeval palazzos an air of gayety and youth.

"One day on the Via Sistina, as I passed the garden that had once been the garden of Lucullus, I saw an old man tending the superb roots that grow there. He was pouring on their roots a dark, rich looking fluid.

"'Why are the Roman roses so beautiful and abundant?' I said to the old man.

"'Because they eat meat,' he answered.

"'Eat meat? Nonsense,' said I.

"'Well, they drink meat—meat extract, which is the same thing,' said the old man. 'We Roman gardeners have for centuries watered our roses thrice a week with a strong decoction of fresh beef—a rich grade of beef tea. They are meat eaters. That is why the roses of Rome are as hardy and prolific as weeds and at the same time as richly, delicately beautiful and as sweetly perfumed as flowers grown under glass.'"

Called Back.

A commercial traveler for a London firm secured an order for £1,000 in the west of England and, as it was not duly acknowledged, wrote a letter to the firm calling special attention to it and saying, "I thought you would consider such an order quite a feather in my cap."

In reply he received this note from his principal: "We have filed your order and inclose for your cap the one feather you require."

After a fortnight came another letter from the firm: "The people who gave you the £1,000 order have failed, and we lose the goods. We have this day sent to you a bagful of feathers for you to fly home with, as we do not want you out on the road for us any more."—Strand Magazine.

Food Value of Cheese.

It is said that one pound of cheese is equal in food value to more than two pounds of meat. It is very rich in proteids and fat. Considering this, it is low in price when compared with meat and ought to do good service to the poor man in replacing occasionally the regular diet of meat. In America cheese is looked upon more as a side dish and luxury than in some parts of Europe. The Swiss peasant depends on it as a staple second only to bread, while the use of it in England and Germany is extensive.

Delay Fatal.

Visitor (to widow)—I am so sorry to hear of the sudden death of your husband. Did they hold a postmortem examination?

"Yes, and, like those doctors, they did not hold it until he was dead, or they might have saved his life."

What It Cost Him.

Mrs. Watts—There! We have cleared off the last of that church debt, and it never cost you men a cent. See what women can do. Mr. Watts—I don't know about the other fellows, but I know you have made me spend more than $100 for extra meals downtown while you were out monkeying around.

The First Sight.

Ethel—I understand it was a case of love at first sight between Jack and Miss Oldgirl. Maud—Yes, dear. But the first sight was at her bank book.

Wonder is the first cause of philosophy.—Aristotle.

Eye Strain Continued

Although this fact is not yet well enough known, it is undoubtedly true that the people who have the greatest relief from glasses are those who often see just as well without lenses as with them. Just as the neurasthenic without any organic disease, is almost worried to complete exhaustion by minor disturbances, so the slightest amount of uncorrected astigmatism may originate the worst form of headache. While the eyesight may be improved by an ill-fitted pair of glasses, the result to the nervous system is bad, and at best only relieves part of the symptoms, giving the patient the false belief that no other glass would bring any better results. Such patients may spend their days supported by the pain tablets to be found at drug stores. If eyes are fitted they should be fitted right. It will not do to fit one eye right and leave the other out of balance. Again a patient with a high degree of latent trouble may be given a weak glass because it is best accepted, but will never bring the relief sought for. It is our constant aim to be on the look out for these hidden and latent eye and brain strains, in all our examinations.

84th Birthday of Bridge St. Church

THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT HOLLOWAY ST.—OTHER CHURCH SERVICES.

ANNIVERSARY AT BRIDGE ST.

Yesterday was a joyous occasion at Bridge St., Church, being the 84th birthday of the Sunday School, which was formed in 1822, under the superintendency of Mr. James Bickford. The services of yesterday were special Sunday School anniversary, both morning and evening sermons being preached by Rev. George J. Bishop, D. D., of Lindsay, ex-president of the Toronto Conference. The pulpit of the church was beautiful with flags, ferns and flowers, and the services, both morning and evening, were bright and joyful. A feature of the morning service was the graduation of the seniors of the elementary department. The following scholars were promoted;—Earl Wheeler, Harold Reid, Teddy Yeomans, George Ketcheson, John Johnson, Hubert Carnahan, Douglas Fredrick, Eric Griffith, Helen Salman, Loi Lazier, Bessie Ketcheson, Theda McCargar, Marjorie Vermilyea, Hilda Fitzgerald, Mildred Brown, Doris Vermilyea, Greta Archibald. The music at both services was fitting to the occasion. At the evening service the choir rendered two anthems, one of them the "Jubilate," a Church of England chant. Mrs. A. P. Allen sang very sweetly, "Jesu, Jesu, Miserere." Mr. William Johnson, superintendent of the Sunday school, was on the platform with Rev. Mr. Bishop, and in the course of some remarks took occasion to highly compliment the choir of Bridge Street Church. He had recently, he said, been privileged to visit the largest Methodist churches of Montreal. In none of them had he heard choir singing which surpassed that of Bridge St., and in several cases it was not so good. Rev. Mr. Bishop took as his text the 14th and 15th verses of the 24th chapter of Joshua, more particularly the last portion of the 15th verse;

> "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Joshua, when he spoke those words, was at the end of his service, and almost at the end of his life. He was not satisfied with the way his people had been acting, and the veteran leader, brave and discreet, strong and commanding, spoke the words of the text. It must have been a striking scene! Joshua was 109 years old, and had been the leader of Israel for 24 years. Oh! if the leaders of to-day would follow the example set by Joshua and openly declare that they would serve the Lord! Such men were badly needed. Joshua said "As for me and my house." As the head of his house he had spoken for his home circle. Happy the home the head of which took his stand for God. The God-fearing home was the foundation of society. God's promise to Abraham was not to the nation, but to the families. So it was to-day. When a man yields his life to God salvation comes to his family as well as himself. The preacher made a touching appeal for the sanctity of home life. Home, sweet Home, should be the most charming place in all the world. One thing only he had coveted in this world not money: not distinction; only that his children might go forth from their home with grateful memories of the influences of that home, and that they might be a blessing to them all their lives. We should make home like Heaven, in that nothing wrong should enter therein. Satan has gotten his grip on certain forms of amusement which had wrecked tens of thousands of lives. We should see that those things were kept out of the home; we should make home like God's house, a house of prayer. The memory of family worship was a priceless legacy to children. Parents should teach their children to pray, and then would be solved the problem of how to get people to the week-night prayer meetings. Home should be a place of discipline—loving discipline — and there children should be taught to love and respect the ordinances of God. The first responsibility in the house rested on the father. So St. Paul said. Many children had been lost because their fathers had not taken their stand for God in the home. To multitudes of men home was only a place to eat and sleep in. There was a responsibility on the mother, too. Nothing, not even church work, could justify a mother in neglecting her children. A familiar quotation said, very truthfully, "The first symptom of a mind in health is rest of mind and happiness at home." In conclusion he implored all fathers to awaken to a true sense of their responsibilities and say, with Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The anniversary meeting in the afternoon was more largely attended than before, and the proceedings, if possible, of greater interest. All the rooms were lavishly adorned with the flag "'Neath whose fold there never breathes a slave," and with foliage and flowers. On the platform were Rev. Dr. Bishop, Rev. J. P. Wilson, Rev. W. H. Peake, Rev. R. N. Adams, Rev. R. H. Pope, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and Messrs. C. P. Holton, F. E. O'Flynn, W. R. Aylesworth, A. McClatchie, George F. Stewart, J. T. Burns, W. A. A. Chown, David Price, Prof. V. P. Hunt and the soloists Mrs A. Percy Allen and Miss Annie Mair. The first part of the Superintendent's programme was disarranged by Mr. George F. Stewart, President of the Epworth League of Christian Endeavor, presenting Mr. Johnson with a beautiful bouquet on behalf of the League and conveying the League's greetings to him on his continued ability to lead the school. The hundreds of officers, teachers and scholars spontaneously gave expression to the kindness of the League in the heartiest applause, and looked as though they would like to sing "For he is a right good superintendent," had it been in order. Fully fifteen minutes was given to thanksgiving to God in various forms, for His goodness to the school and its members. In silence—a silence that could be felt—in unison; in joyful hymns; and led by Mr. F. E. O'Flynn. Mr. C. P. Holton led in prayer for the thousands who had been members of the school. The boy choir sang, Master Robert Pringle taking the solo part. The pastor presented his greetings to the school and his admiration of its numerous activities on the variety of its programmes, and the unexcelled attention and discipline. Miss Annie Mair sang a suitable solo. The Rev. Dr. Bishop was introduced and met a welcome which seemed to be new to him, for it quite overwhelmed him. All our readers know that Bridge St. Sunday School holds the Dominion "Palm" for its welcomes. Dr. Bishop gave a brief address full of incidents and valuable advice. Mrs. A. Percy Allen, on rising to sing a solo, was given a reception that few brides are honored with. The school rose and with one voice said "Mrs. Allen, we are delighted to welcome you back; we wish you and Mr. Allen much joy and God's blessings."

There was more singing of inspiring hymns, which seemed to have been composed for the occasion, and additional thanksgiving to God. That Psalm, the 145th, read responsively by Miss Gladys Vermilyea and the school found an echo in all hearts. Her reading and that of the school was most impressive.

Thanksgiving Services at Holloway Street.

Thanksgiving services were held yesterday in Holloway Street Church, and large congregations were in attendance. Much disappointment was felt owing to the fact that the Rev. V. H. Emory, of Bowmanville, who was to have preached at both services, did not put in an appearance. It appears that the Rev. gentleman made a mistake as to the date, thinking the services were on Sunday next, the 14th inst. Notwithstanding this rather embarrassing situation, two eloquent preachers were secured, namely, Rev. Principal Dyer, for the morning service, and Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Bridge Street Church, for the evening. Both gave addresses which were in keeping with the occasion, and were much appreciated. The pulpit and altar of the church were appropriately decorated with evidences of a bountiful harvest, and flowers were also added to the collection. At the morning service, after the usual devotional exercises, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Dyer announced his text, namely, Romans, 8th chapter and part of the 9th verse:

> "Now if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of His."

In his opening remarks the Rev. Dr. spoke in a reminiscent manner, referring to the dedication of the church in which they were worshipping, and the progress it had made since that time, 31 years ago. What changes had taken place among the congregation during that period and how many had joined the church triumphant! The congregation had reason to thank God for all His goodness toward them. The text suggested thankfulness, thankfulness that there was a Christ and that we may become His followers. This was not a dogma or a theory, but a genuine and true fact. We may have to make sacrifices, but should we not do so for the sake of Him who sacrified His life that we might have life eternal? His was a spirit of sacrifice and self-forgetfulness. All will be better for Christian sacrifices. If we are where God would have us, no matter what the surroundings may be, it will be well with us. Let us be true in the place where we are, no matter how humble that position may be. Rejoice and be true to God! There is much to-day to draw men from God: many temptations on every hand, but have we not much to be thankful for, and heartfelt thanks and love should be for the Giver of all Good? All should get nearer to the Lord Jesus Christ and live such lives that when life's pilgrimage is over we shall have a triumphant entrance into the eternal city above.

In the evening the Rev. J. P. Wilson's address was on "Reaping and Sowing." His text was from Galations, 6th chapter and 9th verse.

Special music was furnished by the choir and the various selections were well rendered. In the morning a quartette composed of Mrs. M. C. Gordon, Miss E. Price and Messrs. M. C. Gordon and D. Leitch sang "I Will Bless the Lord at all Times," and in the evening a duet entitled, "The Vesper Hymn," was sung by Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gordon. Miss Price and Mr. D. Leitch sang solos in the anthems.

The total collections for the day, including that contributed by the scholars of the Sunday School, amounted to $202.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

Yesterday was Sunday School rally day at the above church, and the attendance at the Sunday School in the afternoon was the largest on record, the service being bright and pleasing. At the evening service the choir sang a pleasing anthem and Rev. Mr. Hubly preached a strong sermon on "Spiritual power opposed to brute force, or peace in trouble."

John Street.

"Paul as an Athlete" was the subject discussed last evening by the pastor, Rev. A. H. Drumm. His text was from 1st Corinthians, 9th chapter and 24th verse

> "Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain."

Christ Church.

"Why Everyone should be Identified with a Particular Church," was the topic spoken to last evening by the rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave. His text was from 1st Corinthians, 14th chapter and 40th verse;

> "Let all things be done decently and in order."

Four Months For Car Thief.

John Hines, alias William Pavitt, was this morning brought up before Magistrate Flint for sentence.

It will be remembered that on Monday last Hines was arrested for breaking into and stealing some articles from a G. T. R. bonded car. He alleged that the car was opened before he came to it. Some of the articles taken from the car were found upon the prisoner. He pleaded guilty to the charge of theft.

The Magistrate, after commenting upon the case, sentenced the culprit to four months in the Central Prison.

Belleville Man Hurt By a Toronto Car.

Toronto, October 8. — James Ray, a man from Belleville, tried to board a moving car at King and Niagara streets Saturday evening and didn't get the railing with the right hand. He fell and was dragged some distance, resulting in the dislocation of his shoulder. He walked to the drug store at King and Portland streets, where Dr. Perkins attended to him and the police ambulance took him to St. Michael's Hospital.

Card of Thanks.

The family of the late Robert C. McMichael wish to express their grateful appreciation of the love and sympathy extended to them in their sad bereavement; also by the many kind friends who have remembered them by letter.

Purse For Chief Gunyou.

On Thursday last Chief of Police Gunyou left Deseronto, after a long residence, to take the position of chief of police of the mining town of Sudbury, away up in New Ontario. Regret at his departure was demonstrated, Tuesday evening, when a large number of his friends assembled in the town hall to bid him farewell and incidentally to present him with a weighty purse of gold.

Ministerial Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Ministerial Association was held this morning, in St. Andrew's Church school room. Officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows:

President—Rev. A. M. Hubly.
Vice-President—Rev. A. H. Drumm.
Secretary-Treasurer— Rev. Charles H. Emerson.

Rev. R. S. Laidlaw presented a paper on "Criticism: Its Aims and Methods." The theme was discussed with interest by all present, and the paper considered one of merit.

A DELIGHTFUL WINTER RESORT.

It is announced that this year the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's fine hotel at Caledonia Springs, Ont., will be kept open for accommodation of visitors all winter. The Company has great faith in Caledonia Springs as an all-year-round resort, something better than a mere summering place, and this action will without doubt be appreciated by many people to whom the Springs have been hitherto closed more than half the year owing to lack of accommodation.

The York Loan.

Toronto, Oct. 8.— In respect to the progress of the liquidation of the York County Loan and Savings Company it is announced by the National Trust Company that the complete list of shareholders to date comprises 110,900 individuals or claims, and that there are several thousand shareholders who have not yet reported. Roughly speaking, about $200,000 has already been realized on the assets. It is expected that by next year the street railway will have lines on Roncesvalles Avenue, which will greatly enhance the value of the real estate in that district.

A Stray Horse.

A stray horse attached to a buggy was on Saturday evening found wandering about the streets. It was placed in a hotel stable, where it was subsequently claimed by its owner.

A Nasty Occurrence.

Kingston, Oct. 6.—A case occurred near this city yesterday afternoon on a leading coutnry road, which, for its size, equals anything affirmed of East Elgin by Magistrate Hunt. Two men and a woman named, respectively, Belton, Shane and McAdam, all residents of this city, were the principals in a disgraceful episode, which occurred near Westbrook.

The two men were under the influence of liquor, and the female member of the party was grossly ill-treated by her companions, and then left by the roadside.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. FIREMEN INJURED.

Three Hindoos and Two Japanese Reported Buried In Building Collapse In $200,000 B. C. Fire.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 8.—Fire almost completely wiped out Heap's sawmill at Cedar Cove Saturday night. The loss is estimated at $200,000, and insurance about half.

The fire originated in the dry kiln, but the exact cause is not known. One fireman, named Jordan, had a rib broken by falling from a roof, and another, named Wand, fell from a ladder and received serious injuries.

A report that three Hindoos and two Japanese were buried in the collapse of a burning building is not confirmed.

Lumber Mill Burned.

Burk's Falls, Oct. 8.—On Thursday night the lumber mill of Fred Harvey was destroyed by fire. No lumber was burned.

24 DWELLINGS BURN.

Albany, N. Y., Suburb In Grip of Fire For Five Hours.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Twenty-four dwellings destroyed, 27 families practically homeless, and a property damage of about $125,000, only a quarter of which is covered by insurance, summarizes the results of a spectacular and disastrous conflagration which visited Renselaer, just across the river, Saturday night, and at one time threatened to wipe out the entire lower end of the city. After nearly five hours' strenuous labor the firemen gained control, but not before a large territory had been burned.

$250,000 Fire In Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Charles F. Dolls' furniture store at the corner of Mohawk and Washington streets, was destroyed by fire Saturday night, causing a loss estimated at $250,000.

Swept by Forest Fire.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 8.—Extensive mountain fires in the San Fernando watershed have been raging since Friday. Reports from special correspondents state that the fire has burned 200 square miles of watershed and swept it clean; destroyed the stations of Lang and Humphrey, on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and caused a loss of $40,000 to the Standard Oil Co. by the destruction of boiler-houses, oil tanks and derricks.

Arbuthnot's Mill Burned.

Winnipeg, Oct. 8.—Arbuthnot's mill in Fort Rouge, with a large quantity of lumber and three box cars belonging to the G. N. R. were burned Saturday night, entailing a loss of $25,000. The fire is supposed to have been started from the boiler in the mill.

CANADA'S FINANCES.

Revenue and Expenditure For First Three Months of Fiscal Year.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—With this month three months of the current fiscal year are completed. The revenue for that period amounts to $21,093,475, or at the rate of some $84,000,000 in the year; last year for the same three months it was $18,192,473, or an increase of close upon $3,000,000. Of the revenue for the three months $12,722,000 comes from customs, $3,615,000 from excise and $2,540,000 from public works and railways.

The current expenditure during September, 1906, was $4,343,093, as against $5,469,769 in September, 1905, or a decrease of $1,126,676—over 20 per cent.

For the three months, however, the expenditures has been $10,901,295, a slight increase over the $10,776,015 of the corresponding three months in 1905. The expenditure on capital account in September was $1,088,142, as against $1,059,822 in September, 1905.

So far this class of expenditure has been $1,883,707, a decrease from the $2,223,226 of the first three months of 1905-1906.

The total net debt stands at $258,731,504, as against $261,023,600 on Sept. 30, 1905, and $260,917,459 on Aug. 31 last.

"WIDOW" COLLECTED INSURANCE

Kingston, Oct. 8.—After twelve years' absence Robert Raine has returned to Perth, where his family have lived in the firm belief that their protector was in his grave. The A. O. U. W. had long since paid the widow $2,000 life insurance.

Raine spent his absent days in California.

York Loan First Payment.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—The shareholders of the defunct York Loan Co. will receive a first payment of twenty cents on the dollar some time next year, according to W. T. White, manager of the National Trust, the liquidators.

The complete list of shareholders to date comprises 110,000 claims, but there are several thousands shareholders in British Columbia, Quebec and other places that have not as yet been heard from, although the books have long ceased coming in.

Impudent Dog.

A dog had the audacity to bark at the deputy commissioner of Purulia, in Bengal, when he came to the house of the master of the dog on a bike. The owners of the dog were sent up for trial under section 289, and one of them, Karusha, was fined 20 rupees.—

TWO KILLED OUTRIGHT

Three Maimed So That They Must Shortly Die.

Many, Too, Were Hurt as Result of the Mile-a-Minute Auto Race For the Vanderbilt International Cup—200,000 Witness the "Devil Machines" In Fast Contest Over 297 Mile Course—France Wins.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 8.—France Saturday won the third international automobile road race for the William K. Vanderbilt, jr., Cup, completing a record of three straight victories in this event, which is run over the turnpike of Long Island, the centre of the course being about 20 miles from New York City.

Italy was second in the race, France filled third and fourth positions, while Germany furnished the fifth car. Only these five machines completed the tenth and last lap of the irregular rectangular course, which was 29.71 miles in length. The total distance of the race was 297.1 miles, and Louis Wagner, driver of the winning car, made the distance in 290 minutes 20 2-5 seconds, a speed of more than a mile a minute for the entire distance.

A Spectator Killed.

One of the more than two hundred thousand spectators who lined the course paid with his life the penalty of too great curiosity. He was near the dangerous turn in the course known as Krug's Corner. Two cars had flashed by when the man ventured out upon the road to get a better view of the others coming. The French car, driven by Elliot F. Shepard, an American, crashed into the unfortunate man, who, in the view of thousands, was hurled high into the air. When picked up many yards from the scene of the accident the man was dead. His skull had been fractured both legs broken and he was frightfully crushed. After a few minutes he was identified as Kurt L. Gruner, a business man of Passaic, N.J.

Many Others Hurt.

Joseph Tracy, in his American car, crashed into a crowd of men and boys and seriously injured Sylvester Baldwin, a boy of Norwalk, Conn. Several others were slightly hurt. Tracy held to the course. Dr. Wellschott, an amateur driver of an Italian car, lost control of his big 120 horse-power machine in the first round. He ran down two boys on a bicycle, then plunged down a 30 foot embankment. Both the driver and Colombo, his mechanician, were picked up unconscious, but quickly were revived. The injured boys are John Brooks and Robert Ten Eyck, both living near the course. Several persons were run down by touring cars in the crush going to and returning from the race.

The Vanderbilt Cup again goes into the possession of France, and the next time probably will be raced for in that country.

Sheriff Gildersleeve said he did not intend to arrest Elliot F. Shepard in connection with the killing of K. L. Gruner on the Vanderbilt Cup course Saturday.

This is the list of deplorable accidents issued later than first account:

The Dead.

Kurt L. Gruner, aged 35, married, Passaic; got on course in front of Elliott F. Sheppard's machine.

Joseph A. Stadler, Long Island City; killed by auto on its way to the races.

The Dying.

Ralph Baldwin, aged 14, of South Norwalk, Conn.; struck by Tracy's machine, which left the course at the sharp East Norwich turn; leg broken and internal injuries.

Mary Gegan, New York, run down in Thirty-Fourth street by race bound auto; three ribs broken and internally injured.

Felix Salzroske, run down in Hoffman boulevard, Long Island City, back broken.

The Injured.

John Crooks, aged 14, Port Washington, L. I.; hit by Wellschott's racer when steering gear failed; cut and bruised.

Lionel W. Williams, in collision with race bound auto; knee cap broken.

Robert A. Stretton, run down in his auto by repair car in Jericho turnpike; knee cap broken and internal injuries.

Tony Colussi, run down by an auto on Brooklyn bridge; badly bruised.

Fatality to An Electrician.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 8.—William H. Kellar, night electrician at the Niagara Falls, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway power station, was killed by getting in contact with the electric machinery somehow about 10 o'clock Friday evening. He was alone in the building, and, on it being noticed that the motor was short-circuited, Conductor Brown was sent out and found Kellar on the floor, unconscious, and badly burnt on both arms. Medical assistance was called, but the young man died about 1 a. m., never regaining consciousness. Kellar was 25 years of age, unmarried, and lived with his widowed mother.

Killed at Burketon.

Bowmanville, Oct. 8.—A strange man was killed on the C. P. R. track near Burketon Saturday by being run over by a train. He had given his name as Ryley, was fairly well dressed in dark clothes and light hat, stood about five feet seven inches high, and weighed 160 pounds. He had sharp features and wore whiskers and moustache. The body will be buried this afternoon, if not claimed. He had in his pockets some money, a watch and some cards, on which was the name of W. Hutchinson, 115 North MacNab street, Hamilton.

Killed by Yard Engine.

Kingston, Oct. 8.—John McDonald, a sailor, whose home is in Gananoque, met a terrible death at noon Saturday while under the influence of liquor. The suburban engine was backing some freight cars to the city yard, when McDonald got on the track and was knocked down, the wheels crushing his head.

Captain Falls Overboard.

Southampton, Oct. 8.—The schooner Julia Larson arrived Saturday afternoon and reports losing her captain, James Mitchell of Goderich, overboard, about eight miles off here, during the gale of that day.

Turn Your Face Into Dollars.

MANY A MAN HAS FAILED BECAUSE HIS FACE WAS A PICTURE OF CALAMITY.

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose. And so man, to be successful, must have sunshine inside. The life which has it not, which has no health and no happiness, is sour, surly, pessimistic, and a failure. The world already has too many vinegar faces that breathe ill-will and strife. The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph wherever he is and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers; they travel in schools, they herd together, for they love their kind, and the cheerful part of the world will have nothing to do with them.

And why is it that so many peddle disaster, knowing at the same time that if they do, their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes from bodily disorders, and this cannot always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, sour face, recklessness, disgust and lack of ambition. A bad stomach—there is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong stomach, a stomach that can take care of anything and everything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food, and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion these tablets will digest everything in your stomach, thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, eructations, loss of vim and spirit, bad memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase, you will be more satisfied with what the world does, you will think happier and be happier and your face will be one of supreme content. That will bring you success and then more success. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.

PREMIERS GATHERING.

Conferences of Heads Of Provinces Begins In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—The Provincial Premiers are commencing to gather for the conference, which opens to-day. British Columbia, Alberta and Prince Edward Island Premiers were in the city last night, and others will arrive during the night and in the early morning.

It is not expected that much more will be done to-day than the preliminary skirmishing and outlining of the procedure.

This evening Sir Wilfrid Laurier will hold a reception, and on Tuesday night there will be a banquet under the auspices of the Canadian Club.

That Mysterious Suicide Note.

Hamilton, Oct. 8.—The police have a mystery on their hands. Friday they got a note saying that they would find the body of the writer, who claimed to be from Detroit, in the bay at the Turbinia dock. The body of Mrs. Embury, a Hamilton woman, was found there soon after the note was received, but Mrs. Embury's family say that the writing in the note was not in their mother's hand, and it is feared that there may be another victim of suicide in the bay.

Suicides In Ice Cream Parlor.

Kenora, Oct. 8.—On Saturday afternoon J. Dollard, recently employed on the G.T.P., walked into the ice cream parlors of Jackson Bros. and deliberately cut his throat. Only a few days ago he came out of a hospital, and since then he had been acting strangely and had several times troubled the police by his actions. He purchased the razor a short time before committing suicide and evidently premeditated the act for some time.

Mr. Chamberlain Better

New York, Oct. 8.—Cabling from London to The Tribune, I. N. Ford says:

"I have authentic information from Birmingham that Mr. Chamberlain is decidedly better. He is walking in the garden every day, sleeping well and mending rapidly. The family are not anxious about him. Austin Chamberlain states that all the alarmist reports have been exaggerations"

Gorged On Blood Puddings.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Thomas Hall of Hintonburg fell dead on Saturday. A post-mortem revealed that death resulted from suffocation. He had been drinking heavily and is said to have gorged himself on blood puddings. He was veteran of the Crimea.

Gorky Going to Montreal.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 8.—Maxim Gorky and Madam Andrewsky arrived at the Michigan Soo Friday night on a pleasure trip, accompanied by an interpreter. They came direct from Cleveland, and left Saturday for Montreal.

MARINES TAKE CUBANS

39 Belligerent Insurgents Made Prisoners by Yankees.

Gen. Caballero Demanded Their Release But Was Disarmed Himself Instead of Having His Request Granted—Some Santa Clara Province Rebels Still Disinclined to Disarm—Governor Gets Instructions.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Governor Magoon has started on his journey to Cuba. On Saturday, Secretary of State Root and Gov. Magoon were in conference with the President, the purpose being to instruct the governor relative to the treatment of the Cuban question when he assumes office at Havana. Gen. Bell, chief of staff, also had an interview with the President.

Yankees Soldiers In Cuba.

Havana, Oct. 8.—The first landing of United States soldiers in the present occupation of Cuba was accomplished yesterday, and last night the first four battalions of the Fifth United States Infantry are settled under canvas in Camp Columbia. Gen. Frederick Funston established his headquarters at Marianao, convenient to his command.

Arrest 39 Insurgents.

A detachment of 200 insurgents Saturday rode into the Caridad suburb of the City of Puerto Principe, waving machetes and threatening people. Twenty U. S. marines from the detachment on duty at Puerto Principe went to Caridad, dispersed the insurgents and arrested 39 of them. Gen. Caballero, the insurgent leader, with 100 men, thereupon proceeded to the headquarters of the commander of the marine and demanded the release of the captured insurgents. Instead of releasing them, the Yankees disarmed Caballero and all of his followers who could be caught. Thereupon, Caballero promised that all the insurgents under his command would disarm.

Still Disinclined to Disarm.

Disarming of former insurgents went on much better yesterday. Reports from members of the disarmament commission in various provinces indicate that the trouble which was threatened Saturday may be avoided, although ex-rebels and volunteers in a few towns in Santa Clara Province are still disinclined to be the first to disarm, and it is feared that United States soldiers will have to be sent to back up the demands of the disarmament commission.

Lively Fighting In Hayti.

Cape Haytien, Oct 8.—Gen. Jiean Jiminez, a nephew of ex-President Jiminez, Friday night attacked Monte Cristi. He took advantage of the panic that resulted to enter the Haytien consulate and secured important documents, but was forced to fly before superior Government forces. During the skirmishes the insurgent Gen. Rodriguez was captured. The rebels are furious at the authorization accorded the Dominican Government by Hayti to debark troops on Haytien territory and in retaliation have killed many Haytiens.

Cecil B. Smith Resigns.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Cecil B. Smith has resigned the chairmanship of the Temiskaming Commission, and accepted the offer of the City of Winnipeg for half his time to take charge of the construction of the new hydraulic development works there. Mr. Smith's salary at Winnipeg will be $5,000. Premier Whitney made the announcement on Saturday evening. He stated that the arrangement had been made with the approval of the Government. Mr. Smith would continue as consulting engineer to the Railway Commission, and would also continue to serve on the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Mr. Smith, who will continue to reside in Toronto, will spend alternate periods of a couple of weeks or so in the two cities.

Stolen From G. T. R. Wreck.

Lucan, Oct. 8.—Grand Trunk Detective Tisdale has been here for the past two days investigating the theft of two cases of shoes from a car in the wreck here on Tuesday night last. The empty cases and several pair of the shoes have been found, but as yet no arrests have been made.

ITS LOGICAL DESTINY

To Protect Itself Newfoundland Should Join Canada.

Moral of British Surrender of Ancient Colony's Rights on the Altar of Anglo-American Good-Will — Isolated, and Without a Defensive Force, Britain Will Not Incur Serious Risks For Her Claims.

London, Oct. 9.—Referring to the fishery modus vivendi The Morning Post points out the moral of the reported result. If it transpires that Newfoundland's interests have not been separated from those of British North America as a whole, the fact will deserve serious the consideration of the islanders.

Their "responsible" Government being really irresponsible in the last resort, because dependent on Imperial authority, their natural logical destiny is to join the Dominion; then urge the formation of a Canadian squadron.

Isolated, Newfoundland has no prospect ever of equipping herself with a material defensive force in default of which no British Government will ever incur serious risks for her claims, however legitimate in the abstract.

The Standard says the modus vivendi is the only course practicable for the time being, and adds that no transactions of this kind can be rightly conducted unless the Colonial Government concerned be directly represented in the negotiations.

One More Sacrifice.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is one more sacrifice of a British colony in the cause of Anglo-American good-will. Much as we all value that cause, it is painfully apt to work out in a one-sided fashion with all the business on one side and all the sentiment on the other, and mean enough sentiment, too, seeing that it is indulged in at the expense of a weak third party whom we are professing to protect.

The Globe says hardly any pretence is made of mutual concessions. The oldest British dependency is treated with absolute contempt in a matter of vital moment to its chief industry.

Wants of the Provinces

Increased Subsidies From the Federal Treasury.

Wider Jurisdiction in Dealing With Local Questions and in Some Cases Extended Boundaries—Opposition Manifested to Some Clauses of Quebec Resolutions, and a Committee Will Revise Them, Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Provincial Premiers began their conference with a busy day yesterday. The Premiers present were: Ontario, Whitney; Quebec, Gouin; Nova-Scotia, Murray; New Brunswick, Tweedie; Prince Edward Island, Peters; Manitoba, Roblin; Saskatchewan, Scott; Alberta, Rutherford; British Columbia, McBride.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the morning, opened the proceedings with an address of welcome, to which each of the nine Provincial Premiers replied briefly. The federal representatives then spoke, and Premier Gouin of Quebec was made chairman of the provincial representatives' meeting, and Deputy Attorney-General Lanctot of Quebec was made secretary.

After an hour's discussion in the morning the meeting was adjourned to give the representatives of the new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan an opportunity to decide whether the resolutions of the Quebec conference of 1902 would meet their views.

The Quebec Resolutions.

The Quebec resolutions provided for increasing the allowances for legislation made to the provinces at Confederation, to about a quarter of a million dollars each. The allowance is now from $50,000 to $80,000.

The Quebec resolutions also proposed to increase the 80 cents capitation allowance from the population returns of 1860 to those of the census of 1901. They also proposed an allowance of 20 cents a head, for the administration of criminal justice.

At the conference of the provincial representatives yesterday afternoon there was signified a practical agreement in the principles of the Quebec resolutions. However, some of the representatives do not subscribe to all the details.

Some Opposition.

Premier Whitney, when leader of the Opposition in Ontario, criticized the resolutions when Premier Ross laid them before the Ontario House. While he now wants an increase in the provincial subsidy he is unwilling to subscribe to the exact terms of the resolution he criticized.

Premier Peters of Prince Edward Island, in the case of his province, does not want the capitation allowance based on the last census return, as the population of the island has declined. He wants a minimum fixed for the allowance, which a decrease in population will not affect.

The Premiers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, while agreeing to the principle of the Quebec resolutions have just had a census taken of their provinces which shows a tremendous growth over 1901. They want the capitation allowance given on the basis of population shown by the 1906 and of any future census.

Committee to Revise.

A sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Gouin, Weir, Murray, McBride, Pugsley, Foy, Campbell and Secretary Lanctot was appointed to revise the Quebec resolutions. They will report to a meeting of the provincial representatives at 10 o'clock this morning.

If the new draft of resolutions is adopted it will be presented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the other federal Ministers to-day at 11 a.m.

In addition to the plea for increased subsidies from the federal treasury, the conference will probably consider the question of railway, waterpower, and fisheries jurisdiction as between the federal and local authorities, the alleged encroachments of some of the provincial Legislatures on the federal jurisdiction in the taxing of commercial travelers, and of companies trading under federal charter.

Boundary Extensions.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Quebec will also in all probability seize this occasion to urge their desire for such extension of their northern boundaries as will afford them access to Hudson Bay. The maritime provinces want such an amendment of the B.N.A. Act as will save them from any further reduction of their Parliamentary representation.

Last evening the delegates attended a reception given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. To-day at 1 o'clock they will be the guests of R. L. Borden at luncheon.

Bomb Hurled at General.

Sebastopol, Oct. 9.—A bomb was thrown yesterday at Major-Gen. Dumbadze, commander of the troops, as he was driving to the barracks of the Brest Regiment. The general, who was slightly wounded, fired on his assailant, but he escaped after a struggle with some soldiers. The general's coachman and two orderlies were severely wounded.

Confesses Infant Murder.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 9.—Bert and Mollie Kemp, aged 33 and 29, respectively, are under arrest here, charged with murdering their baby on Sept. 4. The police say that Kemp confessed the crime, saying that shame drove him to it.

NO PRIEST AT FUNERAL.

Ex-Mayor Beaugrand Neglected to Revoke Portion of Will.

Montreal, Oct. 9.—A strange situation has been created by the death of ex-Mayor Beaugrand, who, although dying in the Catholic faith, cannot receive Catholic burial, and will be cremated this morning at 10 o'clock.

In May last Mr. Beaugrand made a will stipulating that there must be no ceremony, religious or otherwise, at his funeral, no flowers, no pall-bearers, and his body must be cremated. When Beaugrand retracted last month he told the archbishop he would strike out those clauses of the will, but this he failed to do, so the executors will give it effect to-day in its entirety.

The estate of the late mayor will foot up to nearly $200,000, all of which will go to his daughter, Mrs. Vaillancourt, Madame Beaugrand having the use of it during her lifetime.

Bishop Arnett Dead.

Xenia, Ohio, Oct. 9.—Bishop William Benjamin Arnett of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, died of uraemic poisoning Sunday night at the Wilberforce University. Bishop Arnett presided over the parliament of religions in Chicago, Sept. 18, 1893, and at the ecumenical conference of Methodists in London, Sept. 7, 1901.

Breaks Leg Saving Brother.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Saving his little brother from danger Wm. Lannie, a lad who lives at 530 Parliament street, broke his leg last night. He fell through a trapdoor into which his brother would otherwise have been precipitated.

London Bribery and Bogus Ballot Boxes.

The mode of procedure and firmness of Col. Dennison the magistrate, in the investigation now proceeding in Toronto, into the bribing cases committed in London, Ontario, at the bye-election in 1905, at which the Minister of Public Works, Mr. Hyman, was elected by purchased votes, are somewhat alologus to that of the now historic bogus ballot-box case tried in Belleville not long ago.

It will be remembered that the lawyers who appeared for the defence raised every possible technicality for the purpose of preventing the facts coming to light, and that the presiding magistrate, A. F. Wood, Esq., took a decided stand and set his face against all such attempts, virtually declaring that he did not propose to be restricted or hampered by technicalities or rules of courts in unearthing the fraud; that the truth was what the country wanted, and any question which would bring to light the facts he would allow to be put, the crime being of too serious a character to be covered up by technicalities.

Precisely the same course has been pursued in the bribery investigation now being held in Toronto. The Police Magistrate, Col. Dennison, has allowed the same latitude in the investigation, as did Mr. Wood, telling the technical objectors that the rules of court were made for those who knew not how to conduct cases of the character then before him, and not for one who knew his duty. The truth was what the country wanted, and he would have it, if it were possible to extract it from unwilling and perjuring witnesses.

The example set by Mr. Wood and sustained by so experienced a magistrate as Col. Dennison, receives the commendation and approval of every honest man in Canada. It must be gratifying to Mr. Wood, who received no end of abuse from those who desired to suppress the truth and shield the scoundrels who committed the crime.

If the Province had a few more such independent and fearless magistrates who care not for the bullying and insolence of Police Court lawyers, it would be better for truth and justice.

We fully endorse the closing remarks of the Toronto World in an article commending Col. Dennison for his firmness in conducting the bribery case. It says:

> "With a Magistrate Dennison in every centre in Ontario the way of the transgressor would be hard, and the respect for an oath and the law would soon be widespread. Let him not be warped, but let him spread himself as he will, for we can be sure that he metes out only even-handed justice."

TIMELY TOPICS.

It was surprisingly windy last night, even though the City Council was in session.

• • •

Mark how queerly things go in this world; there's Mr. Mathison, who probably never chopped down a tree in his life, will get $7,000 a year from the Foresters.

• • •

However, if Mr. Mathison brings the same energy and ability to bear on the work of his new office as he did on the work of the office he has just resigned (and no doubt he will) the I. O. Foresters will have good reason to congratulate themselves on their choice.

• • •

For 27 years Mr. Mathison signed to the Institute pupils. Now he has re-signed. (N. B. — That will be about all.)

• • •

Ald. Panter is surely right when he says something must soon be done with the roadway on Front street. Enough money has been thrown away on the rotten limestone macadam. Import some good material next year and make a proper job of it.

• • •

The melancholy days are here now, all right.

The fact that the Lehigh Portland Cement Company has been incorporated looks promising. Let's hope the company will soon be paying.

• • •

The fire engines, it seems, were not quite so bad as some people thought, and then again, they were not quite so good as some other people thought, either. So there, you are.

• • •

The Council, it would appear, proposes to take drastic measures to ensure the prompt return of the tax rolls in future. This great family journal is glad to see that, for it is a principle for which we have been contending for some time. Other cities and towns get their tax rolls returned promptly; why not Belleville? There are many arguments which can be advanced in favor of having the rolls promptly and properly returned. Can anyone put forward one argument why they should not be? Not one.

• • •

It may, of course, be hard on large property-owners and rich men to have to pay their taxes promptly, as their poorer neighbors are compelled to do, but they won't mind it much when they once "get the habit."

• • •

The clock in the Police Court room, where the inquest was held last night, was about ten minutes slow. Queer, that. Most people thought the Court was right up-to-date, if not a trifle fast.

A GRACEFUL TRIBUTE.

(Hamilton Herald, Ind.)

"The only man who can retain his popularity," remarks Sir Mackenzie Bowell's paper, the Belleville Intelligencer, "is the man who keeps out of politics and minds his own business" Not so. There is one fine old Canadian that we know of who has been in public life, minding the country's business, for something like half a century, and he is quite popular. What is better, he deserves his popularity. His name is Mackenzie Bowell.

RUBBER
When you buy rubber it pays to get it. There are few things in which quality counts for more than in rubber goods.
The demands of our trade require us to carry more than one quality of rubber goods, but each quality is sold for what it is, and is sold at an honest price. We carry practically everything in the line of Syringes, Hot-water Bottles, Sick-room Supplies, etc.

Trees Blown Down

During the gale which prevailed last night two large shade trees in the city were blown down. They were situated at the corners of Victoria avenue and Church street, and Queen and John streets. This was the only damage done about the city.

The Bible Society.

Lady Solomon, who was accompanied by Sir Richard Solomon, K.C. M.G., K.C.B., acting Lieutenant-Governor of the Transvaal, recently laid the foundation stone of the Bible House now being erected by the British and Foreign Bible Society at Johannesburg. In the course of his speech Sir Richard said he had a firm belief in the work of the Bible Society, and wished to express his sympathy with those who were engaged in carrying out that work. In this connection it is interesting to note that Scriptures in no less than 52 languages were sold last year from the Bible Society's depot at Johannesburg, and a fifty third language was asked for by a newcomer to the "Golden City": he wanted a Bible in Icelandic — which was unfortunately not in stock at the moment.

A Pleasing Incident

A pleasing incident took place last Sunday afternoon, during the session of the Holloway St. Sunday school. It seems that Miss Nora Herrington, who has for years been a valued teacher in that school, is about to take her departure from Belleville, and last Sunday she was presented with an appreciative address, accompanied by a handsome lady's companion. Miss Herrington was much touched, and replied feelingly.

Plaintiff Gets the Fine.

Police Magistrate Flint has received a communication from Mr. J. R. Cartwright, Deputy Attorney-General, conveying the information that the Crown has no objection to the $200 fine, imposed upon W. Deshane, going to J. Shappee, the plaintiff in the case.

'Prentice Boys Buried Comrade.

The funeral of the late William J. Welsh, the young man who on Friday night last met an untimely death by being electrocuted, took place yesterday afternoon. It was under the auspices of the 'Prentice Boys, of which deceased was a member. Many citizens were in attendance at the obsequies. Services at the house were conducted by the Rev. G. Brown, pastor of the Tabernacle church, and were very impressive. Upon the casket were placed a number of beautiful floral designs, sent by relatives and friends. The I. O. O. F. band preceded the cortege, playing an appropriate funeral dirge. The bearers were members of the Society, namely, Bros. C. Dulmage, R. Cole, W. Boyd, W. Post, J. Ashbury, and A. E. Davis. The remains were interred in the Belleville cemetery.

Going to Barrie.

REV. MR. HEENEY, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, LEAVES NEWPORT, R. I., FOR A CANADIAN CHARGE.

Newport News: The members of St. George's parish have learned that their popular rector, Rev. Bertal Heeney, has received a call from an important and growing church in the town of Barrie, Ontario, a suburb of Toronto, which he is inclined to accept. The position is that of vicar of Trinity Church, which is the only church of its denomination in the town, and without a dissenting voice a call has been extended to Mr. Heeney, who is also accorded the right of succession to the rectorship.

Rev. Mr. Heeney has won many friends, not only in his own congregation but among all denominations in Newport, and has frequently expressed his appreciation of the treatment he has received in Newport and his admiration for Americans. He feels that Barrie affords a larger field for church work, and will leave Newport with great regret.

As rector of St. George's Church he has preached to constantly increasing numbers. A large number of communicants have been received into the church during the 18 months he has been rector and the church membership is larger than it has been for several years. Last fall under his leadership the old debt of $1,416 was cancelled and a fund of $945 has just been completed to pay for the new heating plant recently installed. The Sunday School has flourished and has had an excellent attendance.

DRUNK.

Geo. McKay, a stranger, was charged with drunkenness. It being his first offence here he was allowed to go.

A WAGES CASE.

W. Fitzpatrick charged Clayton Sprung with refusing to pay him $2.75, alleged due for wages. It appears that the plaintiff agreed to work for the defendant at $1.25 per day, to pick apples during the picking season, and left after 11 days' service. Sprung contends that he was to pay Fitzpatrick only one dollar a day if he did not complete the season. He paid him the $11 for the service rendered. Case was enlarged until Friday for further evidence. Mr. Wright appeared for the defendant.

AFTERMATH OF RECENT DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT OTTAWA HOTEL — FIVE INJURED, BUT NO FATALITIES.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 9. — (Special.). —Shortly after seven o'clock this morning the front walls of the ruins of the Gilmour hotel, destroyed last month by fire, were blown down by a gale, burying a Gladstone avenue street car and injuring five persons.

But for the fact that the accident happened before traffic was large on the streets the result might have been different.

The injured are Motorman Lynch, Conductor McCabe, City Fireman Alex. Potvin, Mrs. Thomasson, Thorne street, and J. Campbell, Hintonburg.

All are progressing favorably at the hospitals.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

What Part?
What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?
Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.
For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.
With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

MACKENZIE BOWELL,

J. F. WILLS
Secretary.

Mr. R. Mathison to Leave the Institute.

HAS BEEN APPOINTED SUPREME SECRETARY OF I. O. F., AT SALARY OF $7,000 PER ANNUM —APPOINTMENT WAS MADE ON SATURDAY LAST.

Considerable surprise and regret was expressed in this city when it became known that Mr. R. Mathison, who for 27 years has been superintendent of the Institution for the Deaf, had resigned that position. The reason for Mr. Mathison's action, it seems, is that he has been appointed Supreme Secretary of the Independent Order of Foresters in place of Lieut.-Col. McGillivray, who, it is understood, has resigned on account of ill-health. The appointment was made at a meeting of the Supreme Council of the I. O. F. at Foresters Island on Saturday.

Previous to coming to Belleville, Mr. Mathison was bursar of the Asylum at London for six years, and manager of industries and bursar of the Central Prison, Toronto, for one and a half years.

The position of Supreme Secretary of the I.O.F. was declared vacant on Saturday evening. Col. McGillivray has been on leave of absence since the first of May. The salary of $7,000 will remain as fixed by the Council.

The Intelligencer this morning tried to interview Mr. Mathison in regard to his new appointment, but learned that he was in Toronto and would not be home till this evening. Talking to a Toronto newspaper man, yesterday afternoon, however, Mr. Mathison is reported as saying: "I have resigned my position as superintendent, and will take over my new duties as secretary of the Foresters almost immediately."

The term for which Mr. Mathison has been appointed has still two years to run.

Who will be his successor as Superintendent of the Institute is not, as yet, even surmised.

ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

The following despatch from Toronto gives some additional particulars in regard to Mr. Mathison's resignation.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Mr. R. Mathison, superintendent and principal of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville, personally handed in his resignation to Hon Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education and acting Premier, when he called upon at the Education Department yesterday morning.

He leaves the Government service to become Supreme Secretary of the Independent Order of Foresters, in succession to Lieut.-Col. J. A. McGillivray, who is resigning on account of ill-health, not having been able to attend his duties during the last three or four months. The appointment was made at a meeting of the executive of the Foresters held at the Foresters' Island on Saturday. Mr. Mathison has been a Forester for 20 years, for 14 of which he was Supreme Journal Secretary.

Praise For Present Government.

In speaking to a reporter of his resignation, Mr. Mathison said that while he was a Liberal and had been appointed by a Liberal Government, he was glad to say that since the change in Government he had received from the present Administration the most courteous treatment in every way. There was, therefore, nothing political in the change. He was simply resigning because he had a better position awaiting him.

The Letter of Resignation.

Mr. Mathison's letter to Hon. Dr. Pyne formally conveying his resignation was as follows:

"Dear Sir.—After a service of thirty-four and one-half years, six years as Bursar of the Asylum at London, one and a half as Manager of Industries and Bursar of the Central Prison, Toronto, and 27 in my present position, I tender herewith my resignation as Superintendent and Principal of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville, to take effect on Nov. 15, if convenient to you. Before leaving I wish to present the annual report to Sept. 30, and close up all matters of accounts, etc. I shall remain any longer period that you may think necessary in order to give my successor such information as he may wish, and if at any time my experience is desired in furthering the interests of the deaf and dumb of this province it will be at your command.

"During my whole tenure of office I have been content to perform the various duties assigned me to the very best of my ability, and it is a pleasing recollection at the present time that I enjoyed the confidence of the Ministers and the various Governments under whom I served.

"I notice by the newspapers that Mr. Snow of Toronto has been appointed by Royal Commission to enquire into matters connected with this institution. Would you kindly arrange for Mr. Snow to commence his enquiries here in the near future, in order that his findings may be arrived at before I leave the service.

"Allow me to thank you personally for many courtesies since you have been head of this institution. I have received every consideration that you could possibly extend."

Is Well Known.

Mr. Mathison, who is an M. A. and an old newspaper man, was born in 1842, and has been an authority on the education of the deaf and dumb for a number of years, and is well-known across the border in this capacity. The inspectors of the Education Department have repeatedly complimented the management of the Belleville institution under Mr. Mathison's care.

The Welsh Inquest

have driven over the "live" wire. At Welsh's he saw the victim, who was dead when he (witness) got there. Could not say positively what young Welsh died of, but the circumstances pointed to death by electric shock, which might have happened without leaving any mark. Young Welsh was a healthy, well-developed lad.

To Mr. Masson — Could not say positively that death was caused by the live wire; could not see how, under similar circumstances, he could have died in any other way, though, if he (witness) had not known the circumstances of the case, he might not have known what young Welsh died of.

To Mr. Anderson — It would not have been possible for young Welsh to sustain the shock unless he had touched the wire. He thought contact with the wire would cause a hissing sound, and the body might be thrown, as Mr. Moss had described.

The Coroner announced that an adjournment would now take place till Friday at 7.30.

He Dodged.

It is said of a noted Virginia judge that in a pinch he always came out ahead. An incident of his childhood might go to prove this.

"Well, Benny," said his father when the lad had been going to school about a month, "what did you learn today?"

"About the mouse, father."

"Spell mouse," his father said.

After a pause Benny answered.

A Story of Ole Bull.

A curious tale of Ole Bull is told in a book on violins and violinists. It seems that in 1831, being then twenty-one years of age, the famous violinist wandered to Paris. The cholera was raging and Malibran singing. He went to hear her, and his landlord decamped with his possessions, including his violin. He was speedily reduced to extremity. During the last dinner that he was able to pay for he made the acquaintance of a remarkable man. To this stranger Ole Bull confided his miseries. At the conclusion the stranger said abruptly, "Well, I will do something for you if you have courage and 5 francs." "I have both," said Bull. "Then go to Frascati's tonight at 10 o'clock, pass through the first room, go into the second, where they play rouge et noir, and when a new taille begins put your 5 francs on rouge and leave it there." Bull did as directed, and when his 5 francs had become 400 he took them up after an episode with a woman who attempted to take them. Red continued to win, and had he left his money longer he would have won an independent sum. The stranger, who was present at his elbow, was Vidocq, the French detective, already a European celebrity.

He Might Be Needed.

Mrs Johnson is home again, after spending a few months with her daughter, Mrs. Morris Huff, Chisholm.

Miss Ella Locklin spent last Sunday with Miss Carrie Eaton.

A number from here attended the farm sale at Mr. Grant Valleau's.

Apple pickers are very busy now in the orchards of this vicinity.

Miss Ethel Delong, of Huff's Island, spent a few days with her uncle Frank Zuefelt.

ADVICE.

The world is full of pleasure,
Though it has its troubles, too;
And with an even measure
Both are portioned out to you.
There are smiles for all a plenty,
So be happy while you may;
Whether you are fair and twenty,
Or your hair is tinged with gray.

And the top is just above you.
You can reach it if you try;
Think of all the friends who love you
And you'll never heave a sigh.
Give a smile to those about you,
And go forward with a cheer;
Do not heed the ones who doubt you,
But the ones who hold you dear.

If your path be dark and lonely,
And your burden hard to bear:
'Tis because life isn't only
Pleasant journeys everywhere.
Give a smile to those who love you,
They would help you if they could;
And you'll reach the top above you
If you keep on sawing wood.

Mr. A. B. Morine, a leading politician. formerly of Newfoundland, has been advising Canadian Conservatives to make confederation with the ancient colony a plank in their political platform. The Conservatives have always been in favor of adding Newfoundland to the Dominion. This will never be accomplished so long as Bond rules in the ancient colony. He would much rather ally the fortunes of his country with those of the United States than with Canada.

The Toronto Globe in an editorial lamenting the decadence of what it terms Liberalism in Canada, dolefully exclaims: "It may be, too, "that the regrettable lack of "anything like systematic education on essential Liberal principles during recent years has "left a haziness about the views "of some who name and call themselves Liberals." Had the Globe said the principles which guided the Liberal party of the past had been buried twenty fathoms under the sea, and graft and plunder taken their place and justified by the party organs, it would have been nearer the truth.

• • •

Certain journals are calling upon the Hon. Mr. Hyman, Minister of Public Works, to resign. Nonsense, who would expect a man who owed his first seat in Parliament to pigs' feet and beer and his present seat to $10 bill voters, to resign? He or his friends bought the seat and will keep it until turned out.

• • •

Hamilton, Ontario, is becoming world wide famous for its runners. A year ago Caffrey won the Boston Marathon race. Last summer Sherring, of the same town, won the Marathon race in Greece, and the other day Bennett, another Hamiltonian, won the Marathon race at Chicago.

• • •

The Globe is using its surplus energy in belittling the Conservative victory in East Elgin. It says: "To "retain a Conservative seat by a "majority of only seventy-five is "not calculated to impart comfort. A change over of one vote in every hundred would have "elected the Liberal candidate." When it is remembered that the constituency was gerrymandered by the Laurier Government, so as, in its opinion, to ensure a Grit representative, and that at the general election it was carried by Mr. Ingram by only 21 majority, and that the constituency was invaded by two Ministers of the Crown, Messrs. Hyman and Aylesworth, and a host of camp followers, promising railway subsidies, harbors, etc., the wonder is the majority was so large Had not the London mode of electing Hyman been before the courts, no doubt the change of "one vote in every hundred," would have been effected by the $10 process. Is that what the Globe hints at? It knows how these changes are effected.

As a result of the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada the petitions against Messrs. Roche and Carney, the Liberal members for Halifax, are to be tried on their merits by the election judges. This will give the Canadian public another opportunity of judging whether the Queens and Shelburne corruption and London bribery were general in the provinces.

• • •

The Montreal Star was successful in calling attention to and exposing the usurers in Montreal. Now it has turned its attention to "speculating members of Parliament," who it declares "should be investigated." It would be difficult to understand why members of Parliament should be debarred from speculating in lands in the West or elsewhere, so long as it is done legitimately. The Saskatchewan deal at $1 an acre from the Government for government lands sold to relatives of a Minister, looks suspicious and should be investigated, and so also should speculations of trustees with trust funds.

• • •

To expose Grit bogus ballot-box criminals and election frauds by Liberal members of the Laurier Government is looked upon by such journals as the Toronto Globe, as criminal persecution of the offenders. Here is a specimen of Globeism, "The filing of an appeal to the Supreme Court against the dismissal of the personal charges against Mr. Fielding in Queens and Shelburne, is regarded as a piece of political vindictiveness on the part of the Tory machine, the idea being to try and embarrass the Finance Minister in his duties as a member of the Government and to prevent him from taking his seat when Parliament meets." It will be painful for the Globe to have to record the fact that the Supreme Court has sustained the appeal.

The people may well ask, "Who is Mr. Fielding, that he should be exempt from the operation of the election law which provides that bribery is a crime?" Is it to be understood that that which is a crime in a private member of parliament, is a virtue in a Minister? If Mr. Fielding or his friends are guiltless, they need have no fear of a full investigation. The fact that they try to prevent it is suspicious.

• • •

Judge Edge, of the Metropolitan County Court, London, England, in delivering a judgment on the 6th inst., declared that the amount of perjury in English courts was one of the saddest features of English life to-day. Perjury in the law courts, the judge declared, was growing more and more common. People went into the witness box and took the oath knowing that they were going to make a statement which was altogether the opposite of the truth. They did it knowing there was little chance of their being punished, and they lied with a coolness and deliberation which was enough to stagger one."

• • •

If the judge were in Canada and presiding in an election court, he would be enabled to intensify his condemnation of perjury by witnesses, who either lie or, direct or ease their consciences, by declaring they forget, or "don't remember." Until a few years' confinement in the penitentiary has been the result of this kind of perjury, it will continue. Let the Whitney Government immortalize itself by prosecuting these perjurers, and the honest men will rejoice.

T. & N. O. SPUR LINES.

Contracts Have Been Let—Cost Will Be About $250,000.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—Contracts for the new spur lines on the T. and N. O. Railway system have been let in connection with the clearing and grading of the proposed branches. The rails will be laid by the staff of the commission, and the total cost of the several new lines will be about $250,000 for almost 14 miles.

The Canadian Constructing Co., Montreal, has been awarded the eight miles of the Charlton branch from Englehart to Long Lake.

McQuigg & Hunt, Arnprior, got the Halleybury spur, a mile and three-quarters, connecting the main line with Halleybury Wharf.

A. Spencer, Niagara Falls, obtains the four mile contract from the main line at Cobalt into the Kerr Lake region, part of which will traverse the mineral section of the Gillies limit, and be of much convenience to the Government exploitation works.

In For the Stuff.

"Your honor," said the prisoner, "I have always been out for the stuff."

"Have you any money to pay your fine?" asked the judge.

"No, sir."

"Then," said the judge, with a grim smile, "you will go in for want of the stuff this time."—Baltimore American.

Not Particular.

"These are hard lines," said the tourist wearily, as he paused to look at the landscape. "Here I've climbed to the top of this mountain and forgot to bring my glasses with me."

"That's all right," said the guide. "I'd just as soon drink from the bottle."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

CHAPTER I.

David Steel dropped his eyes from the mirror and shuddered as a man who sees his own soul bared for the first time. And yet the mirror was in itself a thing of artistic beauty—engraved Florentine glass in a frame of deep old Flemish oak. The novelist had purchased it in Bruges, and now it stood as a joy and a thing of beauty against the full red wall over the fireplace. And Steel had glanced at himself therein and seen murder in his eyes.

He dropped into a chair with a groan for his own helplessness. Men have done that kind of thing before when the cartridges are all gone and the bayonets are twisted and broken and the brown waves of the foe come snarling over the breastworks. And then they die doggedly with the stones in their hands, and cursing the tardy supports that brought this black shame upon them.

But Steel's was ruin of another kind. The man was a fighter to his finger-tips. He had dogged determination and splendid physical courage; he had gradually thrust his way into the front rank of living novelists, though the taste of poverty was still bitter in his mouth. And how good success was now that it had come!

People envied him. Well, that was all in the sweets of the victory. They praised his blue china, they lingered before his Oriental dishes and the choice pictures on the panelled walls. The whole thing was still a constant pleasure to Steel's artistic mind. The dark walls, the old oak and silver, the red shades, and the high artistic fittings soothed him and pleased him, and played upon his tender imagination. And behind there was a study, filled with books and engravings, and beyond that again a conservatory, filled with the choicest blossoms. Steel could work with the passion flowers above his head and the tender grace of the tropical ferns about him, and he could reach his left hand for his telephone and call Fleet Street to his ear.

It was all unique, delightful, the dream of an artistic soul realized. Three years before David Steel had worked in an attic at a bare deal table, and his mother had £3 per week to pay for everything. Usually there was balm in this recollection.

But not to-night. Heaven help him, not to-night! Little grinning demons were dancing on the oak cornices, there were mocking lights gleaming from Cellini tankards that Steel had given far too much money for. It had not seemed to matter just at the time. If all this artistic beauty had emptied Steel's purse there was a golden stream coming. What mattered it that the local tradesmen were getting a little restless? The great expense of the novelist's life was past. In two years he would be rich. And the pathos of the thing was not lessened by the fact that it was true. In two years' time Steel would be well off. He was terribly short of ready money, but he had just finished a serial story for which he was to be paid £500 within two months of the delivery of the copy; two novels of his were respectively in their fourth and fifth editions. But these novels of his he had more or less given away, and he ground his teeth as he thought of it. Still, everything spelt prosperity. If he lived, David Steel was bound to become a rich man.

And yet he was ruined. Within twenty-four hours everything would pass out of his hands. To all practical purposes it had done so already. And all for the want of £1,000! Steel had earned twice that amount during the past twelve months, and the fruits of his labor were as balm to his soul about him. Within the next twelve months he could pay the debt three times over. He would cheerfully have taken the bill and doubled the amount for six months' delay.

And all this because he had become surety for an absconding brother. Steel had put his pride in his pocket and interviewed his creditor, a little, polite, mild-eyed financier, who meant to have his money to the uttermost farthing. At first he had been suave and sympathetic, until he had discovered that Steel had debts elsewhere, and then——

Well, he had signed judgment, and to-morrow he could levy execution. Within a few hours the bottom would fall out of the universe so far as Steel was concerned. Within a few hours every butcher and baker and candlestick-maker would come abusively for his bill. Steel, who could have faced a regiment, recoiled fearfully from that. Within a week his oak and silver would have to be sold and the passion flower would wither on the walls.

Steel had not told anybody yet; the strong man had grappled with his trouble alone. Had he been a man of business he might have found some way out of the difficulty. Even his mother didn't know. She was asleep upstairs, perhaps dreaming of her son's greatness. What would the dear old mater say when she knew? Well, she had been a good mother to him, and it had been a labor of love to furnish the house for her as for himself. Perhaps there would be a few tears in those gentle eyes, but no more.

David lighted a cigarette and paced restlessly round the dining-room. Never had he appreciated its quiet beauty more than he did now. There were flowers, blood-red flowers, on the table under the graceful electric stand that Steel had designed himself. He snapped off the light as if the sight pained him, and strode into his study. For a time he stood moodily gazing at his flowers and ferns. How every leaf there was pregnant with association. There was the Moorish clock droning the midnight hour. When Steel had brought that clock——

"Ting, ting, ting. Pring, pring, pring, pring. Ting, ting, ting, ting."

But Steel heard nothing. Everything seemed as silent as the grave. It was only by a kind of inner consciousness that he knew the hour to be midnight. Midnight meant the coming of the last day. After sunrise some greasy lounger pregnant of cheap tobacco would come in and assume that he represented the sheriff, bills would be hung like banners on the outward walls, and then——

"Pring, pring, pring. Ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting. Pring, pring, pring."

Bells, somewhere. Like the bells in the valley where the old vicarage used to stand. Steel vaguely wondered who now lived in the house where he was born. He was staring in the most absent way at his telephone, utterly unconscious of the shrill impatience of the little voice. He saw the quick pulsation of the striker and he came back to earth again.

Jefferies of the Weekly Messenger, of course. Jefferies was fond of a late chat on the telephone. Steel wondered grimly, if Jefferies would lend him £1,000. He flung himself down in a deep lounge-chair and placed the receiver to his ear. By the deep, hoarse clang of the wires, a long-distance message, assuredly.

"From London, evidently. Halloa, London! Are you there?"

London responded that it was. A clear, soft voice spoke at length.

"Is that you, Mr. Steel? Are you quite alone? Under the circumstances you are not busy to-night?"

Steel started. He had never heard the voice before. It was clear and soft and commanding, and yet there was just a suspicion of mocking irony in it.

"I'm not very busy to-night," Steel replied. "Who is speaking to me?"

"That for the present we need not go into," said the mocking voice. "As certain old-fashioned contemporaries of yours would say, 'We meet as strangers!' Stranger yet, you are quite alone!"

"I am quite alone. Indeed, I am the only one up in the house."

"Good. I have told the exchange people not to ring off till I have finished with you. One advantage of telephoning at this hour is that one is tolerably free from interruption. So your mother is asleep? Have you told her what is likely to happen to you before many hours have elapsed?"

Steel made no reply for a moment. He was restless and ill at ease to-night, and it seemed just possible that his imagination was playing him strange tricks. But, no. The Moorish clock in its frame of celebrities droned the quarter after twelve; the scent of the Dijon roses floated in from the conservatory.

"I have told nobody as yet," Steel said, hoarsely. "Who in the name of Heaven are you?"

"That in good time. But I did not think you were a coward."

"No man has ever told me so—face to face."

"Good again, I recognize the fighting ring in your voice. If you lack certain phases of moral courage, you are a man of pluck and resource. Now, somebody who is very dear to me is at present in Brighton, not very far from your own house. She is in dire need of assistance. You also are in dire need of assistance. We can be of mutual advantage to one another."

"What do you mean by that?" Steel whispered.

"Let me put the matter on a business footing. I want you to help my friend, and in return I will help you. Bear in mind that I am asking you to do nothing wrong. If you will promise me to go to a certain address in Brighton to-night and see my friend, I promise that before you sleep the sum of £1,000 in Bank of England notes shall be in your possession."

No reply came from Steel. He could not have spoken at that moment for the fee-simple of Golconda. He could only hang gasping to the telephone. Many a strange and weird plot came and went in that versatile brain, but never one more wild than this. Apparently no reply was expected, for the speaker resumed:—

"I am asking you to do no wrong. You may naturally desire to know why my friend does not come to you. That must remain my secret, our secret. We are trusting you because we know you to be a gentleman, but we have enemies who are ever on the watch. All you have to do is to go to a certain place and give a certain woman information. You are thinking that this is a strange mystery. Never was anything stranger dreamt of in your philosophy. Are you agreeable?

The mocking tone died out of the small, clear voice until it was almost pleading.

"You have taken me at a disadvantage," Steel said. "And you know——"

"Everything. I am trying to save you from ruin. Fortune has played you into my hands. I am perfectly aware that if you were not on the verge of social extinction you would refuse my request. It is in your hands to decide. You know that Beckstein, your creditor, is absolutely merciless. He will get his money back and more besides. This is his idea of business. To-morrow you will be an outcast—for the time, at any rate. Your local creditors will be insolent to you; people will pity you or blame you, as their disposition lies. On the other hand, you have but to say the word and you are saved. You can go and see the Brighton representatives of Beckstein's lawyers, and pay them in paper of the Bank of England."

"If I was assured of your bona-fides," Steel murmured.

A queer little laugh, a laugh of triumph, came over the wires.

"I have anticipated that question. Have you Greenwich time about you?"

Steel responded that he had. It was five-and-twenty minutes past twelve. He had quite ceased to wonder at any questions put to him now. It was all so like one of his brilliant little extravanganzas.

"You can hang up your receiver for five minutes," the voice said. "Precisely at half-past twelve you go and look on your front doorstep. Then come back and tell me what you have found. You need not fear that I shall go away."

Steel hung up the receiver, feeling that he needed a little rest. His cigarette was actually scorching his left thumb and forefinger, but he was heedless of the fact. He flickered up the dining-room lights again and rapidly made himself a sparklet soda, which he added to a small whisky. He looked almost lovingly at the gleaming Cellini tankard, at the pools of light on the fair damask. Was it possible that he was not going to lose all this, after all?

The Moorish clock in the study droned the half-hour.

David gulped down his whisky and crept shakily to the front door with a feeling on him that he was doing something stealthily. The bolts and chain rattled under his trembling fingers. Outside, the whole world seemed to be sleeping. Under the wide canopy of stars some black object picked out with shining points lay on the white marble breadth of the top step. A gun-metal cigar-case set in tiny diamonds.

The novelist fastened the front door and staggered to the study. A pretty, artistic thing such as David had fully intended to purchase for himself. He had seen one exactly like it in a jeweller's window in North Street. He had pointed it out to his mother. Why, it was the very one! No doubt whatever about it! David had had the case in his hands and had reluctantly declined the purchase.

He pressed the spring, and the case lay open before him. Inside were papers, soft, crackling papers; the case was crammed with them. They were white and clean, and twenty-five of them in all. Twenty-five Bank of England notes for £10 each—£250!

David fought the dreamy feeling off and took down the telephone receiver.

"Are you there?" he whispered, as if fearful of listeners. "I—I have found your parcel."

"Containing the notes. So far so good. Yes, you are right, it is the same cigar-case you admired so much in Lockhart's the other day. Well, we have given you an instance of our bona-fides. But £250 is of no use to you at present. Beckstein's people would not accept it on account—they can make far more money by 'selling you up,' as the poetic phrase goes. It is in your hands to procure the other £750 before you sleep. You can take it as a gift, or, if you are too proud for that, you may regard it as a loan. In which case you can bestow the money on such charities as commend themselves to you. Now, are you going to place yourself entirely in my hands?"

Steel hesitated no longer. Under the circumstances few men would, as he had a definite assurance that there was nothing dishonorable to be done. A little courage, a little danger, perhaps, and he could hold up his head before the world; he could return to his desk to-morrow with the passion flowers over his head and the scent groves sweet to his nostrils. And the mater could dream happily, for there would be no sadness or sorrow in the morning.

"I will do exactly what you tell me," he said.

"Spoken like a man," the voice cried. "Nobody will know you have left the house—you can be home in an hour. You will not be missed. Come, time is getting short, and I have my risks as well as others. Go at once to Old Steine. Stand on the path close under the shadow of the statue of George IV. and wait there. Somebody will say 'Come,' and you will follow. Good-night."

Steel would have said more, but the tinkle of his own bell told him that the stranger had rung off. He laid his cigar-case on the writing-table, slipped his cigarette-case into his pocket, satisfied himself that he had his latch-key, and put on a dark overcoat. Overhead the dear old mater was sleeping peacefully. He closed the front door carefully behind him and strode resolutely into the darkness.

Gin Pills Cure Kidney Troubles.

OR YOUR MONEY BACK.

Read this letter from Mrs. Gargill. Has it not the ring of truth? Does it not describe your own sufferings? And does it not point the way to quick relief?

"For three years I suffered more than I can tell with terrible pains in the small of my back. When I stooped over, it seemed as though I would never be able to straighten up. I tried Kidney Pills for a year and a half, but was getting worse all the time, until advised by my neighbor to try "Gin Pills," as she had been almost similarly affected, and had been completely cured by them. I took three boxes of Gin Pills, and almost from the first dose I began to feel better. Now I am pleased to say I can do as good a day's work as ever in my life without feeling tired out. Before getting Gin Pills I had to have a girl to do my housework, but now I can do it all myself, including the washing. I will always recommend Gin Pills for kidney trouble.

Do You Live In the City of

IF?

The city of IF is the Babylon of the modern world. Its population consists of the majority of people who live on earth. It is a world wide city—a city of limitless boundaries limitless limitations!

If you live in any part of the city of IF you are apt to have for neighbors some members of the PERHAPS family and their poor relations, the Forlorn Hopes: These people are a poor sort of neighbors. Then there are the Maybe folks, and the Notyets, the B. Carefuls, the Goslows, and the Cautious and Timid families. They are a gloomy company—a company of "ALMOSTS," of people who just miss doing things and getting things.

If you have been sharing the lots and lives of such people as these—if you have been missing opportunities and chances of success all your life—isn't it time that you MOVED?

To get out of this city of IF is not so hard a task as it may seem. It requires a small amount of "nerve," of "backbone," of "git-up-and-git." and some "gumption." And it requires something more—the rational use of a little advertising space. Publicity will sell all of your property in this city of IF; it will enable you to move to the town of HUSTLE, or the town of ENTERPRISE, where you will have better neighbors—such people as the CLIMBERS, the EXCELSIORS, the MONEYTONS, the NEVERQUITS, the WINOUTS—all folks who live well and in an atmosphere of good cheer and healthy discontent.

FARM AND FIRESIDE

Useful Hints Which Will be Appreciated by the Progressive Farmer and His Housekeeper

AGRICULTURAL.

Farm Hints for October.

The fine weather and bracing air that usually prevail this month are just what the farmer needs to finish his harvesting and get ready for winter.

Harvesting Roots

is now in order; potatoes and beets being most liable to be injured by frost, are usually harvested first. In digging potatoes, it is important to keep them out of the sunshine and rain, pick them up as soon as they are dry, and cart them at once to the cellar or pit for storing, or to the market if they meet ready sale. The ordinary bushel boxes of the market are handy things for picking and carting them, since they can be easily dumped without delay or damage to the potatoes. The cellar or pit in which they are stored should be kept wide open at night and closed on warm days so as to keep the roots as cool as possible until severely cold weather compels us to protect them from frost. These remarks apply equally to other roots as well as to potatoes.

After the crops are all cared for the garden should be cleared of all rubbish and boxes and frames put away. A good lot of manure should be spread on the ground another year. It can be plowed in the fall or spring, or both. In this way the manure will be turned under, while that previously applied, or what is left of it, will be brought to the surface. The soil should be thoroughly enriched from top to bottom for best effect.

Threshing the Grain is a necessary task that most farmers dislike, Some have it attended to quite early, others not until cold weather. Only a comparatively few farmers have threshing machinery of their own so have to depend on those who make a business of it. With gasolene engine and improved threshing machinery better work can be done and in less time than used to be the case.

The straw should be well cared for future use. The grain should be put in bins where it will be thoroughly dry and free from vermin.

If there is any portion of the crop of the different kinds of grains that is better than the rest, it will be well to reserve from such for seed.

Fattening the Pigs.

Now is the time to push the fattening of the pigs. If they have been well fed with milk from the dairy during spring and summer they should have attained good range and size with a moderate degree of fatness now, as the weather becomes cooler, they should receive a proper allowance of grain along with the milk to increase the tendency to fatten.

Between now and December there should be time to make pigs that will dress from two hundred to two hundred and fifty pounds at eight to nine months old, well rounded carcasses, that will cut up in best shape for family use or for sale.

Ground barley makes a very good grain feed where it is raised, and probably be better than corn meal to commence with. Where field corn is grown, and there is a quantity of soft ears not suitable to put in the cribs, this will go well at first with the skimmed milk, but during the last few weeks corn meal should be used in such quantities as can be properly eaten and digested. The animals should be kept in dry, comfortable pens with plenty of bedding.

Fattening a Beef for Home Use.

Many farmers fatten each year a beef animal for domestic use, and this is as it should be, for it is better than buying at a dear rate or going without. Generally there will be a cow in the dairy herd that is not desirable to keep, and which with some extra feed will make good beef. Such should be selected in season and the fattening process begun. It is better to dry off such cows before commencing to feed, as in this case the feed will go to the production of flesh and fat rather than milk. Grain will have to be used largely for this purpose, but where there is a quantity of small potatoes to be disposed of these will answer a good purpose when fed in a moderate amount along with the grain. In this way with good hay or corn fodder excellent beef may be provided for family use,

Care of the Cows.

Butter is bringing good prices right along, and from present indications may continue to do so through the fall and winter, and it is essential to have a supply from some source. The dairyman should be alive to the situation, and by extra care and feed help supply this demand.

New milch cows, or those that will be giving milk through the winter, should receive the best of attention. The yield of milk should be kept up as far as possible.

Give good feed and a fair amount of grain at least. It will be poor policy to think of saving the price of grain by not feeding it, when good returns should be obtained from giving a liberal ration.

Applying the Manure.

During the summer season there should have been quite a large accumulation of manure from various sources, although it might have been cleaned up at the close of spring work. This should all be scraped together and applied where it will be needed for next year's crop.

If there are fine manure and grass fields that would be greatly benefited by it, put it on and see how it will give a full, adequate return.

It will pay you to scrape together all that can be obtained for this purpose, as every two-horse load should be worth $2 in extra amount of hay received.

Then there will be the manure from the horses, pigs and calves. Although it may be somewhat coarse from the amount of bedding, do not wait for this to decay and become fine in texture, but spread on and plow under this fall, it will all make good fertilizer and be heard from in next year's crops.

Make all the manure possible, and then use it in the way it is considered the most profitable on your own land and for your own crops.

Pears and Apples

are now to be picked and the early varieties marketed; take pains to assort them honestly, clear down to the bottom of the box or barrel; "deaconing" doesn't pay for the time it takes, to say nothing about the meanness of the practice. Winter pears or apples should be stored in a cool shed or cellar with free circulation of air around the boxes and barrels, and where the sun will not heat them in bright weather; when hard frost comes in November is soon enough to put them into the cellar for protection.

Apples keep well stored in bins two or three feet deep in a cool cellar, if barrels are hard to get at harvest time, as often happens; and if the cellar is crowded they may be stored like roots in a pit, covering them with straw at first, and afterwards with earth when colder weather requires it. The bottom of the pit should be covered with boards or straw to keep the apples from touching the earth, which is apt to give them an earthy taste. This method is only advised as a makeshift in case no room can be found to store the apples more conveniently.

Making a Pit

for storing produce is a simple matter, and yet roots stored thus are often lost by carelessness in putting them in too deeply, so that they heat, grow and rot. The pit for potatoes, beets and carrots should not be piled over two feet deep with roots, and for turnips and horseradish it is best not to have them over a foot deep; cover lightly at first, and increase the covering as cold weather comes on, bearing in mind that there is more danger from heat than from frost. Vegetables well stored in a pit come out very fresh and nice in the spring.

The Oven That Ends Guesswork

Before you put the roast in an Imperial Oxford oven, let the draft bring the heat to the right point. You'll know when it gets there if you'll look at the oven thermometer. After the roast goes in, you can know (not guess) it will be cooked right in a certain definite time. There's no ups-and-downs to the oven-heat in a range built as this one is, — the diffusive oven-flue takes all the guess work out of cooking, all the drudgery out of oven-use

That Rack That Ends Bother

When the roast needs basting, pull forth the Imperial Oxford draw-out oven rack,—roast and all—slide it right out where you can get at it. Needn't reach in and scorch your fingers nor sear your wrists,—baste it in comfort. That one thing alone—the draw-out rack—ought to make you like this range above all ranges. And that's only one of the twelve better things about this range. Come and look.

THEY WILL CURE

The Market Garden.

Celery must now be banked for fall, and early winter sale, leaving the banking of the later lots for next month, just before the ground freezes.

Squashes are best stored in a dry loft or cellar, with free circulation of air around them and a stove or furnace to protect them from frost or dampness; they need a dry atmosphere with a temperature of 45 degrees to 60 degrees.

Poultry Yard.

As cold nights come on the poultry should be protected, and those that have acquired a habit of roosting in the trees should be caught and brought into the henhouse; a little care in this way will hasten the early laying of the pullets. As the frost kills many of the insects about this time it is useful to supply their places with some meat or fish in feeding the poultry in order to give them strength to finish moulting and to promote early laying.

The Bees.

Whether the bees are to be wintered in the cellar or on the summer stands, feeding should be done early. The first and most important matter to be looked after is the supply of winter stores. Bees will not keep on rearing a lot of young if the food supply is short; so that in order to stimulate a colony we must furnish sufficient honey to guide them into winter quarters strong in young bees. Feeding must be done early enough for brood to be reared and matured in vigor before the advent of cold weather. Then as the nights begin to get chilly, and bad weather prevails, the bees become quiet, glide into inaction, and compose themselves for their long rest.

Modern hives with good brood chambers equal to the laying capacity of the queen are considered best for wintering, the stores are usually sufficient. When all breeding is over for the season the central combs are often deficient in stores, here a good, practical feeder comes into requisition, one that can be used during the cold nights of October, and that will work successfully with thick syrup. Nothing is gained by compelling the bees to evaporate a large amount of water so late in the season. For late feeding use about one quart of water to every fourteen pounds of the best granulated sugar. When early feeding is practised thin syrup may be used; but for late feeding we need the syrup very thick, just thin enough so the bees can work it nicely.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

The Owner and His Helpers.

Read current dairy literature and keep posted on new ideas.

Observe and enforce the utmost cleanliness about the cattle, their attendants, the stable, the dairy and all utensils.

A person suffering from any disease, or who has been exposed to a contagious disease, must remain away from the cows and the milk.

The Stable.

Keep dairy cattle in a room or building by themselves. It is preferable to have no cellar below and no storage loft above.

Stables should be well ventilated, lighted and drained; should have tight floors and walls and be plainly constructed.

Never use musty or dirty litter.

Allow no strong smelling material in the stable for any length of time. Store the manure under cover outside the cow stable and remove it to a distance as often as practicable.

Whitewash the stable once or twice a year; use land plaster in the manure gutters daily.

Use no dry, dusty feed just previous to milking; if fodder is dusty, sprinkle it before it is fed.

FOR AN EPICURE.

Brunswick Stew.—Clean and cut up four squirrels as for a fricassee. Put over the fire in a saucepan with an onion chopped fine, just enough boiling water to cover, and a high seasoning of salt and pepper. Cover and stew slowly until the meat is very tender. Partly cool and remove as many of the bones as possible. Return to the fire with one quart of tomatoes, one pint of green corn cut from the cob, half a pint of lima beans, one pint of diced white potatoes, one diced cucumber, one diced small white summer squash, one diced carrot and a scant pint of sliced okra. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and more seasoning, and stew for two hours longer, or until the vegetables are cooked to pieces.

Peach Chutney — Pare and halve sufficient peaches to weigh, when ready, three pounds. Put them in a large agate saucepan, add one pint of vinegar and stew gently until tender. Pound together in a mortar four ounces of white onions, two ounces of garlic and five ounces of fresh ginger root; add these to the peaches with six ounces each of sugar, seeded raisins and white mustard seed. Add two ounces of dried chillies and one cupful of vinegar. Simmer for ten minutes longer, then bottle.

Fairy Toast.—Cut stale sponge cake in inch slices, toast golden brown and cut in two-inch squares. Beat to a froth one-half of a tumbler of quince jelly, and when very light add gradually the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Heap this on the pieces of toast, and top each with half of a candied cherry. Serve with cream.—Table Talk.

Braised Tongue.— Wash a four-pound fresh tongue, put into kettle with water enough to cover, simmer for two hours, take out and skin and trim off some of the root, tie the tip to the thicker part: brown one tablespoonful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, pour on slowly one quart of stock or water, add one-half carrot, one-half turnip, one potato, one onion, one piece of celery, one cupful of tomato; put the tongue in a kettle, and take two hours; strain the sauce, which should be about half gone, around and over the tongue. This is good hot and fine cold. Calves' liver is also good done in this way.

Cream or Cocoanut Pie.—Two eggs, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of water, one-half teaspoonful of soda dissolved in the water, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour and a small lump of butter. When baked, split, and put in the following cream: One-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of flour, one egg; beat the egg, stir in the sugar and flour, then stir in one-half pint of boiling milk, and two tablespoonfuls of cocoanut. Make a frosting for the cut side, and sprinkle thickly with cocoanut before dry. This makes a delicious pie.

THE VETERINARIAN.

Hair Unshed.— Horse has not shed his old hair, and he will sweat standing still. Can you tell me what I should do for him?—J.M.S. (Clip the horse at once. Give as a drench once a day for three days the following: Spirits of turpentine, 3 oz.; linseed oil, 8 oz.; mix. Put 25 drops fluid extract of nux vomica on his tongue every three hours for ten days.)

Lameness.—Horse has a windpuff on his ankle-joint, and a slight swelling inside of his leg, extending from the ankle to the hoof. Swelling is quite hard. (How long has he been lame? When driven, does he start very lame and improve after two or three miles' drive, or the reverse, or is he just the same all the time? Is the enlargement from fetlock to hoof hard, as if bony? Have shoe removed and cut shoe with heel calks 3-4 inch long and no toe calk. Clip hair from leg, and rub in some of the following liniment twice a day: Tincture aconite root, 3 oz.; spirits of camphor, 2 oz.; chloroform, 2 oz.; alcohol, 8 oz.; mix.)

Contagious Ophthalmia.—Has been constantly present among my herd of thirty cattle since last spring. None entirely free; many have white spots on their eyes, and some are even stone blind during the worst stages. The herd was treated by a local veterinarian, who had previously seen very little of the disease. Can you tell me anything about the germ that causes it? Is it likely to continue indefinitely? If it disappears, is there a likelihood of its returning? What would you do if you owned a herd of high-priced registered cattle that had contagious ophthalmia? (With a camel's hair pencil put some of the following lotion in each eye once a day: Sulphate of zinc, 2 dr.; fluid extract of opium, 3 dr.; fluid extract of belladonna, 2 dr.; distilled water, 2 oz.; mix. Have each animal held by nose and horn, then hold eyelids open with thumb and finger; dip brush in lotion and quickly lay it flat on eyeball; let go lids and quickly pull brush out.

Eruption.—A Holstein-Jersey cow, about ten years old, has been afflicted for several years with an eruption on her back, from her withers to the root of her tail. The skin cracks and appears raw and inflamed; extends down several inches on each side of backbone; is entirely confined to white hair, ceasing suddenly wherever there is black hair. Have tried teat ointment, but did not cure. I enclose a growth that comes out along the backbone. (Give cow a can of general cow drink, and repeat a week after. Rub some of the following lotion on back every day or two for a week, then wash off thoroughly and report a week after, referring to this page. Stir well, and use but a little at each dressing: Sulphur, 8 oz.; spirits turpentine, 2 oz.; oil tar, 1 oz.; mercurial ointment, 2 oz.; crude petroleum, 1 oz.; mix. Melt the mercurial ointment to mix with the other ingredients.

Constipation and its Results.

WHY BILEANS ARE SO HIGHLY BENEFICIAL.

About eight women out of every ten suffer from constipation. Certain portions of the food we eat are useless as food and the work of the bowels is to expel these portions. Their work is aided by a secretion of the liver—the bile. When this secretion fails, or is secreted in insufficient quantity, the bowels become inactive and constipation results. Impurities which should be expelled gather, and then note what happens! The blood comes in contact with this foul accumulation, is filled with poison, and the circulation carries these poisons all over the body. That is why constipated persons have so much headache, that dull, heavy feeling, bad breath, foul taste in the mouth, etc.

From this it is seen that if the liver be corrected the bile flow will be set right, that in turn will correct the intestines, and the constipation will be ended. This is exactly what Bileans do, and why they are so superior to ordinary medicine or purgatives. These flush the bowels, but do not get to the cause of the evil (the liver). Bileans do.

Mrs. Frances Greene, of Earl St., Kingston, Ont., says: "My liver was sluggish and out of order, and I had great trouble from constipation. Every movement of the bowels had to be forced. I doctored and tried all manner of remedies, but nothing brought a permanent cure until I tried Bileans. They cured the constipation, ended the sluggish, tired-out, "livery" feeling, and made me feel bright and buoyant."

Similar evidence is forthcoming from all quarters of the globe. Bileans cure constipation, piles, headache, female ailments and irregularities, debility, indigestion, liver chill, wind spasms, anaemia, and all disorders arising from liver and stomach derangement. All dealers and stores at 50c a box, or post free from the Bilean Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. Six boxes for $2.50.

AS SMOOTH AS A BILLIARD TABLE.

Your comfort on a railway journey very largely depends upon the roadbed of the route you select. No matter how luxurious the coaches, or how much personal attention you receive from the employees, you cannot be comfortable if jolted and jarred by a poor and irregular roadbed. On the Lake Shore Railway no expense has been spared to make a roadbed as nearly perfect as the most skilful engineering could build, and as a result, throughout the entire length and breadth of the system the right of way is as smooth as a billiard table. No jolts or jars, nor dust nor dirt. This perfection of service extends throughout the entire system. Lake Shore trains are the most luxurious, they are equipped with every comfort and convenience and are run at highest speed and in safety. They run on time. For your own sake you should see that your ticket reads "via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway." Write for full information about rates and routes to J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N. Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, O., or W. J. Lynch, Passenger Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Oct. 8.—(Special.)—Cable advices from Liverpool on Canadian cattle came steady at 10d to 10½d, while ranchers were firmer at 8¾d to 9¼d; sales of Canadian cattle at Glasgow were made at £14 5s to £16 6s per head. Cables stated that the market for choice calves was firmer, but weaker for medium and half-finished cattle. The ocean freight market is weaker and rates are 5s lower, with Liverpool, London and Manchester space offering at 30s and Glasgow at 35s. Exports for the past week were 3370 cattle, 150 sheep. Receipts to-day were 1800 cattle, 50 with cows, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs, 300 calves. There was no change in the condition of the hog market; supplies were only fair, for which the demand was good and sales of selected lots were made at $6.75 to $6.90 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Cattle advices on Canadian bacon were steady and prices showed no change from a week ago. The butchers were out strong and trade was good, but the prices of cattle had a downward tendency. Mr. Joseph Richards bought eight prime Manitoba steers at $4.25 per cwt.; pretty good cattle sold at 3c to 4c, and the common stock 2c to 3c, while lean cows and bulls, sold at 1½c per lb. There was the best lot of milch cows on the market to-day that has been here this season. Mr. John Campbell of Point St. Charles had 22 superior cows, which he was selling at from $50 to $60 each. Common cows sold at $40 to $45 each; grass-fed calves sold at 2½c to 3½c per pound; choice veals, 5c to 5½c. Sheep sold at 3½c to 4¼c, and the lambs at 5¼c to 6c per lb.

The Pelican.

The great pelican often has a wing spread of fifteen feet. The bird itself sometimes exceeds twenty-five pounds in weight.

An Enormous Fee.

La Peyronie, the physician who attended Louis XV. of France, received an enormous fee. The king gave him an estate comprising five villages and 207 farms, which produced a yearly income equal in purchasing power to $31,000 of our money. His majesty had only a slight fever.

Corks.

Corks for bottles were first manufactured in Spain and Italy some time during the fourteenth century. Corkscrews were contemporaneous with corks.

The Chinese Way.

In China any one writing an objectionable book is punished with a hundred blows from a heavy bamboo rod and then banished for life. Any one caught reading such a book gets twenty stripes with a lighter rod.

Buenos Ayres.

Buenos Ayres is located about the same distance south of the equator as Memphis, Tenn., is north of it, but it is never warmer than Boston or colder than Washington. Its climate is mild and bracing in the winter, spring and fall months, while in the summer it is seldom as disagreeably hot as New York, Paris or Berlin.

The Diving Bell.

The diving bell was used in Phoenicia B. C. 320, but not used in Europe until about 1509.

Early Bedtime.

The majority of grown people as well as the children in ancient Rome rarely lighted a candle unless at dawn. The bedtime in Rome, Athens, Egypt and other parts of the Mediterranean shore was between 7 and 9 o'clock in the evening, according to the season.

The Slippery Elm.

The slippery elm contains in its inner bark a great quantity of mucilage, which gives it its peculiar property and name.

James Crichton.

James Crichton, better remembered as "the Admirable Crichton," could read, write and dispute in twelve different languages. He was an expert swordsman, a civil and military engineer, a mathematician, a dramatist, and, although but twenty-three years old at the time of his death, he was the master of all the science and learning of his age.

Hair.

A strong microscope shows the single hairs of the head to be like coarse, round rasps, but with teeth extremely irregular and jagged.

Astrology.

Astrology was the invention of Chaldean and Egyptian priests. There is reason to believe that astrology was practiced in connection with astronomy in Chaldea and the valley of the Nile between 4000 and 5000 B. C.

Glass Eyes.

The making of glass eyes, says a writer in London Health, is now so fine an art that an artificial one in a human socket cannot be detected except by an expert. "The most peculiar thing I know of in the trade relates to two of my regular patrons—a man and his wife. They have been married now three years, and to this day neither of them knows that the other is deficient of an eye."

Breathing.

All children should be taught to breathe through the nose and to keep the mouth tightly closed. Many disease germs enter through the open mouth, while if the mouth is kept closed the air becomes purified while passing through the long, moist passages and tempered for the lungs.

Palmistry.

Palmistry has been practiced in the east from time immemorial. The palmisters claim that several allusions in the book of Job indicate knowledge of this art.

The Korean Family Shrine.

The rooms of a Korean woman are as sacred to her as a shrine is to its image—indeed, the rooms of a wife or mother are the sanctuary of any man who breaks the law. Unless for treason or for one other crime he cannot be forced to leave those rooms, and so long as he remains under the protection of his wife and his wife's apartments he is secure from the officers of the law.

The Civil Crown.

The civil crown was a Roman honor given to the soldier who saved the life of a citizen by slaying an enemy.

Lobster.

The London hospital is inclined to hold that lobster is not so indigestible as popular fancy thinks it. It is, however, less nutritious than the average fish.

The Serpent.

The Roman goddess of health always bore in her hand a serpent. The serpent was the emblem of Æsculapius, the deity of physicians, and in Roman folklore it is said that during a great pestilence in Rome he appeared in that city in the form of a serpent and stayed the plague.

"Left Handed" Lions.

It was the belief of Livingstone that nearly all lions were "left handed." He watched them closely, and when they desired to strike a fierce blow they always used the left paw.

Eye Strain Continued

Although this fact is not yet well enough known, it is undoubtedly true that the people who have the greatest relief from glasses are those who often see just as well without lenses as with them. Just as the neurasthenic without any organic disease, is almost worried to complete exhaustion by minor disturbances, so the slightest amount of uncorrected astigmatism may originate the worst form of headache. While the eyesight may be improved by an ill-fitted pair of glasses, the result to the nervous system is bad, and at best only relieves part of the symptoms, giving the patient the false belief that no other glass would bring any better results. Such patients may spend their days supported by the pain tablets to be found at drug stores. If eyes are fitted they should be fitted right. It will not do to fit one eye right and leave the other out of balance. Again a patient with a high degree of latent trouble may be given a weak glass because it is best accepted, but will never bring the relief sought for. It is our constant aim to be on the look out for these hidden and latent eye and brain strains, in all our examinations.

Drastic Action Re Tax Rolls.

CITY COUNCIL TAKES IT LAST NIGHT — REPAIRS NEEDED TO FIRE ENGINES—COUNTY HOUSE OF REFUGE WANTS WATER — CONDITION OF THE ROADWAY ON FRONT STREET.

At a regular meeting of the City Council, held last evening, Mayor Sulman, Ald. Knox, Panter, Green, Vermilyea, Cooper, Marsh, and Paterson were in attendance.

The business transacted was mostly routine.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Mr. John Roblin, detailing his test made recently of No. 1 and 2 fire engines. The report showed that both engines did fairly good work, but that some repairs were needed. A new flue was necessary in No. 2 engine, and the expense would be larger upon this engine than No. 1.

From Mrs. A. Ray, showing that the Woman's Christian Association had during the past year expended $1282, from the indigent fund. A detailed report of the expenditure was submitted.

From Mr. W. R. Aylesworth, County Clerk, stating that the County Council desired to make arrangements with the city for supplying water to the House of Refuge, which is being erected.

Mr. Aylesworth, who was present, addressed the Council, stating that although the House did not have to be completed until next August, it was desirable to have the waterworks installed this fall, provided satisfactory arrangements could be made. It was also desired to have a hydrant placed near the building. It was less than a quarter of a mile from the main to the building, and there would be no rock excavation.

In answer to a question, Mr. Aylesworthy said it was expected to light the building with electricity, but gas pipes would also be installed.

It was decided to refer the matter to the Waterworks Committee to look into and report.

Ald. Vermilyea was in the chair in committee of the whole.

The report of the standing committees were passed.

A recommendation prevailed that a new roof be placed over the city clock, and a radiator be placed in the City Solicitor's office.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid;

R. McCormick	$ 1.00
H. H. Leavens	15.00
J. W. Walker	705.80
I. Peck	193.14
F. D. Ford	.75
C. E. Bishop	3.10
M. Cummings	47.00
C. P. Holton	16.00
F. C. Clarke	17.70

The communication of Mr. Roblin in reference to the fire engines was considered.

Ald. Panter thought the report presented was not at all complimentary to the head of the Fire department.

Ald. Cooper was of the opinion that a thorough investigation should be made in this matter, but as there was no report from the Chief he suggested that the matter be referred to the Fire committee. This was agreed to.

The communication from Mrs. Ray, re indigent fund, was ordered to be filed, and the thanks of the Council ordered to be tendered to the ladies of the W.C.A. for their work.

An electric light was ordered to be placed on a certain portion of Emily street.

Ald. Cooper desired to know if the flue in No. 2 engine should be replaced by a new one or plugged. Mr. McCurdy had intimated that it would take a day to do the work.

Ald. Green —"If Mr. McCurdy can do the work is it not his duty to do it?"

Ald. Panter said if the engines needed repairing the work should be done.

The matter was referred to the chairman of the Fire committee to attend to.

Ald. Cooper stated that Mrs. West had complained about cars that were left on a siding near her place.

The Mayor stated that this and other matters connected with the G. T. R. were being attended to.

Ald Marsh asked if it was true, as published in the papers, that Front street was the worst street in Ontario?

Ald. Panter said it was not as bad as that. The time had, however, come when a permanent roadway should be made on that thoroughfare.

Ald Cooper desired to know if a certain crossing, ordered to be put down on Moira street, would be laid.

Ald. Panter — "We will do the best we can, and at present crossings are being built in various parts of the city where needed."

MOTIONS.

Moved by Ald. Marsh, seconded by Ald. Knox, That the time for the return of the Collector's rolls for 1905, which time expires on November 5th, 1906, be not further extended, and that in the event of their not being returned by that date, the Solicitor be now instructed to take the necessary proceedings towards the return of these rolls, together with all money collected or collectable. That the Collector be at once advised of the passage of this motion.

After Ald. Marsh had spoken to the motion, claiming that it was a step in the right direction, it was unanimously adopted.

Council adjourned.

The Welsh Inquest.

MOST IMPORTANT WITNESSES GAVE EVIDENCE LAST NIGHT—TESTIMONY OF JAMES ROSS, WHO SAW THE INCIDENT— ADJOURNED TILL FRIDAY EVENING.

The inquest into the cause of death of the late William J. Welsh, who was alleged to have been killed by a live wire, the Trenton Electric and Water Company, on Friday evening last, was continued in the Police Court room last night. The names of the jurors have already appeared in The Intelligencer. One of them, Mr. L. Terwilligar, was sick last night, and his place was taken by Mr. John Milligan.

Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, County Attorney, represented the Crown: Mr. E. Guss Porter, M. P., appeared for James Welsh, father of the dead boy. Dr. Yeomans, Coroner, conducted the inquest. Mr. Stewart Masson appeared for the Trenton Electric Company.

Before calling any witnesses, the Coroner said there had been considerable talk on the street about the case, and he wished to remind the jurors of the oath they had taken.

MR. JAMES WELSH.

James Welsh was the first witness. The young man killed was his son. Mr. Welsh said his son, who was 18 years old in April last, came home from work, in his usual health, last Friday evening about 6.25. His son was a healthy young man. Witness left his son at home and went out himself to put lanterns on an excavation on St. Charles St. Never saw his son again alive. Next time he saw the boy he was dead. When witness went back to the house his son had gone, and his mother said he had gone to do what was necessary to protect the public from the wire which was down. James Ross and George Belcher brought the body of his son home. The wire which caused the fatality was down when witness went home at 6.05 o'clock. The wire stretched from Moira St. to Strachan St. Witness saw Mr. Ross putting up some planks to keep people away from the wire, which stretched across the road and was about two feet from the ground. Witness did not know how long the wire had been down when he first saw it. When his son left the house he left a message with his mother. After the boy's body was brought home the witness went to the scene of the accident. Mr. James Ross was there. Saw the wire then; it was in the same condition as when he first saw it. Had not learned from anyone how long the wire had been down. When the Doctors—Yeomans and Mather—came to attend his boy, they—the doctors—nearly ran into the wire, only witness and some others warned them. Witness had not communicated with the Electric Company at all.

Mr. Masson asked the witness if his son knew of the danger attendant on electric wires.

Mr. Welsh—"He claimed he did."

To the Coroner—At tea his son had said there should be someone at the wire to protect people on the street. His son had no interest in the matter other than to protect the public.

To a juror the witness said he had no idea what caused the wire to drop, unless it was the rotten "cross arm" to which the glass insulator was fastened. Mr. Ross cut the rotten piece from the pole.

A piece of the "cross arm" was produced in court. It had been picked up on the scene of the accident by the jury.

To Mr. Masson the witness said he and his party had blasted on Friday; about 500 feet from the scene of the accident.

To Mr. Anderson—The ground was wet when the accident happened.

MR. JAMES ROSS.

Mr. James Ross said he was a stone-mason. He knew of the death of William J. Welsh. Last saw him alive about 6.45 on Friday evening last. He was then lying on the road on St. Charles St. Witness told how he had gone out to put out a lantern to guard the wire, and saw young Welsh standing there. Welsh said it was a dangerous thing; somebody should be there to watch the wire, so that no one ran into it. Witness had blocked up the road with plank, and put a lantern on the plank. Witness and young Welsh were at the wire about 25 minutes, warning people to keep away from the wire. Witness had just turned round to go home when he heard a hissing noise. He turned round and saw a lot of sparks apparently coming out of young Welsh's body. Then he (Welsh) was hurled into the middle of the road. The victim made a kind of noise, but witness could not describe it. Mr. Ross went and picked young Welsh up, and the latter was gasping. Witness told of how he laid young Welsh down and started to run to his father's house. Then he thought perhaps the boy was not hurt so bad and went back to him. He saw a young fellow named Frank Kelliher coming, also George Belcher. Sent Kelliher for a doctor and got Belcher to help carry the body home. The Welsh home was about 100 yards from the scene of the accident. Witness also told of how the doctors would have driven into the wire only for being warned. Young Welsh was about seven or eight feet from the wire when witness picked him up. Witness had first seen the wire down about five minutes to 6 o'clock. Knew the wire had been down before, he thought about a year ago. The wire, he should judge, was about 22 feet high when it was up on the pole. Witness said it was the rotten "cross arm" which allowed the glass insulator to pull out of the "cross arm" and the wire to drop. The break had been repaired when he saw the wire the next morning. An employee of the Trenton Electric Company repaired it. The same "cross arm" was used.

Another bit of the "cross arm" was here produced in court. It looked, as the witness described it, "a pretty punk piece of wood." It showed signs of having been newly split, where the glass insulator was pulled out

Continuing, the witness said he had climbed up the pole to saw off the piece of the "cross arm" on Saturday afternoon. He did not think it was a safe piece of wood to hold up a dangerous wire. The other end of the "cross arm," which was left on the pole, appeared to be about in the same condition as the piece in court. The wire which was down was a covered wire. Witness said he knew of the danger attached to a "live wire." He knew of no other cause, other than contact with the wire, which could cause the death of young Welsh. Did not know whether the wires or poles were ever inspected. Witness could not tell, but thought the piece of wood which formed the "cross arm" was dead when put up. A carter named Stapley had been warned by him about the wire, and had promised to telephone the Trenton Electric Company that a wire was down. This was about ten minutes after six. It was about a quarter to 8 when a Trenton Electric Company man came to repair the break. Witness did not know what time Stapley had notified the Electric Company. It was about an hour and a quarter after Stapley drove away before somebody came to repair the break. Witness identified Mr. Henry Thompson as the party who had repaired the break.

To Mr. Porter the witness said he had not noticed the wire swaying at all with the wind. It was a calm night.

To Mr. Masson the witness said he did not know whether Mr. Stapley delivered the message or not. He did not know, as Mr. Masson said, that the wire was down a year ago for repairs. Knew of no other reason, other than the rottenness of the wood in the "cross arm," which caused the wire to fall down.

To Mr. Anderson—He thought the wire fell down a year ago because he saw none of the company's men about at the time when it was down.

The other portion of the "cross arm" was produced in court, and identified by Mr. Ross. It was inspected by the jury.

To Mr. Masson's question— "Can you account for young Welsh's coming into contact with the wire?" Mr. Ross said that, after the accident, he noticed that one of the lanterns had been changed in position. It might have been in changing the lantern, which was on the opposite side of the wire, that young Welsh had touched the wire. This was, however, only supposition.

MR. ALBERT STAPLEY.

Mr. Stapley said he drove a delivery wagon. He remembered being asked by Mr. Ross, on Friday evening last, to send a message about a wire being down on St. Charles St. He had gone to Mr. Brintnell's livery stable, about five minutes after he (witness) left Mr. Ross, and got Mr. Brintnell to telephone about the wire. Witness had nearly ran into the wire, and had been warned off.

To Mr. Masson—The message about the wire had been sent to the police station, not to the Trenton Electric Company. This was about 6.15; not later, he thought.

MR. J. B. BRINTNELL.

Mr. Brintnell testified that, on Friday evening last, about 6.15, he had, at the instance of Mr. Stapley, sent a telephone message about a wire being down on Moira St. The message was to the police station. Constable Naphin answered.

OFFICER NAPHIN.

Frank J. Naphin told of receiving a telephone message from Mr. Brintnell at 6.25 last Friday evening. Witness tried to get the Trenton Electric Company on the telephone, but could not. Later Officer Hawkins came in and they tried again to get the office. Then witness went over to the office, and told Mr. Ostrom, of the company, but Mr. Ostrom knew about the wire already. He (Mr. Ostrom) told somebody to hitch up his horse and said he would go and repair the break. Witness then started for the break, and got there five minutes before the Electric Company people. They started to work fixing the wire as quick as they got there. Witness then left and went down street again.

DR. MATHER.

Dr. Mather told of being called to attend young Welsh on Friday evening. He and Dr. Yeomans were directed to drive over the sidewalk to miss the wire which was down. Only for the warning they might

Especially For Women

FRUIT-A-TIVES are the finest medicine in the world for women.

As a mild and gentle laxative—as a positive and speedy cure for Constipation and Biliousness—as the only cure for weak and irritated kidneys and especially for "that pain in the back"—as a positive cure for headaches—and as a general tonic to build up and invigorate the whole system — FRUIT-A-TIVES stand supreme.

In cases of irritated Ovaries, Ovarian Pains, Vaginal Catarrh, Excessive and Scanty Menstruation, Ulcerations, Bearing Down Pains—and all those troubles peculiar to women—

Fruit-a-tives

have the most remarkable effect.

Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred of Female Troubles are due to neglect. Bowels become constipated — kidneys irregular — skin neglected — and the poisons of the body, which should be carried off by these important organs, are taken up by the blood carried to the female organs and poison them, thus starting up a train of female troubles.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are made from fruits and by their remarkable action on bowels, kidneys and skin, rid the system of poisons, purify the blood, and restore the delicate organs of generation to new vigor and health.

No woman, who suffers, should ever be without them. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50, at your druggist's or sent postpaid by

FATAL RIOT IN QUEBEC

Buckingham, Town of 3,000, Centre of a Strikers' Fight.

Guns Were Used Freely—Two Strikers Are Dead, and Two Others Wounded Will Likely Die—Twenty Strikers Were Hit by Bullets, While 21 Out of 22 Police and Detectives Were Wounded, Some Seriously.

Buckingham, Que., Oct. 9.—Two men were killed and two more will die from wounds received in a strike riot, which amounted to a pitched battle between the police and strikers at Buckingham yesterday afternoon. Guns were used with telling effect. About twenty of the strikers were hit, and twenty-one out of twenty-two police and detectives were also wounded. The dead:

Strikers Killed.

Thomas Belanger, leader, aged 35, of St. Jerome, Que., leaves widow.

Francois Therrault, unarmed, aged 40, leaves widow and seven children.

Strikers Seriously Injured.

Felix Fauvelle, aged 65, shot in stomach, likely to die.

Edward Minor, aged 31, thigh fractured.

Adelard Hamelin, aged 30, bullet wounds in legs.

Isidore Renaud, aged 28, shot in back.

Emery Hamelin, aged 22, wounded in neck.

Baptiste Clement, aged 45, wounded in arm, neck and head.

Dolor Hamelin, aged 34, shot in arm and hand.

Felix Lacelles, aged 30, shot in arm.

X. Codieux, aged 28, shot in head.

Xavier Tremblay, aged 29, wounded in leg.

Louis Gervaise, aged 32, wounded in arm.

There were several other minor casualties.

Police Injured.

Chief Frank Kernan, shot in head, not dangerous.

Detective Herbert Warner, Montreal, several shots in body, may die.

Detective Peter Picard, Montreal, seriously wounded, will probably die.

Detective Lavit, Montreal, seriously wounded, will probably recover.

Constable James Kernan, wounded in arm.

Sixteen other police and detectives were hit, but not seriously.

Demands Refused.

A month ago the employes of the James MacLaren & Co.'s lumber mills struck for higher wages. They had been paid $1.25 per day, and they demanded $1.50, which is the wages paid by W. H. Kelly, the other important lumber merchant at Buckingham. The MacLaren Co. refused to give the raise and 500 men were affected. Three hundred left the town for the lumber camps, while 200 remained to await developments.

Matters went on quietly until yesterday, when the news leaked out that MacLaren & Co. had brought down a number of strike-breakers. Seventeen of these men began to work at 7 yesterday morning and broke two of the booms two miles above the town.

Drive Men From Town.

A meeting of the men was called and it was decided to drive them out of the town. First Messrs. Albert and Alexander MacLaren were notified, but they refused to listen to compromise and the union men determined to take action after dinner.

At 1 o'clock they gathered on the shore of the Lievre River, and marched four abreast along the edge of the river towards the main street landing, which is about half-way to the mills. The strike-breakers had brought some logs down so far.

The police and detectives with Albert and Alexander MacLaren, were lined up to bar the way. Again Belanger offered the men's terms, but they were refused and he intimated that the union were determined to drive away the strike-breakers.

The men again advanced and here the testimony varies. The statement most heard is that the police fired first, though the police aver that the strikers were the first to open fire.

Police First to Fire.

Uninterested witnesses, with the exception of one, state that the police fired a blank shot first, which was replied to by the strikers. At any rate, it is admitted by all parties that the riot act was not read and for this omission the police are being strongly censured.

At the first volley by the police, who were only ten yards away from the strikers, Thomas Belanger, the union leader, fell mortally wounded. He was shot in five places, one shot pierced his right breast, and tore its way downwards through his body, another went through his heart, another entered his head as he fell and came out at his eye.

Police Put to Rout.

Immediately firing became general, and men fell groaning on every side. With fury the strikers, now without a leader, charged the police, who turned and fled to the bush. The fire of the unionists was wild and ill-directed, else not a man would have lived. They had several rifles among them and many revolvers.

Firing backwards as they ran, the police did more damage, and Francois Therriault, who was unarmed, was shot through the heart. He was 40 years of age and leaves a widow and seven young children. Other men fell wounded, and, seeing the slaughter of the French-Canadians, became more savage in the pursuit.

Militia Reach Scene.

With the police totally routed and the strike-breakers scattered in every direction the victorious unionists retired quietly to their homes and awaited events. The two MacLarens, who had been fired at, but had escaped injury, sent to Ottawa for the military, and late last night 111 men of the G. G. F. G. and the 43rd D. C. O. R. and a machine gun squad arrived in Buckingham, under Col. Hodgins and Major Morrison. Peace reigned, however. They will remain here pending settlement. Sheriff Wright of Hull is also in the town.

The bodies of two dead men were examined by the coroner and a jury and an inquest will be held to-day. The town is under military command and the soldiers are parading the streets.

Strikers Merciful.

Only one of the police party escaped without a scratch. Chief of Police Frank Kernan was shot through the head, but he will recover, while his brother, James Kernan, also of Buckingham, had his hand shattered. When the pursuing strikers found a policeman prostrate they mercifully let him be. One policeman on his knees threw away his revolver, and, waving a white handkerchief, begged for his life. They spared him.

The Town of Buckingham.

Buckingham is a town of about 3,000 population in Labelle division, Ottawa County, about 20 miles northeast of Hull, on the C. P. R. The Lievre river brings down the logs to the town from several hundred miles in the interior. Besides its large lumber interests the town has large chemical works and pulp mills. Phosphorus is also mined and shipped in large quantities.

The MacLarens are a well-known firm, having been in business at Buckingham for 20 years.

Rowdy University "Hustle."

Toronto, Oct. 9.—What may be the last "hustle" around the university took place yesterday. It was the annual clashing of the first and second year students. The disorder attained such dimensions that police interference was requested, first by the university authorities and later by residents on College and McCaul streets, where the crowd of boisterous young fellows betook themselves and carried on for nearly two hours, shrieking, yelling, punching, pushing and tearing clothes. Several students were slightly hurt but nothing serious.

CRIMINAL CASE FOLLOWS CIVIL.

Evidence Given In Seduction Charge Causes a Sudden Arrest.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—As the outcome of evidence given in the Assize Court yesterday afternoon, before Justice Falconbridge, Walter Follett was placed under arrest by Constable Walter Stewart at the City Hall.

Follett, who comes from near Eversley, King Township, was the defendant in a suit brought by Mrs. Tawse, for damages for seduction of her daughter, Elizabeth Tawse, 25 years old.

Miss Tawse told the story of her engagement to the defendant, and its sad results, and in her evidence mentioned that the defendant had secured her drugs and instruments from Aurora.

The jury gave the plaintiff a verdict of $1,600 damages, and while they were coming to that conclusion County Crown Attorney Drayton decided that Follett must answer the criminal charge of getting the drugs and the instruments.

Albert Lamb Killed.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The terribly mangled body of Albert Lamb, a G. T. R. yardman, was found beside the tracks near the foot of Peter street at about 10.30 last night. The circumstances indicate that Lamb was struck by the yard engine. He was seen alive about an hour before the body was discovered. Lamb was married and had one child. He was 33 years of age.

Special Privilege For Canadians.

London, Oct. 9.—(C. A. P.)—A party of Canadians were granted the special privilege of admittance to the reserved platform on the King's arrival at Euston Station. Their presence was made known to His Majesty, who turned toward them, walked a few paces in their direction, bowed and smiled in response to their loyal greetings.

Two Bombs Thrown.

Kasan, Russia, Oct. 9.—Two bombs were thrown yesterday at Vice-Governor Kobeko, but he was only slightly injured. The would-be assassin escaped.

PILES

CURED QUICKLY AND PAINLESSLY — NO RISK, NO DANGER.

A Free Trial Package to Convince Sent by Mail to All Who Write.

Common sense is just as necessary (even more so) in medicine as in business or the affairs of every day life. People are getting to know more than they used to. Not so long ago, it was the fashion to make all sorts of claims for a medicine, and wind up by asking the reader to go to a drug store and buy a bottle. People won't stand for that kind of thing now. They want proof — tangible proof. They want to try the remedy first and if they find it to be what is claimed they will be glad enough to go and buy it.

That is why we say to every person suffering from piles or any form of rectal disease, send us your name and we will gladly send you a free trial package. For we know what the result will be. After using the trial you will hurry to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box of Pyramid Pile Cure, now admitted by thousands to be one of the most wonderful reliefs and cures for Piles ever known.

"Please excuse my delay in writing to you sooner in regard to what your Pyramid Pile Cure has done for me. I consider it one of the finest medicines in the world for piles. I suffered untold misery for four months when my wife begged me to send for a 50c box. When it was half done I knew I was better and it didn't take any begging to get me to send for a second box. I think I am about well now, but if I feel any symptoms of a return I will order at once. I order it from the Pyramid Drug Co., to be sure of the cure. Tell all about this fine remedy for piles.

"And if there is anything in this letter you want to use do so. I received your letter a few days ago. Yours for a remedy like Pyramid Pile Cure J. J. McELWEE,

Honey Grove, Tex. R.R. 9, Box 29.

"P.S.—I only used two boxes and don't think I need any more. Piles of seven months' standing."

To get a free trial package send to-day, to the Pyramid Drug Co., 55 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan. It will come by return mail and the results will both delight and astonish you.

PACIFICATION COMPLETE.

Just a Little Friction In Cuba Over Reinstatement of a Mayor.

Havana, Oct. 9.—The reports received by the Provisional Government show that the pacification of Cuba is practically complete, with the exception of the Province of Santa Clara, where matters are rapidly nearing a settlement.

The only trouble known to exist is at Alquizar, Province of Havana, where the Liberals and Moderates are about equally divided and irritation has been caused by the reinstatement of a Liberal mayor. It is believed that the 30 rural guards there will be able to keep the peace.

BAD COLLISION IN N. S.

Two Work Trains Crash; One Man Is Dead, Another Dying.

Glace Bay, N. S., Oct. 9.—The worst collision in the history of the Sydney & Louisburg Railway took place about four miles from this town yesterday afternoon, and as a result one man, Norman McLellan, is dead. His brother, Daniel, is dying and nine were injured.

The accident was caused by a collision between No. 6 and No. 55, construction trains coming from Louisburg. It appears both trains thought they had a clear track.

BARGE PASADENA WRECKED.

Three of Her Crew Drown In Big Storm On Superior.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 9.—A terrific gale was raging on Lake Superior last night. The barge Pasadena, in tow of the steamer Gladstone, was blown on the rocks and is a total wreck. Three of her crew were drowned, while seven others reached shore after a terrific battle with the surf.

The Gladstone made the harbor safely.

Fatal Fight Between Negroes.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 9.—Samuel Washington, colored, was arraigned before Police Magistrate Cruickshank yesterday morning on a charge of aggravated assault on another colored man named Daniel Little. The assault occurred on Saturday night. Little died yesterday morning. An attempt was made to get a statement from him, but he was not conscious enough to speak intelligibly. The most serious wound visible on his body is a hole in the face, passing through the nose, which is alleged to have been caused by a punch from Washington's umbrella.

SURE OF BEATING FIELDING.

Shelburne-Queen's Bye-Election May Be Held on Nov. 8.—Dr. Weldon Is to Oppose the Minister.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 9.—The decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in dismissing the personal charges against Hon. Mr. Fielding will permit the local judges to at once transmit to the Speaker their certificate declaring the seat to be vacant, and it is rumored that a writ for the bye-election in Queen's and Shelburne will issue without delay.

The election will probably be fixed for Nov. 8.

On Friday next there will be a big Conservative rally at Shelburne, and Dr. R. S. Weldon, ex-M. P., will be named as the Conservative candidate. He is looked upon as one of the best and ablest men of the province, and the Conservatives are confident of Mr. Fielding's defeat.

Fielding Appeal Dismissed.

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Supreme Court gave judgment when it met yesterday in the Shelburne and Queen's election case. The unanimous decision of the court is "That the sole question disallowed by the trial judges was properly so rejected, and that the appeal should be dismissed, with costs, and the necessary certificate forwarded to the Speaker of the House of Commons." This disposes of the case against Mr. Fielding.

WITNESSES A-PLENTY.

Hundred London Men to Tell of Bribery At Election.

London, Oct. 9.—It is rumored that Tom Lewis will go to Toronto on Thursday and tell the whole truth about the election corruption here in the last bye-election if he is given immunity from punishment.

It is said a vast amount of evidence has been secured by the authorities, and a hundred London voters have been subpoenaed to give evidence.

It is expected charges of perjury will be launched against untruthful witnesses as soon as the preliminary enquiry closes. So much evidence has been gathered that anyone telling falsehoods is likely to be detected.

Jerry Collins says if given the chance he will tell more. He has taken steps to sue Hon. Mr. Hyman for $30,000 for an alleged statement, charging him with attempting to extort blackmail, and he says he will sue The Advertiser for $15,000 for defamation of character.

LOSES HIS LICENSE.

Magistrate Hunt Considers Orwell Man Not Fit to Run Hotel.

St. Thomas, Oct. 9.—David Butler, proprietor of the Orwell Hotel, who was convicted last week of keeping a disorderly house, was yesterday fined $50 and costs, amounting to $16.50, the maximum penalty for a first offence.

Magistrate Hunt also annulled the license, observing that judging by Butler's demeanor on the stand he was an unfit person to conduct a hotel.

In passing sentence the magistrate repeated what he said last week about the local option hotels of Yarmouth and Southwold.

Magistrate Hunt's decision will likely be appealed to the Divisional Court at Toronto.

Succession Dues.

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The total receipts for succession duties for September, 1906, were $23,032, according to the latest returns from the Treasury Department. Last year the receipts for September were $9,687; the increase for the present month being $13,345. The gross receipts to Sept. 30, 1906, are $408,118, being an increase over the same period last year of $4,235.

Oliver, Scott, Lamothe and J. B. Hunter Wanted as Witnesses.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior; Hon. Walter Scott, Premier of Saskatchewan; H. G. Lamothe, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, at Ottawa, and J. B. Hunter, Hon. Mr. Hyman's private secretary, have been served with subpoenas at Ottawa requiring them to appear and testify on behalf of the crown on Thursday next in the London bye-election bribery case.

University Issues Writ.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—The board of Governors of the University of Toronto, through Kerr, Davidson, Paterson and McFarland, yesterday issued a writ against Thomas W. Hollwey and Leonard Foulds to compel an accounting with regard to the transactions in connection with the sale of the old U.C.C. site as building lots. The land in question was sold to Foulds through Hollwey, acting for the university in two blocks for $23,000, and $16,500 respectively. It is stated that part of the lands have already been sold for $34,000, and that the balance held is worth $30,000.

Buffalo Flyer Derailed.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Running at between 50 and 60 miles an hour, the G. T. R. express for Buffalo (No. 21) left the rails at Burlington Junction and the engine just missed crashing into the train for Allandale (No. 56), which was on an adjoining siding. Every coach of the Buffalo train was derailed, as well as the rear coach of the other train, but no one was seriously hurt. Miss Kelly of Toronto was the only person reported injured, and she only slightly.

Alleged Embezzler Arrested.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 10.—Charles Darlington, managing director of the Maritime Gasoline Engine and Supplies Co., a Toronto concern, was arrested here early yesterday morning on board a launch by the deputy sheriff after putting up a stiff fight, in which the sheriff's officer was cut somewhat. The prisoner is charged with embezzlement of about $2,100. Darlington was arraigned in the police court yesterday and remanded.

Two Men Drowned.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 10.—At Point Tupper yesterday W. A. Anderson, 22 years old, I C. R. night operator at Point Tupper, and Fred Porrier, a friend, 20 years old, a son of Car Inspector Porrier, started to sail across the strait in a boat. A squall struck the boat and it upset. Both were drowned.

All Disarmed But One Band.

Havana, Oct. 10.—The disarmament commissioners in Santiago report that all the insurgents in that province have been disbanded with the exception of one band, which is in an inaccessible region near Bayamo.

Tragedy at Buckingham

Arrests of Strikers and Opponents For Murder, Etc.

Albert and Alexander McLaren, Mayor Vallilee, Detective Kiernan, Special Constable Cameron and Bailiff Cummings on the One Side and Strikers Hilaire Charette, Isadore Renaud and Adelard Hamlin on the Other.

Buckingham, Que., Oct. 10.—The strike situation here has vastly changed. Yesterday three strikers were arrested, viz., Hilaire Charette, who was examined before Magistrate Pearson in the afternoon, and Isadore Renaud and Adelard Hamlin, two wounded men who are still in the hospital.

But no sooner was this sensation over than on the other side several of the prosecutors and police were arrested for murder and attempted murder and taken to Hull by Sheriff Wright and Chief Provincial Detective McCaskill.

They were Albert and Alexander MacLaren, two of the partners of the lumber company; James Kiernan, brother of the chief of police; J. E. Vallilee, mayor of Buckingham; Bert Cameron, a special constable, and J. C. Cummings, the bailiff of Buckingham.

The day was wet and miserable and quiet was the order throughout. In the afternoon the ratepayers of the town held a public meeting, at which it was decided to ask the Minister of Militia who was responsible for the bringing of the military to Buckingham, and who was to foot the bill.

Says Strikers Shot First.

Shortly after this, in the presence of the militia, the arrests began, and in the court house the evidence of Chief of Police Frank Kiernan, who was wounded, was heard. He swore that the strikers had fired first and declared that if they had not returned the fire they would all have been killed. The examination was postponed.

Afterwards the prisoner, Charette, was allowed his liberty on his own recognizances, and the same procedure was adopted in the case of all the other prisoners.

Despite the fact that order is thoroughly restored, 50 Royal Canadian Dragoons from St. Johns, Que., arrived here last evening. This, it is believed, is to prevent further rioting when the company begins to move the logs down the river, which, it is said, will be done some time to-day.

Twenty special constables came up from Montreal during the day in case of necessity. Talking with the men yesterday, they said they were as determined as ever, though they will endeavor to maintain order, and are averse to violence.

Some of the younger ones declare they are willing to die in defence of their rights.

Strong Case For Men.

In independent circles it is believed that the union men have a strong case against the MacLaren company, the mayor, and the police, who are stated generally to have fired the first shots. In any case, big developments are anticipated.

The main hope of the strikers in the case before the courts is still the fact that Mayor Vallilee, who is general manager for the MacLaren company, though acting for the strike-breakers, made no attempt to read the Riot Act. Counsel for the strikers declares that, all the circumstances considered, the strike-breakers have thus played into the hands of the men.

A SHAMEFUL BETRAYAL.

People of Newfoundland Wax Wrathy, Feeling That Britain Sacrificed the Colony's Interests.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 10.—Popular anger against the modus vivendi arranged by the United States and British Governments relating to the Newfoundland herring fishery is growing. There is a general feeling that the compromise arrived at was a backdown on the part of the British ministry.

Archbishop Howley, the Roman Catholic primate, speaking on Sunday at a parochial festival, declared the modus vivendi a shameful betrayal of the colony's interests, and advocated agitation throughout the colony against it. He urged an immediate calling of the Legislature, spirited protests to the throne, the despatch of delegates to England and Canada, and an appeal to all autonomous British colonies to join in resisting what he termed an unbridled invasion of colonial rights.

The Telegram, the Premier's organ, ascribed the modus vivendi yesterday to the craven policy of timid Downing street bureaucrats, and expressed the hope that the Newfoundland Government will show the same resentment and spirit of determination and teach Little Englanders like Lord Elgin and Winston Churchill the same lesson that the colonists of Natal taught them when they tried to ride roughshod over the colony a few months ago.

Billingsgate.

London, Oct. 10.—C(A.P.)—The Leader describes the Archbishop of St. John's declaration, that the modus vivendi is a shameful betrayal of the interests of Newfoundland as Billingsgate.

The Daily Graphic declares the fisheries arrangement to have fully justified the intense indignation with which it is regarded in Newfoundland.

The Morning Post again insists on the necessity of the colonies being equipped with armaments sufficient to give their diplomatic requirements the necessary backing.

The Standard declares the present Government has deserted the sound precedent established by the Newfoundland treaty of 1904, and has granted totally unreasonable claims.

Taft Proclaims Amnesty.

Havana, Oct. 10.—Charles E. Magoon, the newly-appointed provisional Governor of Cuba arrived in Havana yesterday. Coincident with his coming Governor Taft gave out a general decree proclaiming amnesty not only to the rebels, but to all persons charged with political offences or crimes in any way connected with the revolution.

Lost Child in Wolf's Den.

St. Joseph's, Minn., Oct. 10.—After being lost for two days, during which the entire countryside joined in a hunt for her, 4-year-old Margaret Schweitzer, daughter of a well-to-do farmer, was found unharmed in a wolf's den in the forest near here yesterday morning. The child was well and apparently contented, but scolding her rescuers for having driven away the "nice little doggies" with which she had been playing.

Placing Boundary Buoys.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 10.—The United States cruiser Morrell and the Canadian cruiser Vigilant have begun the work of setting buoys to mark the boundary between the American and Canadian waters in Lake Erie. The placing of the buoys at intervals of five miles will, it is hoped, eliminate all further cause of annoyance between the fishermen of the two countries.

Well Put!

Political victory attained by corruption is not worth while to any party.

The huzzas, the parades and the red fire of the bye-election of June 13, 1905, passed in a night.

The shame in the exposure of the means by which that victory was obtained will remain a stench in the nostrils of decent people for all time.

Conscious now, if not before, that he is not the choice of his fellow-citizens for the seat he occupies in the House of Commons, what does it profit Charles Smith Hyman that he was the seeming victor on the eve of that fateful June 13?

The whole party he assumed to lead has been disgraced. Respectable men are loth to acknowledge themselves affiliated with the Liberal party in London. The very name of this fair city has been made a reproach.

Unfortunately responsibility for the shocking conditions which have been revealed cannot be avoided by Hon. Mr. Hyman. When he permitted men like O'Gorman, Mulloy, Lewis, Collins and others to operate in his behalf, he became responsible for them.

The record of these men in election campaigns was commonly known, and it cannot be doubted that Mr. Hyman was fully conscious of it.

After all, was the work of any of these men so very different from that of Cabinet Ministers who hunted votes in East Elgin in company with railway subsidy hunters flaunting before the electorate lavish public expenditures as the price of their votes?—London Free Press.

Will U. S. Absorb Cuba?

President Roosevelt declares that the present intervention of the U.S. in the political affairs of Cuba is merely for the pacification of that distracted country. That accomplished the troops will be withdrawn, and Cubans given another chance to develop their own methods of government.

This is in strict accordance with the agreement entered into when the U. S. declared war against Spain, and when it put a clause in the Cuban constitution reserving the right to take practical possession of the country if the government there should fail.

The following is the pledge which the U. S. Congress solemnly made:

"That the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intent to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island, except for the pacification, when that is accomplished, to leave the government and control of the island to its people."

This clause was complied with, but in setting the Cubans up in political freedom, the following reservation, known as the Platt amendment, was made a part of the Cuban constitution:

"That the Government of Cuba consents that the United States may intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a Government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty, and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris, now to be assumed and undertaken by the Government of Cuba."

It is under these provisions that the Government at Washington has asserted its authority, in order to restore tranquility.

Whether the island will in a time more or less distant be under American authority "for keeps" depends altogether upon the native behavior. With the whites and negroes at chronic loggerheads, however, that consummation must be the eventful outcome. That is, indeed, what most of the American people are looking forward to. The action of Secretary Taft in taking temporary control, with the Cuban flag flying over everything and Cuban office holders in their places, is regarded as a gradual and conservative approach to the ultimate and inevitable.

It is natural to think that Canadian and other foreign investors in Cuban enterprises would not be greatly alarmed at such an outlook.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says: "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents Samples free To be had at R. Templeton & Co., drug store.

"Civis" writes, "It is amusing to see a member of the City Council, who has been, apparently, in the matter of back taxes, asleep all summer, suddenly wake up with a start and introduce a motion which sounds very trenchant. The chairman of the Executive, I noticed by your report of the Council proceedings, introduced a motion on Monday evening making it imperative for the Tax Collector to return the 1905 roll by November 6. But what about the rolls of previous years? Have they all been returned? If not, what has the militant alderman to say about them? If my memory serves me right, the same alderman, early last January, started out with a flourish of trumpets, and was going to revolutionize the system of tax collections, which system, however, does not seem to have been much improved. Is his latest move going to prove another false alarm? We shall see."

The Kingston News of a recent date had the following, which fits the case of Belleville quite as well as Kingston. There is a whole lot more truth than poetry in it:

"A citizen was shocked recently to hear a very humane old lady tell how she disposed of a pet kitten which took sick and which she had not the heart to destroy. She carried it out one night in a basket and let it loose in the streets some distance from its home. Later it was learned that the poor thing was worried by dogs on the streets for nearly a week, and until a cruel monster of a man took it into his back yard and shot it. What treatment could be more cruel than the action of this tender-hearted old lady. The practice of losing domestic animals rather than summarily disposing of them is quite common in Kingston among those who wouldn't even step foot upon a worm, with the result that neighbors are pestered and the animals caused much pain and suffering. The citizen has made up his mind, if he comes across another case of domestic animals being lost in order to get rid of them, to certainly place the matter in the hands of the magistrate. Prosecution would be well deserved. Turning an old horse out to die of starvation is no worse than the kitten case."

The Mail and Empire, of Saturday last, contained the following bouquet for Magistrate Flint: 'The editor of Woman's Kingdom sends a vote of thanks to Magistrate Flint, of Belleville, Ont., for his sentence of 15 days in jail and a fine of $10 on James Collins, the boy who threw a live cat through a window, 'cutting the animal severely.' Of late there has been a marked decrease in wanton cruelty of that kind, and if other magistrates will follow the example of Magistrate Flint, and punish severely cruel actions of this kind, we may hope for a day when civilization will rest on the higher plane of gentleness and kindness to the animals who live with us and who are so pathetically grateful for any little attention and kindness we may show them.'"

American Took the First.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9.—The Chicago team of the American League won from the National League pennant winners to-day 2 to 1 in the first game of the world's championship series. The game furnished a fine sample of modern baseball, wherein the fine points of the game are more in evidence than the slugging of other days, but it was an error of puerile character which gave the American League the winning run. And that error also is the reason that tonight supporters of the winning team formerly demanding odds in the betting, are willing to take even money on the series.

Following is the summary.

	R.	H.	E.
American	2	4	0
Nationals	1	4	2

HOCKEY.

Peterboro Will Play Senior.

Peterboro, Oct. 9.—Encouraged by their success in landing the intermediate hockey championship of Ontario last winter, the Peterboro team will endeavor to duplicate the performance in senior company this season. Nearly all of last winter's team are here, but there were a couple of weak spots, and the management have turned their attention to outside points to secure men. In their search they came across F. McStravick, of Ottawa, and he has accepted a position here, and is now in the city. McStravick played with the Emmets of Ottawa last season, and is said to be fast and aggressive. He will be played on one of the forward positions of the local team. It is also said that "Marty" Walsh, of Kingston, will don a Peterboro sweater when the hockey season opens.

SPORTING NOTES.

Globe — (published in strictly virtuous Toronto) — A number of young men who have changed their places of abode just prior to the 1st of October will probably want to move back again when they find their names are not in the list of playing certificates issued by the O. H. A. for the coming season.

Marty Bergen, a famous old-time jockey, died Monday at Gravesend of pneumonia. Bergen had the distinction of riding the fastest mile ever recorded in this country, when he rode Salvator his memorable race against time, the straightaway mile at Monmouth Park in 1.35 1-2.

New York fight fans, who saw the Nelson-Gans pictures, declare that no foul was committed, and that Gans either laid down or Nelson was robbed. So says one of the leading sporting editors in New York, too.

A remarkable coincidence is noted in this year's finish of major league clubs. The two Chicago teams will finish first in their respective leagues, the New York teams second, the Philadelphia teams fourth and the Boston eighth. If the Cardinals and the Browns were only ranked the same the parallelism would be complete.

Brockville may not have a Federal league hockey team this winter, and may pin their faith to the intermediate O.H.A. Invincibles, which latter team, by the way, was anything but invincible last winter, having been given a record walloping by Peterboro.

What Part?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Bay Of Quinte.

IS THE NAME OF INDIAN OR FRENCH ORIGIN — A HACKNEYED QUESTION AGAIN DISCUSSED.

Time and again there has been discussion of the origin of the name of the Bay of Quinte, and in view of that fact the following from the editor of Notes and Queries in the Montreal Star, may be of interest:

The nearest approach to the name of Quinte held by any Frenchman known was that of Prince Le Conti. This person was a particular friend of Chevalier de la Salle, to whom was ceded the Seignory of Cataraqui. "Chevalier de Tonti went with him proposing to share his fortunes" in western explorations. Now La Salle named one of the islands near Cataraqui (Amherst) after this officer, and even yet may be found living persons who call that island Isle Tanta. Well, it might reasonably be supposed that La Salle would wish to do honor to his friend, the Prince de Conti and therefore named the bay after him. From Conti it might gradually change to Canta or Quinte. Now, however probable this may seem, it cannot be regarded as the origin of the name.

Again, it has been supposed to be derived from the Latin Quintanus or Quinta,—the fifth place, — having reference to five bays, namely, the lower bay, Picton Bay, Hay Bay, The Reach and upper bay; or, as some aver, it refers to five Indian stations existing in the vicinity of the bay but, however much may be advanced in support of the plausibility of these theories, we think a more certain origin is perfectly intelligible.

The word Quinte, as at present spelled and pronounced, when rightly done, is undoubtedly a French one, being one of the few remaining memorials of French possession; but its origin can be distinctly traced to an Indian source.

We have seen elsewhere that the country lying north of Lake Ontario was called the "Country of the Northern Iroquois." To the south of the lake was the Iroquois Country proper. Among the several nations which composed the Iroquois confederation were the Seneques, or commonly called Seneca. Wentworth Greenhalgh, in the "London Documents," writing of a journey in May, 1677, from Albany to the Indians, westward, says; "The seneques have four towns, viz.: Canagora, Tiotohalton, Canoenada and Keint-he—which contained about twenty-four houses, and was well furnished with corn." Now, the Indian term Keint-he, be it remembered, was written by an English explorer, and of course was spelled in accordance with the pronunciation of the Indians. Every one knows that the letters of the alphabet have a different sound in the French language. If, therefore, a French writer were to write the English term Keint-he, it is not unlikely he would spell it Kanta or Kente Examining the old French maps made by some of the early travellers through Canada, but bearing dates subsequent to 1677, we find marked with distinctness an Indian village, sometimes in one place, sometimes in another, by the name a number of different maps, which we have examined in various libraries in Canada, and in the Imperial library in Paris.

It is not always spelled Kente, sometimes it is Kante, and upon one it is Kenti, and upon the map in the Imperial Library, in Paris, it is Kento. This Indian village has its location upon most of the maps at the extremity of Hay Bay; but upon a few it is placed at the south shore of the Peninsula of Prince Edward. Upon one map it is put at South Bay, while in another, Wappoose Island is called Isle de Quinte; hence it is inferred that a branch of the Seneca tribe, separated from the main body, and removed to the north of the lake, and settled probably first at South Bay, and afterwards, or at certain seasons, visited Hay Bay, to which, in time, they gave their name—that of Kente, according to the pronunciation of the French. It was an easy matter to convert Kente into Quinte. In other words we find that K and Qu are used indifferently among early writers of New France; for instance, Quebec is spelled by early writers, Kebec. The origin of the word Quinte seems, in this way, to be perfectly clear."

This communication on the subject of the origin of the name "Bay of Quinte," which was lately asked for, was received from Mr. A. G. Parker, of the Bank of Montreal, Hamilton, by one of my literary friends who has handed it to me for publication. Mr. Parker adds; "I procured the enclosed extracts from a book owned by Mr. Arthur McGinnis, the one antiquarian of Belleville, the one only man there to speak on the subject. The theory of a French officer named Quinte having given his name to the Bay, he thinks an unlikely one. It seems pretty clear that the name had an Indian derivation, Dr. William Canniff believed in 'Kente,' an Indian town in Prince Edward County to the South of the Bay."

A CROWN OF GLORY.

As Well as a Mark of Beauty is Luxurious Hair.

It has been truly said that the crowning glory of our race is a luxuriant head of hair.

It used to be thought that this was one of the blessings which the gods bestow capriciously, and it is only recently that scientists have discovered that its beauty is dependent upon the absence of a minute germ which flourishes in the hair follicles, where it destroys the life of the hair.

To restore this life and kill the germs which cause the mischief is the mission of Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide surely kills the germs, and is the best hair dressing on the market.

It contains no grease or oil, neither will it stain or dye.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

The Horse Industry

THOSE WHO WILL INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS IN THIS DISTRICT.

As stated in these columns a few days ago, the Whitney Government has taken steps to investigate the horse industry in this province, with a view to bettering the condition of things in general relating to the trade. The province has been divided into districts and commissioners appointed to preside at meetings and gather data in regard to conditions. District No. 6, in which the County of Hastings is, has for commissioners Messrs. J. G. Clark, of Ottawa, and Jas. Irving, of Winchester.

The meetings in District No. 6 will be held as follows:

COUNTY OF HASTINGS.

Public meeting, Madoc, Oct. 17, 7.30 p.m.

West Hastings Institute District, Oct. 9 to 10, starting at Frankford.

East Hastings Institute District, Oct. 11 to 13, starting at Belleville.

North Hastings Institute District, Oct. 15 to 17, starting at Tweed.

COUNTY OF PETERBORO.

Public meeting, Peterboro, Oct. 24, 7.30 p.m.

East Peterboro Institute District, Oct. 18 to 20, starting at Havelock.

West Peterboro Institute District, Oct. 22 to 24, starting at Peterboro.

COUNTY OF VICTORIA.

Public meeting Lindsay, Oct. 31, 7.30 p.m.

East Victoria Institute District, Oct. 25 to 27, starting at Omemee.

West Victoria Institute District, Oct. 29 to 31, starting at Lindsay.

COUNTY OF DURHAM.

Public meeting, Orono, Nov. 9, 7.30 p.m.

East Durham Institute District, Nov. 1 to 5, starting at Port Hope.

West Durham Institute District, Nov. 6 to 9, starting at Burketon.

COUNTY OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

Public meeting, Brighton, Nov. 15, 7.30 p.m.

West Northumberland Institute District, Nov. 10 to 12, starting at Cobourg.

East Northumberland Institute District, Nov. 13 to 15, starting at Colborne.

COUNTY OF PRINCE EDWARD.

Public meeting, Picton, Nov. 20, 7.30 p.m.

Prince Edward Institute District, Nov. 16 to 20, starting at Bloomfield.

FUNERAL.

FENN.—The funeral of the late Mrs. A. V. Fenn will take place at 1.30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 11, 1906, from her late residence, Foxboro. Service in the Methodist Church, Foxboro.

S. A. Officer Leaves.

A very pleasant event took place in the Salvation Army apartments on Monday night, when Staff Capt. Perry was presented with an address flowing with words of love and devotion, and a very fine pair of Persian lamb gauntlets. The presentation was made by the converts only, those whom she has helped to reform and live Christian lives. Her work here shows that she was more than the ordinary Army officer, as she has to her credit the reformation of two of the worst drunkards in Belleville, now living sober and industrious Christian lives, as well as a life-long infidel; also a number of other notable cases. Having her mother living with her she has not hesitated to use her home influence to help to bring about these results. Mrs. Perry left early this morning to attend the annual council in Toronto. It is not yet known where her next appointment will be, nor is it yet known who will succeed her here, but she will not only be followed by the prayers and good wishes of these converts, but by thousands of the leading Christian workers of Belleville.—Com.

Ameliasburg Fair.

The Ameliasburg fair, held at Roblin's Mills on Saturday last, was a failure in so far as attendance was concerned, the gate receipts being only $17.25. However, the exhibits both inside the hall and outside were about equal to former years, and fully sustained the reputation the Society has had for years.

Very few were in attendance but exhibitors, and the judges had to be selected from among those present, the previously selected judges not in all cases being present. The result, of course, was possibly different than might have been had previously arranged plans been carried out. The Society did the best they could under the circumstances. Those who attended the fair tried to enjoy themselves, and make the best of the disappointment. The side-shows, candy stands, etc., etc., left the grounds early in the day. The loss with some will be heavy, as a good deal of provisions had been cooked and baked up. Taking everything into account it was an unlucky day for the Ameliasburg Agricultural Society, but they have had so many favorable days in the past this one set-back will not lessen their enthusiasm for another in the least.

Investigation Soon

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education and Acting Prime Minister, said yesterday that the investigations into the charges in connection with the Belleville Institute for the Deaf and Dumb and the Brantford Institute for the Blind would be commenced shortly. The principals of both institutions had asked this to be done. The enquiries will be made by Mr. A. J. Russell Snow, of Toronto. Dr. Pyne stated that the relations between himself and Principal Mathison, of the Belleville Institution, who is about to retire in order to become Supreme Secretary of the I.O.F., had always been of a most cordial nature.

HUMOR

TEACHING HER A LESSON.

Sauntering Sim's Lecture to a Woman on the English Language.

"I think," said the kind lady, "that you will find work right around the corner there."

"Madam," said Sauntering Sim, "I was born and bred in Boston. I am sorry that you used those words. Carelessness in the use of our sacred language is to me far more distressing than hunger."

"What do you mean?" she demanded with considerable spirit, for she had once been a schoolteacher and prided herself on her parts of speech.

"That little word 'will,'" he replied. "Ah, how often it is misused! Have you ever heard of the lady who fell from the steamboat and called 'Help, help?'"

"I don't remember it," she answered.

"Well," he went on, "this poor woman fell into the water, having neglected to inform herself concerning the proper use of the words 'will' and 'shall.' It happened that no heroes were on deck when she went overboard; therefore her appeals for help were made in vain. 'Help, help, help!' she shouted, but no one went to her assistance, and in despair she cried: 'Nobody shall help me! I will drown!' What she meant, of course, was: 'Nobody will help me! I shall drown!' You see what a difference the transposition of those two small words makes."

"But I don't know what that has to do with me," the lady said.

"Alas," he almost sobbed, "alas, alas! Why will people who are otherwise fairly intelligent make such woeful assaults upon our beloved English? You said, 'I think you will find work around the corner.' Mark the misuse of the word 'will.' If you had said, 'I think you may or might find work around'"—

But she let the dog out just then, and the lecture was off.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sir Henry Roscoe tells this of the scientist Faraday and his assistant, Sergeant Anderson: "Anderson was the sole assistant to Faraday and of course was utterly uneducated in scientific matters, but he could obey orders, which is not always a characteristic of an educated man. One day Anderson was told by Faraday to keep stirring a pot containing some chemicals over a fire until he returned, Faraday being in the habit of going upstairs to tea in his rooms and coming down directly afterward to work in the laboratory during the evening. For some reason he was prevented from coming down again and forgot that he had told Anderson to watch the pot. On coming down the next morning he found Anderson still stirring the pot, having been at it the whole night and thus carrying out the order which was given him."

Turkey's Way of Raising Revenue.

The land in all Turkey and her dependencies belongs to the reigning sultan and is only occupied at his will. It is divided among those who wish to cultivate it at a nominal rental of one-fifth of the produce, which goes directly to the crown. Three-fifths more are taken from the lessee on other pretexts, all for the maintenance of the government, the pasha in each district having the authority to lease the ground and collect the taxes, which may be in kind or money. If crops are short, they take four-fifths of all the man has in animals and even in household utensils, sometimes all his possessions, to make up the deficiency which Providence has withheld. Everything that can produce, be it a tree, beast, fowl, worm or the labor of a man and his family, is subject to the four-fifths tax. Those who toil at any labor or trade other than agriculture are taxed also pro rata according to their wages and must pay or go to prison.

Just a little bit o' pillar
 Where to lay yer sleepy head
When the workin' day is ended,
 Just a rooftree's shelter, too,
Also, just a little lovin'
 When the clouds are crowdin' you.

Oh, it's just the bit o' lovin'
 Makes the world seem green and glad;
Just a little bit o' baby
 With her arms held out to dad;
Just a little baby's mother
 Workin' 'round you with a song—
Oh, the world is never gloomy,
 And the day is never long.

Oh, I wouldn't traded places
 With old Russell Sage at all;
With no baby's kiss to greet him,
 And no baby voice to call
Out in joy at his home-comin',
 And to run to him in glee—

The London Free Press criticizes Independent and Conservative journals who are saying that Hon. Mr. Hyman should resign because of the exposure of the methods by which his election was obtained. Is this fair to Mr. Hyman? asks the Free Press. Do these journals stop to consider that it probably cost Mr. Hyman and his friends forty thousand dollars to secure his seat in the House of Commons? How can they reasonably expect him to give up the seat merely because he has been found with the stolen goods in his possession? Let these journals therefore not speak too hastily.

HUMORS OF THE LAW.

One day as John W. Mugridge, the lawyer, and Judge Minot were walking along the street in Concord, New Hampshire, together, Mr. Mugridge, in his sepulchral voice said; "Judge, let's go in partnership. You furnish the capital and I'll furnish the brains."

The judge quickly pulled a two-cent piece from his pocket, and, holding it in the palm of his hand, said to Mugridge: "Very well; cover that, John! Cover that!"

An old lawyer, in speaking recently about General Ben Butler, said: "Ben Butler was a terror and torment to the judges. On one occasion Judge Sanger, having been bullied and badgered out of all patience, petulantly asked, 'What does the counsel suppose I am on this bench for?'

"Scratching his head a minute, Butler replied; 'Well, I confess your honor's got me there.'"

While the Hon. E. B. Flynn, of Springfield, Mass., was on his way to the Supreme Court one day he carried under his arm several law books. A friend remarked to him, pointing to the books, 'Why, I thought you carried all that stuff in your head?'

"I do," quickly replied Flynn, with a knowing wink; "these are for the judges."

F. M. Beckford, of Laconia, New Hampshire, was once arguing a case in the Belknap county court, and he opened his argument as follows:

"Your honor and gentlemen of the jury: This case is one peculiar in circumstances as well as in fact. It came to me as a legacy from my late brother, Col. T. J. Whipple, who was engaged in its preparation at the time of his death. The county attorney who brought the case into court has long since gone to his great reward. The justice who held the original hearing has long since passed away. Our Attorney-General Barnard, since he became interested in the case has been called to that land where litigation is not known. Several of the leading witnesses, too, are dead—"

"All of which," said the court, "reminds us of the uncertainty of human life. Proceed, or none of us will be able to see the case through."

A new rule has been issued that if ladies desire to smoke they must get into a smoking carriage with the men passengers. Ladies' carriages are a feature of all continental railways and women always have utilized them to smoke in. Complaints from non-smoking ladies have been so frequent of late that the authorities issued the new rule. There must be no smoking in ladies' carriages in future under a penalty of $20 fine.

NOTIFIES SIR WILFRID

That Provinces Stand Together For Increased Subsidy.

Two Resolutions Adopted by the Premiers In Conference at Ottawa—Demand For Increased Subsidy Is Without Prejudice to the Special Claims of Three Provinces—Ask For Measure of Temporary Relief.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—The provincial representatives reached a unanimous agreement yesterday afternoon. They have been in conference for two days endeavoring to reconcile the differences which existed between the various provinces in their claims for an increased allowance from the Dominion treasury.

Two resolutions were adopted. They will be presented to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the other Federal Ministers this morning.

The first of these resolutions declares the need for increased allowances, as outlined in the Quebec resolutions in 1902, viz.:

Eighty cents a head of the population of the provinces, as shown by the last census figures.

An increase in the allowance for legislation, and

An allowance of 20 cents a head for the administration of criminal justice.

This was unanimously agreed to without prejudice to the claim of any province to special consideration owing to the peculiar claims for better treatment.

The second resolution declares that pending the amendment to the British North America Act, necessary to give effect to the first resolution, the Canadian Parliament should, at the next session, enact a measure for the temporary relief of the provinces.

Sir Wilfrid Notified.

The chairman of the provincial conference, Premier Gouin, has informed Sir Wilfrid that a unanimous agreement has been reached, and that the conference would like to lay its resolutions before the Federal Government this morning. This will be done at 11 o'clock behind closed doors, as all of the proceedings have been conducted.

At 1 o'clock yesterday Mr. R. L. Borden entertained the members of the conference at luncheon in the Senate Restaurant. Among those invited were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. Wm. Paterson, Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Hon. R. Lemieux, Mr. Speaker Sutherland, Hon. J. P. Whitney, Hon. J. J. Foy, Hon. A. J. Matheson, Hon. Lomer Gouin, Hon. A. Turgeon, Hon. A. Tessier, Hon. W. A. Weir, Hon. G. H. Murray, Hon. Arthur Drysdale, Hon. L. J. Tweedie, Hon. W. Pugsley, Hon. Arthur Peters, Hon. G. E. Hughes, Hon. R. P. Roblin, Hon. C. H. Campbell, Hon. Walter Scott, Hon. J. H. Calder, Hon. H. C. Rutherford, Hon. C. S. Cross, Hon. R. McBride, Hon. Joseph Pope, Mr. Chas. Marcil, Mr. R. H. Pope.

Guests of Canadian Club.

Last night the visiting Premiers were the guests of the Canadian Club at a banquet in the Russell House, and there were some 150 guests. Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke in his usual felicitous way and all the visiting Premiers spoke.

Pain in the Back Completely Cured by Bu-Ju.

The Strong Testimony of a Toronto Man.

The wearing pain of Kidney Disorder need no longer be endured as a necessary evil—for science has at last succeeded in compounding a remedy, in Bu-Ju, that cures quickly and surely the worst Kidney Troubles.

Bu-Ju is every day earning for itself the lasting gratitude of sufferers all over the Province—and all we can say in praise of it is more than backed up by those who have been relieved and cured by it. Read this letter:

The Claflin Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

I am anxious that you should know the relief and benefit I have derived from taking your Bu-Ju Pills.

I first got a sample from Geo. Marshall, Druggist, 310 Queen St. E., and was so much benefited that I decided to take more.

The effect has been marvellous.

I had suffered severely for years with pain in the back—especially on rising in the morning—but I am pleased to say that the pain has completely disappeared. Before using Bu-Ju I tried every remedy I heard of for Kidney Troubles without ever receiving relief.

I strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to take Bu-Ju without delay.

Yours truly, (signed) CHAS. E. LUSTY,
3 Taylor St., Toronto, Ont., May 15, 1906.

When years of severe suffering yield so speedily to Bu-Ju, do not doubt that it will cure you—get a free sample to-day. It will prove to you that Bu-Ju is different from anything else you have ever tried.

At all dealers'—50c. a box—or by mail from the Claflin Chemical Co., Windsor. Money back if not as represented. 48

ADDS TO THE REVENUE.

Improved Bookkeeping In Provincial Secretary's Department Responsible For Increased Receipts of $250,000.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—A quarter of a million increase in the annual revenue of the Provincial Secretary's Department alone is the cheerful report of the Whitney Government in anticipation of Thanksgiving.

This is a conservative estimate from the figures already available for the nine months ending Sept. 31. The receipts in the main office to Oct. 1 were $133,042, as compared with a total for the twelve months of 1905 of $131,909. The estimated increase for the year is $35,000.

About $125,000 will be derived from licenses, and the extra sums from paying patients in the asylums, the central prison industries, public institutions and miscellaneous items compose the balance.

Much of the increase is found to come from the improved collections possible under the systematic method of bookkeeping adopted last session.

The increase has been a steady one, the total revenue in the main office for 1904 having been $104,438. The total in 1905 was $131,909, and as estimated this year will be $250,000. From all the branches under the Provincial Secretary the revenue last year was $670,-000. This year it will not fall far short of $1,000,000.

ONTARIO'S TIMBER.

$230,000 Is Estimated Gain Under New System of Sale.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—An estimated gain of $230,000 is the result of the first provincial timber sale on the principle of asking tenders for a bonus over and above the regular dues.

Sixteen berths have been sold to the highest bidders on the tenders called for last July. The prices are bonuses paid in addition to the regular crown dues of $2 a thousand feet board measure on pine, and five cents a tie crown dues on the railway sleepers. The berths are in the Rainy River districts.

Be of good courage; that is the main thing.—Thoreau.

BLOOD DISEASES

Guaranteed Cured or No Pay.

Like Father Like Son.

If you ever had any constitutional, acquired or hereditary blood disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been removed from the system. You may have had some disease years ago, but now and then some symptom alarms you. Some poison still lurks in your system. Can you afford to run the risk of more serious symptoms appearing as the poison multiplies? Beware of mercury or mineral drugs used indiscriminately—they may ruin the system. Thirty years' experience in the treatment of these diseases enables us to prescribe specific remedies that will positively cure all blood diseases of the worst character, leaving no bad effects on the system. Our New Method Treatment will purify and enrich the blood, heal up all ulcers, clear the skin, remove bone pains, fallen out hair will grow in, and swollen glands will return to a normal condition, and the patient will feel and look like a different person. All cases we accept for treatment are guaranteed a complete cure or no charge.

Reader if in doubt as to your condition, you can consult us FREE OF CHARGE. Remember the old adage, "a stitch in time saves nine." Beware of incompetent doctors who have no reputation or reliability. Drs. K. & K. have been established over 27 years. You can pay after cure.

CHAPTER I.

David Steel dropped his eyes from the mirror and shuddered as a man who sees his own soul bared for the first time. And yet the mirror was in itself a thing of artistic beauty—engraved Florentine glass in a frame of deep old Flemish oak. The novelist had purchased it in Bruges, and now it stood as a joy and a thing of beauty against the full red wall over the fireplace. And Steel had glanced at himself therein and seen murder in his eyes.

He dropped into a chair with a groan for his own helplessness. Men have done that kind of thing before when the cartridges are all gone and the bayonets are twisted and broken and the brown waves of the foe come snarling over the breastworks. And then they die doggedly with the stones in their hands, and cursing the tardy supports that brought this black shame upon them.

But Steel's was ruin of another kind. The man was a fighter to his finger-tips. He had dogged determination and splendid physical courage; he had gradually thrust his way into the front rank of living novelists, though the taste of poverty was still bitter in his mouth. And how good success was now that it had come!

People envied him. Well, that was all in the sweets of the victory. They praised his blue china, they lingered before his Oriental dishes and the choice pictures on the panelled walls. The whole thing was still a constant pleasure to Steel's artistic mind. The dark walls, the old oak and silver, the red shades, and the high artistic fittings soothed him and pleased him, and played upon his tender imagination. And behind there was a study, filled with books and engravings, and beyond that again a conservatory, filled with the choicest blossoms. Steel could work with the passion flowers above his head and the tender grace of the tropical ferns about him, and he could reach his left hand for his telephone and call Fleet Street to his ear.

It was all unique, delightful, the dream of an artistic soul realized. Three years before David Steel had worked in an attic at a bare deal table, and his mother had £3 per week to pay for everything. Usually there was balm in this recollection.

But not to-night. Heaven help him, not to-night! Little grinning demons were dancing on the oak cornices, there were mocking lights gleaming from Cellini tankards that Steel had given far too much money for. It had not seemed to matter just at the time. If all this artistic beauty had emptied Steel's purse there was a golden stream coming. What mattered it that the local tradesmen were getting a little restless? The great expense of the novelist's life was past. In two years he would be rich. And the pathos of the thing was not lessened by the fact that it was true. In two years' time Steel would be well off. He was terribly short of ready money, but he had just finished a serial story for which he was to be paid £500 within two months of the delivery of the copy: two novels of his were respectively in their fourth and fifth editions. But these novels of his he had more or less given away, and he ground his teeth as he thought of it. Still, everything spelt prosperity. If he lived, David Steel was bound to become a rich man.

And yet he was ruined. Within twenty-four hours everything would pass out of his hands. To all practical purposes it had done so already. And all for the want of £1,000! Steel had earned twice that amount during the past twelve months, and the fruits of his labor were as balm to his soul about him. Within the next twelve months he could pay the debt three times over. He would cheerfully have taken the bill and doubled the amount for six months' delay.

And all this because he had become surety for an absconding brother. Steel had put his pride in his pocket and interviewed his creditor, a little, polite, mild-eyed financier, who meant to have his money to the uttermost farthing. At first he had been suave and sympathetic, until he had discovered that Steel had debts elsewhere, and then——

Well, he had signed judgment, and to-morrow he could levy execution. Within a few hours the bottom would fall out of the universe so far as Steel was concerned. Within a few hours every butcher and baker and candlestick-maker would come abusively for his bill. Steel, who could have faced a regiment, recoiled fearfully from that. Within a week his oak and silver would have to be sold and the passion flower would wither on the walls.

Steel had not told anybody yet; the strong man had grappled with his trouble alone. Had he been a man of business he might have found some way out of the difficulty. Even his mother didn't know. She was asleep upstairs, perhaps dreaming of her son's greatness. What would the dear old mater say when she knew? Well, she had been a good mother to him, and it had been a labor of love to furnish the house for her as for himself. Perhaps there would be a few tears in those gentle eyes, but no more.

David lighted a cigarette and paced restlessly round the dining-room. Never had he appreciated its quiet beauty more than he did now. There were flowers, blood-red flowers, on the table under the graceful electric stand that Steel had designed himself. He snapped off the light as if the sight pained him, and strode into his study. For a time he stood moodily gazing at his flowers and ferns. How every leaf there was pregnant with association. There was the Moorish clock droning the midnight hour. When Steel had brought that clock——

"Ting, ting, ting. Pring, pring, pring, pring. Ting, ting, ting, ting."

But Steel heard nothing. Everything seemed as silent as the grave. It was only by a kind of inner consciousness that he knew the hour to be midnight. Midnight meant the coming of the last day. After sunrise some greasy lounger pregnant of cheap tobacco would come in and assume that he represented the sheriff, Bills would be hung like banners on the outward walls, and then——

"Pring, pring, pring. Ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting, ting. Pring, pring, pring."

Bells, somewhere. Like the bells in the valley where the old vicarage used to stand. Steel vaguely wondered who now lived in the house where he was born. He was staring in the most absent way at his telephone, utterly unconscious of the shrill impatience of the little voice. He saw the quick pulsation of the striker and he came back to earth again.

Jefferies of the Weekly Messenger, of course. Jefferies was fond of a late chat on the telephone. Steel wondered grimly, if Jefferies would lend him £1,000. He flung himself down in a deep lounge-chair and placed the receiver to his ear. By the deep, hoarse clang of the wires, a long-distance message, assuredly.

"From London, evidently. Halloa, London! Are you there?"

London responded that it was. A clear, soft voice spoke at length.

"Is that you, Mr. Steel? Are you quite alone? Under the circumstances you are not busy to-night?"

Steel started. He had never heard the voice before. It was clear and soft and commanding, and yet there was just a suspicion of mocking irony in it.

"I'm not very busy to-night," Steel replied. "Who is speaking to me?"

"That for the present we need not go into," said the mocking voice. "As certain old-fashioned contemporaries of yours would say, 'We meet as strangers!' Stranger yet, you are quite alone!"

"I am quite alone. Indeed, I am the only one up in the house."

"Good. I have told the exchange people not to ring off till I have finished with you. One advantage of telephoning at this hour is that one is tolerably free from interruption. So your mother is asleep? Have you told her what is likely to happen to you before many hours have elapsed?"

Steel made no reply for a moment. He was restless and ill at ease to-night, and it seemed just possible that his imagination was playing him strange tricks. But, no. The Moorish clock in its frame of celebrities droned the quarter after twelve; the scent of the Dijon roses floated in from the conservatory.

"I have told nobody as yet," Steel said, hoarsely. "Who in the name of Heaven are you?"

"That in good time. But I did not think you were a coward."

"No man has ever told me so—face to face."

"Good again, I recognize the fighting ring in your voice. If you lack certain phases of moral courage, you are a man of pluck and resource. Now, somebody who is very dear to me is at present in Brighton, not very far from your own house. She is in dire need of assistance. You also are in dire need of assistance. We can be of mutual advantage to one another."

"What do you mean by that?" Steel whispered.

"Let me put the matter on a business footing. I want you to help my friend, and in return I will help you. Bear in mind that I am asking you to do nothing wrong. If you will promise me to go to a certain address in Brighton to-night and see my friend, I promise that before you sleep the sum of £1,000 in Bank of England notes shall be in your possession."

No reply came from Steel. He could not have spoken at that moment for the fee-simple of Golconda. He could only hang gasping to the telephone. Many a strange and weird plot came and went in that versatile brain, but never one more wild than this. Apparently no reply was expected, for the speaker resumed:—

"I am asking you to do no wrong. You may naturally desire to know why my friend does not come to you. That must remain my secret, our secret. We are trusting you because we know you to be a gentleman, but we have enemies who are ever on the watch. All you have to do is to go to a certain place and give a certain woman information. You are thinking that this is a strange mystery. Never was anything stranger dreamt of in your philosophy. Are you agreeable?

The mocking tone died out of the small, clear voice until it was almost pleading.

"You have taken me at a disadvantage," Steel said. "And you know——"

"Everything. I am trying to save you from ruin. Fortune has played you into my hands. I am perfectly aware that if you were not on the verge of social extinction you would refuse my request. It is in your hands to decide. You know that Beckstein, your creditor, is absolutely merciless. He will get his money back and more besides. This is his idea of business. To-morrow you will be an outcast—for the time, at any rate. Your local creditors will be insolent to you; people will pity you or blame you, as their disposition lies. On the other hand, you have but to say the word and you are saved. You can go and see the Brighton representatives of Beckstein's lawyers, and pay them in paper of the Bank of England."

"If I was assured of your bona-fides," Steel murmured.

A queer little laugh, a laugh of triumph, came over the wires.

"I have anticipated that question. Have you Greenwich time about you?"

Steel responded that he had. It was five-and-twenty minutes past twelve. He had quite ceased to wonder at any questions put to him now. It was all so like one of his brilliant little extravaganzas.

"You can hang up your receiver for five minutes," the voice said. "Precisely at half-past twelve you go and look on your front doorstep. Then come back and tell me what you have found. You need not fear that I shall go away."

Steel hung up the receiver, feeling that he needed a little rest. His cigarette was actually scorching his left thumb and forefinger, but he was heedless of the fact. He flickered up the dining-room lights again and rapidly made himself a sparklet soda, which he added to a small whisky. He looked almost lovingly at the gleaming Cellini tankard, at the pools of light on the fair damask. Was it possible that he was not going to lose all this, after all?

The Moorish clock in the study droned the half-hour.

David gulped down his whisky and crept shakily to the front door with a feeling on him that he was doing something stealthily. The bolts and chain rattled under his trembling fingers. Outside, the whole world seemed to be sleeping. Under the wide canopy of stars some black object picked out with shining points lay on the white marble breadth of the top step. A gun-metal cigar-case set in tiny diamonds.

The novelist fastened the front door and staggered to the study. A pretty, artistic thing such as David had fully intended to purchase for himself. He had seen one exactly like it in a jeweler's window in North Street. He had pointed it out to his mother. Why, it was the very one! No doubt whatever about it! David had had the case in his hands and had reluctantly declined the purchase.

He pressed the spring, and the case lay open before him. Inside were papers, soft, crackling papers; the case was crammed with them. They were white and clean, and twenty-five of them in all, Twenty-five Bank of England notes for £10 each—£250!

David fought the dreamy feeling off and took down the telephone receiver.

"Are you there?" he whispered, as if fearful of listeners. "I—I have found your parcel."

"Containing the notes. So far so good. Yes, you are right, it is the same cigar-case you admired so much in Lockhart's the other day. Well, we have given you an instance of our bona-fides. But £250 is of no use to you at present. Beckstein's people would not accept it on account—they can make far more money by 'selling you up,' as the poetic phrase goes. It is in your hands to procure the other £750 before you sleep. You can take it as a gift, or, if you are too proud for that, you may regard it as a loan. In which case you can bestow the money on such charities as commend themselves to you. Now, are you going to place yourself entirely in my hands?"

Steel hesitated no longer. Under the circumstances few men would, as he had a definite assurance that there was nothing dishonorable to be done. A little courage, a little danger, perhaps, and he could hold up his head before the world; he could return to his desk to-morrow with the passion flowers over his head and the scent grows sweet to his nostrils. And the mater could dream happily, for there would be no sadness or sorrow in the morning.

"I will do exactly what you tell me," he said.

"Spoken like a man," the voice cried. "Nobody will know you have left the house—you can be home in an hour. You will not be missed. Come, time is getting short, and I have my risks as well as others. Go at once to Old Steine. Stand on the path close under the shadow of the statue of George IV. and wait there. Somebody will say 'Come,' and you will follow. Good-night."

Steel would have said more, but the tinkle of his own bell told him that the stranger had rung off. He laid his cigar-case on the writing-table, slipped his cigarette-case into his pocket, satisfied himself that he had his latch-key, and put on a dark overcoat. Overhead the dear old mater was sleeping peacefully. He closed the front door carefully behind him and strode resolutely into the darkness.

CHAPTER II.

David walked swiftly along, his mind in a perfect whirl. Now that once he had started he was eager to see the adventure through. It was strange, but stranger things had happened. More than one correspondent with queer personal experiences had taught him that. Nor was Steel in the least afraid. He was horribly frightened of disgrace or humiliation, but physical courage he had in a high degree. And was he not going to save his home and his good name?

David had not the least doubt on the latter score. Of course he would do nothing wrong, neither would he keep the money. This he preferred to regard as a loan—a loan to be paid off before long. At any rate, money or no money, he would have been sorry to have abandoned the adventure now.

His spirits rose as he walked along, a great weight had fallen from his shoulders. He smiled as he thought of his mother peacefully sleeping at home. What would his mother think if she knew? But, then, nobody was to know. That had been expressly settled in the bond.

Save for an occasional policeman the streets were deserted. It was a little cold and raw for the time of year, and a fog like a pink blanket was creeping in from the sea. Down in the Steine the big arc-lights gleamed here and there like nebulous blue globes; it was hardly possible to see across the road. In the half-shadow behind Steel the statue of the First Gentleman in Europe glowed gigantic, ghost-like in the mist.

It was marvellously still there, so still that David could hear the tinkle of the pebbles on the beach. He stood back by the gate of the gardens watching the play of the leaf silhouettes on the pavement, quaint patterns of fantastic designs thrown up in high relief by the arc-light above. From the dark foggy throat of St. James's Street came the tinkle of a cycle bell. On so still a night the noise seemed bizarre and out of place. Then the cycle loomed in sight; the rider, muffled and humped over the front wheel, might have been a man or a woman. As the cyclist flashed by something white and gleaming dropped into the road, and the single word "Come" seemed to cut like a knife through the fog. That was all; the rider had looked neither to the right nor to the left, but the word was distinctly uttered. At the same instant an arm dropped and a long finger pointed to the gleaming white square in the road. It was like an instantaneous photograph—a flash, and the figure had vanished in the fog.

"This grows interesting," Steel muttered. "Evidently my shadowy friend has dropped a book of rules in the road for me. The plot thickens."

It was only a plain white card that lay in the road. A few lines were typed on the back of it. The words might have been curt, but they were to the point:—

"Go along the sea front and turn into Brunswick Square. Walk along the right side of the square until you reach No. 219. You will read the number over the fanlight. Open the door and it will yield to you; there is no occasion to knock. The first door inside the hall leads to the dining-room. Walk into there and wait. Drop this card down the gutter just opposite you."

David read the directions once or twice carefully. He made a mental note of 219. After that he dropped the card down the drain-trap nearest at hand. A little way ahead of him he heard the cycle bell trilling as if in approval of his atcion. But David had made up his mind to observe every rule of the game. Besides, he might be rigidly watched.

The spirit of adventure was growing upon Steel now. He was no longer holding the solid result before his eyes. He was ready to see the thing through for its own sake. And as he hurried up North Street, along Western Road, and finally down Preston Street, he could hear the purring tinkle of the cycle bell before him. But not once did he catch sight of the shadowy rider.

All the same his heart was beating a little faster as he turned into Brunswick Square. All the houses were in pitchy darkness, as they naturally would be at one o'clock in the morning, so it was only with great difficulty that Steel could make out a number here and there. As he walked slowly and hesitatingly along the cycle bell drummed impatiently ahead of him.

"A hint to me," David muttered. "Stupid that I should have forgotten the directions to read the number over the fanlight. Also it is logical to suppose that I am going to find lights at No. 219. All right, my friend; no need to swear at me with that bell of yours."

He quickened his pace again and finally stopped before one of the big houses where lights were gleaming from the hall and dining-room windows. They were electric lights by their great power, and, save for the hall and dining-room, the rest of the house lay in utter darkness. The cycle bell let off an approving staccato from behind the blankety fog as Steel pulled up.

There was nothing abnormal about the house, nothing that struck the adventurer's eye beyond the extraordinary vividness of the crimson blind. The two side-windows of the big bay were evidently shuttered, but the large centre gleamed like a flood of scarlet overlaid with a silken sheen. Far across the pavement the ruby track struck into the heart of the fog.

"Vivid note," Steel murmured. "I shall remember that impression."

He was destined never to forget it, but it was only one note in the gamut of adventure now. With a firm step he walked up the marble flight and turned the handle. It felt dirty and rusty to the touch. Evidently the servants were neglectful, or they were employed by people who had small regard for outward appearances.

The door opened noiselessly, and Steel closed it behind him. A Moorish lantern cast a brilliant flood of light upon a crimson carpet, a chair, and an empty oak umbrella-stand. Beyond this there was no atom of furniture in the hall. It was impossible to see beyond the dining-room door, for a heavy red velvet curtain was drawn across. David's first impression was the amazing stillness of the place. It gave him a queer feeling that a murder had been committed there, and that everybody had fled, leaving the corpse behind. As David coughed away the lump in his throat the cough sounded strangely hollow.

He passed into the dining-room and looked eagerly about him. The room was handsomely furnished, if a little conventional—a big mahogany table in the centre, rows of mahogany chairs upholstered in morocco, fine modern prints, most of them artist's proofs, on the walls. A big marble clock flanked by a pair of vases, stood on the mantelshelf. There were a large number of blue vases on the sideboard. The red distemper had faded to a pale pink in places.

"Tottenham Court Road," Steel smiled to himself. "Modern, solid, expensive, but decidedly inartistic. Ginger jars fourteen guineas a pair, worth about as many pence. Moneyed people, solid and respectable, of the middle class. What brings them playing at mystery like this?"

The room was most brilliantly lighted both from overhead and from the walls. On the shining desert of the dining-table lay a small, flat parcel addressed to David Steel, Esq., The novelist tore off the cover and disclosed a heap of crackling white papers beneath. Rapidly he fluttered the crisp sheets over—seventy-five Bank of England notes for £10 each.

It was the balance of the loan, the price paid for Steel's presence. All he had to do now was to place the money in his pocket and walk out of the house. A few steps and he would be free with nobody to say him nay. It was a temptation, but Steel fought it down. He slipped the precious notes into his pocket and buttoned his coat tightly over them. He had no fear for the coming day now.

"And yet," he murmured, "what of the price I shall have to pay for this?"

Well, it was worth a ransom. And, so long as there was nothing dishonorable attached to it, Steel was prepared to redeem his pledge. He knew perfectly well from bitter experience that the poor man pays usurious rates for fortune's favors. And he was not without a strange sense of gratitude. If——

Click, click, click. Three electric switches were snapped off almost simultaneously outside, and the dining-room was plunged into pitchy darkness. Steel instantly caught up a chair. He was no coward, but he was a novelist with a novelist's imagination. As he stood there the sweetest, most musical laugh in the world broke on his ear. He caught the swish of silken drapery and the subtle scent that suggested the fragrance of a woman's hair. It was vague, undefined, yet soothing.

"Pray be seated, Mr. Steel," the silvery voice said. "Believe me, had there been any other way, I would not have given you all this trouble. You found the parcel addressed to you? It is an earnest of good faith. Is not that a correct expression?"

David murmured that it was. But what did the speaker mean? She asked the question like a student of the English language, yet her accent and phrasing were perfect. She laughed again noiselessly, and once more Steel caught the subtle, entrancing perfume.

"I make no further apology for dragging you here at this time," the sweet voice said. "We knew that you were in the habit of sitting up alone late at night, hence the telephone message. You will perhaps wonder how we came to know so much of your private affairs. Rest assured that we learnt nothing in Brighton. Presently you may gather why I am so deeply interested in you; I have been for the past fortnight. You see, we were not quite certain that you would come to our assistance unless we could find some means of coercing you. Then we go to one of the smartest inquiry agents in the world and say: 'Tell us all about Mr. David Steel without delay. Money is no object.' In less than a week we know all about Beckstein. We leave matters till the last moment. If you only knew how revolting it all was!"

"So your tone seems to imply, madam," Steel said, drily.

"Oh, but truly. You were in great trouble, and we found a way to get you out. At a price; ah, yes. But your trouble is nothing compared with mine—which brings me to business. A fortnight ago last Monday you posted to Mr. Vanstone, editor of the Piccadilly Magazine, the synopsis of the first four or five chapters of a proposed serial for the journal in question. You open that story with a young and beautiful woman who is in deadly peril. Is not that so?"

"Yes," Steel said, faintly. "It is just as you suggest. But how——"

"Never mind that, because I am not going to tell you. In common parlance—is not that the word?—that woman is in a frightful fix. There is nothing strained about your heroine's situation, because I have heard of people being in a similar plight before. Mr. Steel, I want you to tell me truthfully and candidly, can you see the way clear to save your heroine? Oh, I don't mean by the long arm of coincidence or other favorite ruses known to your craft. I mean by common sense, logical methods, by brilliant ruses, by Machiavelian means. Tell me, do you see a way?"

The question came eagerly, almost imploringly, from the darkness. David could hear the quick gasps of his questioner, could catch the rustle of the silken corsage as she breathed.

"Yes," he said, "I can see a brilliant way out that would satisfy the strictest logician. But you——"

"Thank Heaven! Mr. Steel, I am your heroine. I am placed in exactly the same position as the woman whose story you are going to write. The setting is different, the local coloring is not the same, but the same deadly peril menaces me. For the love of Heaven hold out your hand to save a lonely and desperate woman whose only crime is that she is rich and beautiful. Providence had placed in my hands the gist of your heroine's story. Hence this masquerade; hence the fact that you are here to-night. I have helped you—help me in return."

It was some time before Steel spoke.

"It shall be as you wish," he said. "I will tell you how I propose to save my heroine. Her sufferings are fiction; yours will be real. But if you are to be save by the same means, Heaven help you to bear the troubles that are in front of you. Before God, it would be more merciful for me to be silent and let you go your own way."

CHAPTER III.

David was silent for some little time. The strangeness of the situation had shut down on him again, and he was thinking of nothing else for the moment. In the dead stillness of the place he could hear the quick breathing of his companion; the rustle of her dress seemed near to him and then to be very far off. Nor did the pitchy darkness yield a jot to his now accustomed eyes. He held a hand close to his eyes, but he could see nothing.

"Well?" the sweet voice in the darkness said, impatiently. "Well?"

"Believe me, I will give you all the assistance possible. If you would only turn up the light——"

"Oh, I dare not. I have given my word of honor not to violate the seal of secrecy. You may say that we have been absurdly cautious in this matter, but you would not think so if you knew everything. Even now the wretch who holds me in his power may have guessed my strategy and be laughing at me. Some day, perhaps——"

The speaker stopped, with something like a sob in her throat.

"We are wasting precious time," she went on, more calmly. "I had better tell you my history. In your story a woman commits a crime: she is guilty of a serious breach of trust to save the life of a man she loves. By doing so she places the future and the happiness of many people in the hands of an abandoned scoundrel. If she can only manage to regain the thing she has parted from the situation is saved. Is not that so?"

"So far you have stated the case correctly," David murmured.

"As I said before, I am in practically similar case. Only, in my situation, I hastened everything and risked the happiness of many people for the sake of a little child."

"Ah!" David cried. "Your own child? No! The child of one very near and dear to you, then. From the mere novelist point of view, that is a far more artistic idea than mine. I see that I shall have to amend my story before it is published."

A rippling little laugh came like the song of a bird in the darkness.

"Dear Mr. Steel," the voice said, "I implore you to do nothing of the kind. You are a man of fertile imagination—a plot more or less makes no differ-

THE QUEST OF THE GOLDEN GOOSE

In hunting for a business or occupation most people are really hunting for a goose that will lay golden eggs.

The commonest aspiration is to so construct and devise a business enterprise that it becomes almost automatic—so that when the play-fever touches the blood one may "let go," sit at one side, and watch for the daily golden egg with a certainty of its appearance.

Every business man has, in his store or enterprise or venture, a possible golden goose—a present golden gosling. It rests with himself alone whether he will raise the bird or not—whether it will arrive at golden-goosehood or perish from neglect and ignorance.

These birds require much attention, much care—and they must be fed, if you would have them grow to goosehood: and their natural diet is—advertising!

No golden goose was ever raised to a "working age" if the food was stinted, or denied, or adulterated or substituted.

The merchant who "knows things" is satisfied to invest silver in food for the gosling—because, after many days, the silver will return in golden eggs.

Such investment may require a little faith—but more common sense.

Is your business enterprise progressing toward GOLDEN GOOSEHOOD?

Amputation Avoided

ZAM-BUK CURES EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF CHRONIC ULCER.

KINGSTON LADY CURED AFTER HAVING BAD LEG FOR FIVE YEARS

A powerful example of the healing virtue of Zam-Buck is provided by the case of Mrs. Lizzie Gilmour, who resides with Mrs. Walthen on Princess street, Kingston, (Ont.): "Five years ago," she says, "I bruised my left-leg just above the ankle, causing an ulcer, which developed into a very serious wound. There was soon an ulcerated sore around my limb like a bracelet. The foot and ankle were swollen to nearly three times the normal size, and I had to give up wearing a shoe. The pain was terrible. I had medical attendance and was also treated by a New York doctor, but I got no ease. Then I went into a hospital and was there for nine long months. While there it was at one time thought advisable to amputate the limb, but this was not done, and at the end of 9 months I left the hospital. Soon afterwards the ulcer was as bad as ever, and as I thought of all the pain and suffering I had gone through I felt absolutely discouraged.

At this stage I read in the newspaper about Zam-Buk. I determined to make one more attempt to get a cure. The first few applications brought me the only relief from agony I had had for a long time. The swelling went down as I persevered with the Zam-Buk treatment and the ulcer took on a cleaner and more healthy appearance. All the poisonous matter was cleaned out by the balm, and the ulcer then began to heal. New pink flesh has now grown where before was a raw and inflamed sore. Eight boxes of Zam-Buk have done the work! I can now walk about, and go up and down stairs, and I cannot feel too grateful for what Zam-Buk has done for me. I deem it my duty to let others who suffer as I have suffered know of this excellent preparation."

Zam-Buk cures eczema, abscesses, ringworm, scalp sores and all skin diseases by a process of clearing out the poisonous secretions and building up new healthy tissue. It is also a cure for cuts, burns, bruises, sore feet, chafing sores, chapped hands, etc. It stops bleeding, eases the itching and smarting of piles, and in a hundred ways is the handiest and best household balm. All druggists sell at 50 cents a box or direct from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price (6 boxes for $2.50). Send one-cent stamp and full name and address and a free sample box will be mailed to you.

Pays a Compliment To Belleville Cheese

Brockville Times: G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor for Eastern Ontario, who was in town to-day, has just completed a tour of inspection of 35 cheese factories in the Brockville district, and found that only three of the lot had any September made cheese on the shelves. His visits to these factories were made on October 2nd, 3rd and 4th. One of the factories had three days' make, two of them had two days' make, and three of them had first of October made cheese shipped out. From this, he says, some idea may be gleaned of the greenness and unfit-for-market state of a quantity of the product being shipped from the Brockville district. He has had enquiries from dealers in England asking why it is that many of the cheese shipped from Brockville section shrink from two to three pounds per box more than cheese shipped from either Peterboro or Belleville districts. Under the existing conditions, he thinks, that the reason is not hard to find. The Peterboro and Belleville districts have as a rule very few too green cheese shipped to market. Generally the cheese in these latter districts are kept on the shelves of the factories for at least 10 days before being sent on to market. In view of the existing state of affairs, and to do the utmost that he and the instructors under him can do to remedy the manifest detriment caused by the unwise method of marketing Mr. Publow has written to each of the instructors under him the following letter of instructions:

Dear Sir,—When in Montreal last week I found in talking with the merchants that they were very anxious about the quality of the October cheese. I would like to have you do your very best to have each of your makers turn out fine quality for the balance of the season.

It is certain that the fall make will not reach the consumer before next Spring, and owing to the extremely high prices that are being paid, it is essential that the quality should be such as will ensure a strong consumptive demand. The kind of cheese which demand the highest prices are those having clean flavor, waxy body, silky texture, bright uniform color and good finish.

With such weather as we are now having, makers should have no difficulty in turning out cheese of this quality if they are careful and use good judgment. Warn them against the use of poor starters, and the development of too much acid, and of insufficiently cooked curbs. Urge them to be careful on the stand when receiving the milk and to reject any that is not suitable for the manufacture of fine cheese.

Yours truly,
G. G. PUBLOW.

The Forgetful Saurian.

A colored preacher took some candidates for immersion down to a river in Louisiana. Seeing some alligators in the stream, one of them objected.

"Why, brother," urged the pastor, "can't you trust the Lord? He took care of Jonah, didn't he?"

"Y-a-a-s," admitted the darky, "but a whale's diff'rent. A whale's got a mem'ry, but ef one o' dem gators wus ter swaller dis nigger he'd jes' go ter sleep dar in de sun an' fergit all 'bout me."—Woman's Home Companion.

Developed the Jury.

A little girl whose father was a photographer was taken for the first time to a courtroom while a case was being tried. On returning home she was asked concerning what she had seen and heard. Her description of the judge's charge was this:

"The judge made a long speech to the jury of twelve men and then he sent them into a dark room to develop."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Euphony.

"He eats pie for breakfast," they say to the beautiful young thing who is going to be introduced to the man.

"How uncouth," she shudders.

"But he is worth forty millions," they continue.

"Ah, he is not uncouth!" her mother says gently. "He is merely eccentric, Millicent, dear."—Judge.

In the Chorus.

"Mazie and Flossie have settled their little quarrel, haven't they?"

"Yes. They met in the dressing room just before the performance and kissed each other."

"But somebody told me they kissed and made up."

"They always make up."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Possible Explanation.

"I wonder why the editor prints the marriage notices directly under the death notices?" queried the typewriter boarder, as she glanced over the local paper.

"I don't know," rejoined the fussy bachelor, "unless it is to remind us that the fools are not all dead yet."—Chicago News.

Maidenly Modesty.

"Ah my love," sighed the ardent lover, "if you only knew how beautiful you are!"

"You mustn't say that," protested the dear girl. "I don't want to know."

"Why not?"

"Because it would make me too conceited."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Fair Warning.

"What would you do," she queried, "if I should faint."

"I'd catch you in my arms and kiss you," he replied.

"Get ready," she said.—Detroit Tribune.

A WOMAN'S WAY WITH A MAID

How One Housekeeper Disposed of the Servant Problem.

During fifteen years, writes a woman to Good Housekeeping, I have had in my service six girls who have been a comfort and help such as no mere servant can be.

I have never paid wages higher than my neighbors have done, and our home is so small that a maid has to be content with humble accommodations.

I have given, however, what every mistress does not bestow—frequently does not believe in—a certain friendliness, cordial sympathy, an interest in the inner life of a girl whose flesh and blood, whose heart, ambitions and loves are not so different from my own.

One plan I have carried out for years has aided me largely in making the best of each maid who comes into my household. Once a month I give her an afternoon of companionship, not in the duties of the house, but in some little trip or recreation she chooses by herself.

Sometimes I accompany her to a matinee, while on pleasant summer days we go picnicking in the woods or to some shore resort. There have been afternoons spent in museums and art galleries, when I have been really astonished at what a glimpse of things rare and beautiful means to such a girl.

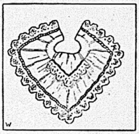
If you will try it, making yourself a key to the mysteries of such an exhibit, you will really find a great deal of pleasure in it. Hundreds of women go out of their way to do such work from a settlement standpoint, but it never occurs to them to give such a pleasure to a girl working in their own kitchens.

It is not alone the pleasure given that is appreciated; it is the companionship and kindly interest I find most valued. The holiday I give is not the weekly Thursday off; it is some other convenient day, and you will find, as I do, that the work has all been satisfactorily completed before the vacation occurs.

THE BABY'S BIB.

A Pretty One Can Be Made Out of a Handkerchief.

A baby cannot have too many bibs, and there is nothing a mother appreciates more than gift bibs for her baby. The pretty bib here shown is made of a handkerchief. One corner cut out at the back forms the little frill under the chin. A pretty baby pin set into the bib makes it a more valuable gift.



HANDKERCHIEF BIB.

Another pretty bib can be made of sheer lawn, embroidered with the transparent embroidery, which consists of catstitch done on the wrong side of the material. For the flowers and simple outline stitch for the stems and scrolls set the embroidered lawn on to a heavy linen back. Trim the whole with a pretty valenciennes lace edge.

Reading Aloud at Home.

Young girls should be encouraged to read aloud frequently. There is no lovelier accomplishment. Not the declamatory style of reading which professional elocutionists acquire and which, because it is intended for public use, has a degree of exaggeration in both its tones and its action, but the quiet, sweet, sympathetic and intelligent rendering of a book into the living speech is what we should seek for. A girl frequently spends a great deal of time over studies which will do her very little good in her future life, says Woman's Life. The art of reading well and acceptably would enable her to grace any circle of friends; it would assist her to brighten the household; it would perhaps cause her to be as eyes to the blind and as an angel of relief in the room of the invalid.

Enlarged Pores.

The best way to correct a case of enlarged pores is to lay down certain hygienic rules of living and stick to them. Drink a great deal of water, so as to keep the kidneys in a perfectly healthy condition. Eat fruit to keep the digestive organs active. Take a course of complexion treatments that include massage and electricity. The idea is to set the glands and blood vessels about their business, so the skin will refine itself. It is when the pores are inactive and in an unhealthy state that they become small indentations. Use the complexion brush every night with warm water and pure castile soap, afterward applying creme marquis. The friction is good, and the habit of cleanliness is always commendable.

Branding the Baby.

Let a mother study the appearance of her child's body well and decide for herself whether there be about it any ineffaceable mark by which she could identify him anywhere and at any time. If there is nothing that time may not efface, then let her have him marked in such a way that she would know him. It is only a question of a few drops of India ink, an operation no more painful than vaccination.—Family Doctor.

A NOTED AUTHOR

On Eye Strain, speaking of latent strain (that is, some error not manifest by the ordinary tests), says; "With these illustrations in view it becomes emphatically suggestive when we see professional men simply directing their patients to look at Snellen's test type, and if they can read the letters indicating normal vision the subject of the eye is dismissed by them as having nothing to do with the case. When we think how much strain may exist under the most perfect vision, and consider its fatal consequences to life and happiness, such an examination and conclusion are not only careless, — but criminal. When the nerve centres have kept up these strains in adjusting the eyes for many years, the strain becomes a habit latent and continuous, even during the hours of sleep." We use the latest expert methods of detecting these latent strains.

Power And Personalities At The Board Of Trade.

Largely Attended Meeting Last Night, at Which Mr. J. A. Culverwell Did Not Have Everything His Own Way--Nothing Definite Done as Yet, But Some Good Suggestions Made--Delegates to London Spoke Briefly.

That the Board of Trade of this city is, after all, a live organization was evidenced last evening, when a meeting was held, in the Council chamber, the same being largely attended

Mr. R. J. Graham, president, occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Mayor Sulman, Ald. Panter, Sinclair, Cooper, Knox and Marsh; Messrs. W. N. Ponton, H. C. Hunt, W. B. Northrup, M.P., W. Alford, J. W. Johnson, F. H. Ketcheson, W. J. Diamond, R. W. Adams, J. T. Blackburn, J. W. London, H. Carre, W. C. Springer, B. E. Sills, W. B. Deacon, S. E. Lennox, Mr. Wardrope, F. B. Deacon, W. B. Robinson, A. A. Roberts, A. E. Lewis, C. S. Clapp, J. H. Reeves, B. Frederick, W. H. Lingham, James Rabbitts, Dr. MacColl, W. C. Reid, C. B. Scantlebury, J. H. Reeves, B. Frederick, C. Harte, W. Thompson, A. McGie, S. S. Lazier, E. F. Dickens, W. H. Ackerman, and several others.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, of Cobourg, who is interested in the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, was in attendance, as were also Messrs. Wade, Nesbitt and Dr. Stinson, of Brighton.

The meeting was called ostensibly for the purpose of receiving the reports of the delegates who attended the Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, held recently in London, Eng., but it really turned out to be a meeting for the discussion of electric power.

After the gathering had been called to order by the President, and some routine business had been transacted.

Mr. J. W. Johnson was first called upon and gave a few of his impressions in regard to the Congress, the deliberations of which, he said, would no doubt result in good. He referred to some of the trade matters discussed by that great gathering. The primary object of the Congress was to promote, by the best means, trade within the British Empire. Other matters concerning the Empire were also discussed, such as national defence. In this regard he was pleased that Canada was making provisions for its own defence. Mr. Johnson, before concluding his brief address, paid glowing tributes to ex-Mayor Graham and Col. Ponton, who were at the gathering and took prominent parts .

Col. Ponton also spoke briefly in reference to the Congress, which was attended by some 600 representative men of the British Empire. The subject was one that could not be dealt with in a hurry, there being many phases to speak upon. He referred to the part taken at the Congress by ex-Mayor Johnson and ex-Mayor Graham, both of whom he characterized as worthy representatives of the Belleville Board of Trade at the notable gathering. Before concluding the Colonel read some extracts from Mr. Johnson's address, which he delivered soon after the opening of the Congress .

Mr. Graham stated that the matter was of such importance that justice could not be done to it in a hurry, and at some future meeting the delegates would enlarge upon the subject. The question of power was a matter in which the citizens were interested, and some gentlemen who were present would be heard.

THE POWER QUESTION.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell addressed the meeting in reference to Healey Falls water power and the best means of obtaining cheap power for the city of Belleville. There was at present, he said, an available market here for 4,000 horse power of electric energy. A few years ago the city of Peterboro was a very dull place, but owing to the advent of cheap power it has gone ahead and to-day is reaping the advantage of cheap power. During the past four years Peterboro has used at least 12,000 horse power. Prominent gentlemen along the front of Lake Ontario are concerned in the Healey Falls power company, and many in Belleville were also interested. The company has in the dry season at least 4600 horse power. He had, within the past few days, purchased two additional water powers on the river Trent. There will be at least 25,000 horse power to be distributed along the cities, towns and villages along the lake front. He claimed that there was not, on the head waters of the river Moira, sufficient area to get a large reservoir of water so as to develop water power.

Mr. Graham asked Mr. Culverwell what properties the company had and what power could they develop.

Mr. Culverwell said the Healey Falls company owned three distinct portions to-day, and could develop 36 head of water power. It is a valuable property. Belleville was handicapped in the way of industries, because it did not have cheap electric power. Belleville could get iron industries, if cheap power was obtainable, as there was excellent water transportation here.

Mr. Johnson — "How far apart are these properties?"

Mr. Culverwell said there were situated near Campbellford. The company is developing water power and obtaining all the properties possible, so as to concentrate all of them

Mr. Northrup asked Mr. Culverwell if it was not a fact that the company he represented had really only 4,600 horse power to be distributed east and west.

Mr. Culverwell said the engineers' report showed that there was much more power than that.

Dr. Stinson, of Brighton, was called upon. He said he was present in the interests of Belleville, Cobourg, Brighton and other places in the matter of cheap power. The second report of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission states that 4,900 horse power can be developed upon the river Moira, whereas, according to Mr. Culverwell, the company he represents has but 4,600 horse power.

At this stage of the proceedings some personalities were indulged in. The chairman called the speakers to order, and requested that the matter of power, in which they were all interested, be discussed.

Dr. Stinson, continuing, said that what he and other delegates from Brighton desired was that the various municipalities unite in this matter and see what could be done towards securing abundance of power for all and at a cheap rate.

Ex-Mayor Johnson asked if there was any other way, other than by the formation of a company, by which water power could be developed.

Dr. Stinson said the Ontario Government had said they would do it, and we should hold them to it. Form a central committee, said the doctor, and let the matter be discussed pro and con. He had no ill-will against any member of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, but he did not think it was right for any one to be buying stock when they were not acquainted with the facts of the case.

Mr. Mikel—"Has Brighton applied to the Ontario Government for power?"

Dr. Stinson—"No, not exactly, but we will unite with other municipalities in so doing."

Mr. Nesbitt, of Brighton, said that he did not wish to deal in personalities. What he desired was that there should be concerted action by the various municipalities interested, so as to get power as cheaply as possible. There was an enormous amount of power on the River Trent, and, in his opinion, it was getting, as time rolled on, larger in volume.

Mr. Wade, of Brighton, endorsed the views of the previous speakers in regard to having a joint meeting of representatives.

Mr. Graham said they had heard, this evening, considerable about the power question, and a general meeting of representatives of all the municipalities might be held and the matter thoroughly gone into.

Col. Ponton asked if a representative of the Government could not be induced to come here and explain this matter? If the Government is willing to give aid in developing the power let us know it.

Mr. Nesbitt said he felt confident that Hon. Mr. Beck would come if he were invited.

Mr. H. C. Hunt said that there must of necessity be a beginning in this matter. Mr. Culverwell had shown the way for a beginning, and let us back him up. What he (the speaker) desired was cheap power for Belleville. Let all bickering be cast aside in this important matter, and let us get down to business.

This concluded the discussion and nothing definite was done or suggested.

The Brighton deputation, at this stage of the proceedings, withdrew.

GENERAL BUSINESS.

The President stated that it was desirable that a programme be provided for the Board meeting, and suggested that committee be appointed.

On motion a Nominating Committee consisting of Col. Ponton, Messrs. J. W. Johnson, H. C. Hunt and F. S. Deacon was appointed, said committee to draft other committees to carry on the work of the Board.

Col. Ponton stated that Mr. Girdleston, of Bristol, Eng., would be in this city on Thursday evening and give an address, and he hoped that there would be a large number of citizens present to hear him

Mr. Walter Alford suggested that a testimonial of some kind should be tendered to the delegates who so ably represented the Board at the Chambers of Commerce.

Ald. Sinclair was in hearty accord with the idea, and suggested that a banquet be held.

This was agreed to, and it was decided to hold a banquet at Hotel Quinte on Thursday evening, when Mr. Girdleston would be present.

A committee consisting of Mayor Sulman, Ald. Sinclair, Messrs. H. C. Hunt, J. T. Blackburn, W. Alford, W. B. Deacon, the President and other officers of the Board was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for holding the banquet.

MOTIONS.

Moved by Mr. Hunt, seconded by Mr. J. W. Johnson, that the Board regrets such members of the Board as Messrs. W. H. Gordon, W. W. Chown, W. J. Magrath, G. H. Pope and W. D. Robb are severing their connection with the city and the Board.—Carried.

Moved by Col. Ponton, seconded by Mr. W. Alford, that a suitable resolution of condolence from the Board be sent to Mrs. W. J. McCamon, whose late husband was for some time its valued secretary.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Dennis Lake Dead.

A REPORT SAYS IT WAS A CASE OF SUICIDE — LIVED HERE AT ONE TIME.

Mr. Dennis Lake, a well-known trainer and driver of harness horses, who for some years was a resident of this city, is dead at Napanee, and it is alleged that it was a case of self-destruction.

From what information can be gained it appears that on Monday afternoon Mr. Lake took a dose of some strong acid and as a result death ensued at an early hour on Tuesday morning.

It is not known for a positive fact that it was a case of suicide, but it is generally believed that such was the case.

The deceased, it will be remembered, was in the city at the fair held last month, and was the victim of an accident, through the horse he was driving falling upon the track.

He was a man about 55 years of age.

BOYS ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

TWO LADS WHO ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE ESCAPED FROM MIMICO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The local police have received a communication from the authorities of the Industrial School at Mimico to the effect that on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., two lads aged 14 and 15 years, named James Edwards and Maurice Freidman, had escaped. A description of the lads was given Last night two boys answering the description were seen here and were placed under arrest.

This morning, when brought before the Magistrate they denied that they were ever at the Industrial School, and gave their names as Frank Marlow and Frank Davis, and Toronto as their home. They claimed that they let home a week ago and were just travelling about.

The Magistrate in view of the fact that the boys resembled those who had escaped from the School, decided to remand them to jail until the Mimico authorities were communicated with.

Give Fair Play to

A really reliable remedy for headache—Zutoo.

If you have got it into your head that Zutoo Tablets will hurt you, you are mistaken.

It isn't fair to us for you to judge Zutoo by the drug cures.

It isn't fair to yourself to suffer from headache, when this really harmless vegetable headache cure is within your reach.

The fair thing for both of us is—to judge Zutoo on its merits—to test it.

If you find it does not cure your headache, sick, nervous or otherwise, in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling good every time—no bad after effects, then discard it.

But do not condemn it unfairly without a trial, and keep on suffering from headaches. You really do not have to, and one trial of Zutoo will prove it.

All we ask for Zutoo is fair play—that you give it a trial before concluding as to its merits or demerits.

Wont you do this? You'll be glad ever after if you do.

We'll send trial tablets for nothing, or you can buy them at dealers in 10c. and 25c. packages.

HE STANDS BY MINUTES

Hon. Geo. E. Foster Unshaken by the Evidence of Others.

Hon. G. W. Ross Was at Meetings But Didn't Know He Moved the Resolution For the Surrender of the Bonus Stock—Borrowed Money to Lend It Again—Mr. G. W. Fowler, M. P., Failed to Respond.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—The echo of the court room was the only response when the name of Mr. George W. Fowler, M. P., was called by Mr. Shepley at the session of the Insurance Commission yesterday morning. The time was spent in supplying missing links in the chain of testimony.

Hon. G. W. Ross.

Hon. G. W Ross was the first to give evidence. He had been a director of the Union Trust for some three years and held $1,000 of stock, but the transaction with the Great West Land Co. had originated before he came in and he had not become familiar with it nor taken much interest in that matter. He could not recall particular discussions regarding the unloading of lands by the Trust Co., except the agreement by which Dr. Montague was to dispose of 100,000 acres for the Trust Co. He could not recall any discussion of releasing the 227 shares of bonus stock nor the moving of the adoption of the mortgage agreement which was attributed to him in the minutes. He said he thought he would remember if there had been any discussion of surrendering stock.

Clerks Who Copied Minutes.

Two clerks in the employ of the Trust Co. who copied the minutes of the meetings of Nov. 7 and 12 in the minute book testified that the draft was prepared by Mr. Foster.

Hon. George E. Foster.

Hon. G. E. Foster told of the borrowing which the Union Trust Co. had done. A bylaw in February, 1902, gave authority to borrow $200,000. This was afterwards increased to $400,000. The borrowing was for investment in stocks and Mr. Foster admitted that they had anticipated their possession of money for investment by borrowing money. The company had loaned money on Crow's Nest Pass shares, and the propriety of the loan had been fully discussed. The $400,000 was borrowed in New York through the local Standard Bank. The company bought stock outright in New York. The balance of 50 per cent. unpaid stock was called in to increase the working power of the company. Then the capital stock was increased $500,000 to meet maturing obligations and to get clear title to Western lands and avoid paying interest.

Stands By His Minutes.

Mr. Foster also said that, notwithstanding the testimony of Lieut. Col. Davidson and Hon. George W. Ross, he still held that the minutes were correct and in accordance with his recollection of the facts.

The examination of Mr. Foster was continued in the afternoon. The compilation of securities and stocks held by the Union Trust at the end of the year 1905 was produced by Mr. Shepley. This showed a total amount of stocks on Dec. 31 of market value held by the company to be $347,500, against a book value of $449,109.64.

A Question of Borrowing.

"You had to pay Pope and Fowler the extra dollar per acre by way of getting an interest in the company if you had have financed the game yourself?"

Mr. Foster said "yes."

"Did it occur to you that you were practically borrowing money to pay on the lands you had bought?"

Witness said the syndicate did not borrow a single dollar from the Trust Co. to get the stock, but admitted that the syndicate had borrowed from the Union Trust Co. to pay Pope and Fowler for the delivered option.

The Montague deal, as given by Dr. Oronhyatekha, was asserted by the witness as being accurate in every detail.

At the time of the turning over of the lands of the Montague syndicate to the Union Trust Co. Mr. Foster gave his very unwilling assent to the deal, claiming he had some equity that should have been settled.

A transaction with the Manitoba & Northwestern Road Co. was explained by the witness. When the syndicate wanted to buy these lands the price was too high and the manager of that company said that he was getting a commission of 25 per cent., he would half it with the syndicate. Hence Mr. Foster got $5,000 rebate or commission, which he divided up with the other directors, each taking one-quarter. These accounts passed the auditors and there was no trouble whatever about them.

GERALD WHITE ELECTED.

North Renfrew Returns a Conservative—Liberal May Lose Deposit.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—In North Renfrew yesterday Gerald White, Conservative, was elected by 1,052 majority. It is thought McKay will lose his deposit.

White, who is a son of the late Hon. Peter White, had a large majority over both the Liberal candidates, Thomas Murray and Dr. McKay, combined.

North Renfrew has always been regarded as a close constituency. Since confederation the riding has been carried by both parties by small majorities.

Four Convicts Killed Or Hurt.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Charles Rand and William Goodenbury were killed, and Edward Knickern and Charles Fulton were probably fatally hurt in Auburn Prison by the giving away of a scaffolding yesterday afternoon. The men were convicts.

Auditor-General For 39 Years.

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 10.—James S. Beck, auditor-general for New Brunswick for 39 years, has tendered his resignation to the local Government, to go into effect on Oct. 31. Mr. Beck is now in his 93rd year.

Injured In Runaway.

Stratford, Oct. 10.—Deputy License Inspector Jones had his collar bone broken and received internal injuries in a runaway. He will recover.

BLOWN DOWN BY GALE.

Ottawa's Hoodoo Hotel Gilmour Craves More Victims—Street Car Buried—Five Injured.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—The city received a shock yesterday morning shortly after seven o'clock when the front walls of the ruins of the Gilmour Hotel, destroyed last month by fire, were blown down by a gale, burying a Gladstone avenue street car in the ruins.

Five Seriously Injured.

Five persons were seriously injured, but they were all reported by the hospital authorities last night to be out of danger. The injured:

Alexander Potvin, of the city fire brigade, badly injured about the body.

William Campbell, contractor, of Hintonburg, badly cut about the body.

Mrs. Thompson, 57 Munroe street, arms broken and body injured.

Harry Lynch, motorman, kneecap fractured and cut about the head.

Thomas McCabe, conductor, badly cut about the head and hands.

Will Investigate.

At a special meeting of the City Council last night the question of who was responsible for the collapse of the wall was discussed at length. A sub-committee to deal with the matter was appointed and this committee will make a thorough investigation. The committee got right down to work and decided to recommend that Building Inspector Pratt, who is also assessment commissioner, be asked to hand in his resignation at once.

STORM DAMAGES ELSEWHERE.

At Toronto the gale reached 50 miles an hour, and blew down an uncompleted three-story brick store at Grace and College streets. Damage $3,000.

At Kingston a 60-mile-an-hour gale sunk and battered many pleasure yachts, and the steamer Caspian received damages by pounding on the schooner Metzner.

Sault Ste. Marie reports say Lake Superior is being swept by northwest gale and snow storm and that navigation is difficult and dangerous.

On Lake Erie the storm was very severe.

At 12.30 Tuesday morning a tornado swept Ayr and swept trees, chimneys and roofs off, while the mills at Nithvale, a little west of the town, were unroofed, the roofs being carried 100 feet away.

At St. Johns, Que., the wind was the worst in years. Fences, trees and launches in the river suffered severely, and an apple boat was sunk. Many barns were also injured.

The barges Wayne and Foster were cut adrift during Tuesday night's gale by the steamer Bart, and are on the shore of Lake Superior, 14 miles above the Portage Lake ship canal. Nothing is known yet of the fate of the fourteen men who were on the two boats. The life-saving crew has gone to the wrecks. The Bart made the ship canal in safety after cutting loose the barges.

Turn Your Face Into Dollars.

MANY A MAN HAS FAILED BECAUSE HIS FACE WAS A PICTURE OF CALAMITY.

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose. And so man, to be successful, must have sunshine inside. The life which has it not, which has no health and no happiness, is sour, surly, pessimistic, and a failure. The world already has too many vinegar faces that breathe ill-will and strife. The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph wherever he is and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers: they travel in schools, they herd together, for they love their kind, and the cheerful part of the world will have nothing to do with them.

And why is it that so many peddle disaster, knowing at the same time that if they do, their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes from bodily disorders, and this cannot always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, sour face, recklessness, disgust and lack of ambition. A bad stomach—there is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong stomach, a stomach that can take care of anything and everything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food, and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion these tablets will digest everything in your stomach, thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, eructations, loss of vim and spirit, bad memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase, you will be more satisfied with what the world does, you will think happier and be happier and your face will be one of supreme content. That will bring you success and then more success. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.

NOTED PRELATE DEAD.

Archbishop Bond of Montreal, Primate of the Anglican Church For All Canada, Passes Away.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 10.—Archbishop Bond, the Primate of all Canada, died at 6.30 a.m. yesterday after a number of weeks of gradual sinking following a stroke of paralysis.

The late archbishop was born in Truro, England, Sept. 10, 1815, consequently was in his 91st year at the time of his decease. He was educated in England, and about 1840 commenced to study for holy orders, and was ordained deacon in Quebec in 1841. He was at first engaged in diocesan mission work, but in 1842 was appointed incumbent of Lachine, P. Q., where he worked for six years. In 1848 he left there to assume the position of assistant minister at St. George's Church at Montreal, where he remained as rector and assistant for more than thirty years.

LATE ARCHBISHOP BOND.
(Anglican Primate of all Canada.)

Dr. Bond was appointed Archdeacon of Hochelaga in 1870, Dean of Montreal in 1873, and Bishop on the resignation of Dr. Ogden in 1878. He succeeded the late Archbishop Machray.

His Grace was stricken with paralysis in December last while preaching in St. James the Apostle Church.

As a result of Archbishop Bond's death, Bishop Sweatman, Lord Bishop of Toronto, will become Lord Archbishop of Toronto, and Metropolitan of Canada, being the senior bishop in point of consecration in the ecclesiastical province of Canada.

The choice for the primate of all Canada will lie between Archbishop Matheson, Metropolitan of Rupert's Land, and the new archbishop of the ecclesiastical province of Canada.

QUEEN OF TRAGEDY.

Adelaide Ristori, Italy's Famous Actress, Is Dead.

Rome, Oct. 10.—The Marchesa Del Grillo, better known as Adelaide Ristori, the celebrated Italian actress, died early yesterday morning of pneumonia.

Adelaide Ristori was born in 1821. In 1855 she took Paris by storm. The French Government made her brilliant offers, with the idea of persuading her to join the Comedie Francaise, but she preferred to remain Italian. For years afterwards she traveled throughout Europe. In 1866 Ristori was warmly welcomed in America. Subsequently she visited South America. She retired from the stage in 1885.

The 80th birthday of Ristori was celebrated in Rome on Jan. 29, 1902, and was made the occasion for many festivities throughout Italy. King Emmanuel, accompanied by a large suite, visited and felicitated her; Queen Elene sent her a present, and she received very many congratulatory telegrams from monarchs and other distinguished personages of various countries.

Ex-Mayor Cremated.

Montreal, Oct. 10.—The ashes of ex-Mayor Beaugrand will be buried today with the coffin plate in the cemetery of Mount Royal. The cremation of the remains took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. A few close friends witnessed the ceremony.

ST. KITTS' GROCER ELOPES.

Takes $3,000 With Him, Leaving His Wife Practically Penniless.

St. Catharines, Oct. 10.—Edward Moore, retired grocer of this city, left town rather unexpectedly last Friday, and yesterday his wife claimed that he has deserted her and had taken with him almost $8,000, while she is practically penniless.

Mrs. Moore tells a long story of her husband's unfaithfulness, and claims he was intimate for some time with a young woman well known about the city, who has also recently left for unknown parts.

She has already taken action to prosecute her husband.

BURIED UNDER LUMBER.

Wagon Leaves Road and Upset, Carries Driver to Death.

Goderich, Oct. 10.—On Monday evening, during the storm, William Ivers of West Wawanosh was driving along the dangerous back road to the Nile, from Goderich. It is supposed his wagon wheels ran off the road on to the slope, and the tilt carried his load of 1,400 feet of lumber from the wagon, carrying him with it and burying him. The accident was not known till early yesterday morning, when the team, attached to the wagon, was found miles away, and the body under the lumber.

Officers Was to Blame.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 10.—The commissions, appointed by Emperor Nicholas to investigate the causes of the Sveaborg and Cronstadt mutinies, have found that the blame was largely attributable to the negligence and inefficiency of the officers.

Trial For Manslaughter.

Carleton Place, Oct. 10.—George Bradley was committed for trial yesterday for manslaughter, the charge arising out of the death of his brother from a blow.

PROVINCES MUST GIVE UP

Control of the Fisheries and Commercial Travelers' Tax in Return For Increased Subsidy.

Ottawa, Oct. 11.—The resolutions of the Provincial Premiers have been laid before the Federal authorities, and an answer to their request for an increase of subsidy is expected to-day.

It is understood that the provinces will have to give up their claims to a control of the fisheries in order to obtain an increased allowance, and that the Premiers of all the provinces have practically agreed to this. The commercial travelers' tax will be abolished by British Columbia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island.

The provincial delegates expect to be able to leave the capital on Friday, with the assurance that their application for an increased subsidy has been granted.

ARRESTED FOR CONSPIRACY.

T. W. Hollwey Must Answer Criminal Charge in University Matter.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—T. W. Hollwey, the real estate agent, was arrested yesterday in connection with the sales of university real estate. The charge is conspiracy. The only other conspirator named, to wit, Leonard Foulds, was not arrested. He will be a witness for the crown.

Arraigned in police court, Hollwey reserved the right to either plead or elect, and the case was enlarged till the 17th. He was liberated on bail in the sums of $1,002 furnished by himself, and $500 each furnished by J. J. Walsh and C. R. S. Dimick, T. Ludwig is his counsel.

The charge is that "T. W. Hollwey, in the years 1903, 1904 and 1905, did combine, conspire and agree with Leonard Foulds and others unknown, to defraud the University of Toronto and University College by deceit and falsehood."

Bulgaria's Successful Bluff.

Constantinople, Oct. 11.—Bulgaria's threat to order her troops to re-occupy the post of Sujuk unless the Turkish commissioners sign by Oct. 14 the report resulting from the enquiry into the dispute regarding the delimitation of a portion of the frontier of the Vilayet of Adrianople, has had the desired effect.

68,000 Horse Power Wanted.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—At a meeting of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission yesterday it was announced that applications have been received from municipalities aggregating 68,000 horse-power. It had been estimated that the initial demand would reach 62,000 horsepower.

Three Years For Burglar.

Peterboro, Oct. 11.—At the fall Assizes yesterday, Justice Britton sentenced John Thorpe of Ottawa to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary for burglary. Thorpe was arrested on July 27 last for breaking into the fancy goods store of C. Elliott and removing goods.

The Yankees To Get It Hot

Newfoundland Will Withdraw Every Concession to U. S.

Will Confiscate Fishing Pirates Instead of Fining Them as Formerly, and Drag Forth Every Known Colonial Law and Enforce It to the Letter Against United States Fisherman —Should Federate.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 11.—A St. John's, Nfld., despatch says:

The Colonial Government has resolved to combat the fishing modus vivendi entered into between England and the United States, by dragging forth every known colonial law and enforcing it to the letter against American fishermen.

Every concession hitherto granted the Americans will be withdrawn. Local fishermen will be encouraged to occupy the waters and drive other nets before the Americans arrive, thereby preventing the latter from enjoying the expected benefits of this arrangement.

For the slightest offence American vessels will be confiscated instead of fined as formerly.

Should Federate With Canada.

London, Oct. 11.—The publication of the text of the Newfoundland modus vivendi evoked strong editorial articles yesterday.

The Opposition newspapers condemn the Government for overriding the wishes of the Colony in order to conciliate the United States, and declare that the terms of the arrangements fully justify the intense indignation which is expressed.

The Morning Post is of the opinion that this should convince Newfoundland that the time has arrived to federate with Canada.

For Transitory Popularity.

The Manchester Guardian says the explanation of the excitement in Newfoundland ought perhaps to be sought in the amiable desire of the Colonial politicians not well learned in constitutional law, to gain a little transitory popularity at the expense of the Imperial authorities.

The London Globe, on Newfoundland fisheries, says if the contemptuous approval of a few Newfoundland newspapers is to outweigh the sentiment of the whole Empire, then we might as well delegate our functions gracefully before our impatient children snatch them from us.

"Higher Interest" Rules

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Colony's interests have been subordinated to the supposed higher interest of keeping things all right with Washington. It is obvious enough to say Newfoundland has partially herself to blame for the weakness that has helped to persuade her "protector" to desert her, since she has refused to enter the Dominion of Canada, but it cannot be assumed that even if Newfoundland had stood with the Dominion at her back, she would have found the Imperial Government staunch. Canada herself has been subordinated to a "higher interest" before now.

Should Join Canada.

The Mail says Newfoundland's wisest course is to join Canada.

The Telegraph advises Newfoundland and Canada to have patience on the fishery question, because no Government will be permitted to sacrifice the vital interest of any colony to curry favor with any power.

The Natal Mercury comments on the Newfoundland crisis that the conclusion of the modus vivendi is a blow to the entire system of colonial autonomy.

FUNSTON RETURNING.

Cuban Affairs to Be Left to Gov. Magoon and Gen. Bell.

The affairs of Cuba will then be left in the hands of Governor Magoon and Gen. J. Franklin Bell.

Students Before the Caput.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Thirty-five students walked the carpet yesterday afternoon before the university caput, which then met for the first time officially. These constitute those of the second-year "meds" who were identified as participating in the "hustle" on Monday morning. President Hutton, at the close of the meeting, informed the press that another meeting would be held this afternoon.

Adrift on Plank Five Days.

Copenhagen, Oct. 11.—The Danish steamer Texas, New Orleans for Copenhagen, arrived here yesterday, having on board a sailor said to be the sole survivor of the American schooner Oliver S. Barrett, from Port Royal, Sept. 9., for New York, which was capsized in a squall Sept. 9. The rescued man had been adrift on a plank for 108 hours when taken on board the Texas.

Cuban Bankers Assign.

New York, Oct. 11.—J. M. Ceballos & Co., bankers and merchants, having large Cuban interests, yesterday made an assignment. The liabilities are said to amount to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Acquitted.

Hamilton, Oct. 11.—Alex. McDonald, a youth of 16 years of age, was yesterday afternoon acquitted by a jury of the charge of manslaughter. He was charged with the death of Alex. McGarvey.

Kovmsky Not Guilty.

Chatham, Oct. 11.—An echo of the celebrated fur stealing case was heard yesterday, when Sam Kovmsky of this city was acquitted by Judge MacMahon of receiving stolen goods.

Two Cases of Cholera.

Paris, Oct. 11.—A despatch to The Eclair, from Rotterdam yesterday, announces that two fatal cases of cholera have occurred at Bloetebdual and Oranjewoud, near there.

DREADNOUGHT IS FAST.

Makes Twenty-Two Knots on Her Trial Trip.

Spithead, Oct. 11.—The battleship Dreadnought anchored here last evening, after a full steam trial lasting eight hours, in which she reached a speed of 22 1-4 knots, the mean average being 21 1-2. Her horse-power, which is nominally 23,000, went as high as 28,000.

These results were achieved in the face of increased load resulting from preparations for a seagoing trip, which added two feet to her draught. The engines ran smoothly and with good reserve power, no forced draught being used. Complete absence of vibration was again recorded.

Stifling Public Opinion.

The astounding revelations of corruption in London were scarcely necessary to convince the people that the Laurier Government has been keeping itself in power by a wholesale conspiracy to stifle public opinion. The features of this conspiracy are manifold. It exhausts apparently every device known to the political boss and the election crook. What was done in Ontario we cannot ascertain in full, owing to the fact that no elections were protested. But it is certain there was a conspiracy of cheating in operation. The discovery of the bogus ballot-boxes of Shibley and Byron Lott, says an exchange, is a proof that what the Government could not buy in this province it was prepared to acquire by other means.

In Manitoba the conspiracy was deep-rooted. The process adopted consisted of erasing from the voters' list the electors who were expected to be adverse to the Administration. The system was applied to seven constituencies, and Hon. Robert Rogers, the Minister of Public Works of Manitoba, was given an official table indicating to what extent the fraud was carried on. It appears that when the voters' list for the various constituencies came from Ottawa local agents of the Dominion Government went over them and scratched out in red ink names of persons whose votes were not wanted. The number of voters affected in each of the constituencies is as follows:

Marquette	1,919
Provensher	503
Portage la Prairie	1,395
Souris	1,250
Lisgar	1,131
Macdonald	1,721
Selkirk	1,406
Total	9,358

That the swindle affected the elections is made apparent from the results in the various ridings. In Provencher, where 563 electors were disfranchised, the Ministerial candidate won by a majority of 10. In Lisgar, where 1,131 electors were disfranchised the Government had a majority of 180. In Portage la Prairie 1,395 voters were deprived of the right to vote, and the Government candidate got in by 385. In Selkirk 1,406 voters were crossed off the voters' lists and the Government majority was 307 It will be observed that the fraudulent operations which disqualified electors were alone responsible for the election of the Ministerial supporters. Had there been an honest election these men would not have found their way into Parliament. What was done west of Manitoba has been illustrated by the Provincial elections in Alberta and Saskatchewan, which were conducted by the Laurier machine. There the ballot boxes were stuffed. The scheme, as revealed in the local contests consists in establishing bogus polling divisions in distant parts of the constituency and of filling the ballot boxes with bogus votes. The bird's-eye view we get of the election operations of the Ottawa politicians becomes the more startling when it is borne in mind that the dishonorable work disclosed is performed by public officers or is rewarded by official appointments. Thus one of Fielding's agents in the distribution of money was the Harbormaster, while another was the speaker of the Nova Scotia Legislature. The person chiefly engaged in the Manitoba cheating has been paid for his services with the appointment to the office of Inspector of Dominion Lands, and the persons who stuffed the ballot boxes in Saskatchewan were officials of the Indian Department.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. In addition to being the land of the Shamrock, Ireland threatens to take away England's supremacy as the home of the rose. It is now supposed that there is something in the Ulster climate especially favorable to the production of roses.

From many places in Canada complaints have come of stabbing done by foreigners. The use of the knife is altogether foreign to British traditions, and no step, hardly, would be too harsh which would put it down. The recent murderous affray in Alberta, where two Canadians were stabbed by Italians, is a case in point.

The Minister of Justice should lend his influence toward making the penalty fit the crime in stabbing cases. The lash for the knife would make the cowards who do the stabbing think twice before drawing their weapons. Unless something drastic is done crimes of violence will increase very rapidly, for immigrants from knife-using lands are pouring into Canada.

The following may make some people think that the millennium is approaching — but the practise will hardly become general: The handsome new Trinity Methodist church, Berlin, has taken an aggressive step. It has been decided that no organization in connection with the church will be permitted to charge admission or sell tickets for any entertainment, lecture or recital that may be held in the church. The board does not purpose discouraging holding legitimate entertainments, but it is unanimous in its opinion that they should not be held with a view of making money for church purposes.

Insolvencies in the Dominion during the first nine months of 1906 were 867 in number, against 359 last year, while the amount of defaulted indebtedness was $6,826,389, against $7,105,195. Manufacturing failures were 212 in number and $2,759,869 in amount, against 208 failures for $2,269,992 in 1905. Improvement was most noticeable in the trading section, where 637 failures occurred involving $3,615,475 compared with 739 last year, when liabilities were $4,781,320. There were 16 other commercial failures for $141,045 against 12 last year, when the amount involved was only $54,183. Not a single banking failure occurred in the Dominion, whereas one or more failures occurred in the corresponding months of each of the preceding seven years. The largest increase in a comparison by provinces was supplied by Quebec, but this was more than offset by smaller liabilities in Ontario, British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, and especially Nova Scotia.

The Montreal Herald says, Mr. Geo. E. Foster "sent out delightful circulars to party friends asking for contributions to a fund to be used in hunting up scandals against Liberals." Well, if Mr. Foster never did anything worse than that, the developments in the Oxford and London cases shows he did a good act in assisting in bringing to light the villainies perpetrated in these cases alone, which, by the by, do not stand alone in the political history of Grit-Rougeism.

• • •

The idea of a joint committee of representatives from the different municipalities in this district, the said committee to deal with the very important question of obtaining power, seems to be the correct one. Cheap power must be obtained, if Belleville is ever to take its proper place as an industrial centre. The Whitney Government, with a grasp of the situation no other government has ever shown, has opened the way for municipalities like Belleville which desire to take advantage of the water powers lying latent and undeveloped. Now is the time for Belleville to solve the cheap power problem, and it must be done by concerted effort. The Whitney Government, like providence, helps those who help themselves.

• • •

One of the planks in the Liberal platform in times gone by was that all elections should be held on the same day, so as to prevent one influencing the other. Now the Laurier combination is violating this wholesome practice by holding the different bye-elections at different times. Why? To allow the Grit heelers to swarm the different constituencies with their $10 bills. The London crew pursued this course, as was proven in the investigation now going on.

• • •

Some of the Maritime province papers announced some days ago that the Supreme Court was to throw out the appeal case against Hon. Mr Fielding, and it was done. Which of the judges took the Grit papers into his confidence. To say the lest of it, the judgment was a queer one.

• • •

The Montreal Gazette thus summarizes it: "The Supreme Court of Canada, in the Shelburne and Queens appeal, has ruled that a single and irregular payment of money in 1902 in connection with an election held in 1900 does not entitle a petitioner to go into the facts in connection with the contest of an election held in 1904, unless there is reasonable ground for thinking that the payment was part of a system. The petitioner could only establish that Mr. Fielding paid money and guess that it was the carrying out of a system. Guesses do not count in courts, however, and Mr. Fielding escapes the risk of disqualification. He is fortunate in his misfortune."

• • •

One thing is certain, Mr. Fielding acknowledged under oath that he some time after the election in 1900, paid accounts which were not included in the official return, but declined to say, how much or for what purposes, the judges sustained him in such refusal and the Supreme Court upholds the judgment. Candidates will no doubt make a note of it, and not make illegal payments until long after an election.

VERY WELL EDUCATED — BUT COULDN'T SPELL.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

One of the large department stores in this city advertised for a girl for office work, application to be made in the handwriting of the girl. Among the applicants was one young miss of 16, who had passed through the public schools and two years of the Collegiate course, and in her written application of half a dozen lines there were no less than four simple words that were spelled incorrectly. Her application was turned down by the head bookkeeper. Out of quite a number of applications, nearly all were defective in penmanship or in spelling.

It has often been truly said that it is the duty of the leading men of a town to take an active interest in the municipal management of the town in which they live. Every man, truthfully says the Brockville Times, should assume a certain amount of responsibility, and the more prominent the man the greater the responsibility in municipal affairs. It is a responsibility however which is frequently shirked from various weak excuses. Some plead lack of time, others lack of inclination, others the fear of censure and criticism, while some foolishly assert that they do not care to associate with the mediocre type of men in office. These shirkers should remember that it is their own fault if inferior men are placed in positions of municipal management. Incidentally, it may be pointed out that experience in municipal management is one of the best trainings for higher public life.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Handling the Apple Crop

(By Prof. H. L. Hutt.)

In commercial orcharding, the business end of the enterprise, that of marketing the crop to the best advantage, is second only in importance to that of producing fruit of the best quality.

It is in this particular that there is the greatest need for improvement at the present time. There are hundreds of apple growers who can grow first class fruit to every one who can place it on the market when and where it will bring the best price. The growers who make the most out of their apples are those who keep in touch with the best markets at home and abroad. During the shipping season these men watch the market reports daily and unless prices are satisfactory they hold their fruit until good prices prevail. The great majority, however, of those who have apples to sell wait for some buyer to come along and sell for whatever he chooses to offer, usually from fifty cents to a dollar a barrel, or a lump sum for the crop on the trees. The latter plan is nothing less than gambling in apples, and in either case the grower seldom gets one-half what his fruit is really worth, if it were properly handled.

The remedy for this state of affairs, and what is going to put the apple trade on a better business basis, is for the growers in each apple growing section to unite and form a co-operative association through which the grading, packing and marketing of the fruit may be accomplished.

During the past year a number of these associations have been formed in various parts of the province and the prices obtained by some of them for last year's apples have made the growers enthusiastic over this method of handling the crop.

An effective co-operative association for this purpose involves the selection of an honest, wide-awake business manager, and the erection of a central packing and storage house at the most convenient point for shipment. Through such an organization, boxes and barrels can be purchased wholesale to better advantage than they can be obtained by single individuals; the grower can devote his whole attention to gathering the crop at the proper season and delivering it in good condition at the central packing house; the association relieves him of all care and responsibility in grading, packing, and marketing; and with this work in the hands of expert packers, the grade of fruit can be made uniform and the packing can be done properly, which, in time, inspires confidence in the purchasing public. In short, the co-operative system of handling the apple crop, under proper management, assures the consumer of a better product, and realizes to the grower a greater profit.

THE STOLEN HORSE.

An Old Proverb With a New Application.

The woods are full of "so-called" remedies for Baldness.

You may call anything in creation a remedy, but to use them is like locking the stable after the horse is stolen.

Baldness and Dandruff are caused by a germ—if you don't kill the germ the germ will kill the hair.

Scientists have labored with the problem of a preventative for Baldness for many years.

Newbro's Herpicide is the product of a modern idea, and will cure dandruff and prevent Baldness because germs cannot exist when you apply Herpicide.

Herpicide is a valuable hair dressing and scalp disinfectant as well as a cure for Dandruff.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

A Chill on the Liver.

BILEANS AVERT ALL DANGER.

Passing from a heated room to the piercing cold outside frequently sets up liver chill. Liver chill deranges the work of the organ, brings on a constant chilly feeling, a shivering sensation, a disinclination to touch anything cold. It also causes headache, dullness, depression, constipation, heartburn and digestive disorders. Bileans act directly on stomach and liver and cure liver chill and all its symptoms. All druggists sell at 50 cents a box. Send one-cent stamp to Bilean Co., Toronto, for free sample box.

Literary Notes.

THE NOVEMBER DELINEATOR.

The November Delineator treats of the established styles for autumn both in dress and millinery, and also devotes much space to the accessories of dress which women find so alluring. The spirit of Thanksgiving season is preserved in a poem by Theodosia Garrison, a football story by Violet Coen, and an old-fashioned Thanksgiving story by Harriet Prescott Spofford; and the Kitchen department is stocked with suggestions for a variety of Thanksgiving feasts ranging from "A Rational Thanksgiving Dinner" to "A Vegetarian Thanksgiving Dinner." For the feminine fingers that grow so busy preparing Christmas gifts between November's and December's great feast days, there are numerous suggestions for practical and ornamental gifts in the Needlework department. In the children's department "The Doll's Dressmaker" will help educate the little mothers in the fashioning of garments for their dollies.

Besides the fiction mentioned, the three serial stories, "Fraulein Schmidt and Mr. Anstruther," by the author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," "The Diary of a Baby," by Barry Pain, and "The Chauffeur and the Chaperon," by the Williamsons, continue to hold the interest displayed in them from the start. Storiettes by Anne Warner and Louis Macke, and several bright skits fill the department of "Miscellanea." The children will be pleased at the appearance of a "Bunny Rabbit" story by Grace McGowan Cooke and the conclusion of Florence Wilkinson's fairy story, "The Princess Who Came Into Fashion Again."

Lida A. Churchill in her Department of Real Life discourses on "Playing to the Upper Audience." George William Jordan gives good advice for "When We are Face to Face with Trouble," and the fourth paper of "Little Problems of Married Life" treats of "Making Marriage a Success."

Children eat, sleep and grow after taking Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Brings rosy cheeks, laughing eyes, good health and strength. A tonic for sickly children. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents.—D. M. Waters.

FOUR MAGAZINES FOR THE PRICE OF ONE.

CO-OPERATION IN ADVERTISING MAKES IT POSSIBLE.

Half price offers are but combinations of advertising. In a word, four magazines band together, use the same publicity and share the expense. Four magazines working together reduce the cost of publicity about one-fourth of what it would be if taken up alone. The receipts are approximately the same as if the publicity were carried on independently. And who receives the benefits from this publicity club? The patron of the magazines, inasmuch as he secures a reduction in the subscription price made possible by economy. And thus the home can now secure three, four and five periodicals, which present-day needs require, for little more than the old-time price of a single magazine, that once was the solitary visitor to the family circle.

For instance, Combination No. 2, advertised by the Central Magazine Agency in our columns, offers The Cosmopolitan Magazine, $1.00; The Harper's Bazar, $1.00; The Home Magazine, $1.00, and The Reader Magazine, $3.00—total value, $6.00—all four for $2.00, one-half price, a saving of fifty per cent.

Another good offer is The Delineator, McClure's Magazine, The World's Work and The Home Magazine. These four may be had for just $3.50.

One of the best bargains ever offered is The Cosmopolitan Magazine, The World To-day and The Home Magazine, all three for one year for just $2.00.

For $2.00 you can secure a year's subscription to The Cosmopolitan The World To-day and The Home Magazine.

For $2.50 you can have The Cosmopolitan, $1.00; Home Magazine, $1.00; The Reader Magazine, $3.00, at one-half price, $2.50. All three for less than the price of one.

The best bargain of the year, however, is The Cosmopolitan, Home Magazine, Harper's Bazar and The Reader Magazine, total value, $6.00—all for half price, $3.00. This is positively the best bargain of the year.

Before subscribing to any magazines our readers should write the Central Magazine Agency (Bobbs-Merrill Co.), Indianapolis, Ind., for prices. Further than this if you have spare time and want to earn Christmas money, the Central Magazine Agency will pay you a liberal commission on these great magazine combinations. You will be surprised to find how easy it is to make from $10.00 to $100.00 a week in securing orders from your neighbors. You can save them from 10 to 50 per cent. on their year's magazines and make a handsome commission for yourself.

To any newsdealer, druggist or agent who will act as our agent we will run their name and address at the bottom of our large display advertising. Our commission to agents or newsdealers is 35 cents an order.

Write to-day for our special offer or send your order for any of the combinations mentioned above. Remember, The Cosmopolitan, Home Magazine, The Reader Magazine and Harper's Bazar—all four for $3.00—total value, $6.00. You save 50 per cent. THE QUEST OF THE GOLDEN GOOSE

In hunting for a business or occupation most people are really hunting for a goose that will lay golden eggs.

The commonest aspiration is to so construct and devise a business enterprise that it becomes almost automatic—so that when the play-fever touches the blood one may "let go," sit at one side, and watch for the daily golden egg with a certainty of its appearance.

Every business man has, in his store or enterprise or venture, a possible golden goose—a present golden gosling. It rests with himself alone whether he will raise the bird or not—whether it will arrive at golden-goosehood or perish from neglect and ignorance.

These birds require much attention, much care—and they must be fed, if you would have them grow to goosehood; and their natural diet is—advertising!

No golden goose was ever raised to a "working age" if the food was stinted, or denied, or adulterated or substituted.

The merchant who "knows things" is satisfied to invest silver in food for the gosling—because, after many days, the silver will return in golden eggs.

Such investment may require a little faith—but more common sense.

Is your business enterprise progressing toward GOLDEN GOOSEHOOD?

To the woman who has to plan all of the expenditures for the home, the store-ads. are the most important—as they should be most interesting—reading matter in the newspaper.

"When it rains pottage you must hold up your dish"; and when it "rains bargains" at the stores you must read the ads.

Not Just Better Baking But Far Easier Cookery

The way the oven heat's made to bake evenly—that alone would sell you the Imperial Oxford range once you really saw what it means. But the Imperial Oxford isn't just a perfect baker,—it's the easiest range to cook with, because it uses heat sensibly whatever you want the heat to do,—fry, broil, or bake.

Imperial Oxford Range

Its roomy firebox, its easy-to-manage sensitive drafts, hold the heat EVEN,—keep it under your control. And the special Imperial Oxford thermometer tells you always just where the heat is. But you can't really know what a fine set of ideas are built into this range until you come and see it.

TIMELY TOPICS.

A LITTLE GENTLEMAN.

His cap is old, but his hair is gold,
And his face is clear as the sky;
And whoever he meets, on lanes or streets,
He looks them straight in the eye.
With a fearless pride that has naught to hide,
Though he bows like a little knight
Quite debonair, to a lady fair,
With a smile that is swift and light.

Does his mother call? No, not kite or ball
Or the prettiest game can stay
His eager feet, as he hastens to greet
Whatever she means to say.
And the teachers depend on the little friend
At school in his place at nine,
With his lessons learned and his good marks earned,
All ready to toe the line.

I wonder if you have seen him too,
This boy, who is not too big
For a morning kiss from mother and Sis,
Who isn't a bit of a prig,
But gentle and strong, and the whole day long
As merry as boy can be,
A gentleman, dears, in the coming years,
And at present the boy for me.
—Margaret E. Sangster.

An English paper says: Under our present system our men emigrate, but leave our delicately nurtured women at home. Families of grown-up, unmarried daughters, discontented and restless, are far too numerous among us, and all the while, in far-off places of the empire, there are men by the thousand hungering for the sight of an English lass. We do not exaggerate. The flag of Britain in too many parts of the earth is flying over a generation of bachelors.

School Teacher Assassinated.

Cleveland Ohio, Oct. 11.—Miss Mary Sheppard, a school teacher in South Euclid, a suburb of Cleveland, was assassinated in the door of the school building yesterday afternoon by an unknown, who called her to the door and fired two bullets into her body. The man escaped and posses have formed and are scouring the neighborhood in search of him. No motive for the crime is known. Miss Sheppard was 22 years of age.

Balking Horse a Detective.

Hamilton, Oct. 11.—Yesterday afternoon Alex. Hammer was found guilty at the assizes of stealing six sheep from Andrew McClure, a Beverley farmer. The theft was detected through Hammer's horses balking while he had the sheep in the wagon. He was given a few days in which to produce witnesses, who could testify to his previous good behavior.

ence to you. If you publish that story you go far on the way to ruin me."

"I am afraid that I am in the dark in more senses than one," David murmured.

"Then let me enlighten you. Daily your books are more widely read. My enemy is a great novel reader. You publish that story, and what results? You not only tell that enemy my story, but you show him my way out of the difficulty, and show him how he can checkmate my every move. Perhaps, after I have escaped from the net——"

"You are right," Steel said, promptly. "From a professional point of view the story is abandoned. And now you want me to show you a rational and logical, a human way out."

"If you can do so you have my everlasting gratitude."

"Then you must tell me in detail what it is you want to recover. My heroine parts with a document which the villain knows to be a forgery. Money cannot buy it back because the villain can make as much money as he likes by retaining it. He does as he likes with the family property; he keeps my heroine's husband out of England by dangling the forgery and its consequences over his head. What is to be done? How is the ruffian to be bullied into a false sense of security by the one man who desires to throw dust in his eyes?"

"Ah," the voice cried, "ah, if you could only tell me that! Let my ruffian only imagine that I am dead; let him have proofs of it, and the thing is done. I could reach him then; I could tear from him the letter that—but I need not go into details. But he is cunning as the serpent. Nothing but the most convincing proofs would satisfy him."

"A certificate of death signed by a physician beyond reproach?"

"Yes, that would do. But you couldn't get a medical man like that to commit felony."

"No, but we could trick him into it," Steel exclaimed. "In my story a fraud is perpetrated to blind the villain and to deprive him of his weapons. It is a case of the end justifying the means. But it is one thing, my dear lady, to commit fraud actually and to perpetrate it in a novel. In the latter case you can defy the police, but unfortunately you and I are dealing with real life. If I am to help you I must be a party to a felony."

"But you will! You are not going to draw back now? Mr. Steel, I have saved your home. You are a happy man compared to what you were two hours ago. If the risk is great you have brains and imagination to get out of danger. Show me how to do it, and the rest shall be mine. You have never seen me, you know nothing, not even the name of the person who called you over the telephone. You have only to keep your own counsel, and if I wade in blood to my end you are safe. Tell me how I can die, disappear, leaving that one man to believe I am no more. And don't make it too ingenious. Don't forget that you promised to tell me a rational way out of the difficulty. How can it be done?"

"In my pocket I have a cutting from the Times, which contains a chapter from the history of a medical student who is alone in London. It closely resembles my plot. He says he has no friends, and he deems it prudent for reasons we need not discuss to let the world assume that he is dead. The rest is tolerably easy. He disguises himself and goes to a doctor of repute, whom he asks to come and see his brother—i.e., himself—who is dangerously ill. The doctor goes later in the day and finds his patient in bed with severe internal inflammation. This is brought about by a free use of albumen. I don't know what amount of albumen one would take without extreme risk, but you could pump that information out of any doctor. Well, our medical man calls again and yet again, and finds his patient sinking. The next day the patient, disguised, calls upon his doctor with the information that his 'brother' is dead. The doctor is not in the least surprised, and without going to view the body gives a certificate of death. Now, I admit that all this sounds cheap and theatrical, but you can't get over facts. The thing actually happened a little time ago in London, and there is no reason why it shouldn't happen again."

"You suggest that I should do this thing?" the voice asked.

"Pardon me, I did nothing of the kind," Steel replied. "You asked me to show you how my heroine gets herself out of a terrible position, and I am doing it. You are not without friends. The way I was called up to-night and the way I was brought here prove that. With the aid of your friends the thing is possible to you. You have only to find a lodging where people are not too observant and a doctor who is too busy, or too careless, to look after dead patients, and the thing is done. If you desire to be looked upon as dead—especially by a powerful enemy—I cannot recommend a more natural, rational way than this. As to the details, they may be safely left to you. The clever manner in which you have kept up the mystery to-night convinces me that I have nothing to teach you in this direction. And if there is anything more I can do——"

"A thousand, thousand thanks," the voice cried, passionately. "To be looked upon as 'dead,' to be near to the rascal who smiles to think that I am in my grave. . . . And everything so dull and prosaic on the surface! Yes, I have friends who will aid me in the business. Some day I may be able to thank you face to face, to tell you how I managed to see your plot. May I?"

The question came quite eagerly, almost imploringly. In the darkness Steel felt a hand trembling on his breast, a cool, slim hand with many rings on the fingers. Steel took the hand and carried it to his lips.

"Nothing would give me greater pleasure," he said. "And may you be successful. Good-night."

"Good-night, and God bless you for a real gentleman and a true friend. I will go out of the room first and put the lights up afterwards. You will walk away and close the door behind you. The newspaper cutting! Thanks. And once more good-night, but let us hope not good-bye."

She was gone. Steel could hear the distant dying swish of silk, the rustling of the portiere, and then, with a flick, the lights came up again. Half-blinded by the sudden illumination Steel fumbled his way to the door and into the street. As he did so Hove Town Hall clock chimed two. With a cigarette between his teeth David made his way home.

He could not think it all out yet; he would wait until he was in his own comfortable chair under the roses and palms leading from his study. A fine night of adventure, truly, and a paying one. He pressed the precious packet of notes to his side and his soul expanded.

He was home at last. But surely he had closed the door before he started? He remembered distinctly trying the latch. And here the latch was back and the door open. The quick snap of the electric light declared nobody in the dining-room. Beyond, the study was in darkness. Nobody there, but—stop!

A stain on the carpet; another by the conservatory door. Pots of flowers scattered about, and a huddled mass like a litter of empty sacks in one corner. Then the huddled mass resolved itself into the figure of a man with a white face smeared with blood. Dead! Oh, yes, dead enough.

Steel flew to the telephone and rang furiously.

"Give me 52, Police Station," he cried. "Are you there? Send somebody at once up here—15, Downend Terrace. There has been murder done here. For Heaven's sake come quickly."

Steel dropped the receiver and stared with strained eyes at the dreadful sight before him.

CHAPTER IV.

For some time—a minute, an hour—Steel stood over the dreadful thing huddled upon the floor of his conservatory. Just then he was incapable of consecutive ideas.

His mind began to move at length. The more he thought of it the more absolutely certain he was that he had fastened the door before leaving the house. True, the latch was only an ordinary one, and a key might easily have been made to fit it. As a matter of fact, David had two, one in reserve in case of accidents. The other was usually kept in a jewel-drawer of the dressing-table. Perhaps——

David went quietly upstairs. It was just possible that the murderer was in the house. But the closest search brought nothing to light. He pulled out the jewel-drawer in the dressing-table. The spare latch-key had gone! Here was something to go upon.

Then there was a rumbling of an electric bell somewhere that set David's heart beating like a drum. The hall light streamed on a policeman in uniform and an inspector in a dark overcoat and a hard felt hat. On the pavement was a long shallow tray, which David recognized mechanically as the ambulance.

"Something very serious, sir?" Inspector Marley asked, quietly. "I've brought the doctor with me."

David nodded. Both the inspector and the doctor were acquaintances of his. He closed the door and led the way into the study. Just inside the conservatory and not far from the huddled figure lay David's new cigar-case. Doubtless, without knowing it, the owner had whisked it off the table when he had sprung the telephone.

"'Um," Marley muttered. "Is this a clue, or yours, sir?"

He lifted the case with its diamonds gleaming like stars on a dark night. David had forgotten all about it for the time, had forgotten where it came from, or that it contained £250 in bank-notes.

"Not mine," he said. "I mean to say, of course, it is mine. A recent present. The shock of this discovery has deprived me of my senses pretty well."

Marley laid the cigar-case on the table. It seemed strange to him, who could follow a tragedy calmly, that a man should forget his own property. Meanwhile Cross was bending over the body. David could see a face smooth like that of a woman. A quick little exclamation came from the doctor.

"A drop of brandy here, and quick as possible," he commanded.

"You don't mean to say," Steel began; "you don't——"

Cross waved his arm, impatiently. The brandy was procured as speedily as possible. Steel, watching intently, fancied that he detected a slight flicker of the muscles of the white, stark face.

"Bring the ambulance here," Cross said, curtly. "If we can get this poor chap to the hospital there is just a chance for him. Fortunately, we have not many yards to go."

As far as elucidation went Marley naturally looked to Steel.

"I should like to have your explanation, sir," he said, gravely.

"Positively, I have no explanation to offer," David replied. "About midnight I let myself out to go for a stroll, carefully closing the door behind me. Naturally, the door was on the latch. When I came back an hour or so later, to my horror and surprise I found those marks of a struggle yonder and that poor fellow lying on the floor of the conservatory."

"'Um. Was the door fast on your return?"

"No, it was pulled to, but it was open all the same."

"You didn't happen to lose your latch-key during your midnight stroll, sir?"

"No, it was only when I put my key in the door that I discovered it to be open. I have a spare latch-key which I keep for emergencies, but when I went to look for it just now the key was not to be found. When I came back the house was perfectly quiet."

"What family have you, sir? And what kind of servants?"

"There is only myself and my mother, with three maids. You may dismiss any suspicion of the servants from your mind at once. My mother trained them all in the old vicarage where I was born, and not one of the trio has been with us less than twelve years."

"That simplifies matters somewhat," Marley said, thoughtfully. "Apparently your latch-key was stolen by somebody who has made careful study of your habits. Do you generally go for late walks after your household has gone to bed, sir?"

David replied somewhat grudgingly that he had never done such a thing before. He would like to have concealed the fact, but it was bound to come out sooner or later. He had strolled along the front and round Brunswick Square. Marley shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, it's a bit of a puzzle to me," he admitted. "You go out for a midnight walk—a thing you have never done before—and when you come back you find somebody has got into your house by means of a stolen latch-key and murdered somebody else in your conservatory. According to that, two people must have entered the house."

"That's logic," David admitted. "There can be no murder without the slain and the slayer. My impression is that somebody who knows the ways of the house watched me depart. Then he lured his victim in here under pretence that it was his own house—he had the purloined latch-key—and murdered him. Audacious, but a far safer way than doing it out of doors."

But Marley's imagination refused to go so far. The theory was plausible enough, he pointed out respectfully, if the assassin had been assured that these midnight rambles were a matter of custom. The point was a shrewd one, and Steel had to admit it. He almost wished now that he had suggested that he often took these midnight rambles. He regretted the fiction still more when Marley asked if he had had some appointment elsewhere to-night.

"No," David said, promptly, "I hadn't."

He prevaricated without hesitation. His adventure in Brunswick Square could not possibly have anything to do with the tragedy, and nothing would be gained by betraying that trust.

"I'll run round to the hospital and come and see you again in the morning, sir," Marley said. "Whatever was the nature of the crime, it wasn't robbery, or the criminal wouldn't have left that cigar-case of yours behind. Sir James Lythem had one stolen like that at the last races, and he valued it at £80."

"I'll come as far as the hospital with you," said Steel.

At the bottom of the flight of steps they encountered Dr. Cross and the policeman. The former handed over to Marley a pocket-book and some papers, together with a watch and chain.

"Everything that we could find upon him," he explained.

"Is the poor fellow dead yet?" David asked.

"No," Cross replied. "He was stabbed twice in the back in the region of the liver. I could not say for sure, but there is just a chance that he may recover. But one thing is pretty certain—it will be a good long time before he is in a position to say anything for himself. Good-night, Mr. Steel."

David went indoors thoughtfully, with a general feeling that something like a hand had grasped his brain and was squeezing it like a sponge. He was free from his carking anxiety now, but it seemed to him that he was paying a heavy price for his liberty. Mechanically, he counted out the bank-notes, and almost as mechanically he cut his initials on the gun-metal inside the cigar-case. He was one of the kind of men who like to have their initials everywhere.

He snapped the lights out and went to bed at last. But not to sleep. The welcome dawn came at length and David took his bath gratefully. He would have to tell his mother what had happened, suppressing all reference to the Brunswick Square episode. It was not a pleasant story, but Mrs. Steel assimilated it at length over her early tea and toast.

"It might have been you, my dear," she said, placidly. "And, indeed, it is a dreadful business. But why not telephone to the hospital and ask how the poor fellow is?"

The patient was better but was still in an unconscious condition.

CHAPTER V.

Steel swallowed a hasty breakfast and hurried off townwards. He had £1,000 packed away in his cigar-case, and the sooner he was free from Beckstein the better he would be pleased. He came at length to the offices of Messrs. Mossa and Mack, whose brass-plate bore the legend that the gentry in questions were solicitors, and that they also had a business in London. As David strode into the offices of the senior partner that individual looked up with a shade of anxiety in his deep, Oriental eyes.

"If you have come to offer terms," he said, nasally, "I am sorry——"

"To hear that I have come to pay you in full," David said, grimly; "£974 16s. 4d. up to yesterday, which I understand is every penny you can rightfully claim. Here it is. Count it."

He opened the cigar-case and took the notes therefrom. Mr. Mossa counted them very carefully indeed. The shade of disappointment was still upon his aquiline features. He had hoped to put in execution to-day and sell David up. In that way quite £200 might have been added to his legitimate earnings.

"It appears to be all correct," Mossa said, dismally.

"So I imagined, sir. You will be so good as to indorse the receipt on the back of the writ. Of course you are delighted to find that I am not putting you to painful extremities. Any other firm of solicitors would have given me time to pay this. But I am like the man who journeyed from Jericho to Jerusalem——"

"And fell amongst thieves! You dare to call me a thief? You dare——"

"I didn't," David said, drily. "That fine, discriminating mind of yours saved me the trouble. I have met some tolerably slimy scoundrels in my time, but never any one of them more despicable than yourself. Faugh! the mere sight of you sickens me. Let me get out of the place so that I can breathe."

David strode out of the office with the remains of his small fortune rammed into his pocket. In the wild, unreasoning rage that came over him he had forgotten his cigar-case. And it was some little time before Mr. Mossa was calm enough to see the diamonds winking at him.

"Our friend is in funds," he muttered. "Well, he shall have a dance for his cigar-case. I'll send it up to the police-station and say that some gentleman or other left it here by accident. And if that Steel comes back we can say that there is no cigar-case here. And if Steel does not see the police advertisement he will lose his pretty toy, and serve him right. Yes, that is the way to serve him out."

Mr. Mossa proceeded to put his scheme into execution whilst David was strolling along the sea front. He was too excited for work, though he felt easier in his mind than he had done for months. He turned mechanically on to the Palace Pier, at the head of which an Eastbourne steamer was blaring and panting. The trip appealed to David in his present frame of mind. Like most of his class, he was given to acting on the spur of the moment . . . . It was getting dark as David let himself into Downend Terrace with his latch-key.

How good it was to be back again! The eye of the artist rested fondly upon the beautiful things around. And but for the sport of chance, the whim of fate, these had all passed from him by this time. It was good to look across the dining-table over Venetian glass, to see the pools of light cast by the shaded electric, to note the feathery fall of flowers, and to see that placid, gentle fact in its frame of white hair opposite him. Mrs. Steel's simple, unaffected pride in her son was not the least gratifying part of David's success.

"You have not suffered from the shock, mother?" he asked.

"Well, no," Mrs. Steel confessed, placidly. "You see, I never had what people call nerves, my dear. And, after all, I saw nothing. Still, I am very, very sorry for that poor young man, and I have sent to inquire after him several times."

"He is no worse or I should have heard of it."

"No, and no better. And Inspector Marley has been here to see you twice to-day."

David pitied himself as much as a man could pity himself considering his surroundings. It was rather annoying that this should have happened at a time when he was so busy. And Marley would have all sorts of questions to ask at all sorts of inconvenient seasons.

Steel passed into his study presently and lighted a cigarette. Despite his determination to put the events of yesterday from his mind, he found himself constantly returning to them. What a splendid dramatic story they would make! And what a fascinating mystery could be woven round that gun-metal cigar-case!

By the way, where was the cigar-case? On the whole it would be just as well to lock the case away till he could discover some reasonable excuse for its possession. His mother would be pretty sure to ask where it came from, and David could not prevaricate so far as she was concerned. But the cigar-case was not to be found, and David was forced to the conclusion that he had left it in Mossa's office.

A little annoyed with himself he took up the evening Argus. There was half a column devoted to the strange case at Downend Terrace, and just over it a late advertisement to the effect that a gun-metal cigar-case had been found and was in the hands of the police awaiting an owner.

David slipped from the house and caught a 'bus in St. George's Road.

At the police-station he learnt that Inspector Marley was still on the premises. Marley came forward gravely. He had a few questions to ask, but nothing to tell.

"And now perhaps you can give me some information?" David said. "You are advertising in to-night's Argus a gun-metal cigar-case set with diamonds."

"Ah," Marley said, eagerly, "can you tell us anything about it?"

"Nothing beyond the fact that I hope to satisfy you that the case is mine."

Marley stared open-mouthed at David for a moment, and then relapsed into his sapless official manner. He might have been a detective cross-examining a suspected criminal.

"Why this mystery?" David asked. "I have lost a gun-metal cigar-case set with diamonds, and I see a similar article is noted as found by the police. I lost it this morning, and I shrewdly suspect that I left it behind me at the office of Mr. Mossa."

"The case was sent here by Mr. Mossa himself," Marley admitted.

"Then, of course, it is mine. I had to give Mr. Mossa my opinion of him this morning, and by way of spiting me he sent that case here, hoping, perhaps, that I should not recover it. You know the case, Marley—it was lying on the floor of my conservatory last night."

"I did notice a gun-metal case there," Marley said, cautiously.

"As a matter of fact, you called my attention to it and asked if it was mine."

"And you said at first that it wasn't, sir."

"Well, you must make allowances for my then frame of mind," David laughed. "I rather gather from your manner that somebody else has been after the case; if that is so, you are right to be reticent. Still, it is in your hands to settle the matter on the spot. All you have to do is to open the case, and if you fail to find my initials, D.S., scratched in the left-hand top corner, then I have lost my property and the other fellow has found his."

In the same reticent fashion Marley proceeded to unlock a safe in the corner, and from thence he produced what appeared to be the identical cause of all this talk. He pulled the electric table lamp over to him and proceeded to examine the inside carefully.

"You are quite right," he said, at length. "Your initials are here."

"Not strange, seeing that I scratched them there last night," said David, drily. "When? Oh, it was after you left my house last night."

"And it has been some time in your possession, sir?"

"Oh, confound it, no. It was—well, it was a present from a friend for a little service rendered. So far as I understand, it was purchased at Lockhart's, in North Street. No, I'll be hanged if I answer any more of your questions, Marley. I'll be your Aunt Sally so far as you are officially concerned. But as to yonder case, your queries are distinctly impertinent."

Marley shook his head gravely, as one might over a promising but headstrong boy.

"Do I understand that you decline to account for the case?" he asked.

"Certainly I do. It is connected with some friends of mine to whom I rendered a service a little time back. The whole thing is and must remain an absolute secret."

"You are placing yourself in a very delicate position, Mr. Steel."

David started at the gravity of the tone. That something was radically wrong came upon him like a shock. And he could see pretty clearly that, without betraying confidence, he could not logically account for the possession of the cigar-case. In any case it was too much to expect that the stolid police officer would listen to so extravagant a tale for a moment.

"What on earth do you mean, man?" he cried.

"Well, it's this way, sir," Marley proceeded to explain. "When I pointed out the case to you lying on the floor of your conservatory last night you said it wasn't yours. You looked at it with the eyes of a stranger, and then you said you were mistaken. From information given me last night I have been making inquiries about the cigar-case. You took it to Mr. Mossa's and from it you produced notes to the value of nearly £1,000 to pay off a debt. Within eight-and forty hours you had no more prospect of paying that debt than I have at this moment. Of course, you will be able to account for those notes. You can, of course?"

Marley looked eagerly at his visitor. A cold chill was playing up and down Steel's spine. Not to save his life could be account for those notes.

"We will discuss that when the proper time comes," he said, with fine indifference.

"As you please, sir. From information also received I took the case to Walen's, in West Street, and asked Mr. Walen if he had seen the case before. Pressed to identify it, he handed me a glass and asked me to find the figures (say) '1771. x. 3,' in tiny characters on the edge. I did so by the aid of the glass, and Mr. Walen further proceeded to show me an entry in his purchasing ledger which proved that a cigar-case in gun-metal and diamonds bearing that legend had been added to the stock recently—a few weeks ago, in fact."

BISON FURNACE

In an actual test under ordinary conditions a prominent Montreal Professor of Physics reports the following results with a Bison Hot Water Heater:

Starting with the water at 65°, eleven minutes after the match was applied its temperature increased to 100° in the upper section.

Four minutes later it went up to 137°.

And 29 minutes after starting it was at 194°.

The bottom section gets as hot as in any other furnace—the great gain is in the top section.

Next morning, 15 hours after it had been left for the night, the water was at 124° in the top section and 100° in the lower.

In any furnace the water always goes into the mains at the temperature of the upper section.

In the Bison Furnace the water in the upper section is always the hottest—in other furnaces it is the coolest.

Billiard Balls.

Billiard balls are first roughly turned by a lathe from the tusk, then left from six months to a year in a room about the temperature of an ordinary billiard hall. This length of time is necessary because the ivory shrinks more in one direction than another, and the seasoning must be complete before the balls are finished and polished.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

Try Now the Ways of Yore and See How You Like Them.

Good old times, says the San Antonio Light, are a delusion and a snare, and the man who sighs for them has little conception of what they were. Return to them, would you? Then rise on a cold morning and wash at the pump, pull on a pair of rawhide boots that rival a tin can in stiffness, pull on a woolen shirt over your back and sit down to a bare meal with your three legged stool dancing around on a split slab floor, eat corn pone and bacon for a steady diet and labor fourteen hours out of twenty-four. Go without a daily paper, a fly screen, a mosquito bar, a spring mattress, a kerosene lamp, geehaw your oxen to market and sit on the floor of an ox cart as you wend your way to church or a frolic. Parch corn and peas for coffee and sassafras for tea and see how you like it.

The old days are looked backward to affectionately, says the Galveston News, because they were the days of our youth, of bounding blood and supple joints, the days of hope and the days of love and laughter and song. The days of the present will be the good old days of the coming generation and will be regarded by our successors as rather crude in customs and harsh in many ways, yet withal not to be despised. The progressives of our age are the mossbacks of later eras. Fifty years hence we will be accounted as slow and immature as we now regard those of half a century ago.

CHIRSCHMUS.

A Swiss Dainty That Is Made of Preserved Cherries.

Last summer I ate genuine Swiss chirschmus twenty years old. It tasted like a concentration of all the richness and sweetness of the most perfect cherries. In appearance it was a purplish black mass. Age had not impaired it in the least.

Upon inquiry I learned how this cherry concoction, with its wonderful preserving quality, is made. The cherries used must be perfect—very large, ripe, juicy black ones and, above all, very sweet.

The juice of them pressed out and strained through a bag is put in a large preserving kettle, at the bottom of which is placed a piece of smoked pork fastened to a block of wood. The wood serves as a weight to keep the fat down and prevent the juice from burning as it thickens.

The cherry juice is boiled for about twenty-four hours without sugar, but stirred from time to time until it becomes a mass of sweetness so firm and thick that it would not fall if the kettle were inverted.

That is all, a simple process, but the result is delicious. This chirschmus is in general use in Switzerland with the "susse anke" (sweet butter) and bread. —London Ladies' World.

Feeding Silkworms.

The quality and quantity of silk produced by your silkworms will all depend on how you feed them. Too much food should not be given at once, but they should never be left entirely without at any time during the day or night. You must, therefore, watch carefully to get an idea of their appetite and provide accordingly, says Home Chat. Fresh mulberry leaves are the proper food for silkworms, but if at any time these are not procurable young lettuce leaves are the best substitute, but they are only a stop gap. Silkworms cannot live for a long period without their natural food.

A Rich Man.

Standards of prosperity vary in different parts of the country, but that of Captain Jack is purely local—to himself. The old man came out of his cottage door one morning and discovered some ne'er-do-well neighbors digging clams in the flat in front of his shore.

"Dear me, boys," he quavered in a weak, old voice, "don't dig my clams! There's Abel Wyman over there across the cove; he has ham for breakfast every morning in the year. Go over there and dig his clams, boys."

His Awful Mistake.

"Young man," said her father, "do you smoke cigarettes?"

"I should say not," declared the youth hastily. "I would consider it disgraceful to be seen with one of the vile things in my mouth. I think all cigarette smokers should be jailed. Why do you ask, sir?"

"Thought perhaps you could let me have one," said the old man pointedly. "I smoke 'em myself."—London Telegraph.

GERMAN GLEE CLUBS.

Early Days of the Saengerfests In This Country.

In the early days of saengerfests in this country they were held annually. The third saengerfest was held in New York in 1852, and many Newark Germans attended. Below are given extracts from the Newark Daily Advertiser, printed at the time:

June 10, 1852.—The German glee clubs of New York will celebrate the third annual festival in New York this year on the 19th to 22d of June. The New York Journal of Commerce states that the glee clubs from abroad will be received by the New York clubs and honored with a torchlight procession. The principal performance will take place at the Academy of Music, Fourteenth street, when the choruses will be sung by over 1,200 male voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 100 pieces. On the 22d will be held a picnic on the Bloomingdale road, opposite Striker's bay.

June 22.—Third musical jubilee of German singers, Saturday to Tuesday, 19th to 22d. The execution of the "Magic Flute" overture by 1,200 voices was very uncommon and surprising by the New York clubs and was received with great applause. The Eintrachts of Newark sang "Wallisischer Schiffergesang" in a distinguished manner. But the most marked performance was Martin Luther's "Ein Feste Burg Ist Unser Gott," arranged by Finke. We felt immediately what religious music really is—how grand, solemn and sublime such a hymn is when performed by a large orchestra and hundreds of voices. It was something to be remembered long. Kossuth was present during an intermission and was cheered.

THE SERPENT'S VENOM.

Mohammedan Legend of the Origin of the Tobacco Plant.

The prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a serpent, stiff with cold, lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his bosom. When the serpent had recovered it said:

"Divine prophet, listen. I am now going to bite thee."

"Why, pray?" inquired Mohammed.

"Because thy race persecutes mine and tries to stamp it out."

"But does not thy race, too, make perpetual war against mine?" was the prophet's rejoinder. "How canst thou, besides, be so ungrateful and so soon forget that I saved thy life?"

"There is no such thing as gratitude upon this earth," replied the serpent, "and if I were now to spare thee either thou or another of thy race would kill me. By Allah, I shall bite thee."

"If thou hast sworn by Allah, I will not cause thee to break thy vow," said the prophet, holding his hand to the serpent's mouth. The serpent bit him, but he sucked the wound with his lips and spat the venom on the ground. And on that very spot there sprang up a plant which combines within itself the venom of the serpent and the compassion of the prophet. Men call this plant by the name of tobacco.—Conte Arabe.

Stephen Girard, Hero.

A tablet "in commemoration of the courage and humanity displayed by Stephen Girard during the epidemic of yellow fever in the year 1793" in Girard college in Philadelphia discloses a phase of character in the philanthropist not generally understood. During the fever epidemic he gave up his business and his luxurious home and assumed the superintendency of a yellow fever hospital. He took up the work others recoiled from and did the work because it was his duty.

On Himself.

They had quarreled again.

"Perhaps you are not aware," she said, "that I had over a dozen proposals of marriage before I accepted yours."

He flushed.

"And perhaps, madam," he retorted haughtily, "you are not aware that I proposed to nearly twenty women before I became acquainted with yourself."

Temper.

If a man has a quarrelsome temper, let him alone. The world will soon find him employment. He will soon meet with some one stronger than himself who will repay him better than you can. A man may fight duels all his life if he is disposed to quarrel.—Cecil.

A popular soprano is said to have a voice of fine timbre, a willowy figure, cherry lips, chestnut hair and hazel eyes. She must have been raised in the lumber region.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. ROBERT HUNTER.

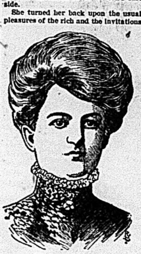
A Noble Woman Who Is Engaged In a Noble Work.

As Caroline M. Phelps Stokes of New York, Mrs. Robert Hunter was reared in the lap of luxury. Her father, Anson Phelps Stokes, is many times a millionaire, and her grandfather, Anson Phelps, was numbered among the greatest of New York's many great financiers.

Her home on Fifth avenue was one of the most magnificent in that city of splendid mansions. Liveried servants were always at her call; her every wish was gratified. Nothing that money could buy was denied her when she desired it. She is said to have a fortune of $10,000,000 in her own right.

Blossoming into womanhood Miss Stokes followed the example of her two brothers, the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., and J. G. Phelps Stokes, and began work in the slums of New York's east side.

She turned her back upon the usual pleasures of the rich and the invitations of her social set, and, with remarkable devotion to the cause, set about alleviating the sufferings of those who were far less fortunate than herself.



MRS. ROBERT HUNTER.

It was while engaged in this work that she met Robert Hunter, a young man who had been brought from the west to take charge of a large university settlement work in the east side. He had nothing more to offer her than a clean heart, a clear head and a strong character that was all aflame with enthusiasm for the betterment of the lower strata of humanity, but Miss Stokes had not been impressed by the average young men in her social set. So the two were married.

Not long afterward their friends were astounded to learn that the Hunters had abandoned their palatial dwelling on Fifth avenue and had gone down into the lower west side of New York, a section that had been crying out for help for years, to make their home there.

They took a modest house in Grove street, and there they have since resided. Their days are spent receiving callers—not those from the fashionable set they had left uptown, but from the squalid regions about them—in extending the helping hand and studying what next to do in the campaign against poverty and its accompanying evils.

"All day long white faced misery throngs to the door of the humble little house." Financial assistance is given one, advice to another, a tangle in the thread of this life or that is straightened.

"We have taken this small house," said Mr. and Mrs. Hunter to an early caller, "in order to keep our lives simple. There isn't half as much interest in the life of fashionable New York as is to be found in the kindly, homely circles of humbler folk. We want to live the race life, the true American life. It is for the purpose of being next door to poverty that we have come here."—Philadelphia North American.

Perpetual Youth.

Every woman desires to retain as long as may be her youthfulness of face, form and movement, yet the true secret of such enduring youth is by no means universally recognized. A woman is happy just in proportion as she is content. The sun has a way of changing the spots upon which it shines. Especially is this true of our land, where one is up today and down tomorrow and vice versa. The wisest woman is she who trusts in a tomorrow, but never looks for it. To sit down and wish that this might be, that that would be different, does a woman no good. It does her harm, in that it makes her dissatisfied with herself, unpleasant to her friends, and makes her old before her time. Happiness is not always increased in proportion to large success. This may sound like an old saw, and so it is, but there is a world of wisdom in many an old proverb, just the same. Contentment is a wonderful thing to cultivate. There would be fewer prematurely old women, says Woman's Life, in the world, if it were given more of a trial and it became a more universal quality in womanhood.

Sensitive Women.

Sensitive women, above all others, have need of that grand spiritual virtue, common sense. And sensitive girls should be instructed carefully as to the capabilities and dangers of their peculiar temperament. They should be taught to govern not only their actions but their thoughts and feelings, by their reason and judgment. They should be shown how to argue their misery out to its lowest terms before allowing themselves to be made miserable by imaginary sorrows.

For girls or for those older who never have been truly disciplined such training is necessary ere they can find peace of mind and comfort amid the conflicts of an emotional temperament. The final virtue of the sensitive spiritual nature is to be happy. And though it may take many struggles to attain this state the mind should be made up that happiness is the right and highest condition and that only weak minded people believe it fine to be miserable.

The Thin Woman's Clothes.

One of the unsolved mysteries is why the average thin woman is inclined to wear her clothes in such a way that they only accentuate her thinness. Instead of diminishing the length of her back by a deeply shaped belt she too often wears a belt so narrow that it looks as though she had taken particular pains to hunt down the narrowest to be found, and instead of wearing her blouse generously full and pouched in front she seems to take pleasure in pulling it down skin tight. In fact, the thin woman should wear frills and furbelows as much as possible instead of accentuating her long lines and acute angles by clothes that seem to be cut on her own pattern.—New York Mail.

Cord Chair Seats.

When the cane is worn from chairs and they are not considered sufficiently valuable for the expense of new cane seats they may be reseated with heavy cord and will wear for a long time. The old cane should all be cleared away and the lengths of cord run in the same holes and knotted securely beneath. Then weave them in and out, after the manner of weaving the cane, although it is not necessary to attempt any special pattern. After reaching the opposite side the free ends are pushed down through the holes and tied beneath. Give the seat a coat of paint or stain to match the chair frame, and a very acceptable chair is the result.

Sewing on Buttons.

When sewing on buttons, before you lay the buttons on the garment, put the thread through so that the knot will be on the right side. That leaves it under the button and prevents it from being ironed or torn away. Before you begin sewing, lay a large pin across the button so that the threads go over the pin. After you have finished filling the holes, draw out the pin and draw the thread round and round beneath the button. This forms a stem to sustain the pulling and wear of the buttonhole.

Massage.

Flesh on any part of the body may be reduced by proper massage. Anoint with cocoa butter or any other good massage agent, so that the flesh will not be bruised; then, by picking up the flesh in tiny folds and rolling between thumb and first finger, you will be able to dissolve the tiny fat cells. Follow with cold-water baths to avoid a flabby condition that otherwise might result from this massage.

Sour Milk and Silver.

As a silver cleaner sour milk is invaluable and will save the busy housewife much time and hard work. All that is necessary is to put the silver in a deep bowl of sour milk, let it lie there for ten or fifteen minutes and then rinse it in scalding water, drying it immediately with a flannel cloth. The lactic acid in the milk removes the tarnish from the silver and leaves it bright and clean.

Teach Children Prudence.

Wise parents will ever strive to impress upon their children the necessity of forming prudent habits; of spending money to advantage, so that some article of utility or value is always obtained for it; the duty of exercising systematic and judicious charity, and that the purest happiness which can be experienced upon earth springs from the practice of benevolence.

The Bedclothes.

To keep the bedclothes from pulling away from the foot of an iron bedstead, on the foot end of the mattress sew three large buttons, one in the middle and the others near the corners. On one end of the sheets and blankets sew tape loops to correspond with the buttons. This overcomes the only fault of iron and brass bedsteads.

The Photographer Advises.

A photographer suggests that when having a photograph taken the lady dress her hair in a becoming fashion without regard to the latest mode, which will certainly change and make the picture look old fashioned, while a becoming style will not. Do not wear a new dress, and only young people should be photographed in white.

To sweeten rancid butter melt the butter and skim it; then put into it a piece of toast (be careful it is not burned). In a few minutes the butter will lose its rancid taste and smell, which the toast has absorbed.

The home of the Woman's club of Denver has been exempted from any taxation on the ground that the club is a charitable organization and engaged in humanitarian work.

Spending money is an art which ought to be studied, and every wife can so spend her husband's earnings as to double the purchasing power.

If alum is added to the paste used in covering boxes with paper or muslin moths and mice will avoid them.

Clothes of Quality

Copyright 1906 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

Our Clothing is the result of genius, First, the genius of the men who design the pattern of the cloth—next, the genius of the men who cut the garments—and next, the genius of the Tailors who build and mold them into the finest Clothing produced in America today.

We told you much about our Clothing, but all the telling can make but a small part of the impression that actual wearing experience will give.

You know you can depend on it—you see its right up to the minute in style—you feel, as well as see, its perfection.

A NOTED AUTHOR

On Eye Strain, speaking of latent strain (that is, some error not manifest by the ordinary tests), says; 'With these illustrations in view it becomes emphatically suggestive when we see professional men simply directing their patients to look at Snellen's test type, and if they can read the letters indicating normal vision the subject of the eye is dismissed by them as having nothing to do with the case. When we think how much strain may exist under the most perfect vision, and consider its fatal consequences to life and happiness, such an examination and conclusion are not only careless, — but criminal. When the nerve centres have kept up these strains in adjusting the eyes for many years, the strain becomes a habit latent and continuous, even during the hours of sleep." We use the latest expert methods of detecting these latent strains.

HOCKEY.

Harry Brown May Go West.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—Manager Gilroy, of the Portage la Prairie hockey team, who has been in Ottawa for the past few days, has departed for his home town. Mr. Gilroy, it is understood, was on a tour of the eastern Ontario hockey centers in search of available hockey material and that his hunt for hockey artists was not without results is indicated by the fully authenticated report that he has been successful in securing no less than four of the Federal hockey champions of last season.

Smith's Falls was the objective point of Manager Gilroy's quest, and it is stated that Serviss, Brown, Ross and Fraser, of the Smith's Falls team have decided to move west and accept lucrative positions to play hockey under Portage la Prairie colors. Not only have the Smith's Falls stars been approached, but Ottawa has also been visited and inducements have been held out to Hair, of the Ottawas, and to the Victoria goal tend to cast in their lot with the western team.

It is also stated that the Stuart brothers have written several of the Ottawa and Victoria players regarding western opportunities, and it would seem as though a general raid by the western club had been contemplated.

It was ascertained last evening that the rumor regarding the Smith's Falls players was founded on fact, and while the Ottawa men may remain in the Capital there seems to be no doubt but that the Smith's Falls players will abandon the team which last season landed on top in the Federal League.

BASEBALL.

Nationals Won Yesterday.

Chicago, Oct. 10 — The Cubs reversed things to-day, and simply overwhelmed the White Sox with a shower of hits It looked as if the great National League machine, which was out of gear yesterday, was again in perfect working order, and the Sox had no show against it. Chance's men batted, ran bases, and scurried around the field in easy, confident style, while Comiskey's men went to pieces early. Reulbach pitched a wild and unhitable ball, while White left the slab after three innings, Owen pitching the rest of the game, and receiving his bumps with frequency. The attendance was 12,595. As it was 12,693 yesterday this would indicate that 98 fans died of pneumonia over night.

The weather was bitterly cold, the mercury hovering at 6 below the freezing point all afternoon. As was the case yesterday, a few flakes of snow fell, but they were not needed to add to the general discomfort. With frost nipping fingers and toes perfect baseball was impossible. The practice of both teams was exceedingly ragged, the cold hands of the infielders refusing to cling to the ball, while the outfielders missed many flies, which were blown out of reach by the wind. In actual play the form was better.

Following is the summary;

	R.	H.	E.
Nationals	7	10	1
Americans	1	2	3

Batteries — Reulbach and Kling; White and Owen and Sullivan.

Umpires—O'Loughlin and Johnstone,

Time of game, 2 hours.

SPORTING NOTES.

Reporting a game of lacrosse at Cornwall last Saturday, a correspondent had this to say of our old college chum, "Reddy" McMillan; "Reddy" McMillan was the only Cornwall player who did not seem bent on murdering his opponents. "Reddy" alone played the game as it should be played. He played a strong game and was the most effective man on the Cornwall team."

Took Prussic Acid But Will Recover.

DENNIS LAKE, IT SEEMS, IS NOT DEAD, BUT WILL RECOVER—SO SAYS NAPANEE DESPATCH.

Napanee, Oct. 10.—On Monday afternoon Dennis Lake was found in an unconscious condition at the rear of his home on Dundas street. At first it was thought he had suffered a stroke of paralysis, but upon summoning a doctor it was discovered that he had drunk a quantity of prussic acid. Whether with suicidal intent or not is not known. The timely arrival of the doctor prevented his death. He is recovering. Some weeks ago he had a fall from his sulky while in a race at Belleville, and it was thought that he was not himself since that accident.

Died In Hungerford.

A fine old Englishman passed away last night in the person of Robert Tufts, of High Grove farm, Hungerford township, near Tweed. Death resulted from the effects of a stroke. The late Mr. Tufts, who was 75 years of age, was born in Scoulton, Norfolk, Eng., and came to Canada 45 years ago. He was an Anglican and a Liberal, and a man much respected. For many years he was prominent in the municipal affairs of the township in which he lived. Deceased leaves four sons and two daughters to mourn his loss.

Demand For Power.

TWENTY-FIVE MUNICIPALITIES, BELLEVILLE AMONG THEM, HAVE APPLIED TO THE H. E. POWER COMMISSION.

Toronto, Oct. 10. — A meeting of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission was held at the commission's offices, Toronto street, yesterday afternoon, Hon. Mr. Beck, the Chairman, presiding. The session was largely devoted to the consideration of the formal applications approved of by resolutions of the Councils, and forwarded by the Clerks, from a number of municipalities desiring to obtain electrical power. The minimum demand of these applications aggregate 68,100 horse power. The estimates of the commission for the power required by the same municipalities was 66,000, and their closeness to the actual demand is regarded by the commission as evidence of the careful and exhaustive manner in which the expert staff has done its work in gathering the data and information on which the estimates are based.

As rapidly as possible the commission will furnish the various municipalities with complete information as to the approximate cost of supplying their demands. It will then rest with the municipalities to say whether they wish the commission to make the arrangements for them under the terms of the "Power bill of last session," which will result in their obtaining that supply. The complete list of municipalities whose requests are now before the commission is as follows: Toronto, London, St. Thomas, Berlin, Galt, Woodstock, Guelph, Waterloo, Preston, Stratford, St. Mary's, Paris, Hespeler, Brantford, Orangeville, Brampton, Lucan, Parkhill, Leamington, Cottam, Richmond Hill, Belleville, Brockville, Ottawa.

Former Belleville Man To Be Judge.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—Mr. W. R. Riddell, K.C., will be appointed in a day or two to the vacant judgeship in the Ontario High Court. That gentleman has been prominent at the Bar for several years past.

Wm. Renwick Riddell, K. C., who has just been raised to the Bench, was born of Scottish parents, near Cobourg, in 1852. His education was commenced at Cobourg and completed at Victoria University, where he obtained the degrees of B.A., B.Sc. and LL.B.

Mr. Riddell studied law in Belleville for some time, was called to the Bar in 1883, and having practiced in Cobourg for a few years, went to Toronto in 1892, and at present is associated with the law firm of Beatty, Blackstock, Nesbitt and Chadwick. In religion Mr. Riddell is a Presbyterian, in politics a Liberal and a free trader.

Railway Officials Here.

A private car containing a number of the officials of the Delaware and Lackawana Railway came here this afternoon, over the G.T.R. line. The party will spend a couple of days here fishing.

Dog Caused Fright.

On Tuesday night the members of a household on John street were suddenly aroused by what they imagined was a person endeavoring to get into the house. Upon investigation it proved to be a large dog belonging to a neighbor, which was trying to get into the premises. The family soon recovered from the fright they were subjected to.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LAKE SHORE SPIRIT.

Throughout the entire length and breadth of the great Lake Shore Railway System there is a spirit of co-operation and personal responsibility on the part of employees from the highest to the lowest that is reflected in every detail of the road's operation. The traveller feels that the great army of trained workers have his welfare and comfort at heart as much as though he were the only patron of the road. This spirit—the Lake Shore spirit—is one of the features that have made this line so popular among experienced travellers. Comfort, speed, safety and punctuality here have reached their highest development. Write for full information to J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N. Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, O.; or W. J. Lynch, Pass'gr Traffic Mgr., Chicago, and tell the agent to have your ticket read "via Buffalo and The Lake Shore Railway."

If you wanted to sell a used-piano and someone could furnish you the addresses of fifty people who are on the lookout for second-hand pianos—you'd be glad to buy this list, and—pay well for it, wouldn't you? A REAL SNOWSTORM.

First Blizzard of the Season Brings Sleighing to Goderich—General In the North and West.

Goderich, Oct. 11.—Goderich and vicinity was yesterday in the throes of a blizzard.

Since midnight over eight inches of snow has fallen and sleighing is general. Following a heavy fall of rain the snow has caused irreparable destruction to fruit and shade trees, besides destruction to telegraph and telephone wires.

Part of the trestle work of the Guelph and Goderich Railway, recently undermined by the Grand Trunk shovel, has fallen and a large portion is overhanging the Grand Trunk tracks.

Even Toronto Gets Winter.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The first snow of the season fell in Toronto last night and reports indicate that a snowfall was fairly general. Goderich being treated to no less than eight inches, and other northern towns along the Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, all the way from one to three inches. At Brampton there was a miniature blizzard, and at midnight snow was falling in the city.

A HERO OF THE LAKES.

Ed. Jacobson Swam Through Boiling Surf and Rescued Six.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 11.—A Detroit News special from Houghton, Mich., says:

The 14 people comprising the crews of the barges Wayne and Foster which were reported missing in Monday night's storm, were found alive and safe Tuesday, all having survived the stranding of the two vessels on the shore of Misery Bay.

Both vessels struck on a rocky shore. While the crew of the Wayne easily reached dry land, the Foster's crew found themselves imprisoned on a stranded ship, with a stretch of boiling surf intervening between them and the shore. Ed. Jacobson, one of the Foster's crew, took the free end of a line in his teeth, plunged into the surf and, after a terrific battle for life made his way to the land. Establishing communication with his shipmates by means of the line he had carried ashore, Jacobson then brought the six remaining members of the crew to land on a breeches buoy.

Snow In Cleveland.

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—Heavy, wet snow, driven by a high wind, fell here yesterday. It is the most severe October storm since that of Oct. 5, 1892, and is general along Ohio's lake front.

Fierce Battle With Storm.

Fort William, Oct. 11.—The Canadian Pacific liner Athabasca arrived Tuesday night, completely covered with ice, her signal lights gone and rigging damaged, after a furious battle with the storm on Lake Superior.

The Neepawah, which also came in Tuesday night, had a hard siege. Its cargo of machinery was damaged to the extent of $4,000. The vessel was undamaged.

Caught In Blizzard.

Goderich, Oct. 11.—While lifting nets off this port yesterday morning, the fishing schooner Reindeer was caught in a northwest blizzard, and had it not been for the timely arrival of the tug Horton the little vessel would doubtless have been swamped. Although equipped with an auxiliary gasoline motor it was impossible to control the boat, either by power or sails.

Storm Buffets Ships.

Port Arthur, Oct. 11.—The steamer Fulton and the schooner Manila are in port for shelter and making repairs. They were in the storm of Monday night on Lake Superior. The Manila's steering gear was broken and she was buffeted round in the storm. Her cabins were washed overboard.

Schr. Frolic Caught at Last.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 11.—After having evaded the United States customs and immigration officers for more than two weeks, the schooner yacht Frolic, which left Placentia, Nfld., with a cargo of contraband Chinese immigrants, was boarded in the Providence River early yesterday and confiscated in the name of the United States Government. Two Portuguese members of the crew were placed under arrest, they being the only persons found on board the boat. Seventeen Chinese, believed to have been passengers on the Frolic, were also arrested.

Canadian Chauffeur Fined.

London, Oct. 11.—(C. A. P.)—Herbert Gordon Wilson, Canadian chauffeur to a prominent Canadian, was fined for driving his car through a passageway intended for foot passengers only.

General Booth Coming.

London, Oct. 11.—Col. Kitching of the Salvation Army has left for New York, Toronto and Chicago, to pave the way for General Booth's American tour, which begins in January.

A Canadian Cardinal.

Quebec, Oct. 11.—A despatch received in this city yesterday from Rome, announced that His Grace Archbishop Begin, Quebec, will be named a cardinal at the next consistory.

McINTOSH BROS.

FOWLER STILL ABSENT

Mr. Shepley Intimates That a Bench Warrant May Issue.

Hon. George E. Foster Concludes His Evidence and Makes an Explanatory Statement of Various Topics Upon Which He Gave Evidence—Mr. Wilson, K. C., Tells of Negotiations for Obtaining Control of Trust Co.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Mr. George W. Fowler, M. P., was still absent when the insurance investigation was resumed yesterday morning, but Mr. Shepley stated to the Commission that he had received a telegram purporting to come from Mr. Fowler at Winnipeg, saying that he would be in Toronto next Friday morning. Mr. Shepley did not think that Mr. Fowler's tardy attendance should be condoned by the Commission, and he was considering the propriety of issuing a bench warrant. The Commissioners quite concurred in this.

Union Trust Investments.

Mr. Foster again took the stand, and gave a statement of the Union Trust investments for the year 1905. United States securities held by the company amounted to $449,109.68, and there were also Kamloops Lumber Co., $315,000; Alexandra Palace shares, $150,000; Alexandra Palace bonds, $130,000; Improved Realty Co. (preference), $50,000; Union Bank of Canada shares, $168,000; Northern Bank of Canada shares, $50,000; Nanaimo shares, $26,000; Crow's Nest, $12,500; a total of $1,360,614.68.

Taking up the Montague syndicate again, Mr. Shepley examined the witness in detail about some of the transactions. Mr. Foster thought that the syndicate had transferred to the I.O.F. all the lands they purchased subsequent to the original purchase of 44,000 acres, which would have been sufficient to cover Dr. Montague's equity and let him out. The syndicate did not go out of business when these transfers were made.

A $5,000 Division.

Mr. Shepley referred to $25,000, which, he stated, the Foresters had given for bringing lands under their mortgage and asked Mr. Foster: "Why did you divide $5,000 to other purposes?"

"You may say that we diverted $5,000 of it for some other purposes or you may say that we paid that out of the credit which we had to $10,000 which had come to us and which we placed to our account."

Rights of Counsel.

A sharp passage-at-arms arose while Mr. Shepley was pressing Mr. Foster for a definite reply to his question on this point. Mr. Nesbitt interposed a suggestion which elicited from Mr. Shepley the sharp retort: "You know you have no rights here at all, Mr. Nesbitt."

Mr. Foster immediately spoke up: "Am I to understand my counsel has no rights here at all? If that is so it throws a very lurid light on the matter, and the phase it is assuming at the present time."

Mr. Shepley's reply was a quiet request to Mr. Foster to answer the question put to him. Witness complied with the request.

Mr. Wilson, K. C., on the Stand.

Mr. Matthew Wilson, K. C., was the next witness, and said his first introduction to the matters under investigation was as representative of certain members of the Board of Directors of the Provincial Trust Co., of which he was a member, who were desirous of getting control of the company. In this desire they were anxious to protect themselves from liability, and benefit the shareholders. In the transaction he was acting as solicitor or agent, and not as a director. Mr. Wilson described the various preliminary steps which led up to the agreement with Mr. William Laidlaw, K. C., under which he agreed to turn over sufficient stock to give Mr. Laidlaw control of the company. In domestic discussions with the executive, the conclusion was arrived at that the assets of the company, if carefully realized, would produce 60 per cent. on the dollar. Mr. Laidlaw first offered 59 cents, and afterwards increased his offer to 65 cents.

Mr. Foster's Statement.

In the afternoon Hon. Mr. Foster made a long statement, summarizing the various subjects dealt with in his evidence and presenting his conclusions in concise form.

Mr. Wilson Again.

Mr. Wilson was recalled immediately after Mr. Foster had finished. The purchase of the capital stock of the Provincial Loan Co. through Mr. Laidlaw was explained by the witness.

Under the first arrangement Mr. Wilson was to receive $40 per day and expenses, to get in the stock sufficiently to get control of the company. Mr. Laidlaw or his nominees were to work out the balance. This idea was changed so that Wilson received $25 per day from his clients and his expenses and $1,000 from Mr. Laidlaw, not to get control of the company, but on the understanding that he was to use his utmost endeavor to get hold of the outstanding stock, so that when the arrangements were completed to transfer the stock no trouble would be raised from any quarter.

Mr. Shepley then took up the $50,000 that was given to Mr. Wilson by Mr. Laidlaw to get the options on the stock. Considerable correspondence, covering the purchase of the options, which were paid for by Mr. Wilson's own cheque, out of the above money put up by the Foresters, was read by Mr. Shepley, who asked the witness to produce these cheques.

Will Get the Vouchers.

Witness said that these vouchers were in Chatham, but he would get them. He received, through Mr. Laidlaw, from the Foresters, $75,067.50, to buy this stock, less $1,000, his fee. He paid 65 cents for the stock.

Mr. Wilson got in nearly all of the $113,000 worth of stock except two blocks of stock held by clergymen, which were, he claimed, afterwards fully adjusted.

Mr. Wilson did not know the first thing about the understanding between the I. O. F. and the Union Trust Co. and Laidlaw about the terms of acquiring the Provincial Loan Co. He did not know that the Union Trust Co. had paid $2,500 for the expenses.

Mr. Shepley went briefly into the inception of the Great West Land Co. The subject will be continued at to-day's session.

PLACED HEAD ON TRACK.

Deliberate Suicide of Richard Gugin, a Laborer at Swansea, at Toronto Junction C. P. R. Station.

Toronto Junction, Oct. 11.—As a passenger train approached the C. P. R. station here shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning, people were horrified to see a man step from the platform, run over to the track and lie down with his head on the rails. No one could interfere to prevent the accomplishment of his deed. His head was nearly severed and his body was badly mangled.

Late last night the man was identified as Richard Gugin, a laborer, at Swansea, while pitiful domestic conditions were also revealed, probably accounting for his terrible act.

His wife is seriously ill at Grace Hospital with typhoid fever, where she was taken about two weeks ago.

At the home on Craig avenue, Swansea, four small children, the eldest about eight, were found huddled together under an umbrella, with which they sought to shelter themselves from the rain and snow. They were crying, and were in a distressing condition.

Gugin was about 35 years of age. There will be no inquest.

Killed at Level Crossing.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 11.—At a dangerous crossing on the C. P. R. at Westfield, near this city, Theodore Purdy was instantly killed by the Atlantic express yesterday morning. He was driving across the track. Purdy was frightfully mangled and his horse seriously injured.

Furnace Explosion Kills.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Two men are dead and five others injured, as the result of an explosion of a blast furnace in the plant of the Illinois Steel Co. in South Chicago Tuesday night. The injured will recover.

Seven Hurt In Wreck.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 11.—Seven persons were injured seriously, and many more slightly, in the wreck which occurred Tuesday night two miles east of Wamego, on the Union Pacific Railway.

Actress' Fall to Death.

Chicago, Oct. 11.— Miss Florence McDonald, 26 years old, a member of the chorus in the "Blue Moon" Co., now playing at a downtown theatre, was killed early yesterday by falling out of a fourth-storey window in the Windsor-Clifton Hotel. While sitting on the window sill she had lost her balance.

Stratford, Oct. 11.—During a heavy electric storm the barn of Leonard Lennon, Logan Township, was completely destroyed by fire, with the season's crops. No insurance.

Stewart McDonald, aged 52, charged with indecent assault upon Mrs. Stewart, Ellice, was found guilty, and sentenced last night to two years, less one day, in the Central.

David Thompson, Shakespeare, guilty of indecent assault on a 16-year-old girl, got three months.

Negroes Lynch an Offender.

Texark, Oct. 11.—Anthony Davis, a negro driver, was found dead under a roundhouse half a mile from the business centre of this town. It is believed he was lynched by members of his own race. A week ago Davis was arrested on a charge of trying to assault a colored girl.

PILES

CURED QUICKLY AND PAINLESSLY — NO RISK, NO DANGER.

A Free Trial Package to Convince Sent by Mail to All Who Write.

Common sense is just as necessary (even more so) in medicine as in business or the affairs of every day life. People are getting to know more than they used to. Not so long ago, it was the fashion to make all sorts of claims for a medicine, and wind up by asking the reader to go to a drug store and buy a bottle. People won't stand for that kind of thing now. They want proof — tangible proof. They want to try the remedy first and if they find it to be what is claimed they will be glad enough to go and buy it.

That is why we say to every person suffering from piles or any form of rectal disease, send us your name and we will gladly send you a free trial package. For we know what the result will be. After using the trial you will hurry to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box of Pyramid Pile Cure, now admitted by thousands to be one of the most wonderful reliefs and cures for Piles ever known.

"Please excuse my delay in writing to you sooner in regard to what your Pyramid Pile Cure has done for me. I consider it one of the finest medicines in the world for piles. I suffered untold misery for four months when my wife begged me to send for a 50c box. When it was half done I knew I was better and it didn't take any begging to get me to send for a second box. I think I am about well now, but if I feel any symptoms of a return I will order at once. I order it from the Pyramid Drug Co., to be sure of the cure. Tell all about this fine remedy for piles.

"And if there is anything in this letter you want to use do so. I received your letter a few days ago. Yours for a remedy like Pyramid Pile Cure. J. J. McELWEE,

Honey Grove, Tex. R.R. 9, Box 29.

"P.S.—I only used two boxes and don't think I need any more. Piles of seven months' standing."

To get a free trial package send today, to the Pyramid Drug Co., 55 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan. It will come by return mail and the results will both delight and astonish you.

LOGS GO DOWN THE DAM

Buckingham Non-Union Men Work Protected by Militia.

Mill Proprietors and Other Prisoners Released as the Warrants For Their Arrest Were Not Drawn Up In Legal Form—Strikers' Lawyer, E. Lamontagne, Indicted For Murder and Attempted Murder.

Buckingham, Que., Oct. 11.—For the first time since the strike began, on Aug. 14, logs were yesterday piloted down the dam by employes of the MacLaren Co.

Surrounded by soldiers, non-union men started work at 1 o'clock and continued for three hours. The strikers watched the work from a near-by road, but did not interfere. Everything ran smoothly.

Both sides have agreed to make no further arrests for the time being. The provincial police are now in charge, and all the officials and strikers arrested Tuesday have been released on parole pending the inquests which are to be continued to-day.

The town has become quiet again, and fifty of the Ottawa soldiers have returned to their homes, leaving the regular cavalrymen to guard the mill.

Flaw In Warrants.

Messrs. Alex. and Albert MacLaren, proprietors of the Buckingham saw mill and pulp mill; Mayor Vallee, superintendent of the works; Chief of Police Kiernan; Bailiff J. C. Cummings; Jas. Kiernan, brother of the chief; James Cameron and Philomen Fournier, non-union employes, arrested at Buckingham on charges of murder and attempted murder, sworn out by J. Magnon, a cousin of Therault, the dead striker, appeared before Magistrate St. Julien in Hull yesterday morning and were free men in less than five minutes.

When court opened Mr. Henry Aylen for the defence drew attention to the fact that the warrants were decidedly imperfect, there being even no date on them, a fatal omission in itself.

The magistrate could not proceed on such warrants and the proceedings ended.

Lawyer Indicted.

The new feature in the strike situation is the indictment of E. Lamontagne, legal adviser of the local union, for murder and attempted murder.

The inquest on the two dead was called yesterday, but postponed without taking any evidence.

It is now said that the Federal and Provincial Labor Departments both made efforts to effect a reconciliation, and that while the men were willing the good offices of the Departments were declined by the MacLarens.

Denounce the Shooting.

Montreal, Oct. 11.—At a meeting of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union last night, in the interests of Joseph Ainey, the Labor candidate in St. Mary's division, the shooting down of citizens at Buckingham was denounced by the speakers.

It was claimed that the detectives collected at that point from different cities had no authority either from the people of Buckingham or the Government to shoot people, and the matter ought to be investigated at once and the guilty punished.

DOWN ON RELIGIOUS ORDERS.

New Law of Spain Is of Very Drastic Character.

Madrid, Oct. 11.—The new law of associations, according to The Heraldo, will contain the following provisions:

No religious orders shall be established without the authorization of Parliament.

The state shall accord support to any member of a religious order desiring to renounce the vows taken.

The Minister of Justice is empowered to withdraw the authorization of any religious order found to be inimical to morality or public tranquility.

The Cabinet shall forthwith examine the authorizations previously granted to religious orders and cancel those which are illegal.

Religious orders whose members are foreigners or whose directors reside abroad shall be dissolved.

The authorities are empowered to enter monasteries without ecclesiastical sanction.

Religious orders shall not be allowed to hold property in excess of the objects for which they were instituted.

All legacies to religious orders or donations to orders by living persons or by testimonies through intermediaries are formally prohibited.

The law of 1887 concerning the registering of religious orders remains in force.

Prince Albert Election Case.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 11.—The famous Prince Albert election trial came up before judges at Regina yesterday, and the decision was withheld until the end of the week.

From arguments and comments of judges, it would seem that Saskatchewan is face to face with a situation which promises to throw the province into chaos and from which a general election will be the only relief.

North Renfrew Returns.

Pembroke, Oct. 11.—Complete returns of the bye-election in North Renfrew Tuesday are:

Gerald White, Conservative ...	2,168
Thos. Murray, Liberal	1,142
Dr. McKay, Liberal	203
White's majority over Murray..	1,026
Majority over both Liberals ...	823

McKay loses his deposit.

Service To Be Simple.

Montreal, Oct. 11.—According to the expressed wishes of the late Archbishop Bond the service in connection with the funeral on Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, will be marked by simplicity. Immediately after the service the remains will be taken to Mount Royal Cemetery and interred in the family vault.

Killed by Rejected Lover.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 12.—In the presence of 60 pupils in the South Euclid School Wednesday afternoon, Harry Smith, 25 years old, shot and killed Miss Mary Shepard, a teacher, aged 22 years. Brought to bay behind the barn in the rear of his home in Warrensville, two hours later, Smith shot himselw through the head, dying instantly. Disappointment in love is said to have been the motive. Smith, who was a fourth cousin of Miss Shepard, had wooed her for some time, and recently was rejected.

Tolstoi, M. P., Expelled.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 12.—Further expulsions from the Zemstvos of members of the outlawed Parliament who signed the Viborg manifesto are reported daily. Among the latest is that of Count Tolstoi, Moderate, member of Parliament for Ufa.

Attacks on the police have commenced in St. Petersburg, but are less successful owing to the indifference of the people. One policeman was killed and one wounded Wednesday.

San Domingo Rebels Surrender.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Cable advices received here from San Domingo state that an agreement has been reached between the Government and insurgent force in the neighborhood of Monte Cristi whereby the insurgents will surrender to the Government to-day, and Gen. Limarde, who conducted the campaign for President Caceris, will become governor of Monte Cristi.

Mayor Judd Stops Traffic.

London, Oct. 12.—Mayor Judd a day or two ago engaged Engineer J. M. Moyes of Toronto to inspect the street railway plant prior to the sitting of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, which began yesterday. Mr. Moyes' report stated that the Wellington street bridge was entirely unsafe for traffic, nearly half of the ties were rotting or rotten, as well as numerous guard timbers. The mayor immediately ordered traffic to cease on the bridge, and the company agreed. The commission visited the bridge, and confirmed the report of its unsafe condition.

Major Moodie Returns.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 12.—The sealing steamer Adventure, which left here Aug. 3, conveying Major Moodie, Canadian Governor of Hudson Bay, 15 Northwest Mounted Police and supplies for the Canadian Government posts there, returned yesterday a month overdue, the delay having been caused by stormy weather. The vessel was forced to bring back 210 tons of coal, which she was unable to discharge.

Curfew Whistle In Hintonburg.

Ottawa, Oct. 12.—The Council of the Village of Hintonburg, a suburb of Ottawa, Wednesday night passed a by-law ordering that the waterworks pump house whistle be blown at 9 o'clock every night and all children under 15 years of age on the streets later than that unaccompanied will be subject to arrest.

A Million Dollar Loss.

Caused In Niagara District by the Heavy Storm of Snow.

Peach Orchards Are Ruined and There Are Acres of Stumps Surrounded By Broken Limbs—It Will Take Years to Repair the Damage, For New Trees Will Have to be Grown—Man Frozen to Death.

St. Catharines, Oct. 12.—It is estimated that over a million dollars' loss has been sustained in the Niagara district by the heavy rain, snow and sleet storm of the past few days.

There will be no loss to fruit-growers so far as crops are concerned, as the fruit season is practically finished, except for apples, and that fruit when blown from trees can be utilized. The damage to fruit trees, however, will be very heavy, as there is scarcely an orchard that has not suffered the loss of many trees.

Electric railway, telephone and telegraph wires were down in every direction, and the city was shut up from communication until night, when it has been partially resumed.

Ruin at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 12.—From all parts of Stamford and Niagara townships come reports of wreck and ruin, and the fruit growers count their losses in thousands of dollars. The peach orchards were still in full leaf, after a series of heavy rains during the past week. A snowstorm set in Wednesday evening, probably a foot of snow having fallen, and half of it has melted.

The fruit trees caught the snow and were soon loaded beyond their strength. When morning broke great peach orchards had been converted into acres of stumps and brush. The brittle limbs of the trees snapped under the load of snow and trunks were split to the ground. Apples, pears, cherry, plum and other fruit trees suffered severely, but the peach trees are damaged most. A lot of late fruit was lost. It will take years to repair the damage, for new trees will have to be grown.

In the city the damage is great, the Bell Telephone Co. being the heaviest loser. On Victoria avenue every pole for 2,000 feet of the main trunk line is broken, and the wreckage blocks the street from west avenue to Morrison street. The street railway is tied up and the fire alarm and electric light system paralyzed. Several factories are tied up for lack of power. Residential streets which boasted fine-shaped trees are filled with brush and the trees are ruined.

Fruit Trees Damaged.

Strathroy, Oct. 12.—This locality has been visited by one of the heaviest and most destructive snowstorms ever known here. It started snowing about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and kept it up all night, during which time fully 15 or 16 inches of snow fell. Yesterday morning some streets were almost impassable with broken branches, a great many beautiful shade trees being ruined. Reports from the country state that fruit trees are destroyed and some orchards with the apples still on the trees are utterly ruined.

Sleighing at Sarnia.

Sarnia, Oct. 12.—A foot of snow fell between four and eight o'clock yesterday morning, and oldest settlers are raking their memories for an earlier record. A stiff northwest wind is blowing, and cutter riding is in order. It was a very stormy morning on Lake Huron and many vessels sheltered here.

Snow at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 12.—A rare snowstorm prevailed in the city yesterday. It began early in the morning and continued far into the day. It came from the north. Probably two or more inches fell, but when it struck the warm earth it rapidly melted.

Frozen to Death.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The storm continued unabated yesterday, heavy snow falling steadily. John Reese, 65 years of age, was found frozen to death in his home yesterday. He lived alone.

Records Broken.

Pittsburg, Oct. 12.—All records for low temperature in October since that was established in 1871 were broken yesterday when the mercury dropped to 28 degrees. Up to 9 o'clock yesterday morning six inches of snow had fallen in Corry, Pa.

Fourteen Inches of Snow.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Snow, which melted almost as fast as it fell, began falling here about 4.30 Wednesday and continued throughout the night. Had it been dry, the weather bureau estimates there would have been about 14 inches upon the ground.

Monkshaven Total Loss.

Fort William, Oct. 12.—The Canadian steamer Monkshaven, which was recently released from Angus Island after lying on the rocks at that point since the big storm of last November, was washed from her moorings by the storm on Tuesday and so badly battered against the rocks that she is now almost a total loss. The work of saving the boat had been under way all summer. The Monkshaven was a steal steamer, built in Scotland, and was valued at $70,000.

Captain Was Saved.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 12.—The fishing schooner Julia struck a shoal in Codroy River during a gale Wednesday night, and went down. Four men were drowned, but the captain succeeded in reaching the shore. The fishing schooner Helena is missing, and it is feared she and her crew have been lost.

Captain Was Drowned.

New London, Conn., Oct. 12.—During a heavy southeast gale yesterday afternoon, the steamer Ella Powell, Capt. Clock, from St. George, Staten Island, for Westerly, R. I., capsized and sank in the Race, and now lies in about 70 feet of water. The captain was drowned, but the only other man aboard, Nelson Mack, was rescued.

Death by Hanging.

Chatham, Oct. 12.—David Williamson, aged 60 years, and long a resident of this city, committed suicide by hanging. He suffered a paralytic stroke some months ago, and was afterwards quite melancholy, and when a second attack followed about two weeks ago it left him worse.

Soldier Acquitted.

Quebec, Oct. 12.—The grand jury returned "no bill" in the case of Corrigan of the Royal Canadian Regiment, held in connection with the fatal row in the Louise basin on July 23 last. The trial of Cowan for manslaughter is proceeding.

Michigan's Wheat Crop.

Detroit, Oct. 12.—The annual crop report has just been issued by the Secretary of State at Lansing. It estimated the wheat crop of the state at 12,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Mrs. Jeff Davis Ill.

New York, Oct. 12.—The condition of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, widow of the president of the confederacy, who has been ill at the Hotel Majestic for several days, is now regarded as serious.

Mr. R. L. Borden and the Land Deal.

The Toronto News comments upon some remarks made by Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, during the North Renfrew election, when referring to the purchase of lands in the Northwest, by Messrs. Pope and Fowler, in which he pointed out the difference between the purchase of lands by these gentlemen and that made by a relative of Sifton from the Government at one dollar per acre. The difference being, Mr. Borden said that Messrs. "Pope and "Fowler bought land which was "open for purchase by any citizen of "this country, while Mr. Adamson, "the representative of the Saskatchewan Land Company, had received special privileges and concessions from the Government."

To this the News takes exception, and declares that this statement "partakes of the "tu quoque" argument, which does not strengthen any speech. If the Liberal Government had given away a million acres a succeeding Conservative Government would have no license to give away 100,000 acres. Nor would it be ten times more virtuous than the Liberal Administration because it limited its givings. A wrong in one party does not justify wrong, though of less degree, in the other party."

It would be difficult for the News or anyone else to establish the charge that the case as put by Mr. Borden in any way partakes of a "tu quoque" character. The one was a corrupt deal with the Government, and the other was a purchase from a company which owned the lands in fee, and were offering them for sale to any one desirous of purchasing, whether for actual settlement or for speculation.

Whether Messrs. Pope and Fowler received advance information or not from the Railway Companies as to where a railway line was to be located is quite another point to be settled between the seller and the purchaser. One thing is certain, the lands were in the market for sale, and the same price would have been asked for them by the railway company after the location of the road as was asked before.

The fact is the Laurier Government gave away a million acres of land at $1 an acre. Neither Conservative Government nor Conservative party as such gave away an acre of land or sold an acre at any price.

There is this, however, about the transaction, had the lands not been sold to speculators in such large quantities, settlers would, after the railway had been built, in all probability have been enabled to secure lands at the upset price of $3.50 per acre instead of at the speculators' price. This state of affairs is incident to all business. In this case the railways wanted to sell and the speculators purchased to make money

The wrong in these transactions was in the manipulation of trust funds by its trustees to make money for themselves. It is all very well to say the speculations resulted in a profit to the trust. It were well for the trustees that such was the result, had it been otherwise the manipulators would not feel so comfortable as they now do.

Newfoundland.

The Hon. A. B. Morine writes to say that his references to Confederation in a recent speech at Hamilton were misreported. What he did say was that the Conservative party under Sir Mackenzie Bowell had lost an opportunity to bring Newfoundland into the Union, and while admitting that both the Canadian parties were favorable to the principle of union he expressed the hope that the Conservatives would make it a vital issue in the next campaign."

True "the Conservative party under Sir Mackenzie Bowell" declined, much as they desired the acquisition of Newfoundland, to accede to the demands of Bond the then Premier of that colony. The report to Parliament show that they offered terms much more liberal than was given to any of the provinces of the Dominion but they declined other demands, among them the assumption of a $5,000,000 debt with a certainty of its being doubled in a year or two. This may be considered a mere fleabite in the eyes of Mr. Morine, who, with other Newfoundlanders, were desirous of relieving the colony in its financial embarrassments and French Shore intricacies.

No one knows better than Mr. Morine that when Mr. Bond and his collegues visited Ottawa on their union mission, it was not with the intention of consummating a union with Canada, but for the purpose of having a cry at the then near approaching general election, hence their demands were of such an enormous character, financially, that they knew they could not be accepted. The position taken by the Conservative party at that time was justified by the Liberal party, as may be seen by reference to the official debates in parliament. In short, they questioned the propriety of a union until the French Shore difficulty was settled by the Imperial authorities, and there was much force in that contention.

SACRED CONCERT AT CHRIST CHURCH.

A sacred concert was given last evening in Christ Church, which was fairly well attended. The programme presented gave general satisfaction, and at the close the Rector, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, in an appropriate manner, thanked those who took part. The programme consisted of organ solos by Mrs. (Col.) Campbell and Prof. Spooner; violin solos by Miss E. Benjamin; vocal solos by Misses N. Lazier, E. Price, and Mr. M. C. Gordon, duets by the Misses G. and E. Price, and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Gordon. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

MARKS BROS. COMING

No company travelling to-day has a more enviable reputation than the well known and popular company bearing the name of Marks Bros., who will appear at the opera house all next week. It is an organization which is accepted through the country as a standard of excellence and the reputation it has acquired during the last few years of unvarying success will be more than sustained during the present season. The company is a large and well balanced one. It is perfectly equipped with all special scenery and electrical effects necessary and beautiful costumes. The opening play will be the Moonshiners. Between the acts there will be moving pictures, illustrated songs and strong specialties.

What Part ?

What particular part of the nerve-centres should we expect to have the greatest influence in affecting and controlling the general nervous system?

Reasonably it would be the largest and most sensitive. Well now, of all the centres in the nervous system, the largest most delicate sense, the sense most constantly in use, the largest brain "gray-matter" area is that of SIGHT.

For an average of 16 hours daily continuously, the feeling in the visual centres is constant. No other sense in the nerve centres is capable of such continued endurance.

With the proper glasses this severe drain upon the brain and nerves is prevented from causing a breakdown in the general health.

Splendid Banquet At the Quinte

debt which was incurred in making the port of Montreal what it is today, and the Liberals were spending millions to improve it. Montreal should be the national port; for what helped that port helped Canada. Sir Mackenzie said he was glad he was in the Government when the C. P. R. scheme was carried to fruition. He was not opposed to the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, but thought Mr. Borden's plan was the one which should have been adopted. He hoped the G. T. R., when completed, would not carry Canadian trade to Portland, Maine. They must keep the trade within the Empire, and the speaker said he hoped that Mr. Girdlestone's city—Bristol — would get a goodly share of Canada's trade. (Cheers). Sir Mackenzie spoke of having taken part in a conference at Bristol ten years ago, at which Sir Sandford Fleming was also present, and the latter there advocated an all-British cable service, which was the correct idea. The citizens of Bristol had banqueted the delegates on that occasion, and Sir Sandford Fleming and Sir Mackenzie were present. It was quite a coincidence that Mr. Girdlestone, who was present at that banquet, should to-day, after ten years, have recognized him. It had been the privilege of the Canadian delegates to propose, at that banquet, a monument to Sebastian Cabot and his son, who had sailed from Bristol 400 years ago. The suggestion was acted upon, and the monument, he was proud to say, was erected. (Cheers.) Science, Sir Mackenzie said, has obliterated time and space, and told of meeting a cousin in Australia under remarkable circumstances. He looked forward, he said, to the time when the present sea-going vessels would be greatly surpassed in speed and capacity. Sir Mackenzie said he was proud of the fact that he had been instrumental in establishing a line of steamers between Canada and Australia, but the difficulty in lines of that kind was in obtaining return freight. The speaker wished Bristol success in capturing the trade of Canada. Speaking of the relations between the Mother Country and Canada, Sir Mackenzie said he disliked the term "Colonials," which was sometimes used in an apparently derogatory sense. He had once reproved an Englishman for using the term, saying "You sneer as us. Why we have the same descent as you, the same traditions, the same pride in the glories of Britain, only our fathers had the pluck and enterprise to go abroad and carve out a fortune in a new world. Were they not as good or better than those who stayed at home?" Sir Mackenzie did not believe in the "Canada First" cry. To call a man a "British subject," to his mind, showed that that man could establish his claim to all that was free and good in this world. (Cheers.) They wanted trade within the Empire, and British statesmen must treat Canada fairly and sensibly. The stupidity of British statesmen had lost Britain the United States. They must see to it that they did not, by more stupidity, lose Canada. Canada was loyal, and her sons were always ready to go to the defence of the Empire, but she must be treated reasonably and fairly. Speaking of the proposed trade preference, Sir Mackenzie said he thought that, some day, it could be accomplished as easily as Confederation had been acomplished in Canada. He must say, however, that he hardly went so far as Mr. Graham, who looked for absolute free trade within the Empire. In conclusion Sir Mackenzie wished Mr. Girdlestone luck in his mission to Canada, and ended by proposing the health of the delegates, which was drunk very heartily.

EX-MAYOR GRAHAM.

Ex-Mayor Graham, who was the first to reply to the toast, was loudly cheered, and said it was delightful to receive such a hearty welcome at such a magnificent banquet. It was a great honor as well as a pleasure. Referring to the Congress in London, he said his part in connection with that had to do with the trade question, and he was glad to hear Mr. Girdlestone tell what was going to be done at the port of Bristol. With proper facilities, Mr. Graham said, as much Canadian goods could be landed in Bristol as in Liverpool. Mr. Graham then warmly commended Col. Ponton for the part he had taken at the Congress. He it was who had put them in touch with that body. He had drafted the resolutions, five of which had been finally submitted on the agenda paper. All this at the expense of infinite pains. They were proud of Col. Ponton, and the acceptance of his resolutions showed that they had some brains in Belleville. (Cheers.) The Belleville resolution on trade, which was finally adopted by the Congress, had occupied that body for two days. Speaking of the trade preference question, Mr. Graham said he differed with Sir Mackenzie Bowell. There must be absolute free trade within the Empire. We in Canada were entirely too selfish. Referring again to the Congress, the speaker said the Belleville delegates had had great privileges. Five of their resolutions were placed on the agenda paper, which meant that the delegates had the right to introduce those resolutions, and one-fifth of the talking time was given up to them. Then delegates from other lands began to ask "Where is Belleville?" and there was much looking up of maps. They looked at Canada and could find Montreal and Toronto, but where was Belleville, which was introducing all these resolutions? "Then," said Mr. Graham, amid great laughter and applause, "I tell you the Belleville delegates thought they were some punkins." Belleville was well advertised, and but for that Congress they would not have had Mr. Girdlestone here. (Cheers.) The fact was that Belleville had now come into her own and was considered the third important place in Canada. (Laughter and cheers). In conclusion Mr. Graham said he was glad to see the Belleville Board of Trade was alive. There was, he believed, a great future for this city if all worked together. (Cheers.) The C. P. R. is going to bring its new line through here, and we would soon have the electric power we needed from Healey Falls. The cement companies, the rolling mills and other concerns were causing the railways to come. "Belleville has a bright future," said Mr. Graham, "we have the brains and ability here, and some day we will have the best town in Canada." (Cheers.)

COL. PONTON.

Col. Ponton was given a rousing reception, and made a very graceful speech indeed. He thanked the coterie of friends who had given them the parting salvo of cheers when they left the Belleville station for London, and also warmly thanked the City Council for their resolutions of thanks welcoming them back. Those things, and the splendid banquet tonight made them feel they were citizens of no mean city. The Colonel included in his thanks Rev. J. P. Wilson and Mesdames Graham, Johnson and Reid, who had accompanied them to London, and whose sympathy and gracious companionship was exceedingly welcome. The Colonel, in animated words, drew a vivid picture of historic scenes in the old land which the delegates had had the privilege of seeing. Many an "Old Country man's" heart yearned for the land of his birth as the speaker dwelt on the historic places across the sea, with many apt quotations and polished epigrams. Speaking of Cabot, the Colonel pointed out that, in leaving Bristol, the great sailor's object was not to discover Canada — Canada was not dreamed of then — but to find a shorter route to "far Cathay." Apparently he failed, but really he succeeded, for to day we have the C.P.R., which furnishes, by steamer and rail, the shortest route from Britain to China. Speaking of the Congress, Col. Ponton said he believed the result of it would be the broadening of the views of all the representatives. They had now a better sense of perspective, and realized that Britishers must live up to the motto, "All for each and each for all." Personally the delegates had found Englishmen quick and sympathetic in every way, and patriotism fairly permeated the British isles. The hospitality of Lord Strathcona had been unbounded, and was most charming. Col. Ponton said he had called on Lord Strathcona three times, and, by a strange coincidence, was each time preceded by a man from the Fiji islands, so that it got to be a by-word: "Here's Fiji; where's Belleville?" The Colonel's poetic peroration charmed everybody.

Mr. "Sandy" Burrows sang, in magnificent style, "The Boys of the Old Brigade," and was given a hearty encore.

MR. C. M. REID

Mr. C. M. Reid announced that, at that late hour, he would not make a speech, and then made a very neat one. He thanked the Board of Trade for their royal welcome, and especially thanked them for the welcome extended to Mr. Girdlestone. The British people as a whole had treated the Canadians royally. Speaking of the Congress, Mr. Reid said he wished every member of the Belleville Board of Trade could have heard the speeches there, delivered by men from all over the Empire. He hoped that at some future date, a resume of the speeches might be given to the Board of Trade. Speaking of the trade question, he said he was in hearty accord with Mr. Graham. There must be free trade within the Empire. The only solution was the adoption of the Belleville resolution which had been passed by the Congress. The speaker humorously said he was rather surprised, while in London, to hear Canadian delegates— not from Belleville—giving Englishmen advice how to run their own country. He thought the Englishmen must have a lot of patience. The matter was neatly settled by Hon. Mr. Asquith, who gravely said Great Britain had granted Canada autonomy, and he thought Canada might allow Great Britain the same right. (Laughter.) Canadians, said Mr. Reid, have not a monopoly of all the brains. He gave a neat dig to those whom he called "interested delegates, who talked patriotism and voted high tariff." Once again he thanked them for their welcome and sat down amid applause.

"THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE."

In introducing this toast the chairman said it was well known that Belleville was founded on the original site of the Garden of Eden. It had, of course, improved much in a few thousand years.

MAYOR SULMAN.

His Worship the Mayor was the first to reply. He was gratified at the response to the toast, and in the name of the city thanked the delegates for the excellent services they had rendered and useful suggestions they had made. He was pleased to welcome so prominent a gentleman as Mr. Girdlestone to Belleville. It was pleasing, His Worship said, that the eyes of capitalists were now on this city. We had cement and iron industries, and others were coming. The eyes of railway men, too, were in Belleville. The City Council was a progressive one, and in fact, advancement and improvement was the order of the day. The Mayor sat down amid cheers.

ALD. SINCLAIR.

There were, Ald. Sinclair said, many things he would rather do than reply to the toast, which was, however, a very important one to most of them. In getting up this banquet the Board of Trade felt that they were only doing, in a humble way, what was right and proper. Considering there had only been 48 hours' notice, he did not think they had done badly. He hoped they could make Mr. Girdlestone feel that they appreciated his kindness to Belleville citizens in Bristol. Speaking to the toast, Ald. Sinclair said he had been here 27 years, and hoped to live here as long as Sir Mackenzie Bowell, in whom, he said, he saw no change since he first saw him 27 years ago. Neither did he see any in Messrs. Northrup or Ponton, and he felt that there must be something in the air of Belleville to keep men young. (Laughter.) As to the city, he felt that we were now on the eve of prosperity. In recent years there had been marked improvement, such as the abolition of the ward system, introduction of municipal ownership, etc. He thought Belleville was the most fortunately located city in Ontario. "More power to her," as the menu card said. That was what she needed—more power. That, he believed, was coming. Ald. Sinclair ended a clever speech by quoting some verses, advising everybody to "stop knocking and boost."

Mr. Taylor, a new and welcome addition to our vocalists, sang "A Stein Song," in an admirable way. The refrain seemed particularly atropos last night—or, rather, this morning:

"It's birds of a feather
When jolly fellows get together."

MR. WARDROPE.

Mr. Wardrope, of the rolling mills, was called on by the chairman and made some brief and graceful remarks. Belleville, he said, was a most inspiring town, and he had greatly enjoyed listening to the glaxy of brilliant speakers he had heard to-night. As for his comrades in the rolling mills management, they had, since coming to Belleville, received a kindly hand on all sides, still it was very heartening to receive such a rousing welcome as he had received to-night. The rolling mills people had come to make Belleville their home. (Cheers.) Again he thanked them for their warm welcome.

A VOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. Girdlestone, in fitting words, proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was heartily carried and neatly responded to, then the banquetters sang "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem, and went home.

Mr. Reg. Geen acted as the accompanist of the evening, his work leaving nothing to be desired.

A POPULAR LAMENT.

Where Would Society Be If One Was Judged for the Sins of Others.

"Oh, I tried one of those hair tonics some time ago and it never did me a bit of good."

That's what many people are saying to-day when they refuse Herpicide a trial.

It would be as sensible to say "I never travel on a railroad because I often see collisions mentioned in the papers."

Newbro's Herpicide is specially made to destroy the germ that is living on the roots of your hair.

That is why it is so exceedingly efficacious — it is there for the sole purpose of ridding the hair of this parasitic growth, after which the hair grows as nature intended.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

Cheese Factory Was Blown Up By Dynamite

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE NEAR ACTINOLITE LAST NIGHT — NO LIVES LOST, BUT THEY MIGHT EASILY HAVE BEEN.

A report reached the city to-day that a cheese factory situated near Actinolite, had been blown up during last night.

Upon investigation it was found that the report was a truthful one.

Marble Spring factory, situated near Actinolite, was, last night, badly shattered by an explosion of dynamite, which, we are informed, was placed beneath the curing room.

Why this outrage should have been perpetrated is not known.

The building was rendered useless by the explosion.

Some parties who were asleep in the building were badly shaken up, but not seriously injured.

Died Near Foxboro

Mr. Edward McKim, an aged and respected yeoman residing in the Township of Thurlow, near Foxboro, died yesterday, in his 85th year. Deceased lived all his life in the township and was respected by a large circle of acquaintances. He had been ill for some time from a complication of diseases. Mrs. McKim preceded him to the tomb a few years ago. Deceased was a Methodist and in politics a Conservative. Two sons, Thos. of Sidney, and Erastus, of Thurlow, and two daughters, Mrs. Geo. Vandusen, of Ameliasburg, and Mrs. J. Hales, of Marlbank, survive.

PROMPT CONNECTIONS.

There is one feature of the wonderful service over The Lake Shore Railway that particularly appeals to those who travel much. The schedule is so arranged that connections, where any are necessary, are made promptly and long waits and delays are avoided. This, taken in connection with the luxurious trains, perfect personal service, highest speed, safety and punctuality has made the Lake Shore the most popular line in America. Careful travellers see that their tickets read "Via Buffalo and the Lake Shore Railway." For full information concerning rates, routes and service address J. W. Daly, Chief A.G.P.A., Buffalo, N.Y.; A. J. Smith, G.P.A., Cleveland, Ohio, or W. J. Lynch, Passenger Traffic Mgr., Chicago, Ill.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says: "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach trouble for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets am almost cured." Why not get a package of these tablets and get well and stay well? Price 25 cents. Samples free. To be had at R. Templeton & Co., drug store.

CAT AFFLICTED WITH RABIES.

BITES A SON OF THE LATE RICHARD NEWTON, OF HUNTINGDON, HASTINGS COUNTY.

The following, from the Toledo Daily Blade, refers to a son of the late Richard Newton, of Huntingdon Township. The gentleman who received the wound was formerly Sheriff of the county where he lives:

"Health Office Reinhart to-day received word from Columbus that the cat which bit Dr. J. V. Newton several days ago, was afflicted with rabies.

"The feline snapped Dr. Newton's thumb, inflicting an ugly gash with its sharp teeth. Two hours afterward it died, showing symptoms of rabies. The brain of the cat was sent to Dr. C. O. Probst, secretary of the state board of health, for examination. It was ascertained there this morning that the cat had a genuine case of hydrophobia.

"Dr Newton purposes to go at once to the Pasteur institute in Chicago, and take treatment. It was not supposed that the cat was mad, and until to-day he took on special preparations to prevent the disease.

"The wound in the thumb seems to be healing properly, but this is not necessarily an indication that the disease will not fasten itself upon him.

THE QUEST OF THE GOLDEN GOOSE

In hunting for a business or occupation most people are really hunting for a goose that will lay golden eggs.

The commonest aspiration is to so construct and devise a business enterprise that it becomes almost automatic—so that when the play-fever touches the blood one may "let go," sit at one side, and watch for the daily golden egg with a certainty of its appearance.

Every business man has, in his store or enterprise or venture, a possible golden goose—a present golden gosling. It rests with himself alone whether he will raise the bird or not—whether it will arrive at golden-goosehood or perish from neglect and ignorance.

These birds require much attention, much care—and they must be fed, if you would have them grow to goosehood; and their natural diet is—advertising!

No golden goose was ever raised to a "working age" if the food was stinted, or denied, or adulterated or substituted.

The merchant who "knows things" is satisfied to invest silver in food for the gosling—because, after many days, the silver will return in golden eggs.

Such investment may require a little faith—but more common sense.

Is your business enterprise progressing toward GOLDEN GOOSEHOOD ?

TIMELY TOPICS.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED.

(Baltimore American.)

A Chicago wife who just celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of a happy marriage gives the following advice as the way to do it:

"If you want to have a happy married life," says an expert,
"And, of course, that's what each woman's aiming for,
Now let me pour into your ears, young woman, just a bit,
Of the sixty years of wisdom I've in store.
Don't think a stock of knowledge will increase his love for you;
Of beauty he'll get tired a little bit;
So after you have got him, if you want to hold him fast,
Just feed him well and make him think he's 'It.'

"Don't try for a career to make his name a famous one,
And cause the world to stare in awed surprise;
To advertise that you're the senior partner in the firm
Won't make you sweeter in your husband's eyes.
Don't join the women's clubs and take a part in politics,
So men will say, "Your wife, Smith, made a hit."
He won't be half as happy, as contented and as proud
As if he gets good grub and thinks he's 'It.'

"Don't go against the grain of human nature when it's male,
If you marry, girls, to have a happy life;
No man may be a hero, as saws hold to his valet,
But each man expects to be one to his wife.
It isn't all your beauty and your talent that will charm;
He won't come home soon just to hear your wit;
So after you have got him, if you want to hold him fast,
Just feed him well and make him think he's 'It.'"

Winnipeg, though comparatively young, is to have a Centennial celebration. It is contended "that the arrival of the first settlers in the Red River district in 1808 should be fittingly commemorated by the holding in Winnipeg of a centennial celebration. It was in 1808 that Lord Selkirk's first settlers arrived to begin the life of farmers as distinguished from the trading and hunting life of the plains. The Selkirk settlers have exercised an immense influence upon Canada both east and west, and Winnipeg will not be the successor of Fort Garry if she does not adequately mark the event."

CATTLE MARKETS.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Receipts of live stock, it is safe to say, were the largest of any day this season, but not having got a detailed statement from the Grand Trunk, we cannot give a correct account, but will give one to-morrow.

Exporters.

Properly speaking there were none on the market good enough for shipping purposes, altho there were two or three loads 1275 to 1300 lbs. each.

Butchers.

Best lots of butchers offered, sold at $4.30 to $4.60 and one single animal reached $4.75 per cwt. George Rountree got a couple of loads of good butchers at $4.25 to $4.35, but we did not hear of any more straight loads out of the 800 or 900 cattle offered as butchers that brought anything like these prices. Medium, $3.85 to $4.20; common cows, $2.35 to $2.85; good cows, $3 to $3.50; canners, $1.25 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. Murby reports a brisker trade in this line to-day and the market is pretty well cleaned out. More of the good kind would have sold. Mr. Murby bought about 250 head this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., at $3.70 to $4; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.50 to $3.75; best feeders, 750 to 900 lbs., at $3 to $3.50; best stockers, 500 to 700 lbs., at $3 to $3.15; common stockers, $2 to $2.50.

Milch Cows.

There was a fair trade at steady prices for milch cows and forward springers. Prices ranged from $25 to $58 each on Wednesday and Thursday.

Veal Calves.

Market steady to strong at $3.50 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs since Tuesday was large, about 3000, the quality of many of them not being good. The local butcher trade is kicking against having to buy so many ram lambs. Notwithstanding all the drawbacks as to quality, etc., anything in the line of sheep and lambs sold readily. Lambs sold at $5.00 to $6.25 per cwt.; export ewes at $1.25 to $4.60; breeding ewes at $4 to $5 per cwt., the latter price being for ewes one and two years old; thin old ewes sold at $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; feeding lambs sold at $5 to $6 per cwt., according to quality. Farmers are having to buy ram lambs to feed, thereby it is hoped they will learn a lesson to take time next year to unsex their lambs if they have any.

Hogs.

The market for hogs is steady at $6.85 for selects and $6.40 for lights and fats.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Cattle—Receipts, about 8,000; fancy steers, $6.75 to $7.20.

Hogs—Receipts, about 18,000; good to prime heavy, $6.00 to $6.65.

Sheep—Receipts, about 22,000; sheep, $4.75 to $5.35.

BRITISH CATTLE MARKET.

London, Oct. 11.—Canadian cattle in the British markets are quoted at 10c to 11¾c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 8¾c to 9¼c per pound.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Kingston, Oct. 11.—To-day 622 boxes were boarded at Frontenac Cheese Board, of which 187 were white. The sales were 417 boxes at 12⅝c. Next meeting Friday, Oct. 19.

Madoc, Oct. 11.—Nine hundred and fifty boxes of cheese registered: 700 boxes sold at 12 13-16c, balance at 12¾c.

Tweed, Oct. 11.—There were 840 cheese boarded. All sold at 12 13-16c. Board adjourned for two weeks.

Butter In London.

The London Times asserts that genuine dairy butter is a thing past praying for. Four-fifths of the population of London, the Times asserts, have never seen it in their lives. Those who know what it is have great difficulty in procuring it and cannot obtain it in many cases at any price. What is called genuine butter in London, the Times says, is blended and reworked butter.

Bayonets.

Bayonets are now altogether machine made, a very simple as well as clever contrivance stamping the steel into proper shape.

Zam-Buk

CURES ECZEMA

He doubted Zam-Buk's power but is now convinced.

Mr. Geo. Rhinehart, of 210 Wilton Avenue, Toronto, says:—"Last winter I had a big sore appear on the back of my right hand. I thought it would go away, but instead of doing so, it got worse. A patch of about four inches square became inflamed, then the skin broke and the sore mattered and discharged freely. Not only was it very unsightly, but it was very painful, too. In spite of my care it got worse, and to my great alarm a second inflamed patch appeared on my left hand. This was followed by an outbreak on my arm, and on the calf of my leg. The pain from these patches was terrible. At times, when they got thoroughly warm they itched until I could hardly bear. I used ointments and salves of all kinds, but got no benefit. One day I read a report in the newspaper of how a case of eczema of long standing had been cured by Zam-Buk. I had tried so many things in vain that I doubted whether Zam-Buk could cure me. My wife advised me to try it and I did so. The first few applications gave me relief from the terrible itching, and also soothed the pain. I cleansed the wounds thoroughly once daily, and applied Zam-Buk as directed. Within a few days there was a marked improvement, and gradually the wounds began to close. The discharging ceased, and the skin began to grow again. Within a short time of commencing with the Zam-Buk treatment all the four wounds were not only closed up, but all the patches were covered with new, healthy skin.

I consider Zam-Buk a wonderful balm, and shall always recommend it to my friends. If it can cure such serious skin diseases as mine was, it must be a very speedy cure for severe cuts and slight injuries sustained in one's every day work. I shall always keep a box handy."

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES

Zam-Buk is a pure, refined balm of extraordinary power. Unlike most embrocations and ointments hitherto obtainable, it is purely herbal in nature, and contains no animal fat or mineral coloring matter. It expels disease from the system and virtually creates new, healthy skin. It is especially valuable for cuts, bruises, burns, running sores, ringworm, scalp irritation, eczema, psoriasis, sore backs, abscesses, boils, pimples, cracks, chafing insect stings, festering sores, poisoned wounds, scalds, piles, stiffness, swollen joints, sore throat, aching feet, sprains, rheumatism, and all nerve pains. Obtainable from all druggists at 50 cents a box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Colborne St., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

A Free Trial Box.

A dainty free sample box of Zam-Buk will be sent to all applicants for same who cut out this coupon and forward it, with a one-cent stamp (to pay return postage) and full name and address to the Zam-Buk Co., Colborne St., Toronto.

"The Sign of the Slate"

on a SLATER SHOE means just what the signatures do on a Bank note. The paper may be the right kind—the engraving may be faultless—but unless the names of the proper officials are signed in their proper places—the note has no legal value. The signatures make the Bank responsible for the payment.

"The Sign of the Slate," either stamped on the sole or sewn on the lining of a shoe, makes it a SLATER SHOE—proves that it was made in the Slater factory by the famous Goodyear welt process—makes the Slater Shoe Company responsible for its wear, service and comfort. "The Sign of the Slate" means that the shoe has been examined—that factory experts could not find a flaw in it—that they deemed it worthy to uphold the high standard set by SLATER Shoes.

"The Sign of the Slate" is just as important to shoe buyers, as the signatures are to the holder of a Bank Note.

"Well, what of that?" David asked, impatiently. "For all I know, the case might have come from Walen's. I said it came from a friend who must needs be nameless for services equally nameless. I am not going to deny that Walen was right."

"I have not quite finished," Marley said, quietly. "Pressed as to when the case had been sold, Mr. Walen, without hesitation, said: 'Yesterday, for £72 15s.' The purchaser was a stranger, whom Mr. Walen is prepared to identify. Asked if a formal receipt had been given, Walen said that it had. And now I come to the gist of the whole matter. You saw Dr. Cross hand me a mass of papers, etc., taken from the person of the gentleman who was nearly killed in your house?"

David nodded. His breath was coming a little faster. His quick mind had run on ahead; he saw the gulf looming before him.

"Go on," said he, hoarsely, "go on. You mean to say that——"

"That amongst the papers found in the pocket of the unfortunate stranger was a receipted bill for the very cigar-case that lies here on the table before you!"

CHAPTER VI.

Steel dropped into a chair and gazed at Inspector Marley with mild surprise. At the same time he was not in the least alarmed. Not that he failed to recognize the gravity of the situation, only it appealed in the first instance to the professional side of his character.

"Walen is quite sure?" he said. "No possible doubt about that, eh?"

"Not in the least. You see, he recognized his private mark, at once, and Brighton is not so prosperous a place that a man could sell a £70 cigar-case and forget all about it—that is, a second case, I mean. It's most extraordinary."

"Rather! Make a magnificent story, Marley."

"Very," Marley responded, drily. "It would take all your well-known ingenuity to get your hero out of this trouble."

Steel nodded gravely. This personal twist brought him to the earth again. He could clearly see the trap into which he had placed himself. There before him lay the cigar-case which he had positively identified as his own; inside, his initials bore testimony to the fact. And yet the same case had been identified beyond question as one sold by a highly respectable local tradesman to the mysterious individual now lying in the Sussex County Hospital.

"May I smoke a cigarette?" David asked.

"You may smoke a score if they will be of any assistance to you, sir," Marley replied. "I don't want to ask you any questions and I don't want you—well, to commit yourself. But really, sir, you must admit——"

The inspector paused significantly. David nodded again.

"Pray proceed," he said: "speak from the brief you have before you."

"Well, you see it's this way," Marley said, not without hesitation. "You call us up to your house, saying that a murder has been committed there; we find a stranger almost at his last gasp in your conservatory with every signs of a struggle having taken place. You tell us that the injured man is a stranger to you; you go on to say that he must have found his way into your house during a nocturnal ramble of yours. Well, that sounds like common sense on the face of it. The criminal has studied your habits and has taken advantage of them. Then I ask if you are in the habit of taking these midnight strolls, and with some signs of hesitation you say that you have never done such a thing before. Charles Dickens was very fond of that kind of thing, and I naturally imagined that you had the same fancy. But you had never done it before. And, the only time, a man is nearly murdered in your house."

"Perfectly correct," David murmured. "Gaboriau could not have put it better. You might have been a pupil of my remarkable acquaintance Hatherly Bell."

"I am a pupil of Mr. Bell's," Marley said, quietly. "Seven years ago he induced me to leave the Huddersfield police to go into his office, where I stayed until Mr. Bell gave up business, when I applied for and gained my present position. Curious you should mention Mr. Bell's name, seeing that he was here so recently as this afternoon."

"Staying in Brighton?" Steel asked eagerly. "What is his address?"

"No. 219, Brunswick Square."

It took all the nerve that David possessed to crush the cry that rose to his lips. It was more than strange that the man he most desired to see at this juncture should be staying in the very house where the novelist had his great adventure. And in the mere fact might be the key to the problem of the cigar-case.

"I'll certainly see Bell," he muttered. "Go on, Marley."

"Yes, sir. We now proceed to the cigar-case that lies before you. It was also lying on the floor of your conservatory on the night in question. I suggested that here we might have found a clue, taking the precaution at the same time to ask if the article in question was your property. You looked at the case as one does who examines an object for the first time, and proceeded to declare that it was not yours. I am quite prepared to admit that you instantly corrected yourself. But I ask, is it a usual thing for a man to forget the ownership of a £70 cigar-case?"

"A nice point, and I congratulate you upon it," David said. "Then we will take the matter a little farther. A day or two ago you were in dire need of something like £1,000. Temporarily, at any rate, you were practically at the end of your resources. If this money were not forthcoming in a few hours you were a ruined man. In vulgar parlance, you would have been sold up. Mossa and Mack had you in their grip, and they were determined to make all they could out of you. The morning following the outrage at your house you call upon Mr. Mossa and produce the cigar-case lying on the table before you. From that case you produce notes sufficient to discharge your debt—Bank of England notes, the number of which, I need hardly say, are in my possession. The money is produced from the case yonder, which case we know was sold to the injured man by Mr. Walen."

Marley made a long and significant pause. Steel nodded.

"There seems to be no way out of it," he said.

"I can see one," Marley suggested. "Of course, it would simplify matters enormously if you merely told me in confidence whence came those notes. You see, as I have the numbers, I could verify your statement beyond question, and——"

Marley paused again and shrugged his shoulders. Despite his cold, official manner, he was obviously prompted by a desire to serve his companion. And yet, simple as the suggestion seemed, it was the very last thing with which Steel could comply.

The novelist turned the matter over rapidly in his mind. His quick perceptions flashed along the whole logical line instantaneously. He was like a man who suddenly sees a midnight landscape by the glare of a dazzling flash of lightning.

"I am sorry," he said, slowly, "very sorry, to disappoint you. Were our situations reversed, I should take up your position exactly. But it so happens that I cannot, dare not, tell you where I got those notes from. So far as I am concerned they came honestly into my hands in payment for special services rendered. It was part of my contract that I should reveal the secret to nobody. If I told you the story you would decline to believe it; you would say that it was a brilliant effort of a novelist's imagination to get out of dangerous position."

"I don't know that I should," Marley replied. "I have long since ceased to wonder at anything that happens in or connected with Brighton."

"All the same I can't tell you, Marley," Steel said, as he rose. "My lips are absolutely sealed. The point is: what are you going to do?"

"For the present, nothing," Marley replied. "So long as the man in the hospital remains unconscious I can do no more than pursue what Beaconsfield called 'a policy of masterly inactivity.' I have told you a good deal more than I had any right to do, but I did so in the hope that you could assist me. Perhaps in a day or two you will think better of it. Meanwhile——"

"Meanwhile I am in a tight place. Yes, I see that perfectly well. It is just possible that I may scheme some way out of the difficulty, and if so I shall be only too pleased to let you know. Good-night, Marley, and many thanks to you."

But with all his ingenuity and fertility of imagination David could see no way out of the trouble. He sat up far into the night scheming; there was no flavor in his tobacco; his pictures and flowers, his silver and china, jarred upon him. He wished with all his heart now that he had let everything go. It need only have been a temporary matter, and there were other Cellini tankards, and intaglios, and line engravings in the world for the man with money in his purse.

He could see no way out of it at all. Was it not possible that the whole thing had been deliberately planned so as to land him and his brains into the hands of some clever gang of swindlers? Had he been tricked and fooled so that he might become the tool of others? It seemed hard to think so when he recalled the sweet voice in the darkness and its passionate plea for help. And yet the very cigar-case that he had been told was the one he admired at Lockhart's had proved beyond question to be one purchased from Walen's!

If he decided to violate his promise and tell the whole story nobody would believe him. The thing was altogether too wild and improbable for that. And yet, he reflected, things almost as impossible happen in Brighton every day. And what proof had he to offer?

Well, there was one thing certain. At least three-quarters of those bank-notes—the portion he had collected at the house with the crimson blind—could not possibly be traced to the injured man. And, again, it was no fault of Steel's that Marley had obtained possession of the numbers of the notes. If the detective chose to ferret out facts for himself no blame could attach to Steel. If those people had only chosen to leave out of the question that confounded cigar-case!

David's train of thought was broken as an idea came to him. It was not so long since he had a facsimile cigar-case in his hand at Lockhart's, in North Street. Somebody connected with the mystery must have seen him admiring it and reluctantly declining the purchase, because the voice from the telephone told him that the case was a present and that it had come from the famous North Street establishment.

"By Jove!" David cried. "I'll go to Lockhart's to-morrow and see if the case is still there. If so, I may be able to trace it."

Fairly early the next morning David was in North Street. For the time being he had put his work aside altogether. He could not have written a dozen consecutive lines to save the situation. The mere effort to preserve a cheerful face before his mother was a torture. And at any time he might find himself forced to meet criminal charge.

The gentlemanly assistant at Lockhart's remembered Steel and the cigar-case perfectly well, but he was afraid that the article had been sold. No doubt it would be possible to obtain a facsimile in the course of a few days.

"Only I required that particular one," Steel said. "Can you tell me when it was sold and who purchased it?"

A junior partner did, and could give some kind of information. Several people had admired the case, and it had been on the point of sale several times. Finally, it had passed into the hands of an American gentleman staying at the Metropole.

"Can you tell me his name?" David asked, "or describe him?"

"Well, I can't, sir," the junior partner said, frankly. "I haven't the slightest recollection of the gentleman. He wrote from the Metropole on the hotel paper describing the case and its price and inclosed the full amount in ten-dollar notes and asked to have the case sent by post to the hotel. When we ascertained that the notes were all right, we naturally posted the case as desired, and there, so far as we are concerned, was an end of the matter."

"You don't recollect his name?"

"Oh, yes. The name was John Smith. If there is anything wrong——"

David hastily gave the desired assurance. He wanted to arouse no suspicion. All the same, he left Lockhart's with a plethora of suspicions of his own. Doubtless the jewellers would be well and fairly satisfied so long as the case had been paid for, but from the standpoint of David's superior knowledge the whole transaction fairly bristled with suspicion.

Not for one moment did Steel believe in the American at the Metropole. Somebody stayed there doubtless under the name of John Smith, and that said somebody had paid for the cigar-case in dollar notes the tracing of which might prove a task of years. Nor was it the slightest use to inquire at the Metropole, where practically everybody is identified by a number, and where scores come and go every day. John Smith would only have to ask for his letters and then drop quietly into a sea of oblivion.

Well, David had got his information, and a lot of use it was likely to prove to him. As he walked thoughtfully homewards he was debating in his mind whether or not he might venture to call at or write to 219, Brunswick Square, and lay his difficulties before the people there. At any rate, he reflected, with grim bitterness, they would know that he was not romancing. If nothing turned up in the meantime he would certainly visit Brunswick Square.

He sat in his own room puzzling the matter out till his head ached and the flowers before him reeled in a dazzling whirl of color. He looked round for inspiration, now desperately, as he frequently did when the warp of his delicate fancy tangled. The smallest thing sometimes fed the machine again—a patch of sunshine, the chip on a plate, the damaged edge of a frame. Then his eye fell on the telephone and he jumped to his feet.

"What a fool I am!" he exclaimed. "If I had been plotting this business out as a story, I should have thought of that long ago. . . . No, I don't want any number, at least, not in that way. Two nights ago I was called up by somebody from London who held the line for fully half an hour or so. I've—I've forgotten the address of my correspondent, but if you can ascertain the number. . . yes, I shall be here if you will ring me up when you have got it. . . . Thanks."

Half an hour passed before the bell trilled again. David listened eagerly. At any rate, now he was going to know the number whence the mysterious message came—0017, Kensington, was the number. David muttered his thanks and flew to his big telephone directory. Yes, there it was—"0017, 446, Prince's Gate, Gilead Gates."

The big volume dropped with a crash on the floor. David looked down at the crumpled volume with dim, misty amazement.

"Gilead Gates," he murmured. "Quaker, millionaire, and philanthropist. One of the most highly-esteemed and popular men in England. And from his house came the message which has been the source of all the mischief. And yet there are critics who say the plots of my novels are too fantastic!"

CHAPTER VII.

The emotion of surprise seemed to have left Steel altogether. After the last discovery he was prepared to believe anything. Had anybody told him that the whole Bench of Bishops was at the bottom of the mystery he would have responded that the suggestion was highly probable.

"Still, it's what the inimitable Dick Swiveller would call a staggerer," he muttered. "Gates, the millionaire, the one great capitalist who has the profound respect of the labor world. No, a man with a record like that couldn't have anything to do with it. Still, it must have been from his house that the mysterious message came. The post-office people working the telephone trunk line would know that—a fact which probably escaped the party who called me up. . . . I'll go to Brunswick Square and see that woman. Money or no money, I'll not lie under an imputation like this."

There was one thing to be done beforehand, and that was to see Dr. Cross. From the latter's manner he evidently knew nothing of the charge hanging over Steel's head. Marley was evidently keeping that close to himself and speaking to nobody.

"Oh, the man is better," Cross said, cheerfully. "He hasn't been identified yet, though the Press has given us every assistance. I fancy the poor fellow is going to recover, though I am afraid it will be a long job."

"He hasn't recovered consciousness, then?"

"No, and neither will he for some time to come. There seems to be a certain pressure on the brain which we are unable to locate, and we dare not try the Rontgen rays yet. So, on the whole you are likely to escape with a charge of aggravated assault."

David smiled grimly as he went his way. He walked the whole distance to Hove along North Street and the Western Road, finally turning down Brunswick Square instead of up it, as he done on the night of the great adventure. He wondered vaguely why he had been specially instructed to approach the house that way.

Here it was at last, 219, Brunswick Square—220 above and, of course, 218 below the house. It looked pretty well the same in the daylight, the same door, the same knocker, and the same crimson blind in the centre of the big bay window. David knocked at the door with a vague feeling of uncertainty as to what he was going to do next. A very staid, old-fashioned footman answered his ring and inquired his business.

"Can—can I see your mistress?" David stammered.

The staid footman became, if possible, a little more reserved. If the gentleman would send in his card he would see if Miss Ruth was disengaged. David found himself vaguely wondering what Miss Ruth's surname might be. The old Biblical name was a great favorite of his.

"I'm afraid I haven't a card," he said. "Will you say that Mr. Steel would like to see—er—Miss Ruth for a few minutes? My business is exceedingly pressing."

The staid footman led the way into the dining-room. Evidently this was no frivolous house, where giddy butterflies came and went; such gaudy insects would have been chilled by the solemn decorum of the place. David followed into the dining-room in a dreamy kind of way, and with the feeling that comes to us all at times, the sensation of having done and seen the same thing before.

Nothing had been altered. The same plain, handsome, expensive furniture was here, the same mahogany and engravings, the same dull red walls, with the same light stain over the fireplace—a dull, prosperous, square-toed-looking place. The electric fittings looked a little different, but that might have been fancy. It was the identical room. David had run his quarry to earth, and he began to feel his spirits rising. Doubtless he could scheme some way out of the difficulty and spare his phantom friends at the same time.

"You wanted to see me, sir? Will you be so good as to state your business?"

David turned with a start. He saw before him a slight, graceful figure, and a lovely, refined face in a frame of the most beautiful hair that he had ever seen. The grey eyes were demure, with just a suggestion of mirth in them; the lips were made for laughter. It was as if some dainty little actress were masquerading in Salvation garb, only the dress was all priceless lace that touched David's artistic perception. He could imagine the girl as deeply in earnest as going through fire and water for her convictions. Also he could imagine her as Puck or Ariel—there was rippling laughter in every note of that voice of hers.

"I—I, eh, yes," Steel stammered. "You see, I—if I only knew whom I had the pleasure of addressing?"

"I am Miss Ruth Gates, at your service. Still, you asked for me by name."

David made no reply for a moment. He was tripping over surprises again. What a fool he had been not to look out the name of the occupant of 219 in the directory. It was pretty evident that Gilead Gates had a house in Brighton as well as one in town. Not only had that telephone message emanated from the millionaire's residence, but it had brought Steel to the philanthropist's abode in Brighton. If Mr. Gates himself had strolled into the room singing a comic song David would have expressed no emotion.

"Daughter of the famous Gilead Gates?" David asked, feebly.

"No, niece, and housekeeper. This is not my uncle's own house, he has merely taken this for a time. But, Mr. Steel——"

"Mr. David Steel—is my name familiar to you?"

David asked the question somewhat eagerly. As yet he was only feeling his way and keenly on the look-out for anything in the way of a clue. He saw the face of the girl grow white as the table-cover, he saw the lurking laughter die in her eyes, and the purple black terror dilating the pupils.

"I—I know you quite well by reputation," the girl gasped. Her little hands were pressed to her left side as if to check some deadly pain there. "Indeed, I may say I have read most of your stories. I—I hope that there is nothing wrong."

Her self-possession and courage were coming back to her now. But the spasm of fear that had shaken her to the soul was not lost upon Steel.

"I trust not," he said, gravely. "Did you know that I was here two nights ago?"

TOWN NEARLY WIPED OUT.

Fifty Houses, Two Churches and Public Building At Summerside, P. E. I., Go Up In Flames—Loss $200,000

Summerside, P. E. I., Oct. 12.—Fire did $200,000 damage here yesterday, and insurance only $50,000. The electric light station, jail, court house and 50 residences were destroyed, besides the Episcopal and Baptist churches.

The fire is supposed to have been incendiary, and cut a path through the town a hundred yards wide and a mile long.

The fire began in a railway shed, and was fanned by the heavy gale. The town had only two hand engines and one steamer to fight the fire. The firemen and engine from Charlottetown save the Presbyterian church.

Summerside has a population of 3,600; has a cabinet factory, three saw mills and several shipyards. Eggs, oysters, produce and sheep are exported largely.

Of the population of 4,000 many would be homeless were it not for the hospitality of those who fortunately escaped the destroying flames.

The whole town had a narrow escape from destruction. A fortunate change in the wind saved it.

There were no fatal accidents, but James Kenny had his arm broken by being run over by a team.

WHAT COULD CANADA DO?

Lord Dundonald Asks Question In Writing On Imperial Defence.

London, Oct. 12.—(C.A.P.)—Commenting on A. B. Carman's article in "Canada" on Canada and imperial defence, Lord Dundonald, in a letter to "Canada," says: "If anything in this world is worth doing well. If Dpfff.. world is worth doing at all, it is at any rate worth doing well. If the empire, therefore, is worth defending, it is necessary to inform those specialists who are entrusted with the preparation of schemes for its defence, exactly how many troops will be available on the outbreak of war.

"These troops, if they are to be of real value, must be ready, not only in willingness to serve the empire, as every Canadian is ready, not only in spirit, courage and endurance, qualities which, from having had Canadian troops under my command in war time, I know them to possess to the fullest possible extent; but ready in arms, equipment, in an adequate supply of ammunition and material of war, with a personnel under the command of highly-trained leaders.

"How many men Canada could, at once on the declaration of war, put into the field under this latter condition is known to those who are responsible for her military defences and her place amongst the nations, and should be known and considered by every patriotic Canadian."

Britain's New Ships

London, Oct. 11. — The Daily Telegraph says it learns that the three so-called armored cruisers, the Invincible, the Inflexible, and the Indomitable, which are now being built on the Clyde and Tyne, are in reality a new type of battleship, having a broadside fire equal to that of the Dreadnought, and a much higher speed.

The paper says they will be the most wonderful ships ever built for any fleet, having greater offensive power than any two battleships now in commission, combined with extraordinary speed.

There has been some more or less mysterious secrecy regarding the vessels since they were authorized in the Spring of 1905, as was the case with the Dreadnought, and the present revelations come as a surprise.

The new ships will be of 17,250 tons, compared with the Dreadnought's 17,900, but they will be 40 feet longer. Their breadth will be 3 1-2 feet less than the Dreadnought's.

Each will carry eight 12-inch guns against the Dreadnought's ten, but their broadside fire will be identical, as the Dreadnought is only able to fire eight of her guns in broadside, while the new vessels can fire all of theirs.

They will be equipped with turbine engines designed to develop a speed of 25 knots, but it is likely that on their trials they will develop 27.

To provide for this high speed something in the weight of armor has been sacrificed, but otherwise the hulls will be constructed on the same principles as the Dreadnought's.

The object seems to be to enable them to overtake any foreign cruiser and sink it by their tremendous concentrated gun fire. It is expected that they will be shortly launched. When completed they will probably have cost £1,750,000 each.

The Bartered Bridegroom.
